OPP Police Dog Ends Kelly Saga

SUDBURY, Ont. (P) — Donald Kelly, accused murderer and cunning woodsman who out-foxed numerous police forces for 31 days, was under guard in hospital today after being shot and captured late Monday afternoon.

Kelly was suffering from buckshot wounds to the left lung and back, a possible broken leg, and neck and arm gashes apparently sustained in a fight with an Ontario Provincial Police tracking dog.

Police said late Monday his condition was serious but stabilizing.

The saga of Kelly, 36, accused of two shooting deaths and who escaped jail and took 24 hostages during his month of freedom, ended in the drizzly dusk inside an isolated hunting cabin, concealed by heavy bush about 15 miles northeast of this nickel-smeltering city.

His capture closed what has been described as the most intensive manhunt in Ontario's history.

Monday afternoon, a provincial police tracking dog sniffed out Kelly at the hunting shack and attacked him. The dog, named Cloud II and familiar to many Ontario school children through public relations visits, was shot and killed. Kelly was wounded with a blast from an 12-gauge shotgun.

DONALD KELLY

But, as he had done in the past, Kelly slipped away and police called in 150 extra officers to aid in the search. Many of these were sent into the area—not far from Sudbury airport—by helicopter and railway track-inspection carts, and 3½ hours later they surrounded the shack.

They lobbed in tear gas, rushed the cabin and took Kelly without further resistance.

Police would not comment on the incident officially but one officer said at least one rifle was found in the cabin.

There were no reports that police officers were shot at during the afternoon.

Kelly was taken to a Sudbury hospital by helicopter and was semi-conscious when brought into the emergency ward. He was naked to the waist and appeared pale and shocked, but his wounds were not visible to a crowd which had gathered at the hospital.

The McWilliams' bodies were found in a river in North Bay. Kelly was arrested in Edmonton and charged with the murders after a 5½-year investigation.

Nixon Questions Davis Integrity

TORONTO (CP) — Liberal and NDP leaders advanced plans for providing more Ontario housing during the weekend, while Premier William Davis said the Ontario outlook is brightening under the Conservatives.

The premier and Liberal Leader Robert Nixon also staged another round in a running controversy over the integrity of the government, which Mr. Nixon pushed to the point of questioning the personal integrity of Mr. Davis.

In a statement issued at his farm in St. George, Mr. Nixon came up Monday with his firmest definition of Liberal housing policy since the opening of the campaign for the Sept. 18 general election.

He pledged that a Liberal government would channel $72 million—set aside for government land assembly—into helping provide water, sewage, road and other services needed to help alleviate the housing shortage.

He also promised to cut red tape which he said delays subdivision approval and drives up house prices, and he called for the absorption of the government's Ontario Housing Corp. (OHC) into the housing ministry.

Leader Surrenders In Coup Attempt

QUITO (AP) — Ecuador was reported calm again today following the failure of an attempt by the army chief of staff to overthrow President Guillermo Rodriguez Lara.

The leader of the attempted coup Monday, Gen. Raul Gonzalez Alvear, surrendered after 12 hours when the army, navy and air force failed to join the single army unit supporting him.

Gen. Rodriguez, who overthrew an elected president in 1972, said "the most rigorous weight of the law" would fall on Gen. Gonzalez and all those who supported him.

The president accused "irresponsible politicians" of instigating the rebellion. A dusk-to-dawn curfew was imposed on Quito and Guayaquil, the country's two chief cities; leading civilian opponents of the regime went into hiding and government forces raided their homes.

About 80 troops and officers were reported under arrest. It was not known if any civilians also had been arrested.

Unofficial reports said 20 people were killed and about 50 wounded in the fighting around the presidential palace in downtown Quito.

Gen. Gonzalez laid siege to the palace shortly after midnight Sunday with tanks and about 100 troops of the Azuay armored regiment.

Ceremony Delayed By Political Talks

LISBON (Reuter) — A swearing-in ceremony planned for today for a new government headed by Admiral Jose Pinheiro de Azevedo was postponed because talks with political parties have not been completed, a spokesman for the presidency said.

A separate ceremony to install Gen. Vasco Concalves, former premier, as chief of staff of the armed forces also was postponed.

In a television interview Monday night, Pinheiro de Azevedo made clear that his government will be considerably different from the cabinet of pro-Communist officers and Marxist technocrats headed by his predecessor.

He said the pro-Communist information minister, Cmdr. Jorge Correia Jesuino, would be replaced by a civilian.

He hinted that he plans to resurrect the former coalition of Socialists, Communists and centre-left Popular Democrats (PPD) which collapsed last July.

The Socialists have confirmed that they have received an invitation to join the government.

The admiral said his main priority would be an atmosphere of "peace, order and tranquility, in particular in the North."

This indicated that his government would have a less radical left-wing program than that of Goncalves, and would seek to appease discontent in the conservative North.

Portugal's army leaders meet today amid growing discontent over the appointment of Goncalves, who suffered a further blow to his shaky position Monday when the air force turned against him.

Meanwhile, in Lisbon Monday night, about 200 military police refused to embark for Angola to reinforce Portuguese forces in the African territory.

MD Telethon Nets Over $18 Million

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Telethon ended Monday with a record total of $18,868,490—reported to be the largest sum ever pledged in a single humanitarian fund-raising event.

A total of $13,389 was pledged. It is the first time Belleville participated in the one-day annual telethon.

Two Belleville boys did their part for the campaign by manning a silver collection bowl in the lobby of the Four Seasons Hotel during the telethon.

Jimmy Briand, 12, and Collin Corrigan, 11, collected $91 from persons passing through the lobby.

"I can't believe it, but it's true," Lewis said at the close of the 21½-hour show, which originated from the Sahara Hotel here. "This proves something beautiful and powerful for me."

The Labor Day weekend event to raise funds to battle the disease began 10 years ago with a single station. This year's telethon was carried by a record 195 stations across the country.

Lewis has served as national chairman of the Muscular Dystrophy Association for the last quarter century.

Carnival Raises $274 For Muscular Dystrophy

Israelis Vote on Peace Pact, Ford Seeks Congressional Approval

JERUSALEM (AP) — The new Israeli-Egyptian agreement for a second Israeli withdrawal in the Sinai Desert went before Israel's political parties today for its test.

The Knesset, Israel's parliament, was expected to take up the agreement Wednesday after the parties determined their positions. Statements from political leaders before conclusion of the negotiations indicated it would be approved by a narrow majority.

Meanwhile, the Ford administration opened a campaign to win approval of the agreement by the United States Congress. This was needed because the pact provided for the stationing of some 200 American civilians at electronic surveillance stations between the two armies.

President Ford said if the agreement collapsed because Congress refused to authorize the American presence, the result would be "turmoil, increased tension and obviously a greater chance for war."

Although Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield and other influential members oppose the U.S. involvement, State Secretary Henry Kissinger has said he expects congressional approval.

Israel and Egypt initialed the new agreement in Jerusalem and Alexandria Monday after a 12-day diplomatic shuttle by Kissinger. If the Knesset approves it, representatives of the two governments are expected to sign it a day or two later in their capitals.

Earlier plans had called for signing of the agreement by both sides in Geneva, Switzerland, but an official source announced today the decision for separate signings. No reason was given for the change in plans.

The official said a U.S. diplomatic mission would carry out the signatory ceremonies.

In addition to the Israeli troop withdrawal and return of the Abu Rudeis oilfields to Egypt, the pact commits the two longtime enemies to refrain from the "threat or use of force" against each other. Kissinger said he hoped "the implementation of this agreement and the documents that we have initialed today will be remembered as that point where peace at last began in the Middle East."

Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin admitted there were risks for Israel in the accord. But he said these had to be taken to move toward peace, and the agreement may "open a new chapter in relations" with Egypt and in the Middle East.

"I think the agreement ... marks a turning point in the Arab-Israeli conflict," President Anwar Sadat said at the ceremony in Alexandria.

President Ford telephoned Kissinger and Rabin in Jerusalem and Sadat in Egypt.

"You can count on us to continue to stand with you," he told the Israeli leader. "You can rest assured that we will work with you to make sure that the agreement is carried out, not only in spirit but in letter."

Ford told the Egyptian president: "We will not tolerate stagnation or stalemate. You have my assurance that we will keep the momentum going."

Ford congratulated Kissinger on a "great achievement, certainly one of the most historic of this decade if not the century."

Sadat came in for immediate criticism from two Arab countries.

In London, Syrian Ambassador Adnan Omran, whose government seeks the return of the Golan Heights from Israel, said the pact was "a waste of time" that did not bring peace any closer.

Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy pledged unlimited support to the Palestinians in regaining "usurped" land "despite any agreement that might come."

FUTURE COOLING INSURANCE

Realty Ltd.
J. E. McKinney

You may pass up central air conditioning in a new house because you feel you can always add it later. This can be an expensive mistake because the price of adding central air conditioning to an existing house will run considerably more than in a new house due to breaking through walls, altering the heating system and so on. But waiting need not be an expensive mistake if you make a few low-cost provisions.

Tell the builder you want heating ducts which will accommodate central air conditioning too. Cooling requires bigger ducts. The furnace chosen should be one with a blower large enough for cooling and one designed to accept air conditioning. The electrical wiring board should have a spare 240 volt vircuit to handle the air conditioner.

These stitch-in-time provisions should reduce the expense of installing central cooling later by ten times the amount.

Park Attendance Figures Up

TRENTON — Attendance at two provincial parks in the Quinte region increased in spite of higher gasoline prices this year figures released by parks superintendents over the weekend indicated.

Superintendent Gerry Cox at Presqu'Ile park reported more than 192,000 day visitors and campers visited the Ontario government's popular outdoor summer vacation site south of Brighton this summer. "That was 12,000 over the number officially counted in 1974", he noted. He credited the improvement in attendance to ideal holiday weather in July coupled with cleaner beaches free of rotting fish and algae.

The park at Presqu'Ile provides employment for 25 school students along with maintainance personnel and permanent staff while it is open from early in May to September 14.

Public acceptance of the provincial park at North Beach south of Consecon village improved 40 per cent with day attendance reaching the 100,000 mark this year the official gate count shows.

The superintendent of North Beach park Bob Davidson reported his staff experienced no problems with rowdiness from youthful vistors and praised beach patrol personnel for their alterness on more than one occasion The patrol averted possible tragedy for swimmers caught in the undertow that becomes extremely dangerous when strong west winds generate real high waves along this stretch of Lake Ontario shoreline, he pointed out.

Lion's Share for Research

A breakdown of one dollar donated to the Muscular Dystrophy Fund shows the lion's share goes to medical research.

Seventy-three cents of every dollar is for research; 12 cents for patient services; six cents for fund raising; five cents for administration; and four cents for community services, reports the Muscular Dystrophy Association of Canada.

For the last 15 years, researchers held the theory the cause of MD lay within the muscle but the idea that the cause may lie in the nervous system, has been developed.

The nervous system provides the muscle with impulses to move, and it is thought it provides a nourishing substance which seems to be lacking in the case of MD, the association said, although this theory has not been proved.

The association also warns carriers of the disease not to have children to prevent the possibility of having dystrophic children.

The association was formed in Toronto in 1954 with the aim to find a cure for this disease which reduces the life span of a victim to less than 20 years.

He Fits Into Crowd

By SUSAN McCONNELL
Staff Reporter

He looks like the average person: not too tall, average build, brown-rimmed glasses and neatly-trimmed moustach. But while you and I are doing our weekly shopping and browsing in local stores he's watching for shoplifters to make their move.

Paul Gardener, a private investigator of Barnes Security Services, a Canadian Company, spends three days of the week working at Quinte Mall, while the remainder is spent downtown or wherever he's needed.

And there is a real need for security in most stores. "Shiplifting has increased quite a bit from last year — at least 100 per cent. I think it's because the prices are higher" he said.

But high prices aren't the only reasons people shoplift, says Mr. Gardener a native of Belleville. He said young people do it for kicks and older people do it when they think they can get away with it.

In his career he's caught everyone from a housewife with three small children to doctors, a priest and lawyers, one of them stealing a Playboy magazine.

And, said Mr. Gardener, women are the worst.

The 29-year-old investigator came to Belleville four months ago after doing security work in Toronto with Combined Investigators Company. He's been threatened, hit by a car twice and beaten up, once so severly, he lost his back teeth.

What does he watch for in the stores? People making their selections, panhandling items and their movements. "After a while you get a feeling about shoplifters and you're usually right,' he said.

"There's a sign right there in the store telling people it's a criminal offence to shoplift and plainclothes police are on duty at all times — it looks them straight in the nose but they do it anyway."

Unusual experiences aren't difficult to come by in his business. I've had women rip their clothes and scream rape when I'm arresting them. If I pick up someone who's a member of a minority group they accuse me of being prejudiced. And if I ever accepted all the bribes, I'd have more money in one week than I get in my pay cheque," he said.

Mr. Gardener who also works as a commercial artist, paints and writes at home. He also performs as a clown called Ambrose for children's shows, "It's a gesture to get away from everything," he says.

"People always ask me why I do this job and I always tell them I'm really doing them a favor."

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to only one call for assistance during a 24-hour period which ended at 8 a.m. today.

Monday, Sept. 1, 3:20 p.m. — Firefighters spent about 30 minutes putting out a garbage fire at Quinte Secondary School. Cause of the fire in the container is unknown.

O'Neil Says People Feel Tories in Power Too Long

Hugh O'Neil, Liberal candidate in Quinte riding for the Sept. 18 provincial election, says his party's 32-year lack of background in power has not made campaigning difficult.

The Progressive Conservatives have formed the provincial government for the past 32 years but Mr. O'Neil said in an interview Friday, "we're running a constructive campaign."

"We're pointing out to the voters that some of the Conservative policies were vigorously brought out by the Liberals," he commented.

Mr. O'Neil also said, "we're finding that we're being received very well by the people in the riding."

He remarked, "people feel that the Conservative government has been in power too long and that it is time for a change — and that the Liberal party be given a chance to form the next government to see what they can do."

"We realize that it's going to be a long, hard battle but we look forward to it," Mr. O'Neil stated.

During this past week, he has officiated at the opening of both his Belleville headquarters and his Trenton committee room.

The Belleville office is located at 257 North Front St. on the second floor above the office of his firm, Fraser and O'Neil Real Estate. The location is highlighted by a giant electric sign at the north end of the parking lot near the sidewalk.

To serve the shopping electorate in downtown Belleville, an information mart has been set up on the west side of Front St. beside Walker's Department Store.

The Trenton outlet is located at 69 West Dundas St. in the centre of the downtown section in the former Canadian Bank of Commerce building.

Mr. O'Neil has promised to maintain constituency offices in both Belleville and Trenton, if elected. "My obligation, if elected, will be to all the people of the riding — not just the Liberals," he said.

Promises Statement

The Liberal candidate in Quinte riding for the Sept. 18 provincial election says he will soon make a statement about his business interests.

Hugh O'Neil, owner of Fraser and O'Neil Real Estate with offices in Belleville and Trenton, said Friday he will have a statement later on his future involvement with his firm — should he be elected.

Mr. O'Neil said he is able to devote all his time to the campaign. His average day runs from 5:30 a.m. to 11 p.m.

"I'm quite lucky that I have a large, very dependable staff and a manager who looks after the office — and seven or eight vice-presidents on staff who are each brokers," he commented.

Mr. O'Neil earned his real estate degree (F.R.I.) at both Loyalist College and Queen's University in Kingston. He is a former vice-president and a current director of the Quinte District Real Estate Board.

Over $13,000 Pledged

First MD Telethon Over Top

By RON HIUSER
Staff Reporter

For the first time in this area, the Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Telethon has had a local campaign telethon and it exceeded organizers' expectations.

Marie Corrigan, local organizer for the telethon, said she hoped to total over $10,000 in pledges, but the 22-hour campaign had passed the $13,100 mark by Monday's 7 p.m. deadline.

Telephones were set up at the Four Seasons Hotel Sunday. They started to ring around 9 p.m. and they rang until 7 p.m. Monday night.

"I began organizing the campaign early in July. We eventually got close to 100 volunteers," said Mrs. Corrigan.

"The response has been marvelous for volunteers in this area."

Many local merchants volunteered their time and energy to make this effort possible, said Mrs. Corrigan.

"The Four Seasons Hotel has been wonderful. They have supplied us with the Trent Room as the centre, food and with coffee," for the 22 hours, said Mrs. Corrigan.

Other local companies which supplied food for the workers have been Kentucky Fried Chicken, Dixie Lee, and McDonalds, said the organizer.

Bob Saxby, owner and manager of McDonalds, said the company would give 10 cent of every Big Mac sold, Sunday and Monday to the M.D. Fund.

"I expect that will be over $200," said Mr. Saxby.

There was also a fish bowl at the McDonald's Restaurant which has turned in about $100 to $150 to the organization.

Mc Donald's has been active in the Fund for about three years and it is company policy to help with organizing backyard carnivals for MD through donations of equipment and drinks, said Mr. Saxby.

"It has been our pleasure to to be part of this worthwhile cause," said the owner.

The only over-head cost the campaign has was the price of the telephones, said Mrs. Corrigan. The average pledge has been around $10, she said.

"The morale of the volunteers has been really good, even during the night-shift when it was slow." Of the volunteers, Mrs. Corrigan said 50 per cent were students who did a "tremendous" job, the youngest being 11 years old.

Tom Nobles, the chairman of the Belleville Fire Fighters Muscular Dystrophy Fund, said for a first year, the pledges have been good, but hopes they will be better next year. The area public is reminded that contributions will still be accepted by city firemen.

But 1 p.m. Monday, Mr. Nobles had been working at the campaign for over 13 hours and he said he hoped to stay until the end.

"There are about four firefighters helping with the drive," said Mr. Nobles.

There have been many challenges for pledges, he said. "People and baby bonus cheques; businessmen; unions challenging other unions; and ethnic groups challenging other groups in the city," Mr. Nobles said.

In this past year, there has been one of the "biggest steps forward in science," he said. A doctor doing research at McMaster University in Hamilton has found something which looks promising", said Mr. Nobles.

Mr. Nobels said most MD children die from simple diseases such as "a common cold, or something we take for granted."

Willowdale Has Winner

Top prize in the August Belleville Yardmen Benifit Fund draw has gone to a resident of Willowdale, Ont.

In the draw made at the Yardmen Centre of South Front Street night, E. Leckie won the $10,000 first prize. Seller of the ticket was Robert Burgess.

Making the draw was Pete Zegouras, president of the Greek Canadian Orthodox Community of Belleville and Trenton and District, assisted by Lorne Foley, executive member of the BYBF.

Jean Harrington, of RR 2 Frankford was the $6,000 second prize winner, with Ann Wannamaker picking up $1,000 for selling the ticket.

Third prize of $5,000 went to Claude Scott of Napanee, with Ernie Hicks of Belleville selling the winner.

In the next draw, to be held September 30th, $34,500 will be shared by the winners.

Business Ethics of Multi-national Corporations Sink to Low Ebb

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

International business ethics as practised by multi-national corporations or companies deeply involved in overseas business are at a low ebb.

Large American corporations in aircraft manufacturing, natural resources and, of course, the arms manufacturers have been revealed as major users of the kick-back payments and involved in the practices of graft in many of the countries where they do business.

And it is big business. In the case of Gulf Oil, their admitted payoffs to the Bolivian government have been in the tens of millions of dollars.

Currently in deep trouble is Lockheed Aircraft Corp., which has spent about $120 million in various kinds of pay-offs according to a U.S. Senate finance committee and its chairman Senator William Proxmire.

What makes Lockheed's pay-off practices more reprehensible is the fact this company was literally saved from bankruptcy by a huge American government loan of $250 million, half of that figure if you like, having been used already by the firm in trying to solicit large overseas contracts.

Appearing before Senator Proxmire's Senate committee, not even the chairman of the firm who is beholden to the U.S. government, would admit there was anything wrong with his payoff business practices.

Until now, Canada had been free of any mention in the on-going hearings in the U.S. about alleged corporate payments to potential clients.

But now Senator Proxmire hints very strongly that Lockheed has made payments to Air Canada which bought nine Lockheed aircraft from the U.S. aircraft manufacturer with nine more to come.

Senior Air Canada management vociferously denies this. The American senator so far refuses to categorize his remarks and the RCMP is going to investigate the charges.

Lockheed is also involved in another potential multi-million-dollar aircraft contract in Canada in its efforts to persuade the defence department to buy its Orion long-range military patrol aircraft.

It is too bad Canada's name and that of the national airline have been mentioned in a trend which to a large degree has been practised in the developing countries, and where graft is often a normal and open way of doing business.

The other side of paying kick-backs on overseas business is that many Third World countries or their senior officials make clear payments must be made to open business negotiations.

In Spain, a major Western European state, any number of army or air force generals with power to buy or not to buy foreign weapons, earn two livings.

The first is as relatively under-paid senior military officers, the second as relatively well-paid "door openers" for the would-be foreign arms merchant.

Many Latin American and African countries are rampant with corruption, Mexico, Paraguay, Nigeria, Kenya being examples.

And the recent overthrow and quick brutal death of Sheik Mujib Rahman, founding president of Bangladesh, was brought about in part because he not only failed to control corruption but practised it.

Canada is not saddled with the stark economic and social disparities which force public servants to sit at someone's trough.

Clarification or revelation of what Senator Proxmire claims to know about alleged unsavory relations between Lockheed and Air Canada must be made very soon.

'People' Don't Decide

The Ontario Ministry of Transport is considering making Toronto Island Airport the Toronto terminal for a STOL network linking the provincial capital to various other cities in southern Ontario.

This annoys Bruce C. Morrow of Ottawa. In a letter to the Toronto Globe and Mail he says: "The future of Toronto Island airport (and waterfront park) should be decided by the people of Toronto, not by appointed bureacrats in the Ministry of Transport".

Bunk!

Today we have far too much government by committee. Mr. Morrow wants to make things infinitely worse by substituting government by plebiscite.

What we need is more government by those chosen to govern.

Mr. Morrow is part right. Bureacrats should not decide what should be done with Toronto Airport. They should only put into effect a decision made by others, by the people chosen by the voters of the province to make decisions, by the members of the Ontario Legislature.

It would not be correct to say that what is done with the airport is no business of Toronto residents. It certainly is their business — but not their business alone. When it comes to a STOL airport, other people have an equal interest.

And, while the fate of the airport is the business of all these people, inside and outside of Toronto, that does not mean that these people themselves have any right to make a decision. They don't. They have delegated their authority to their elected representatives.

Mr. Morrow is certainly within his rights, and indeed is fulfilling the functions of a good citizen, in raising objections to the establishment of a STOL system. He may be right — rising oil prices and the need to conserve fuel so that a low-cost inter-urban transit system may be established and operated may make the STOL project the height of folly.

But, please, no talk of the "people" making the decision. They don't know enough about the problem, nor have they the time to acquaint themselves with all the facts. For this reason they have hired people to make the decision for them. The responsibility rests with the members of the Legislature — and through them on the government of the day.

If the government makes a mistake, the people are not to be blamed. But they have the right to dismiss the people who erred. In this sense, and in this sense only, can it be said that the future of Toronto Island airport should be decided by the people of Toronto.

What's a Million? Bobby Orr!

Is Bobby Orr worth $1 million a year?

Ridiculous, you say.

That's $20,000 a week, allowing for two weeks' holidays.

But Orr doesn't work for a full year, only for eight or nine months. Allowing for training, say 40 weeks.

That's $25,000 a week.

But Orr doesn't work seven days a week or six, or five, or even four, most weeks. Say three days a week.

That's $8,333 a day.

But Orr doesn't work a full day, only an hour.

So that's $8,333 an hour.

But even Bobby Orr is on the ice only about half the game.

That's $16,666 an hour.

The average big league arena probably has something in the range of 16,666 seats. So that $16,666 an hour is a dollar per spectator.

As an old Macs fan, would you have paid an extra buck at the Memorial Arena if Bobby Orr had been in a Macs' uniform?

A million a year. Not so ridiculous, is it?

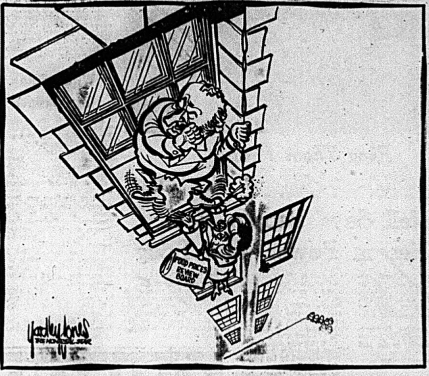
Generation Gap Lives

Watched "Truth and Consequences" on TV the other night.

The program investigated the "generation gap." There were two three-man—oops, three-person—teams. One was composed of teen-agers, the other of oldsters, well, over 30, anyway. The teams asked each other questions about their "time zones". The oldsters won.

This should surprise no one. After all, the teen-agers had never lived in the days of the Great Bambino and General Douglas MacArthur (although they got the latter query): "Who said I shall return?" Education is wonderful .The oldsters, on the other hand, though decrepit, still lived in the age of the Rolling Stones and motorbikes called "choppers."

All this is pleasantly inconsequential, but it chanced this morning that we were reading about something currently regarded as important, the rising cost of living or lowered productivity, or the need to expand the tourist industry. And the phrase "taking in each other's washing" occurred to us. It explains much of today's ills. But good heavens, who takes in washing today? With laundromats all over ,no wonder the kids think everybody over 30 is mad.



Real Estate Market Perking Again

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

The real-estate market is perking again. For house-hunters in Ontario and British Columbia, especially, that means a return to rising prices.

On average, across the country, realtors sold 23 per cent more units in the first half of this year than in January-June, 9.3 per cent higher.

Housing units changing hands in the 1975 period totalled an unprecedented 71,923, at a record national average price of $44,553.

British Columbia houses have the highest average price at $49,445, or 18 per cent higher than a year earlier. But the rate of price increase—painful as it may be to prospective British Columbia buyers—is down sharply from last year, when housing prices were running wild at a 42-per-cent inflation rate.

For the first time average house prices in Ontario are lower—slightly—than on the West Coast. Average selling price in Ontario during the first six months was $49,060, an increase of only four per cent over first-half 1974.

Saskatchewan prices this year were rising by 42 per cent—fastest in the country—to an average of $32,074. In the Atlantic provinces, average sale was at $34,113, up 16 per cent on the year.

At this time last year the boom in house sales came to a screeching halt. A house-owner who had been deluged with unsolicited purchase offers in August, couldn't find any takers in September—until the asking price was slashed.

The slump arose from a combination of factors, including the recession that was just beginning a year ago, the land-speculation tax introduced in Ontario in mid-1974, and record-high interest rates.

But the slump soon ended under the pressure of pent-up demand and the slow pace of new housing starts.

"Present trends don't indicate an early return to the wild price fluctuations and unrealistic asking prices experienced by the industry 18 months ago," says Blair Jackson, executive vice-president of the Canadian Real Estate Association.

Today's prices, he suggested, are the result of the continuing shortage of mortgage funds and the current high interest rates.

"Speculation has largely disappeared from the current housing market and over-priced properties are not generating any interest."

If scarcity of housing and urban land should force prices back into an almost out-of-control inflationary spiral, the prospects that the typical young married couple will be able to afford to buy will become worse than ever—especially while the country remains in a period of little or no economic growth.

A growing view among real-estate people is that most single families will have to abandon the hope of owning an individual house of their own.

The alternative is not limited to high-rise apartments. Increasing use will be made of something in-between, such as town-houses—a couple of generations ago they were called rowhouses—which make intensive use of costly land and permit economies of scale in the construction.

Although federal and provincial governments provide an array of financial incentives to encourage housing, the crisis continues.

Future incentives, it appears, may have to be slanted in the direction of multiple-dwelling-unit combinations.

Objects To Secrecy

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

The Intelligencer headline "Secret Council Vote Names Corke Mayor" told it like it is.

The city municipal muddlers in true Belleville - style democracy appointed one of their club to the mayor's chair in secrecy. The public again were not considered of sufficient importance to take part in the democratic process.

As it was, the only man on the council capable of filling the seat made it. Ben Corke will probably be a very good mayor — something this city has lacked for years.

One blessing of course, that goes with his appointment is the departure from the scene of Mrs. Robin Jeffrey. Perhaps the city can now move forward. And, for Pat Tyrell's benefit, if some other candidate pulls the plug on the blue tub, we may even benefit at the provincial level.

Can't Afford Carpenter

Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

How can a mill or office worker earning approximately $4 an hour to $5 an hour afford the services of a carpenter earning twice that amount?

The plain truth is that he can't. And it is something that members of the carpenters union — indeed all building trades unions — should consider before complaining too bitterly that they are losing jobs to non-union people.

While the unions may argue that most of the jobs involved are industrial, commercial or for some level of government, this doesn't really change anything. In the end industrial and commercial costs are passed on to the consumer, while it is the average citizen who finances government . . . whether this be through property tax, income tax or the myriad of hidden taxes that are used as revenue sources.

It is generally agreed that the only way to increase wages without fanning the fires of inflation is by increasing efficiency and productivity. Well, Cornwall and district carpenters will receive $3.10 an hour in stages over the next two years, bringing their hourly rate up to $9.86 (including benefits) by Nov. 1, 1976.

This represents a 46 per cent increase. We do not think it is humanly possible to increase productivity by anything near the same percentage.

Clearly, this is another victory for inflation.

For the second year in succession Bellevillians will receive a refund of 15 per cent on their Hydro bills. This decision was made recently at a special meeting of the Public Utilities Commission where it was shown that there is a sufficient surplus to warrant the rate adjustment and to allow for further extensions and improvements to the local system.

Election Interest At Peak

By DON O'HEARN

TORONTO — At the half-way mark I would say that this is one of the best election campaigns we have had in the province.

Not probably in terms of any great contribution to our public affairs or the solving of their problems.

But from the stand-point of public interest and involvement it should rank high.

For one thing there are three more evenly-matched leaders than we have seen for some time.

Davis, Nixon and Lewis are all men of considerable ability.

The premier perhaps lacks the outstanding qualities of leadership and the public faith that his immediate predecessors were able to engender, but he does have leadership capacity and if this isn't as outstanding as it was in the Roberts and Frost days, this means he is closer to his competitors and the race is all that more interesting.

Bob Nixon is a much-improved leader over 1971. He now is in to fight not to be nice and this has been showing in the much better reception that his audiences and the media have been giving him.

And the new Stephen Lewis, with his reserved campaign and nice-guy, family-man image also has more appeal.

Then there are more close and colorful local fights than usual such as Armourdale, with the flamboyant Mel Lastman against incumbent Phil Givens; Sudbury, with Bud Germa, Elmer Sopha and Mayor Fabbro; Cornwall with Father Villeneuve against incumbent George Samis; all the Ottawa seats, Welland and others.

There are, for a change, issues that are of interest to at least large sectors of the public. Education, regional government and stabilization of farm income being just three of them.

Then television promises to play a bigger part than it has in the past.

For the first time it could be really effective in promoting interest.

Between the leaders' debates and free-time telecasts, it should draw some big audiences and the actual shows should not be as dull as they have been.

Finally, and perhaps most important of all, there is the very sizeable uncertainty.

Normally at this stage in an election you have a pretty good idea, in general terms at least, of how it will turn out.

But not this time. How strong is the anti-Davis feeling? Is the public being convinced by Nixon or does it still feel that he personally hasn't leadership quality?

Is the Lewis low-key campaign winning him votes?

I think it is safe to say that there probably are more undecided voters in this election at this point than any in recent years.

You Can Lead a Gal to Women's Lib...but That's All!

Brockville Recorder and Times

You can lead a girl to women's liberation, but you can't make her partake of it.

This is the conclusion of two researchers who studied the careers and family aspirations of 87 women students during and after their four years at a private college. Dr. Shirley Angrist, a sociologist at Carnegie-Mellon University in Pittsburgh, and Dr. Elizabeth Almquist, formerly of Carnegie-Mellon and now teaching at North Texas State University in Denton, have published their findings in "Careers and Contingencies: How College Women Juggle with Gender".

As reported by Associated Press writer Susan J. Reimer, the two researchers found that during college, the women increased "somewhat" their desire to work and pursue careers. But while a growing number hoped to pursue graduate training, many others rested firm in their original family-oriented aspirations.

As the college years progressed, enthusiasm for deferred marriage and child-rearing waned. By the senior year, half of the women were going steady, engaged or already married.

Indecisiveness in career choice remained until the spring of the senior year, and after graduation, the majority of the women opted for traditional feminine fields. High school teaching was the occupation most often chosen.

The women unanimously agreed that they would work when there were no children or when the children were of school age and there was financial need. However, they rarely decided on a career for the money or status it would provide them, relying instead on their husbands' careers for those qualities.

The dominant conception among these women, say the researchers, is that life plans revolve around one's family situation. For most of them, the desire to work "is not a compelling motive".

What impact have the feminist movement and equal employment opportunities programs had on women?

"As scholars and activists, we must unfortunately reply that while the new feminism has certainly raised every woman's consciousness, it has by no means altered the lifestyles of even a minority of women," says Drs. Angrist and Almquist.

Traditional upbringing still causes women to underplay their own abilities and to strongly value family goals, they contend. Whether or not this is necessarily "unfortunate" is, of course, a matter of intense argument.

But in any event, it would seem that despite all the publicity that has attended the feminist movement, so far it has merely added a new set of pressures to those which young women have always faced.

Freud's old question still remains valid: "Woman — what does she want?"

Athol Residents Can't Stop Snake Conservation Project

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

CHERRY VALLEY — Athol township lacks a zoning bylaw and councillors can do nothing to prevent location of a reptile conservation project near Cherry Valley reeve Keith Perry told community resident Monday night.

Some 50 concerned property owners attended a special meeting with council and two representatives of the proposed reptile centre, Diane Gaberty and Tom Huff of Toronto. Both work with Dr. Geoffrey Gaberty who has been an associate of the Anthropology Departments at the University of Waterloo and McMaster.

Ms. Gaherty explained her group works with rare reptile that are close to extinction. All of the reptiles are harmless and relatively small, measuring from three to six feet.

She emphasized there will be no poisonous snakes at the centre and no Boa Constrictors. The reptiles there will be, however, members of the Boa family.

The snakes to be brought to Athol now are kept in a Toronto home where space is running out.

Ms. Gaherty said the move to Prince Edward County is being made to provide roomier facilities and the new crete block building under construction between Milford and Cherry Valley will be "extrem ely secure."

There are no windows in the building except for one in the office area and each room has a locking device under the door.

A spokesman for the project, Tom Huff, said human error would provide the only means of escape for the snakes individually caged at the centre.

If a reptile did escape its cage it would have to pass through three or four doors before reaching the outside.

"We have never lost an animal and in the last five years we have worked with 800 of them," said Ms. Gaherty.

She added that efforts will be made to breed the rare reptiles in captivity, something rarely accomplished.

"There are rare and endangered species and zoos all over the world want them. We will send the young to zoos and conservation projects across the world and possibly introduce them back into their natural habitat," she explained.

In addition to the snakes owned by the conservation group there are a number of turtles, tortoises, lizards and a pair of crocodiles.

The most valuable snake in the project is valued at $1500 and is described as "estremely rare."

Ms. Gaherty said the reptile centre eventually might welcome school children for tours and lectures but now focus is on construction and re-location.

The couple agreed that it could be put in writing for residents that no poisonous smakes will be kept at the centre.

Reeve Perry told community residents the Prince Edward County planning board met with the reptile centre spokesmen and referred them to the township council for discussion of their proposed project.

He added that Athol council was obligated to pass their application for a building permit as the proposed structure met all specificiation.

"There was no alternative," he said.

"We possibly errored but if it were next door to me I would at least give them a chance to prove themselves, he told Athol residents.

Taylor Offers Help

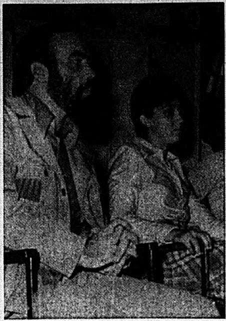
PICTON — Although he is "reluctant to interfere with the jurisdiction of municipalities", James Taylor, MLA Prince Edward-Lennox says he will assist in preventing location of a reptile conservation project in Athol if council seeks this support.

Mr. Taylor stressed township council has its own legal services available to determine a proper course of action.

"If council sincerely wants to prevent the operation of a reptile centre on that land and I am asked by the township and the people, I will take their petition to the ministry of health, the ministry of environment and the ministry of housing," he said.

"I haven't interfered in the municipal process apart from that," he added.

Community residents recently circulated a petition opposing the snake farm that gathered about 100 signatures.



Snakes Alive

Tom Huff and Diane Gaberty, two members of a Toronto group that plans to operate a reptile conservation program in Athol township met Monday night with concerned community residents and township council. Mr. Huff and Ms. Goherty answered questions for almost three hours.

Loblaws Robbery Foiled

TRENTON — A series of breakins discovered Monday spoiled what Trenton police considered a quieter than usual Labor Day weekend.

But trouble for the police might have been worse if safecrackers at work at Loblaws east-end store hadn't been disturbed and forced to flee the supermarket premises empty-handed.

The burglars left behind a shattered safe still retaining an undisclosed quantity of the store's weekend receipts. Power equipment and heavy hand tools they abandoned at the scene leads police to believe professional criminals are involved and they were frightened off by either a police cruiser on night patrol or plainclothes personnel on a surveillance mission.

In order to gain entrance to the building the safecrackers had to cut a hole in the roof.

Police also report a quantity of chocolate bars and soft drinks are missing from the canteen at the Orange Lodge hall on Ontario St. Police found a plywood door had been forced in this incident.

A breakin at the Community Gardens netted the perpetrators all the cogarettes and cash from a cigarette dispensing machine they smashed.

Hiroshima Pilot Remembers Past

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

He's just Paul Tibbets now, or Mr. T. as his secretary calls him, the bespectacled vice-president of a charter airline company in Columbus, Ohio.

Thirty years ago he was Col. Paul W. Tibbets Jr., the man who piloted the plane that loosed the terror of the atomic bomb on Hiroshima.

More than 70,000 people were killed and countless others injured and maimed as Little Boy detonated over the Japanese city with a flash more blinding than that of the sun and an ensuing mushroom shaped cloud that was to become the symbol of holocaust for later generations.

Overnight, the word Hiroshima was seared into history. It became a word like Aschwitz . . . Dachau . . . Dresden. Nobody ever had to explain.

Paul Tibbets: a perfectionist, a pilot's pilot, a man who almost became a doctor instead of a flier, a crack shot in competition, a teetotaller, a man who always took charge of his emotions. At first, he was a hero—the man who ended the war.

Later—in some circles—he became a goat for his role in man's first use of nuclear weaponry against his fellow man. He was rumored to be insane, a drunkard, a cold-blooded product of the military. His travels had to be cleared by the military and it was not until 1964 that the air force finally told him he could say anything he wanted to say about the mission that put him into the history books.

Secrecy was all important. Tibbets never even told his wife what he was doing.

"I learned to be the world's best liar," he recalls. "People were always asking what I was doing. I was always thinking ahead of what would sound logical. Then if I met someone six months later, I'd have to try and remember what I told him before."

Over the years, Tibbets, now 60, often has been quizzed about his role. People want to know if he felt remorse, if he had guilt feelings, how he differed from Adolf Eichmann?

Tibbets doesn't duck the questions any more than he ducked the 50 combat missions he flew pefore he was picked to organize and command the group that flew the first A bomb missions.

Sample: Is he proud of what he did that morning over Japan?

"I'm not proud that I killed 80,000 people, but I'm proud that I was able to start with nothing, plan it and have it work as perfectly as it did."

(Nobody really knows how many people were killed. It was wartime and there was not an accurate count. History book estimates range from 70,000 to 100,000 and one source reports 200,000.

The years appear to hve been good to that young colonel handpicked to usher in a nuclear age and change warfare.

Tibbets—30 when he dropped the bomb—stayed in the air force, retiring in 1966 as a brigadier-general. His wavy black hair, a little saltier these days, is full, his physique still trim. Except for the aviator glasses, he looks much like the man whose name and picture were everywhere back in 1945.

As vice-president of Executive Jet Aviation Inc., Tibbets still climbs into the cockpit occasionally, piloting one of the company's 14 Lear jets and two Falcons.

"I'm not as good as I used to be," says Tibbets the perfectionist.

Recently, though, he was good enough for the king of Jordan, whom he piloted around. The company, besides providing jets for hire, teaches flying and does maintenance work on other people's jets. It also does a lot of work in the Middle East.

Tibbets enjoys playing with a ham radio at his home in Columbus, which he shares with his French born second wife. His first marriage ended in divorce. One of his two sons by his first wife followed him into aviation and pilots the executives of Winn-Dixie wherever they have to go. The other son became a pharmacist.

Tibbets was in medical school at University of Cincinnati when he became fascinated with flying.

"I was spending every spare dime on flying lessons," he says. That, he decided, was where his heart was. Not medicine.

By now you should have been enumerated and have in your possession your proof of enumeration, Form 103. If not, and you are qualified or will be at the time of voting, you still have time to get on the list of voters. A qualified voter is a Canadian citizen or British subject, 18 years of age or over, who has lived in Ontario for twelve months preceding Election Day, September 18.

So if you live in an urban area and haven't been enumerated, simply fill in the coupon in this ad or give us a call at your Electoral District number shown and we'll make arrangements to get you on the list.

Rural Residents

If you live in a rural area, and are qualified to vote, it's much easier if your name is on the list of voters. And there's still time to get on that list. However, qualified rural voters, not on the list by Election Day, may still vote by having a friend or neighbour on the same list "vouch" for them on oath.

Proxy Voting

If you are a qualified voter, and enumerated, but will be absent from your polling subdivision and unable to vote at the regular or advance polls because:

a) you are employed in long distance transportation;

b) you are a member of the Canadian forces on active duty;

c) you are away attending an educational institution;

or, you are physically handicapped and unable to attend a polling place, you may vote by proxy in your Electoral District.

North Sea Soon to Become Largest Offshore Oil Field

ABERDEEN, Scotland (CP) When the North Sea reaches full production in about 1980, it is likely to be the world's largest offshore oil and gas province, according to a review of world offshore oil and gas activity, just published.

The Scottish Council gives a detailed picture of present and future offshore activity in 160 countries and assesses worldwide market prospects for equipment and materials in the industry.

The review says production in the North Sea may be surpassed only by the combined offshore production in the Persian Gulf. The Soviet Union is also likely to become a leading offshore producer in later years although, like the United States and Canada, much of the potential is in remote Arctic areas.

The combined gas and oil production potential in the United Kingdom and Norwegian sectors of the North Sea is likely to total 315 million tons a year by 1980. This compares with a prediction of 328 million tons a year from the Persian Gulf and 236 million tons in U.S. sectors of the Gulf of Mexico, the Gulf of Alaska and the Pacific Coast.

The review also shows that only about 15 per cent of the total area of continental shelf round Western Europe has so far been explored for oil and gas. Britain's most promising areas for future exploration are listed as the northern North Sea, areas west of the Shetland and the Celtic Sea off the west coast of Britain.

Western Europe is also one of the biggest market places for offshore equipment and materials. The value of new equipment and associated hardware and materials that will be needed in the area by 1981 is thought to be about 4.35 billion (10.1 billion). The development of production facilities such as platforms will account for 60 per cent of this. Some £3.8 billion of this total investment will be needed to develop oil and gasfields in the North Sea.

The new report is optimistic about Britain's ability to become self-sufficient in oil by 1980. It says: "Given reasonable back-up and the ability to manufacture and install the required 40 to 50 platforms in time, it is thought that production level should have reached 170 million tons a year by 1980-1982."

Exploration in the area is expected to continue at about the present level and the U.K. continental shelf is likely to remain one of the world's most promising offshore areas for some years to come. Apart from big finds already under development in the southern and central North Sea, the review says oil is believed to have already been discovered west of the Shetlands, while in the Celtic Sea both oil and gas strikes have been confirmed.

Psychic Promenade Operates in Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — There is rivalry in the new Psychic Promenade in downtown Toronto. But the competitors all call themselves psychics and will read your palm, chart your birth or divine the present, past or future—for a fee.

The promenade, on a second-floor walkup above a wax museum, houses mediums, healers, astrologists and fortune tellers.

Knock on one door and you enter a room, resembling a psychiatrist's office. Krishna Chavda, 30, may be sitting at his desk, poring over some astrological chart.

"I consider myself an astro-palmist," said Krishna in an interview. "Although I worked before, this is a 24-hour job for me now."

Krishna, born in India, had studied palmistry for 15 years when he decided to start working professionally three years ago. He was a teacher of economics and business administration at University of Bombay before he came to Canada.

After he received a degree in business administration at University of Western Ontario, he worked part-time as a palmist in a tea-room and decided to devote all his time to this type of work.

"I have built up a clientele here," Krishna said. "Of course, like any trade, we have good and bad days."

He said he senses some feelings of competition within the promenade. His fees from $5 to $20, are the average charges.

"There is a definite sense of rivalry here," Krishna said. "But money should be secondary in this work. For those who are serious, the promenade is encouraging a better consciousness of psychic awareness.'

Ann Dunlop, 33-year-old founder of the promenade, said she hopes the atmosphere is both serious and helpful.

"We wish to pursue research into psychic material," Mrs. Dunlop said. "We try to keep away from the bizarre. We don't want a carnival-like atmosphere."

Mrs. Dunlop, who classifies herself as a trance-medium, a clairvoyant in touch with spirits, has formed a company to sponsor the promenade. Psychic Development and Research Co. was established to promote investigation into the world of the unknown.

B.C. Mobile Mechanic Makes House Calls

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver auto mechanic has been beating the high cost of auto repairs by making house calls.

Heinz Niemetscheck calls himself the Mobile Mechanic and he works out of his own van, repairing Volkswagens in customers' back yards, on the street or wherever they break down.

He charges $10 an hour for labor on jobs that cost about $22 an hour at an authorized Volkswagen shop. He restricts his repairs to VW's but does tuneups on all makes of cars.

"I don't need the lights or the fixtures of a big shop," he said. "We have it right up there in the sky."

He said even a small garage will cost at least $500 a month in rent alone, and utilities, taxes and equipment further increase the overhead.

His most expensive pieces of equipment is his $3,000 van, although an electronic diagnostic apparatus cost $1,000. His only heavy equipment is a hydraulic jack.

He doesn't even have a business phone, but uses a personal number. Most of his business comes from word of mouth, although he has spent money on newspaper advertisements and flyers placed on the windshields of VWs.

Sometimes I drive past a person with a Volkswagen who waves me down and we fix the problem right there," he said.

Mr. Niemetscheck puts the same warranty on his work that garages do, six months or 6,000 miles. The only Volkswagen work he doesn't do is transmission repairs and wheel alignment, and "I don't fix flats, either."

Most of his customers are young people who can't afford big garages.

"I'm the next step between working on the car themselves and going to a garage. I'm sort of the last straw they cling to."

He doesn't charge for travelling time, but he puts a one-hour minimum charge on any repairs. He charges 16 cents a minute, and most customers will work along with him, further reducing time charges.

Mr. Niemetscheck figures he clears $6 out of each $10—an-hour for labor, well below the unionized staff mechanics' rate of more than $8. But he says he works longer hours and up to seven days a week.

Immigrants Taught To Speak English

LONDON— (CP) Inability to speak English in a country where that is the language is bad enough, but for the immigrant in Britain it may mean the difference between training and promotion, or nothing at all.

Now the British government has gone into action to break the language barrier and give a boost to about 100,000 immigrants.

The department of employment (DOE), the home office and the department of education and science have got together to speed the teaching of English to immigrants. The three government departments will meet 75 per cent of local education authorities expenditure in setting up units to give language training at offices and factories.

Already 18 authorities in areas which have a large number of immigrants are involved and some are pooling resources.

To support and guide these units the Industrial Language Training Centre has been set up in London where teaching material and aids will be prepared and tutors trained. The centre will see that resources are available to all local units and will act as an advice and information bureau.

Much has already been done to help immigrants with language problems. In 1969 the select committee on race relations recommended that language training at work should qualify for grants from industrial training boards.

The DOE has 14 advisers who provide a service to both employers and trades unions in industries in which many employees of overseas origin are engaged and they are active in pointing out the benefits of language training. Race relations employment advisers keep in touch with firms and other places of employment such as hospitals to discuss problems and seek solutions.

It is generally recognized that the lack of a working knowledge of English poses considerable problems for worker and employer.

Inevitably this leads to a sense of isolation—and sometimes to a feeling of frustration and of being discriminated against too—because promotion is often not possible.

If an interpreter has to be used, there must be a loss of production time, difficulties in sustaining quality control and even a danger that the safety regulations may not be fully understood and practised.

There may also be problems at home. The children of the family are learning to speak English at school and before long the parents feel that their traditional authority is undermined because children are better able to cope with new surroundings than their elders.

Some industries have taken pains to introduce language training, and of course there are plenty of local authority evening classes.

But evening classes are not ideal for workers. Those who cannot read English may not even know of them. Of those who do, some may be on a shift which makes regular attendance difficult.

The best place to do a language course is considered to be at work, and that is why encouragement is being given to employers to make instruction easy and to allow their workers time off for courses. The authorities have suggested that one hour a day—perhaps following the lunch break—for four or five days a week for 12 weeks, a total of about 60 hours, would be sufficient for most people to pick up a good basic vocabulary and understanding.

Lusty Elephants Strip Assam Girl

BOMBAY (CP) — Seventeen-year-old Poornima Kumari, the prettiest girl in her village, was gathering firewood in the Charbari forest in northeast India.

She was alone as usual. Girls in the forest areas of Assam state are hard-working and fearless.

Suddenly, a herd of 30 wild elephants surrounded Poornima. As a Calcutta newspaper reported, "They did not attack her. Rather, the tuskers trumpeted their lustful joy on finding a pretty girl alone in the forest."

One elephant, a huge fellow weighing nearly a ton, ripped off the girl's clothes. Then, as Poornima lay on the grass terror-stricken, the elephants circled her several times, trumpeting wildly.

After about 10 minutes, the herd vanished into the thick wood. Poornima was helped to her home by an old aunt who found her crouching behind a bush.

"Most Indian newspapers played up the Charbari forest incident as an instance of "elephantine lust for beautiful girls." Bombay Times' headline was Lewd Elephants Strip Girl.

Do elephants have an eye for human beauty?

Said a Bombay Zoo official: "I have never looked at elephants from this angle but it seems farfetched.'

But peasants living in and around forest areas say elephants are often guilty of roguish behavior.

Gopalan Kutty, a landowner in Kerala state, says a herd of elephants recently surprised women bathing in a village pond near the world-famous Periyar wild-life sanctuary.

"They started trumpeting when the women tried to throw coconuts at them. Two elephants even jumped into the pond to show their enthusiasm," Kutty said.

He added, "The intruders left the place only when the women came out of the water and went into the dressing cottages."

Quinte Cuisine

Dorothy Nicol loves cooking and these Sweet Potato Balls are one of her specialties. Mrs. Nichol and husband Ralph live on George Street. She's a needlepoint, bridge and reading fan and a life member of the Order of the Eastern Star.

Sweet Potatoes

2½ cups mashed, canned or cooked sweet potatoes
½ tsp. salt
dash pepper
two tbsp. butter or margarine
10 marshmallows
one cup chopped pecans
one-third cup honey
one tbsp. butter or margarine

Combine mashed sweet potatoes, salt, pepper and two tbsp. butter. Chill for easier handling. Shape in two inch balls with marshmallow inside each. Use ¼ cup mashed potatoes to cover.

Heat honey and one tablespoon butter in small heavy skillet over high heat; when syrup is hot, add sweet potato balls, one at a time.

With two forks, carefully roll in glaze, coating completely. Roll in chopped nuts.

Place balls so they do not touch each other in greased shallow baking dish or pan. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) for 20 to 25 minutes. Makes 10.

Paddles, an 11-week-old wild duck who lives on the Moira River near Carleton's Cove, is very aptly named.

Six weeks ago, when he was swimming along with the other members of his family - two siblings, Mon and Dad — a predator bit off one of his legs.

"We figure it was either a snapping turtle or a muskie," says Shirley Carleton, who with her husband runs the Carleton's Cove tent and trailer park.

Shirley, who regularly keeps an eye out for the ducks, expected the little duckling to die.

"The tendons were just hanging down," she says.

Instead of letting it die or killing the duck, Carleton Cove summer resident Ev Gowsell thought something ought to be done.

So, naturally, he made a wooden leg for Paddles.

"Physically the duck was not in bad shape except for the leg. So we caught it and cleaned up the wound, put on antiseptic and bandaged it."

The duckling tried to walk on the bandaged leg so Ev Gowsell decided to go a step further.

"I made the wooden paddle but the duck has grown so much I had to replace it this weekend with a longer leg with larger paddle."

Mr. Gowsell adds that the prosthetic device has been very successful.

"He's keeping up with the others - really going and growing."

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Green

Green — Sine

Leona Irene Sine became the bride of Wayne Douglas Green in an August 9 ceremony in Bridge Street United Church conducted by Rev. George Ward.

The bride is the daughter of Roscoe and Barbara Sine and the groom is the son of the late Mrs. Mabel Green.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white gown with a scooped neckline and stand-up collar. The bodice and bell sleeves were trimmed with heavy lace and the gown had a self-train. A headpiece of petals and beads held the shoulder-length lace-trimmed veil, and the bouquet was of pink roses and daisies.

The maid of honor was the bride's sister Evelyn Joyce Sine, wearing a green flocked nylon gown with an empire waist and bell sleeves, with matching trim on her white wide-brimmed hat. She carried a nosegay of white daisies.

The bridesmaids, Mary Wray, Sandy Smith and Anne DeRushie, wore peach flocked nylon gowns with empire waists and bell sleeves, and white hats with matching trims. They carried nosegays of daisies also.

Heather and Kimberley Sine, the bride's sisters, were flower girls in gowns matching the maid of honor's. Darin Marshall was ring-bearer.

The groom's best man was Rick DeRushie, and his ushers were Denis Marshall, Lenn McCaffrey, Neil Sine and Dean Marshall.

A dinner at the Elks Lodge followed the wedding.

After a trip to Florida, Mr. and Mrs. Green have made their home at 191 Palmer Road.

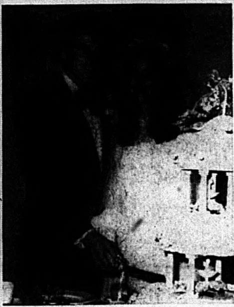
Bradley — Nolan

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was the setting for the evening wedding ceremony August 8, at which Rev. Laurie Sutherland united Anne Nolan and John Bradley in marriage.

The bride was given in marriage by her son Robert Nolan and attended by her daughter Barbara Vos. Kenneth Nolan, the bride's son, acted as best man.

A garden party reception followed the service, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Nolan.

After a trip to Niagara falls the newly-married couple reside at 30 Lesley Drive.



Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Squires

Squires — Dunlay

A double-ring ceremony at St. Michael's Church recently united Helen Marie Dunlay and Ralph Leonard Squires in marriage. Rev. John Grainger performed the service.

The bride is the eldest daughter of Mrs. William Dunlay and the late William Duplay, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Squires of Oakwood.

Given in marriage by a family friend, Waclaw Brona, the bride wore a gown of chiffon sheer over sharkskin trimmed with lace. A finger-tip veil, also trimmed with lace, was caught by a juliet headpiece of lace. She carried yellow roses and white daisies with ivy.

The maid of honor was the bride's sister Marilyn Dunlay. Her sisters Shirley and Linda Dunlay joined Jean Thomas as bridesmaids. All the attendants wore mint green gowns and carried cascades of white and yellow daisies.

Shannon Squires, the groom's niece, was flower girl in a yellow gown, carrying a basket of yellow and white daisies.

The groom's cousin Lorne Bagshaw served as his best man. His brother Allan Squires acted as usher with the bride's cousin Jerry Mahoney.

A reception at the Canadian Legion followed the wedding. After a trip around Lake Ontario, Mr. and Mrs. Squires have settled at RR 1, Oakwood.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael John Smith

Smith — Bools

Christ Church was the scene of the August wedding of Mary Susan Bools, Ottawa, and Michael John Smith.

The bride is the daugher of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bools; the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Smith, Frankford.

Canon Peter Tett officiated at the evening ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white matte jersey gown with chapel length train. Lace daisies and seed pearls accented the mantilla cap which caught her silk illusion veil. She carried white daisies and corn flowers.

Jane Robson, matron of honor, wore a floral silk chiffon over blue taffeta gown and carried white and blue tipped mums. Georgina Pickett and Margaret Ryan attended the bride in turquoise and pink gowns.

Doug Rothermel, Marmora, was best man assisted by ushers Paul Beaupre, Orono, and Don Denver, Ottawa.

A reception was held at the Fiesta Room of the Hotel Quinte.

After a wedding trip to Crowe Lake, the couple took up residence in Ottawa.

Indian Dancer Celebrates Women's Year

TORONTO (CP) — Rina Redi stood motionless. A rhythmic beat of a tabla began to drum out a melodic Indian tune. Poised, she jumped at the start of the music, and began the Kathak dance, using her feet, hands and eyes.

The classical Indian dance, previously performed in temples and for selected audiences, has spread to popular dance form.

Rina Singha (her stage name) teaches a world-dance summer course at York University. She performs Kathak regularly around Canada and plans to conduct a special three-day, mixed-media event to celebrate Indian dance for International Woman's Year.

As a mother in her-30s, with two daughters,she retains the glow and magnetism of a sultry dancing girl.

Rina came to Canada with her husband, Upendar, an accountant, in 1965. She had studied dance in India since she was a young girl and performed in the dance company, bharatiya Kala Kendre, in the Lucknow school style of Kathak, in New Delhi.

She went to England to study for her doctorate in geography at the London School of Economics. Dance taking precedence, she joined the Ram Gopal Company, performing on television and stage.

Rina's oldest daughter, Vinita, now 12, was born deaf. she and her husband decided to move to Canada to enrol Vinita in special programs.

"The move was difficult at first," said Rina. "Not many Canadians know Indian dance and London, buzzing with dance, was in sharp contrast with Toronto."

When she came to Canada, Rina first taught classical Indian dance at the National Ballet School and completed a book in 1967, commissioned by Faber and Faber Ltd. in London. Photographs of herself and others dancing illustrate the book. Indian Dances: Their History and Growth. It's co-author is Reginald Massey.

Rina also instituted a "Dancing-as-a-medium of - language" class, sponsored by an Ontario Arts Council grant, at the school for the deaf where her daughter studied for three years until going to regular school.

"I couldn't do anything but help my daughter," she said.

Rina has resumed dancing and performing. For relaxation, she is an avid folk dancer. Her schedule consists of at least two hours daily practice and preparation for her dance course at York.

Rina said she hopes that her Women's Year project, tentatively scheduled for November, will introduce more Canadians to the world of Indian dance.

She hopes to receive final word on a grant from the Arts Council to present the project, probably called "Nayika," meaning woman in Hindi. She said she wants to have sculpture, film, photographs, slides, music and dance in the exhibit to represent different roles that Indian women perform in society, such as motherhood, success, fighting injustice and peace.

"I'm very excited about the exhibit," she said. "The role of women will be celebrated through the expression of the arts."

Ann Landers

Worth Its Weight in Zinc

Dear Ann Landers: When "No Golddigger" complained that dental patients should be given their old gold crowns and inlays you beamed, "Your suggestion is worth its weight in gold."

As secretary to the Council on Dental Materials and Devices, may I tell you a better answer would have been, "Your suggestion is worth its weight in copper, palladium, zinc, nickel and a number of other elements that may be mixed with the gold."

Although expensive when purchased, the amount of gold in any single restoration has a negligible resale value. A patient would have to seek out a smelting company and pay for separating the various elements through refining—if the company would accept such a small order.

Even dentists don't cash in gold crowns and inlays until they have saved up a good number. If, however, a patient wants the old stuff for a souvenir, all he need do is ask.—J.W.S. Ph.D.

Dear J.W.S.: Thanks for wising me up. I'm afraid "No Golddigger" made some members of the dental profession look a little kinky, and I should not have allowed her to get away with it.

I checked with my own dentist, and he said you are absolutely right. So—two extractions with no novocaine for Yours Truly.

Here's another letter from an irate dentist who taped a tooth with a large gold crown to his letter.

Dear Ann Landers: Shame on you for lending credence to an uninvestigated charge against a dentist by a woman who said she had worked for him for eight years. If I am any judge of people, she didn't work for him, she merely collected her salary.

I herewith enclose an extracted tooth—complete with gold crown. I offered it to the owner who didn't want it, so it came to rest in my scrap gold box, which I cash in every 12 years. Please take it to your own assayer, and then, having determined the "tremendous value," donate the proceeds to a worthy charity.—Clayton K. Gross, D.M.D., Portland, Ore.

'Two for One'

HAMILTON (CP) — A country-wide chain store hires women instead of men to get two executives for the price of one, an Ontario Human Rights Code inquiry was told this week.

Janet Reddon, a former personnel manager with Zellers Ltd. until last year, testified that she received a written directive instructing staff to trim the executive payroll by replacing male managers with women.

Mrs. Reddon told the inquiry that in 1973 her district manager "told me in brief we could get an executive at half price by getting rid of men."

Mrs. Redden was testifying at an inquiry into allegations that the chain denied a 33-year-old Hamilton man a job because of his sex and marital status.

Kerry Segrave filed complaints with the Ontario Human Rights Commission after being turned down for a trainee position with one of the chain's stores here last September.

Mr. Segrave told the inquiry he was rejected because he was divorced and because the store does not hire men as personnel manager trainees.

He said he was told:

"We discriminate. We only want women personnel managers because women would not go to a man with their problems."

While admitting that divorce counts against a job candidate, two senior Zellers' employees said Mr. Segrave was rejected because of other factors including his appearance at the interview.

Both Mrs. Reddon and store manager Robert MacPherson testified that Zellers has no male personnel managers in Ontario.

Inquiry chairman Sydney Lederman reserved judgment on the case.

Use Instant Textbook

15 cent daily newspaper is becoming an important education tool precisely because it is daily and in print form, says Owen Snider, an elementary school teacher. "A newspaper is a current textbook with a new edition every day," he said. A report prepared by educational services consultant Dr. Kan Advani says the newspaper was especially beneficial in the area of creative writing or composition.

Don't just paint your house.
Draught-proof it.

Take time to seal off those little cracks and crannies where cold air finds its way into your home. Come winter, you'll enjoy the extra comfort...and you'll be conserving energy, too.

Valuable heat escapes around doors and windows, through narrow gaps where window and door frames are set into the wall, and where glass is loose in the frame. These conditions may account for 25% or more of the heat lost from an otherwise well-insulated home.

The remedies are simple. For doors and windows...well-fitting storms and weather-strip, and fresh putty for loose glass.

For the cracks around door and window frames, a caulking gun, and the right caulking compound. Your local hardware store or builders' supply centre will advise you on the best type, and how to use it.

Take these energy-saving measures now.

If we each save a little, we'll all save a lot.

Finance Ministers Exam Problems

WASHINGTON (CP)—Finance ministers from 127 countries today move into a sweeping examination of the world's economic problems, buoyed by a major agreement underpinned by financial leaders meeting aboard the presidential yacht Sequoia.

The International Monetary Fund (IMF) and its sister organization, the World Bank, opened their annual meeting Monday with speeches devoted to the severe and growing crisis facing poor countries becoming less able to import essential, life-supporting products.

Robert McNamara, president of the World Bank, and Johannes Witteveen, head of the IMF, argued strongly that world recession, inflation and the skyrocketing increases in oil and some food prices have left undeveloped countries without enough reserves to buy needed goods abroad.

McNamara said that unless the developed states increase financial aid sharply, poorer countries face stagnation and violence throughout the rest of the decade.

Witteveen called specifically for greater reflationary measures byJapan, the United States and West Germany. But U.S. Treasury Secretary William Simon and Hans Apel, the German finance minister, both said enough is already being done.

Simon flatly rejected any suggestion that new measures be instituted in the United States to re-kindle the economy.

As the meeting concentrated on what can be done to ease the problems, attention was still focused mainly on a major, unexpected agreement announced earlier.

The accord emerged from the IMF's interim committee, headed by Finance minister John Turner of Canada, and goes a considerable way towards restoring a measure of stability to the world monetary system.

It first began to take shape, sources say, during a luncheon of the Big Five — Japan, West Germany, France, Britain and the Uited States—held aboard the presidential yacht on the Potomac River Saturday. Turner was the only outside finace minister invited, partly because of his position as committee chairman and partly, Simon said later, because of his unique grasp of the issues involved.

Airport Closed

BERLIN (AP) — Templehof, the airport that enabled the bombers of the Allied airlift to break a Soviet blockade in 1948-49 officially closed down Sunday. Commercial air traffic through the East German air corridors to West Berlin will land at Tegel airport, a modern terminal completed in five years at a cost of $200 million.

Prohibits Yule Trees

The head of the import department of the industry and commerce secretariat, Eliseo Fuentes, said Mexico is producing enough trees to supply the country this year.

Rats Abound

PARIS (Reuter) — The French capital houses between four and five million rats, one for virtually every Parisian. They devour 200 tons of food and damage a further 4,000 tons daily, latest estimates show.

Evacuate Terminal

LONDON (Reuter) — A bomb scare at London's Heathrow airport Monday caused evacuation of the long-distance terminal building and flight delays. All people in the airport's central area were held back several hundred yards as bomb-disposal men blew open the top of a bag following an anonymous telephone call. The bag was found to contain only a vacuum flask.

Perth Mayor Dies

PERTH, Ont. (CP) — Perth Mayor Arthur Daines, 54, died suddenly Sunday at his summer residence on Otty Lake. He had been mayor since Jan. 1, and was a municipal politician since 1961, serving as councillor, deputy-reeve, reeve, and mayor. He is survived by his wife Eleanor and three children. Funeral services will be held Wednesday.

IDs for Sale

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — Two members of the Peel regional police fraud division say sets of false identification cards can be purchased for between $20 and $50 in Toronto. Lots of Luck In Northern Ontario

KAPUSKASING, Ont. (CP) — Kapuskasing and luck seem to go together like bacon and eggs.

At least it seems that way from the number of people from this area of Northern Ontario who have hit the jackpot in lotteries.

Already this year, Kapuskasing-area residents have won two $1-million prizes and two $100,000 prizes in lotteries.

The latest winners are 10 local people who will share one of the two $100,000 prizes from the Thursday, Aug. 21, Wintario lottery.

A spokesman for the group, Claude Drisdale, said Sunday that members of the group bought 1,000 tickets—at $1 apiece—and checked the numbers Saturday night when they were all back from vacations.

Drisdale, owner of a variety store, also sold the winning ticket in the first Wintario draw in May, when there was only one prize of $100,000. That time, eight paper company workers from the town won the money.

In February, two men from Hearst, 60 miles west, shared a $1 million Olympic lottery prize—one of the men later was killed in a car accident—and three women from Fauquier, 30 miles east, shared another $1-million Olympic lottery first prize.

The latest Wintario winners, who held ticket 71633 of series 24, will remain anonymous until they receive their cheque.

PCs Attack NDP For Election Laws

SUDBURY, Ont, (CP)—A Progressive Conservative campaign manager filed a letter of objection this week with the provincial election overseers, citing "intentional and unequivocable breach" of the election expenses reform act by New Democratic Party nominees.

The letter, written by John Gooderale to A. A. Wishart, chairman of the commission on election contributions, said the political action committee of the United Steelworkers of America, Local 6500, exceeded permissable donations to the three Sudbury area NDP nominees, all members of the last legislature.

Mr. Gooderale is campaign chairman for Joe Fabro, mayor of Sudbury and Conservative candidate in Sudbury.

The letter said that the union committee agreed to pay wages for union members selected by the candidates to assist in their campaigns.

It said Elie Martel, Sudbury East's NDP nominee, requested a union member to work for five weeks, Sudbury candidate Bud Germa for four years and Nickel Belt's Floyd Laughren for four years.

The letter said the donations amount to a contribution of approximately $300 a week.

"Such solicitation might be excused of a candidate running for the first time, who for some reason might not be familiar with the meaning of the legislation," the letter stated. Mr. Goodearle asked that appropriate steps be taken immediately by the commission against the three candidates.

The charges were denied Saturday by Mr. Laughren and Mr. Martel.

The market was steady for about two hours after it opened, but the price fell sharply within an hour.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Oil Brings Changes To Yakutat

YAKUTAT, Alaska (AP) — The tides still roll in and out and the surrounding glaciers still crash into the sea, but almost everything else in Yakutat is changing.

Big oil and big government are invading the fishing village, where for years bigness has been measured against the cloud-capped peaks of the St. Elias Mountains which rise 18,000 feet aobve the town of 540.

The influx brought by the search for oil on the outer continental shelf is producing signs of a new polarization overlapping the community's ethnic lines.

Yakutat will be a major staging area for oil development, if the United States government proceeds with plans to lease 1.8 million acres of the Gulf of Alaska this December. Already, waterfront land has been grabbed by industry in a town with no zoning laws.

Until this year, the Tlingit Indian and white populations have tolerated each other. Prejudices existed among both peoples, lifetime residents say, but the leisurely life-style and the adequate yields of the land and sea spawned civility and cordiality.

Now, many middle-class whites who own most of the businesses see big profits on the horizon, while many natives talk of "cultural genocide' and urge a delay in the lease sale while manoeuvring for a piece of the action if it comes.

"The natives talk kabout cultural genocide, whatever the hell that means," said Frank Ryman, a retired U.S. Coast Guard officer whose 20 years in Yakutat have been viewed from the porch of his dry-goods store.

"I say we're committing economic suicide if we don't get those oil companies in here."

Big government landed recently in a White House jet carrying eight congressmen studying amendments to federal leasing laws. Governor Jay Hammond and three of his cabinet officers arrived the same morning on a propeller-driven plane.

The latest joke in town, Commissioner of Natural Resources Guy Martin told the congressmen, "is that the first impact of . . . development in Yakutat will be the convergence on the town of thousands of people studying the problem."

Undersecretary of Interior Royston Hughes spent a day in Yakutat and talked with Byron Mallott, a native leader and former state commissioner of community and regional affairs.

"I got the feeling his attitude toward us was conciliatory and helpful," Mallott said. "But he made it clear that as far as the department of interior is concerned, the national interest compels it to seek the timetable on which they've embarked.

"In other words, goodbye, Yakutat."

Successful Tourist Season Is Enjoyed by Newfoundland

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Newfoundland's tourist season, now drawing to a close, has been a good one and indications are that summer visitors have been more numerous than last year's record number.

Figures won't be available until the end of September but the operators of ferries and airlines say the numbers of travellers increased this year by 12 per cent over last year's record 545,000 tourists.

Parks' officials confirm the travel boom, reporting an increase in the number of holiday vehicles from outside the province. The number of park users last year was up 20 per cent over 1973 and officials say "there could be an increase by that much again this year."

Some of the increase may be due to additional ferry service this year. A second ferry was assigned to the North Sydney, N.S.-to-Argentia, Nfld., run and four ferries operate between North Sydney and Port aux Basques, Nfld.

Despite the increasing number of travellers, however, the tourist industry still is a marginal one in Newfoundland compared with the other Atlantic provinces and ranks well below mining, newsprint and fishing as contributors to the provincial income.

Tourists spent an estimated $129 million spent an estimated 1974, about $3 million more than travellers spent in 1973, but last year was busier than normal because of celebrations of the province's 25th year in Confederation.

One sure sign of the increasing tourist traffic is the number of new service stations and restaurants sprouting along the Trans Canada Highway.

At one time the drive along the highway was devoid of any sign of civilization except for the odd bridge, distant small community or campground. Now you can "fill 'er up" at practically any point.

Most of the visitors here are from central Canada and Americans, with the former making up about 50 per cent of the tourist traffic last year and those from the U.S. about 44 per cent.

The province is also becoming popular with conventions. The Canadian Dental Association recently had 2,500 delegates and guests at their annual meeting in St. John's and were followed by about 2,500 at the Kinsmen's Clubs of Canada.

Local hotels and motels are putting on a drive to improve their part in the convention swirl.

The greatest problem is a lack of trained staff, but district vocational schools are responding to encouragement from the industry by creating courses in areas that need to be developed and are also creating a mobile training service.

Fish From Wheelchairs

LONDON (CP) — The needs of the disabled who like to go fishing will be considered by a committee set up by the National Anglers' Council. It will encourage the promotion of facilities and equipment for such people and draw up a national register of angling clubs where disabled people are welcome. Measured by the number of people who do it, fishing is Britain's most popular country sport.

Banff Is Losing Tourist Appeal

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — The old rapport between tourists and residents of this famous Rocky Mountain resort is dwindling, says a woman who grew up with the tourism industry here.

Eleanor Luxton, whose father started The Trading Post, says Banff citizens are too concerned with the "almighty dollar" and won't give services.

"The tourists are our livelihood. If they get the treatment I get when I go out, they're not going to come back.'

Miss Luxton appears to be a prophet.

Bookings in motels and hotels were down during the first part of the summer, restaurant business was slower than last year and tour operators have cancelled some tours.

One motel owner said business dropped about five per cent in June. The posh Banff Springs Hotel reported a 10-to 15-per-cent decline in June.

There are indications that fewer Americans than before are coming to Banff. One motel operator estimates his U.S. business was 80 per cent four years ago and now is 60 per cent. Licence plates from the Midwestern states and California are not as numerous as in past years.

The decrease in visitors is reflected in campground use through Banff National Park. There were 31,485 campers in June, 322 less than June, 1974.

More startling are figures from the Dominion Day holiday weekend. Campground use totalled 8,457, a drop of 1,175 from 1974.

Miss Luxton says townspeople used to trust tourists, but today that trust is gone.

"They're (townspeople) in too big a hurry to get back to the job. And also the tourist is in a hurry."

In the old days, she recalls, residents always spoke to strangers and asked if they could help in any way.

"Banff was a pleasant, friendly town," but all that changed after the Second World War when people became more concerned with money.

Miss Luxton, the first woman hired as an engineer by Canadian Pacific Railway, has returned to Banff to retire. When she talks about her hometown in the mountains, she keeps coming back to God.

Pinpoints Power Failure

MONTREAL (CP) — An investigation is to begin today into the cause of a power failure which blacked out most of Quebec province for several hours during the weekend.

Hydro-Quebec officials said company engineers at the Manicouagan power project, 400 miles northeast of Quebec City, are expected to pinpoint the trouble during the day.

The blackout, which occurred at about 5 p.m. EDT Saturday, affected Hydro—Quebec's entire service region including parts of northwest New Brunswick. Service was restored to most areas within four hours.

Police throughout the province reported no major traffic accidents during the blackout, although most traffic lights were put out of action.

Guy Hogues, a Hydro-Quebec official, said Monday the break occurred somewhere along a 735,000-volt line connecting the Manicouagan project and the Churchill Falls hydroelectric facilities in Labrador with Levis, a Quebec City suburb.

Hydro workers tried to switch power to two parallel standby lines when the main one failed, but the system overloaded and "the whole thing blacked out," Mr. Hogues said.

Candidate Was Not Upstaged

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — James Bullbrook was not about to let Premier William Davis upstage him in his own riding Monday.

Mr. Bullbrook, Liberal member of the legislature for Sarnia, was invited to walk in a Labor Day parade with NDP candidate Ivan Hillier and Progressive Conservative candidate Carl Fleck.

Mr. Davis, flanked by Mr. Fleck and Mr. Bullbrook, lined up to walk the one-mile route.

As the procession got under way, Mr. Bullbrook moved to the curb and began shaking hands with the crowd. Mr. Davis saw the friendly response the crowd was giving Mr. Bullbrook and less than a block later, he was at the curb with a competing handshake.

At one point, Mr. Fleck introduced Mr. Davis to a bystander. The next thing the premier knew, Mr. Bullbrook was tugging at his sleeve and directing him toward a face in the crowd.

Ottawa Cancels Legal Action Against Controllers

OTTAWA (CP) — Government officials have cancelled plans for legal action against the Canadian Air Traffic Control Association in the wake of a decision Saturday by controllers to call off their strike, a treasury board spokesman said Sunday.

The government had sought a hearing before the public service staff relations board Monday, requesting a declaration that any existing strike by the controllers be declared illegal and asking for action against leaders who had encouraged a strike.

But following a meeting Saturday between Transport Minister Jean Marchand and national leaders of the controllers, the strike planned by the union for Sunday was called off.

A walkout would have been illegal and would have virtually halted all commercial air traffic in the country.

A compromise arrangement was reached between the two parties Saturday morning, removing the threat of a strike that could have disrupted travel plans for thousands of vacationers.

Under the agreement, the controllers and the government will begin talks this week to investigate possible safety hazards that the union says will arise from a transport department plan to transfer some work duties to control assistants.

The assistants are members of another union, the Public Service Alliance of Canada.

Jim Livingston, president of the controllers' union, had said the walkout was planned because of the possibility of accidents if assistants were given the work.

Jack Davis Joins Social Credit Party

VANCOUVER (CP) — Former federal cabinet minister Jack Davis said Monday he has turned in his Liberal party card in favor of a membership in the Social Credit party.

The former MP for Capilano, defeated in the 1974 general election, said he does not yet know whether he will run in the next British Columbia election. "I've simply joined," he said.

"I think Social Credit is the only party that can form a (provincial) government that is capable of expressing the objectives I'm interested in," he said in an interview. "I'm still a Liberal—I believe in Liberal principles (but) I think this is the party in which I can be most effective.

"I don't think the B.C. Liberals can make it."

Mr. Davis said that having lost the last federal election to Conservative Ron Huntington he faced a long wait before he would have a chance at federal elective office again, so he decided to join Social Credit and to get back into active politics.

Asked how he would respond to critics who might term his action opportunistic, Mr. Davis said he didn't see it that way.

"I suppose if I'd been opportunistic I would have hung around the federal Liberals and hoped for some kind of appointment," he said.

Authorities Investigate Niagara River Mishap

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Canadian and United States government authorities, four police forces and the U.S. coast guard will investigate an experimental raft ride on the turbulent Niagara River below Niagara Falls which resulted in three deaths and 20 injuries Friday.

U.S. police said Sunday they will lift the 37-foot black rubber raft by air to the U.S. side of the river where it will be examined in an effort to determine why it overturned near the Whirlpool Rapids.

The raft, owned by Niagara River Gorge Trips Inc. of Toronto, was on its 11th test run since Aug. 19 when it hit a large wave, shot straight up into the air and overturned, pitching its 29 passengers into the deepest part of the river.

Police said all the riders were wearing lifejackets. Some of the 26 survivors said they either swam or let currents carry them to the Canadian shore. Many were plucked from the water by helicopter crews.

RIDE 'A RISK'

A U.S. Coast Guard official said later that the ride was "an unnecessary risk and an unwarranted thrill."

The U.S. Coast Guard had been assured earlier that there would be no passengers on the test runs, said Commander C. S. Weatherell, in charge of marine inspection for the Buffalo, N.Y. zone.

Along with an investigation into the cause of the accident, "we will determine if those aboard were passengers in the legal sense or not," he said.

No certificate of inspection was issued to the raft operators because the company assured the Coast Guard that riders would not be passengers as defined by law, he said.

The New York State department of parks and recreation cancelled the company's licence immediately after the accident.

Travel agent George Butterfield of Toronto, one of the owners of the company who witnessed the accident, said the project was "a disaster and a calamity," and will be abandoned.

Other investors from Toronto are Philip Grey, a real estate broker, lawyer William Graham and stockbroker Arthur Labatt.

Operators Accept Contract

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal treasury board and the Public Service Alliance of Canada, representing 1,100 radio operators, agreed Saturday to accept a majority conciliation report as the basis for a two-year collective agreement.

The conciliation report, accepted in a recent vote by the operators, provides the employees with a first-year pay increase of $2,180 and a second-year raise of 11 per cent. The agreement dates back to June 30.

At the expiry of the last contract, the majority of operators were paid between $9,278 and $12,438 annually.

The agreement was reached after weekend negotiations. During conciliation, the government representative on the three-member board rejected the majority proposal.

Instead, he had proposed pay increases of 11 per cent and nine per cent.

Union Office Workers Double in Five Years

OTTAWA (CP) — The proportion of office workers covered by union contracts has nearly doubled in the last five years to about 33 per cent of the total number of employees in that category, a federal labor department survey shows.

The survey also shows that despite an increasing number of experiments with three-and four-day work-weeks, the overwhelming majority of employees still spend five days a week at their jobs.

PROVINCIAL ELECTION

Our choice is Bob Nixon

Premier William Davis is a master politician, expert at sniffing political winds and shifting his stands to follow public opinion. But after 32 years in office, the Conservative government is tired and running out of new ideas. There's a great emphasis on promises — government by public relations, so to speak—but not much energy for really solving problems.

In our view it's time for a change—time for a new government that will sweep away the accumulated cobwebs and bring fresh thinking to tough issues.

Ontario is a splendid place to live and it owes much to its Tory past. Davis' predecessors—George Drew, Leslie Frost and John Robarts—often used bold policies to lay a base for economic growth and material well-being.

But this is history, much of it distant. The Davis government has run out of bold approaches and ideas. Instead, it papers over problems without resolving them.

Transportation is an outstanding example. Davis killed the Spadina Expressway as a key tactic to demonstrate his decisiveness before the 1971 provincial election. Now he has partially revived it to appease local complaints because he had no other solution for the real problems of travellers in northwest Metro.

On paper the government has excellent housing programs to assist home-ownership for middle-and lower-middle income groups. But in practice the houses are not getting built because the government won't take the hard step of over-riding municipal opposition.

It would be unfair to say that there are easy solutions to these or any of the other major problems facing government today. But for at least a year past, the actions of the Davis government suggest an obsession with public relations and the absence of any settled principle or purpose beyond getting the Tories elected one more time.

The Star believes it's time to clean house and give someone else a chance. Our preference is the Liberal party under Bob Nixon.

Nixon is one of those thoroughly nice, capable reliable men who often are taken for granted. He lacks a flair for public relations and in eight years of leadership and two previous elections he has failed to ignite the electorate.

But perhaps what is needed most for today's problems is not flair and public relations, but someone who will bring a workmanlike desire to come to grips with them and solve them. All these are qualities Bob Nixon has.

In this campaign he has struck a responsive chord with his concern for the declining quality of education. Parents share his call for teaching basic subjects which young people need to learn to prepare for adult life.

His emphasis on an adequate supply of housing at affordable prices also touches broad masses of people, especially young families seeking their first home. There is no shortage in Ontario of land or building materials and the construction work-force is under-employed. Surely these can be brought together to build the houses needed.

The Liberals have long recognized that the issue of "automobiles versus people", as it is presented by the Davis government, is a phony one, and that any sound policy must balance public transit with a system to move cars and trucks.

The other alternative is the New Democratic Party. It has demonstrated a concern for ordinary people and under Stephen Lewis it has done an effective job of adjusting its image to the moderate spirit of Ontario.

But it is still the home of doctrinaire Socialists who, like their counterparts in the Briish Labor party, would prefer to share poverty equally rather than create a widely if imperfectly distributed wealth. And the NDP is excessively dependent on powerful trade unions. No relief from inflationary wage claims and industrial and civil service strikes can be expected from that quarter.

So the NDP qualifies admirably as a strong opposition party, but not more.

The Star's choice, then, to bring fresh perceptions and new ideas to Queen's Park is Bob Nixon. A Liberal government, we hope, woud reinvigorate the political process and a civil service made stale by the long reign of one party. The Liberals should be given an opportunity to show what they can do.

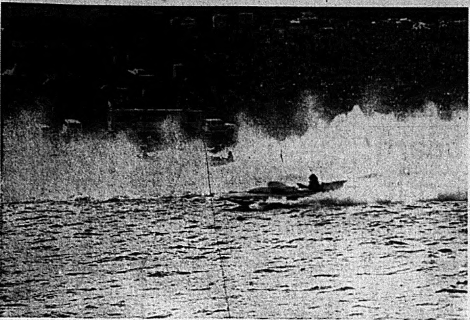
BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 2, 1975



White water roostertails is all one can see in the start of the final of the Grand Prix class in the Prince Edward Gold Cup Rose, Sunday, won by Noel Mead of Ottawa. In the foreground is Sudden Seven, driven by Bert Westguard, while in the background a section of the Sunday crowd of about 16,000 take in the action from the viewing area on the J. B. Cole farm.

World Championships in '76

PICTON — Even before the 1975 version of the Prince Edward Gold Cup Races had started, planning for the 1976 edition had started, with the feature race of the '76 races which will be in the form of a World Championship.

The World race was announced at a press conference here Saturday at the Prince Edward Yacht Club.

The class will be the five litre inboards, one of six world races to be held in Canada next year, being billed as "Worlds '76". The six will include three races at Valleyfield, Quebec, on the July 10 weekend, one at Ottawa, one at Toronto, and the five litre at the Hayward Long Reach site.

"We'll be changing the format of the weekend, by building the races around the world championship", said Gold Cup chairman John Sibthorpe.

About 20 boats will be expected from 15 or so countries, including boats from the United States, Mexico, Germany, Italy, Switzerland, Australia some South American countries, as well as from Canada. All the entries will be of top notch calibre, although any boat could concievably enter that met the classification standards in the open race.

dian Boating Federation director.

"The prize money won't be as important as raising the support money to bring all the top racers here", said Canator Vic Waring. "It will probably take about $25,000 just to get the boats here."

In any case, the world championship to be held in Picton will be a great boost to the Gold Cup Races themselves.

Weather Plays Havoc

— The general word about the Cole Farm, site of the Gold Cup races, was disappointment, as Monday's card of racing was called by umpire Vic Waring.

Most of the approximately 7,000 fans who were on hand, for Monday's races despite threatening weather, stayed on to about 4 p.m., when the announcement was made. After that, about 1,000 remained in anticipation of the running of the heats of the S.J. and sportscraft, which never did make it to the water Sunday or Monday.

The S class didn't make it on Sunday, due to darkness and along with the S.J. final, was finally cancelled at about 6:30 Monday by Waring. The lateness on Sunday was due to the tremendous registration of 141 boats, about 20 more than had been expected by race officials.

"It's sure a big disappointment for everybody," said race chairman John Sibthorpe, "not only the spectators, but the drivers and officials as well. But there's no way we can control the wind. The weather hasn't been able to dampen our spirits. We are already working on the '76 program, with the world championship race here."

Umpire Vic Waring, in his usual concise phraseology said only, "we sure can't do any racing in winds like that."

He said it all.

Bardon Team On Title Trail

Bardon Supplies, playing out of Picton, wrapped up the Eastern Ontario title in Ontario Amateur Softball Association Intermediate B play, Saturday in Grafton and Monday, opened a three-game Central series in Markham with another victory.

Saturday's win, an 11-6 romp over Cobourg in the third and deciding game of the Eastern final, came during a barrage of hits from both sides. The winners made the most of their 15 safeties while Cobourg had fewer of their 13 hits come with men in scoring position.

Earl Foster and Ken DeMille shared the Bardon pitching, striking out eight and walking one. Roger Alexander went the route in defeat, fanning 10 and walking one.

Rob Wallwork slammed a home run and triple for Bardon while DeMille checked in with a double and three singles; Denis Neron and Ted Wallwork had three singles each and Foster singled and doubled.

Monday's match at Markham was nip and tuck. Bardon pulled it out 4-3 and take a 1-0 series lead into Game 2 scheduled for Belleville's Alemite Park, Wednesday at 8.30 p.m.

Foster gave up eight hits while gaining credit for the victory. He struck out seven and walked one. Loser was John Annis on a nine-hitter. He fanned seven and walked one.

Rob Wallwork again supplied the heavy hitting for the winners, connecting for a homer and double. Marv Stacey doubled and singled and DeMille singled twice.

Bardon's OASA commitment Monday forced cancellation of the Quinte Fastball League final with Devolin Motors. That series, tied 1-1, resumes at Alemite Field tonight at 8 p.m.

Bantams, Peewees Losers

The Belleville Downtown Merchants came up with nothing but errors in their Ontario Amateur Softball Association Bantam A game with North Bendale Saturday, literally dropping the game 6-0, and the series 2-1.

The Merchants committed 10 errors in the field, and combined with Bendale's seven hits, were eliminated from further OASA play.

Tim Soule pitched the game for Belleville, allowing seven hits, striking out nine and walking only one over the nine inning game. Barry Holt struck out 17 Belleville batters in fashioning the win with a five hitter. He walked none and hit one batter.

Paul Marineau led the losers with a double and single, with Clarence Broekema singling twice. Ron Begley rounded out the attack with a base hit.

Mike Kightly had a three bagger for the winners, adding a single, while Derek Brough banged a double.

In the peewee contest that preceded the bantam game, Scarborough Cedar Hill came up with a 6-2 win over Belleville SACO in the first game of their inter-zone playoffs.

The winners banged out 10 hits, while pitcher Jim Martindale stifled Belleville on only two bunt singles. Martindale had two strikeouts.

John Munkittrick was on the Belleville rubber for the loss, whiffing four and walking none.

Steve Lawry and Mike Wood were the only Belleville hitters to touch Martindale.

The second game of the series will be played in Scarborough on Saturday, with the time for the contest not yet finalized. If necessary, the third and deciding game will be played immediately followong the second.

Wins Gold Cup Without Racing

By ALAN TEBWORTH
Staff Sportswriter

HAYWARD LONG REACH— Noel Mead knew he had a shot at winning the Prince Edward Gold Cup after his performance in the Grand Prix class at the close of Sunday's races here, the first of two days of racing.

Little did he know that he would be the winner of the Cup without even entering the water at the Narrows, about 10 miles east of Picton, for the second leg of the races.

The same applied to all drivers in all categories that ran in the fourth renewal of the races since 1972. None knew they would win their respective inboard or sportscraft classes without getting wet on Monday.

Despite menacing weather reports, the skies cleared Saturday night and an ideal day of racing took place Sunday, with a record 30 heats being run. Reports had it the weatherman would co-operate for Labor Day also, with record crowds expected by race officials.

Such was not the case as boaters from three countries lined up to get into the water Monday morning. Overcast conditions prevailed, with the threat of rain hanging overhead and a 30-mile-per-hour wind coming directly down the narrows of the Long Reach making it impossible to control the high powered boats on the five-foot swells.

Race officials decided to wait, seeing if an imminent change in the cloud would arrive. The change never did occur and at about 4 p.m. the day's program was cancelled by official umpire Vic Waring.

The previous day's results would be the final over-all, without the second divisions, although two classes were not completed and one hung in limbo due to a protest.

The S class did not get into the water in either of the days, a disappointment to many. The S and SJ classes of sportscraft (outboard) were not decided and along with them, no North American champion for '75. Due to the protest, the FJ class was not finalized, and may not be for several weeks.

In the Grand Prix class, the most prestigious, Mead, 33, managed a third place finish in his qualifying heat, and won the final, he needed to win top honors of the Gold Cup, as well as the North American Championship.

He had been one of the favorites to win the race, driving the boat GP-21, powered by a super-charged 427 Chrysler engine. The former Miss Ottawa boat ripped over the slightly choppy waters Sunday at speeds over 150 miles per hour in the chutes.

"I looked down once at the water speedometer, and it read about 160," said Mead. "But they aren't all that accurate at times. I just ran the boat to its best all around the course, through the straights, and the corners, and it paid off."

The win was a nice one for Mead and his crew. Last year the boat made it to the event, but no farther.

The boat had blown its engine in Dayton, Ohio, after breaking a speed record. He had managed a two lap race at a 110 mph average clip (12 over the record), but had to shut down just several feet from the line, and the record was not recognized. He used the crane at Picton last year to remove the engine for shipment to Toronto for repairs.

"It seems we've always been brokn down just before this race (the Gold Cup)" stated Mead, "but this year, due to some fine work by one mechanic, Tom Ferguson, we've come out on top. We hope we can do as well next year, in both the Gold Cup, and the world championships, in Valleyfield."

As for racing this year, it may be on to Florida for Mead, although he is not quite sure. He may take the rest of the year off and relax.

As for the other classes, two other North American Champions were determined, both in sportscraft, or outboard divisions.

Gary Reynolds, of Port Ewen, N.Y., took home top spot in the SE class, for tunnel hulled 75 horsepower engines. Bob Seyes, of Toronto, was second while Bob Johnson of Seeconk, Massachusetts, was third.

Fifteen - year - old Terry Quinn, of Don Mills won the FE class for V-bottom 75 horse powered boats, taking both of his heats Sunday. Bill Reid of Oshawa was second, with Gary Gale of Carlton Place, third.

Four classes of inboards were run, other than the Grand Pix class, although there were no North American titles on the line.

Theo Gerritts of Hampton, took the SS-SK stock-modified class, with Andy Kachmarik of Fairview Connecticut second. Gerald Hawley of Grand Island, N.Y., was third.

In the 280 division, Don Brouse of St. Lawrence Valley was first, with Doug Potts of Collingwood second and Jean-Noel Herbert of Beauharnois, Quebec, third.

Bob Theoret of Valleyfield won the 145 class, with Nick Cerisio of Millford, Connecticut, second. Third place was captured by Gilles Coulliand of Valleyfield.

Marc Faubert of Beauharnois won the three litre class, with Rene Lepage, also of Beauharnois, second. Alex Stewart of Beaton, Ont., was third.

Approximately 23,000 spectators took in the races, about 2,000 down from last year's total. Only about 7,000 attended the Monday card.

Bad Luck Dogs Ireland

— For Belleville driver Bill Ireland, the 1975 Gold Cup was even shorter than most other drivers that managed to get into the water.

Ireland go his number 58 SJ boat past the starting line, around the first turn on the 1.2 miles course, and into the back sraight before he found himself overtop of another boat, and in the water himself.

The incident occurred in the first heat of the SJ class, for tunnel hulled boats, with engines of less than 99.9 cubic inches or about 150 horsepower.

Driving Miss Maple Leaf, in which he owns half interest, along with Bill Boulter, also of Belleville, he found himself in second postion, about to over take leader Dave Norton, when Norton's boat veered in front of him, at the end of the back chute.

"I had about five or ten miles per hour on him, and was just taking him, when he came in front of me. His steering had given out, and before I knew it, I was going into him," explained Ireland.

"After that, I can just remember looking down and seeing the other boat underneath me," stated the Belleville driver, indicating he thought his boat had rotated a full circle, lengthwise. The air and water [illegible] Morton boat had elevated Ireland's boat abov[illegible] ripping off the side panels of the Belleville rig.

The frame and hull of Ireland's craft were about all that was left after the tow-in, although the engine still fired.

Noron's boat was towed in upside down, almost intact.

Neither of the drivers were seriously hurt. Ireland escaped with a badly bruised left calf and a few scrapes. Needless to say, his racing is over for the 1975 season.

Elliott Tykes Shell Sudbury in OBA Play

Two convincing victories over the weekend gave the Elliott Motors Tykes a 2-0 win in their Ontario Baseball Association quarter-final series with the Sudbury Wolves.

The Belleville team had no trouble taking both games, winning 17-2 on Saturday and 15-2 on Sunday.

In the first match Rob Revoy had no problem, giving up just four hits on the way to his win. He struck out 10 batters en route.

Jim Cook had three triples for the Belleville team while Bradley Gray tripled and had a single. Rob Boomhower and Trevor Powell each chipped in with a double and a single.

In the second game Robert Boomhower took the mound for Belleville, allowing four hits. He came up with eight strikeouts as the Elliott Motors club took the series and moved on to the semi-finals.

Boomhower helped his own cause with four singles in the victory while Gray tripled and singled. Revoy had two doubles and a one bagger. Sean Boomhower reached base twice on singles as did David Coughlin.

The Elliott Motors team meets Guelph, Saturday.

The best time of the night came in the seventh when Meadow Chrivan took the mile in 2:10.3. Randy Bird guided the big gelding to the win.

The big payoff in the eighth was $102 for the combination in the Exactor of 7-4. Fireaway N was the winner, with Ken Weeks driving. Bye Bye Charlie was second, driven by Randy Bird.

Guy LaRush leads dirver standings with 20 wins, Pat Hunt is in second place with 14. A tie for third has developed, with Larry Zebedee and Brian Bellamy both at the 13 win mark. Jack Harry has eight wins and Ed Weeks has seven.

In the percentages Guy LaRush leads at .471, second is Brian Bellamy with a .448 average, and third is Pat Hunt at .439.

North Bendale won the game 6-0 after Belleville made 10 errors, with North Bendale taking the series 2-1.

Record Strikeout Pace For Mets' Tom Seaver

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

TOM SEAVER

Monday was a big day for Tom Seaver, Bob Gibson and Randy Jones, three outstanding National League pitchers at contrasting points in their careers.

Seaver is at the peak of a brilliant career.

And Gibson is nearing the end of the line. ..

Jones, a youngster starting to realize his potential, scattered nine hits and improved his record to 18-9 by pitching San Diego Padres to a 2-1 decision over Cincinnati Reds.

Seaver blanked Pittsburgh Pirates on four hits, struck out 10 and set a major league record with his eighth consecutive season with 200 or more strikeouts in pitching New York Mets to a 3-0 win, becoming the league's first 20-game winner of the year in the process.

Gibson, who will be retiring at the end of this season, was honored by a sellout crowd at Busch Stadium in St. Louis on "Bob Gibson Day".

In Monday's other National League games, Montreal Expos nipped Philadelphia Phillies 6-5, Los Angeles Dodgers beat San Francisco Giants 3-1 and Houston Astros topped Atlanta Braves 5-3.

On Sunday, Atlanta and Chicago split a doubleheader, Atlanta winning the first 3-1 before losing the second 9-8, Pittsburgh beat Houston 9-6 in the first game of a scheduled doubleheader before rain forced postponement of the second, St. Louis beat Cincinnati 5-3, San Diego shut out Montreal 6-0, San Francisco edged Philadelphia 5-4 and Los Angeles stopped New York 5-2.

On Saturday, San Francisco beat Philadelphia 4-1, Houston downed Pittsburgh 7-4, Cincinnati beat St. Louis 3-2, Los Angeles shut out New York 7-0, Montreal beat San Diego 5-1 and the Atlanta at Chicago game was postponed by rain.

"He's probably a better pitcher right now than he's ever been in his life," said manager Roy McMillan of Seaver. "He's spotting the ball better than ever, and he's mixing his pitches beautifully. It's a sign of maturity."

"I was terrible warming up, but I've learned what to do when I take the mound," Seaver said. "I try to establish what I have, see how the hitters react and then hope the rest comes around.

When Seaver blazed a fastball past Manny Sanguillen in the seventh inning it marked the eighth consecutive year he has fanned 200 or more batters, a feat never before accomplished. Rube Waddell and Walter Johnson had seven consecutive 200-plus years.

The victory, Seaver's sixth in a row, lifted the Mets to within four games of the first-place Pirates in the four-team East dogfight. St. Louis is three games out, the Phillies tied with the Mets at four.

Lou Brock hit three singles, stole three bases and scored twice to pace the Cards' victory. He now has 52 steals, the 11th consecutive year he has had 50 or more.

But the day belonged to Gibson, whose uniform was retired in pre-game ceremonies.

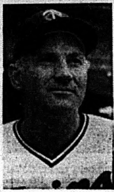
"It's going to be a new life, a strange life for me," said Gibson. "One thing I've always been proud of is the fact that I've never intentionally cheated anybody out of what they came to the ballpark to see."

Randy Jones scattered nine hits to post his 18th victory of the season. Dave Winfield was San Diego's batting star with three hits and two runs scored.

Right-hander Burt Hooton, 14-9, stopped the Giants on six hits for his eighth consecutive victory. Lee Lacy drove in a pair of runs and scored the other for Los Angeles.

Player Injuries Work In Favor of Royals

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS



HARMON KILLEBREW

Kansas City Royals lost two baseball players Monday but they won a ballgame.

First, starting pitcher Nelson Briles had to leave after blanking Chicago White Sox for three innings when his knee began acting up. Doug Bird took over and yielded one run and six hits the rest of the way.

However, Bird didn't become a winner until Hal McRae hurt his rib cage fouling off a pitch in the eighth inning of a 1-1 deadlock. Harmon Killebrew pinch-hit and hit a 2-2 pitch from Claude Osteen into the left field seats for his 571st career homer and the Royals' first in eight games.

The two-run homer was Killebrew's 12th of the season and enabled the Royals to win 3-1 and split their Labor Day doubleheader.

The Royals dropped the opener 10-8. The split, coupled with Oakland's 6-3 triumph over California, left Kansas City eight games behind the A's in the American League's West Division.

New York Yankees turned back Boston 4-2, chopping the Red Sox' lead in the East to 5½ games over the idle Baltimore Orioles, who were rained out of a doubleheader against Cleveland Indians. In Monday's other games, Minnesota Twins beat Texas Rangers 5-3 and Detroit Tigers edged Milwaukee Brewers 5-4.

In games Sunday, Oakland beat Boston 8-6, Kansas City stopped New York 7-0, and Milwaukee beat Texas 4-1. Rain prevented a doubleheader between Minnesota and Cleveland and single games between Chicago and Minnesota and California and Detroit.

On Saturday, Jim Palmer won his 20th game of the season, pitching Baltimore to a 4-2 win over Chicago. In other games, Detroit beat California 9-2, Oakland edged Boston 7-6, Kansas City beat New York 5-2 and Texas downed Milwaukee 8-3. The Minnesota at Cleveland doubleheader was postponed by rain.

"I've never lost a game like that," said White Sox manager Chuck Tanner after Killebrew's wallop. "They get two guys hurt and then two guys come in and get the job done for them."

Killebrew couldn't remember anything quite like it, either.

"I've had a few pinch homers, I don't know how many but never under circumstances like that," the veteran slugger said. "It sure was unusual. I can't ever recall hitting a pinch homer after taking over a count."

In the opener, Chicago trailed Kansas City's—Steve Busby 4-0 after 1½ innings but Bill Melton hit a three-run homer to cap a five-run third inning and Jorge Orta drove in three runs with three hits.

Billy Williams and Reggie Jackson hit two-run homers as Oakland rallied from a 3-1 first-inning deficit to beat the Angels. Jackson drove in a third run with a double while Vida Blue finished with a four-hitter for his 18th victory after yielding three runs and two hits in the first inning.

Rick Dempsey, Rick Bladt and Fred Stanley, the tail end of the New York batting order, led the Yankees' 14-hit attack against Roger Moret and Dick Pole. Stanley collected three hits while Dempsey, Bladt, Walt Williams and Roy White had two each.

Expos Foil Phillies

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Tim Foli drilled a tie-breaking double with two out in the ninth inning and scored the winning run on a single by relief pitcher Dale Murray as Montreal Expos held off Philadelphia 6-5 Monday night and prevented the Phillies from gaining ground in the National League's East Division scramble.

The setback, the Phillies' third in a row, dropped them into a third-place tie with New York Mets, four games behind Pittsburgh.

Pete Mackanin started Montreal's winning rally by beating out a hit to short with two out in the ninth off Gene Garber, 9-9, the Phillies' fourth pitcher. He stole second before the run-scoring hits by Foli and Murray, 10-7.

The Phils came back with one run in the bottom of the ninth on Larry Bowa's leadoff single and a two-out double by Dick Allen but Murray retired Mike Schmidt on a fly ball.

Montreal starter Steve Rogers walked six but blanked the Phils on five singles and had a 4-0 lead until the seventh. Then Philadelphia scored three runs on a walk to pinch-hitter Tony Taylor, Cash's single, Bowa's bloop double, Jay Johnstone's sacrifice fly and a single by Allen, who had three hits and walked twice.

Philadelphia tied it in the eighth after Garry Maddox led off with a triple. Rogers got the next two batters with Maddox remaining a third but Cash greeted Murray with a game-tying single.

STAFF CUTS HURT EVERYBODY

If you have a relative, friend or neighbor in a hospital, nursing home, or other health care institution, then there's something you should know. Staff cuts hurt everybody. They place a heavier burden on nursing staff, technologists, dietary and housekeeping staff. This hurts you. But most of all, staff cuts hurt your loved ones who need the best possible health care.
Expenses should be reduced. But let's cut out needless frills, not vital services.
The Service Employees International Union realizes that staff cuts hurt everybody. That's why we need your help. Write to your newspaper. Write to your Member of Parliament. Insist on legislation against hospital staff cuts. Remember, the S.E.I.U. needs your help for better health care.

Zenon Off Target—Argos Lose

HAMILTON (CP) — Zenon Andrusyshyn couldn't bail out Toronto Argonauts' stuttering offence Monday night.

Andrusyshyn, whose field-goal kicking had carried the Argonauts through other games, missed on five tries Monday and Toronto was a 20-11 loser to Hamilton Tiger-Cats in an Eastern Football Conference game.

His missed field goals would have been enough to turn the tide for the Argonauts, who had a clear statistical edge but couldn't move the ball once they got within scoring range. Three times in the second half their offensive drives faltered inside the Hamilton 35.

Complicating things for Toronto was a Hamilton defensive line that sacked Argo quarterback Mike Rae for a total of 50 yards and the play-calling of veteran Hamilton quarterback Jerry Keeling.

The 36-year-old Keeling, acquired earlier this season from Ottawa Rough Riders, threw touchdown passes to Lawrie Skolrood and Garney Henley and had Hamilton's ground game working smoothly for the first time since running back Andy Hopkins was injured four games ago.

Ian Sunter kicked two field goals and two converts to complete the Hamilton scoring. He lost a single point when officials reversed an earlier decision and ruled a crowd that spilled into the end zone gave Toronto no chance to retrieve his wide field goal attempt on the last play of the game.

The Argos' only touchdown play was a 46-yard pass from Rae to Canadian rookie Al Charuk in the first quarter.

Bombers Fall to Roughriders; Eskimos Outlast Stampeders

By JOHN SHORT
The Canadian Press

Tom Wilkinson did what Chuck Ealey couldn't Monday afternoon, so Edmonton Eskimos and Saskatchewan Roughriders wound up in a tie for first place in the Western Football Conference.

Wilkinson fired a 17-yard touchdown pass to rookie John Konihowski as Edmonton came from behind to nip Calgary Stampeders 35-31 before 27,188 fans at Calgary while Winnipeg's Ealey ran out of downs with about 20 seconds remaining in Saskatchewan Roughriders' 27-23 triumph over the Blue Bombers before a Regina crowd of 21,915.

A costly holding penalty helped ruin Ealey's last-minute bid. The loss dropped Winnipeg into third place in the WFC, two points behind Saskatchewan and Edmonton, who meet Saturday night to settle, at least temporary, possession of first place.

The unfortunate Stampeders remained fourth, two points behind Winnipeg.

Despite sore ribs, Wilkinson was brilliant. He threw to George McGowan and Tyrone Walls to move from the Edmonton 35 to the Calgary 17, then found Konihowski uncovered in the end zone.

The pass ruined a tencious effort by the Stampeders, who took the lead less than a minute earlier on Rick Galbos' second touchdown pass of the day from Joe Pisarcik.

RON LANCASTER

Wilkinson took over when starter Bruce Lemmerman injured a hand in the third quarter. Wilkinson threw a touchdown pass to Don Warrington early in the fourth quarter to put the Eskimos in front. Lemmerman found McGowan for an 11-yard touchdown in the opening frame.

Leroy Moss, in the lineup because of Calvin Harrell's injury, ran four yards for the other Edmonton touchdown.

Dave Cutler converted all four majors and added field goals of 37 and 27 yards. Walt McKee added a single.

Besides Galbos' scores, on similar plays from inside the 10, Calgary got a 20-yard scoring pass from starting quarterback Karl Douglas to flanker Glen Scolnik. Cyril McFall had three converts and field goals of 49, 16 and 30 yards.

Calgary's other point was a single by Rudy Linterman with 51 seconds remaining. His long kickoff trickled out of the end zone off the hands of Larry Highbaugh to put Calgary three points ahead one second after Galbos scored and McFall converted.

Veteran Ron Lancaster led a solid march in the last quarter to pull Saskatchewan from behind with a nine-yard scoring pass to young Steve Mazurak.

A 78-yard punt return by Tom Campana and a three-yard run by George Reed provided the other Roughrider touchdowns. Jack Abendschan kicked three converts and two field goals.

For Winnipeg, Bob Larose took a five-yard pass from Ealey and Steve Beaird ran three yards for touchdowns. Bernie Ruoff added the remaining 11 points on two converts and three field goals.

Lancaster's experience and a stubborn Saskatchewan defence sent Winnipeg to defeat despite the Blue Bombers' statistical margin.

Wilkinson completed 10 of 16 passes for 172 yards. His first sequence featured a 56-yard completion to Warrington for a touchdown but it was nullified by a penalty. Lemmerman completed nine of 19 attempts for 141 yards.

Pisarcik and Douglas alternated throughout the afternoon. Both went into the game with injuries. Douglas completed seven of 15 passes for 90 yards. Pisarcik had a perfect six-for-six afternoon for 78 yards.

Calgary's Willie Burden was held below 100 yards rushing for only the second time this season but led all ball-carriers with 93 yards in 16 carries. He also caught four passes for 27 yards. Edmonton's leading rusher was Roy Bell with 76 yards in 11 carries.

Lancaster completed 14 of 27 passes for 283 yards—helped by brilliant catches by Campana and Mazurak. Campana made eight receptions for 163 yards.

Ealey completed 19 of 27 passes for 254 yards, forced to throw often for short yardage when primary receivers were well covered and the aggressive Saskatchewan front four kept him under pressure.

B.C. Squad Takes Title

Victoria Gets Even

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — A three-run sixth inning won the Canadian senior men's softball championship for Victoria Bate of British Columbia Saturday.

Victoria edged Oshawa Tony's 3-2 in a reversal of last year' final, won by the Oshawa club.

The B.C. team now will represent Canada in the 1976 world championships in New Zealand.

Victoria made a habit of rallying in the late innings during the week and didn't change the format against Oshawa.

Reg Underwood and Carl Waleker opened the bottom half of the sixth inning wih singles against Oshawa starting pitcher Peter Landers who was then replaced by Paul Wannamaker.

Ken Bate then walked to load the bases and Harvey Stevenson slashed a single to score two runs and tie the game.

Wannamaker then walked Bob Burrows to load the bases again.

Wannamaker was replaced at that point by Barry Timbers. Pete Songhurst then sent a grounder to the Oshawa shortstop, but the throw to the plate was too late to prevent Bate from coming home with the winning run.

Oshawa opened the scoring in the second inning when Phil Solomon singled and scored on Paul Gibbens' double.

In the third inning Hal Kemp tripled for Oshawa and scored on Bob Young's single.

Stan Kern was credited with the win after relieving starter Dave Ruthowsky in the third inning. The loss was taken by Wannamaker, who earlier in the tournament had pitched the first perfect game in the history of the event.

Each club had six hits. Underwood and Stevenson led British Columbia with two singles apiece and Walker and Songhurst had one each.

For Oshawa, Kemp had a triple, Gibbens a double and Phil Solomon, Young, Ed Neudorf and Bob Solomon singles.

Earlier Saturday the host team qualified for the final by beating Kitchener (Ont.) Evergreens 1-0 in a semi-final game. Oshawa had one earlier loss in the round-robin tournament and would have had to beat undefeated Victoria twice to take the title.

Terry Gallamore of Kitchener gave up only three hits to Oshawa but Tony's managed the lone run of the game in the bottom of the sixth on a single, an infield out and two errors.

PAUL WANNAMAKER

Don Iverson Leads the Way

ENDICOTT, N.Y. (AP) — Don Iverson shot a 68 Monday, then watched his leading rivals settle for pars on the 18th hole as he won the $175,000 B.C. open golf tournament—his first tour victory.

Australian David Graham missed his 20-foot birdie putt and Jim Colbert, who hit his second shot into the rough right off the green, settled for a par on the last hole.

Iverson, who finished with a 10-under-par 274, won $35,000. He collected five birdies and bogied two holes. Three of his sub-par holes came in a row, the 10th, 11th and 12th. Following a 13th hole bogey, Iverson parred in and began the wait.

Colbert and Graham, who shared second place with 275s, each carded 68s. They were followed by Terry Diehl, who had a 66 for 276.

Hubert Green, the 1973 B.C. Open champion who failed to make the cut last year, was bracketed with Jerry McGee and Jim Wiechers at 27. McGee had a 66 and Green and Wiechers 67 each.

Butch Baird, who led after the second and third rounds and teed off nine under par, blew to 74 and was at 278 with Sam Snead, who came in with a 67.

A final-round 73 gave George Knudson of Toronto a 288 total, worth $432. Dan Halldorson of Brandon, Man., had a 75 for a 290 total and collected $319.

Evert on Course

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Chris Evert is such an overwhelming favorite to win the U.S. open tennis championships that, if this were Wimbledon, where there is legal betting, no one would make book on her.

She hasn't lost on clay since Evonne Goolagong beat her 6-2, 7-5 in the final of the Western Clay Courts in Cincinnati in 1973.

Monday night she made it 81 clay court wins in a row when she easily subdued Wendy Overton 6-0, 6-1 in a quarter-final match.

A duel between defending champion Jimmy Connors and Harold Solomon lasted past midnight. After three hours Connors downed Solomon, 6-4, 6-2, 5-7, 6-3 when the No. 13 seed double-faulted at match point. Connors now enters into quarter-final play.

The triumph by Connors came as predicted although two other youngsters prevailed over older, more seasoned grass court specialists.

Eddie Dibbs, a three-time All-America at Miami University whose forte is clay, toppled fourth-seeded Arthur Ashe 6-4, 6-2, 6-3, and Bjorn Borg, the teen-ager from Sweden seeded No. 5, overpowered ninth-seeded Rod Laver of Australia 6-1, 6-4, 2-6, 6-2.

Reed's Return Sparks Birmingham

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Quarterback Matthew Reed, the big second-year pro from Grambling College, appears to be all Birmingham Vulcans needed to get back on the winning track.

Reed, out for two weeks with a hip pointer while the Vulcans were losing two World Football League games, ran for one touchdown, set up another with a 28-yard pass and threw an action point Saturday in Birmingham's 21-8 win over Shreveport Steamer.

He completed 12 of 28 passes for 213 yards without an interception before an announced crowd of 18,700 at Birmingham.

In other WFL games Saturday, Charlotte Hornets clobbered Jacksonville Express 33-14, Memphis Grizzlies walloped Chicago Winds 31-7 and San Antonio Wings shut out Portland Thunder 22-0.

Quarterback Tom Sherman threw for one touchdown and completed nine of 11 passes for 119 yards in Charlotte's lopsided victory over Jacksonville.

Charlotte's first score came on a one-yard first-quarter plunge by Don Highsmith, who gained 90 yards in the game, played before 16,428 fans at Jacksonville.

Wide receiver Ed Marshall caught three touchdown passes and an action point to help Memphis over Chicago, and quarterback Johnny Walton tossed two touchdown passes in San Antonio's victory over Portland.

USSR-NHL Series

Players' Group Stalls Plans

TORONTO (CP) — An eight-game series between National Hockey League teams and club teams from the Soviet Union could go down the drain unless NHL owners agree to player demands.

Alan Eagleson, executive director of the NHL Players' Association (NHLPA), said Monday the owners must meet player pension demands and accept an international tournament proposed for Canada in the fall of 1976.

Eagleson said the NHLPA is demanding a monthly increase of $500 to $750 in maximum pension payments, an increase he said would cost each club an extra $22,000 a year.

He said the 50-per-cent pension increase is justified by the similar cost-of-living increase that has taken place during the pension fund's first three years.

Approval for the 1976 tournament is needed because the Canadian team would be made up of players whose contracts call for them to be playing for their NHL employers at the same time.

Other teams in the tournament would represent the United States, the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia and Finland.

U.S. Team Champion

MONTREAL (CP) — The United States and Japan, who staged a 12-inning thriller last week in the round-robin portion of the Intercontinental Cup baseball tournament, met Sunday in the final but it was an anticlimax.

The U.S. prevailed 1-0 last Thursday night in a game that featured sharp fielding and strong pitching. The 4,893 who turned up for the title game Sunday expected a similar treat, but only the U.S. played as well as expected in taking an 8-0 decision.

In the consolation final, Pedro Selva crashed a lead-off home run in bottom of the ninth to give Nicaragua a 5-4 win over Canada. Selva's homer off Fred Cardwell, who went the distance for Canada, was Nicaragua's only earned run. Two Canadian runs were unearned as well.

IN MEMORIAM

ALFORD — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather who passed away September 1st, 1969.
Peacefully, he is sleeping,
Resting from all pain,
We who loved him sadly miss him,
But know through God, we will meet again.
—Sadly missed by wife Cissie, daughters Marjorie and Muriel and families.

McFARLANE — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather, Dorland McFarlane who passed away one year ago, September 2.
The joys we shared together,
The memories we hold dear,
The love and happiness you gave,
Will always keep you near.
It broke our hearts to lose you,
But you did not go alone,
For part of us went with you,
The day God called you home.
Every hour we dearly miss you,
Sadly do we feel your loss,
Lonely is our home without you,
Help us Lord to bear the cross.
—Dearly loved and sadly missed, wife Elizabeth and family.

GREEN, Mabel Edna — In loving memory of my mother who died on September 1st, 1968.
We do not need a special day
To bring you to our mind,
For the days we do not think of you
Are very hard to find.
If all this world were ours to give,
We'd give it, yes, and more,
To see the face of mother dear,
Come smiling through the door.
—Ever remembered by daughter Sharon and grandchildren.

McMURRAY — In memory of a dear father Stanley McMurray who passed away Sept. 2, 1974.
He is away but ever near,
His presence fills each day,
His voice, his smile are everywhere,
A memory away,
And though he is no longer seen,
By family and friends,
He lives because he was dearly loved,
And love can never end.
—Always remembered and sadly missed by daughter Irene and Earl.

McMURRAY — In loving memory of a dear father Stanley McMurray who passed away September 2, 1974.
One year has passed since that sad day,
When one we loved was called away,
God took him, it was His will,
Within our hearts he liveth still.
—Never forgotten by daughter Evelyne, Henry and grandchildren.

WALSH, Gerard (Jerry) — who passed away Sept. 1, 1974.
The parting comes and hearts are broken,
A loved one leaves with words unspoken,
No one knows the grief we share,
When we all meet and you're not there.
If he could have spoken before he died,
These are the words he would have replied,
"This life for me has truly passed,
I loved you all to the very last,
Weep not for me, but courage take,
And love each other, for my sake."
—Sadly missed and always remembered by the Walsh family.

GREEN — In loving memory of a dear mother Mabel Edna Green who passed away Sept. 1st, 1968.
Many a day her name is spoken,
And many an hour she is in our thoughts,
A link in our family chain is broken,
She has gone from our home but not from our hearts.
—Always remembered by daughters Joyce and Margaret and families and son Wayne and daughter-in-law Leona.

Olympics Nipped; Lose Top Scorer

Quinte Italo-Canadians made the last play of the game pay off with the winning goal in an exhibition match with Belleville Olympics at Sir James Whitney School, Monday. George Tsui cut loose and the ball was deflected into the net by an Olympics' defencer to make the final score 3-2.

Olympics not only lost the game but high scoring forward Zdravko Fundic will be missing for at least a week. He picked up a leg injury in the first half and joins standout defender Eugene Courtney on the shelf.

Courtney, also out with a leg injury, was expected back in the lineup this eason but according to club officials, he is gone for the balance of the 1975 campaign. He has a fractured bone in his right leg.

Italo opened the scoring when Oscar Nespoli connected from the penalty sport after the ball was handled in the Olympics penalty area. With about 25 minutes played, Olympics equalized on a header from Bob Watson who had taken a pass from John O'Neill.

Dario A'Anna regained the lead for Italo, picking up the rebound after Olympics goalie blocked a hard drive from Nick Del Grosso.

Olympics applied the pressure in the second half but failed to finish several excellent scoring chances. It wasn't until a hard cross from the wing was directed into the Italo goal by a defender that the tying counter came.

Olympics hope to have Fundic back for an important Premier Soccer League match Sunday, with Kingston Italo-Canadians.

Rathbun Repeats In Katy Grey

Heavy rains on Friday night threatened the ninth running of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Clubs Ninth Annual Katy Grey Sailing race.

Conditions improved considerably on Saturday morning and the race went as scheduled.

The winning boat in the Spinnaker class was the Veruna, skippered by Grant Rathbun. He was three minutes ahead of second place finisher Bibas, with Dr. Mustard at the helm. It was Rathbun's second straight Katy Grey win.

Third place went to Mai Tai, with Dick Bird skippering. His ship was just 17 seconds out of second place.

In the Non-Spinnaker class, Gypsy was the winner, skippered by Bruno Wyadik.

More than 35 boats competed in the races.

Bayview Leads Final

Bayview Orchards staged a hitting match with the Ameliasburg A's in their Prince Edward North Shore League final match on Monday night.

Wiht the 9-3 win, Bayview took a 2-1 lead in the final series.

Dennis Snell and Don Bonter combined to allow 10 hits and two walks but still came out ahead in the game. The two struck out six batters in the process.

The A's loss was shared by Harold Werkhoven and Gary Eardley. They were touched for 12 safeties and walked two. They struck out five batters.

Rob Roblin was the big bat for Bayview, he reached base three times on hits. Roblin had a triple and two singles. Mike Redick and Don Bonter had two safeties each.

For the A's Doug Findlay was on base twice with safeties to lead the losing team at the plate.

Hamelin Attacks Media

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — Sid Hamelin, president of the Ontario Social Credit League, said Saturday that the Ontario government has kept the public ignorant of the Canadian banking system through inadequate education.

Mr. Hamelin claimed Social Credit's call for financial reform has not been publicized because the news media depend on the current system.

"The government has kept people ignorant of the present monetary system," he said. "The people can't understand us because they don't know the system they have."

Mr. Hamelin said Social Credit would eliminate provincial debt by borrowing money at no interest from the Bank of Canada, instead of at high interest from commercial banks.

Executive Freed

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Twice-kidnapped British executive Charles Agnew Lockwood was rescued unharmed by Argentine police Sunday after a gun fight with Marxist terrorists in which four guerrillas were killed and a policeman injured, police said. Lockwood, 67, an executive of Roberts Financiera, one of the leading financial firms in Argentina, was kidnapped first in July, 1973, and again on July 31 of this year.

Fischer Files Suit

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — Former world chess champion Bobby Fischer filed a $20-million suit during the weekend in Los Angeles Superior Court against Brad Darrach, author of Bobby Fischer vs The Rest of The World. He charged the author with breaking written and oral promises not to disclose details of his private life.

Walkers Impaired

HALIFAX (CP) — Drinking and walking could cause highway fatalities, says Ernest Pass, director of the Highways Safety Council of Nova Scotia. Statistics show that a significant number of pedestrians killed in highway accidents in the past three years were intoxicated.

On Second Tour

Ten Lost Years, the play adapted from Barry Broadfoot's book recalling memories of Canadians who survived the Depression, heads off on its second national tour—through Eastern Canada and the Atlantic provinces in September.

Oriental Touch

LONDON (CP) — British Steel Corp.'s stainless steel division recently threw a luncheon party to honor restaurant and pub managers who had won its Clean Kitchen Awards. Later it was discovered that the lunch was eaten with Hong Kong-made stainless cutlery.

Foxboro Merchants Lead Semi-final 2-1

The Foxboro Merchants took a 2-1 lead in their South Hastings Baseball League semi-final series with Melrose by defeating them 7-1 on Monday night.

Ron McTaggart had quite a night on the mound, striking out eight batters in the South Hastings Baseball League playoff hookup. He allowed seven hits and picked two men off third base in the effort.

The loss was shared by John Pepper and Terry McTaggart. The two were touched for 10 hits while striking out six batters.

John Masterson drove in two runs for the winners with his four bagger to lead the way to the victory. Dale Tummon, Greg Empey, and McTaggart each reached base twice on singles.

For the Melrose team, Randy Pascoe doubled and singled in the losing cause.

BYBF Beaten In Final

Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund advanced to the B final before bowing out of the Chesterville Ladies' Softball Tournament on the weekend.

In the B title game with Toronto Crown Life, the Belleville girls came out on the short end of a 5-1 score. Shirley Gulliver took the loss, allowing six hits while fanning none and walking three. Sue Morton finished up. Gulliver, Morton, Helen DeMille and Marj Reid each collected a single for the losers.

A 3-2 loss in eight innings to Mountain in their first outing put the BYBF team to the B side. Gulliver went the distance on an eight-hitter while striking out five and walking none. Leading the Belleville offence was Donna Preston with two singles. Gulliver added a single.

Gulliver was right back at it in the team's second outing, firing a shutout at Brockville as Belleville won 6-0. Allowing only three hits, Shirley fanned three and walked two. Preston drove in three runs with three timely singles. Gulliver added a pair of singles.

A 5-2 win over Ingleside put BYBF into the B final. Sue Morton got the win on a five-hitter. She put third strikes past seven and walked three. Joyce McFarlane led the winners' hit parade with a double and single.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) This will be a pleasurable day if you do things as your urges indicate. Break-up routine with a fun activity.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A way to handle a frustrating situation will now be found. The methods you'll use will be bold and unique.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You will be the recipient of some information that you'll use profitably. Act promptly before you lose interest.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your material prospects are extremely encouraging today. Give matters relating to income or finances top priority.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Others will be looking to you today to take the lead. Be assertive and exercise your initiative.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A profitable opportunity could come your way today through a very unusual channel. Be alert. A family member may have a hand in it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Two friends are almost as anxious as you are to see you get something you've been hoping for. They'll help where they can.

SCORPIO (Oct.-Nov. 22) Disregard the odds. Pursue your goals today. If you're tenacious enough, the victory is yours.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Take the long-range view today, rather than the immediate one. Substantial benefits will come later from plans well-laid now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It would be difficult to put one over on you today businesswise. Profit from your dealings is very likely.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You have the ability to see both sides of issues today quite clearly. Base your acts upon your impressions.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) There are bonuses in store for you if you're enterprising. Do an extra good job for the boss today.

Hands Are Tough, Will Take Slaps

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like your opinion on hand-slapping at an early age.

I know a father who has a two-year-old son who is kind of a problem because he won't mind. He has a stubborn side to him.

The father dearly loves him and is wonderful to him, but he always slaps the boy's hands real hard. He doesn't think he hurts the hands by doing this. But I think that the continued hand-slapping might injure them.

Am I wrong in thinking this? He is such a bright, lovable little child.—Mrs. B.S.

Well, first of all, if there is to be any slapping it might just as well be on the hands as on any other part of the anatomy. And again, if there must be any corporal punishment of this kind, it might just as well be done with the father's hand rather than with a stick, or strap.

Beginning with those ideas, I can only say that hand-slapping within reason will probably not have any lasting physical effects on the boy's hands. They are among the toughest parts of the anatomy. Slapping that leaves disfiguring marks would be considered excessive, of course.

Another important point in your letter, one that other parents should note, is that the punishment is apparently administered out of love and not out of frustration. Spanking is not the universal language many parents believe it to be, and without proper motivation there is no point in it.

Too often, the line between love and frustration grows too thin too quickly.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a sinus problem.

When I was 56-years-old they found I was allergic to 23 foods. They said all they could do for me was to keep me on a strict diet. Since then I have become allergic to three more foods. There's nothing they can do. What are your views on this subject?—Mrs. M.N.H.

You don't tell me enough to allow me to make any but the most general suggestions.

First, your list of allergic foods is growing quite large. A clue might have been a listing of all of those foods to see whether they are falling into two or three general categories—fruit, wheat products, etc. This would simplify things for you.

Neither do you mention the symptoms of your allergies, which I assume from your letter, are specifically of the nose. Year around rhinitis can result from non-seasonal agents such as dust, animal dander, foods and such. This would reveal itself in what we generally consider "a runny nose," as opposed to actual sinus infection, which is usually accompanied by a pus-like discharge. The chronic rhinitis can eventually lead to infection, however, as well as to the growth of nasal polyps.

I would say that with your long history of apparently sinus related allergies you should consult an appropriate specialist or an allergist to evaluate your problem. With your food restrictions you should be careful about getting proper nutrition, vitamins particularly, if the allergy-producing foods cover a wide spectrum.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 15-years-old and my mother won't let me use tampon-type pads. She says they can cause cancer. What do you think?—M.P.

This is not true. I don't know where these things begin.

Opening lead — 5 ♠

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Today's hand is almost the same as yesterday's. South has opened a 15-point notrump, either because he likes to live dangerously or because he counts an extra point for the fifth club.

The final contract is a good one. It will make against a 4-3 spade break if the club finesse works or if a spade isn't opened.

However, a spade is opened. South looks at dummy's 11 points plus 10-spot and wonders how he will explain failure if the game does not make.

He looks at the five of spades and makes the pessimistic decision that it is fourth best of five. Is there anything he can do to make the hand if it is fourth of five and the club finesse is wrong?

There is a slight extra chance. If East holds two spade honors South can justify his 15-point notrump and make his partner happy instead of mad.

South hops up with dummy's ace of spades. East drops an honor and business has picked up. South loses the club finesse but no harm has been done. The spade suit has blocked itself.

Ask the Jacobys

A Utah reader wants to know the meaning of a jump raise of one to five notrump.

It should be an invitation to seven. Opener should bid seven with a maximum notrump opening; otherwise he should treat it as four-suit Stayman and bid six of his lowest four-card suit. We will show this bid in action in tomorrow's article.

Davis Image Is Changed

TORONTO (CP) — A few months after succeeding John Robarts as premier of Ontario, William Davis rolled to an impressive victory in the 1971 election, prolonging a Progressive Conservative dynasty that has governed the province for 32 years.

With a new man at the helm and a number of new faces in the cabinet, the Conservatives won 78 of the 117 seats in the legislature, reducing the Liberals to 20 and New Democrats to 19.

As he campaigns for re-election Sept. 18, Mr. Davis no longer enjoys the advantage of a leader with no personal record to defend. By-elections have cost him four seats and his administration has been subjected to a variety of problems including allegations of corruption and conflict of interest.

In 1971, he was presented to the voters as a low-key administrator, a man less interested in flamboyant rhetoric and the cut-and-thrust of political debate than in the efficient running of the government of his province.

In the current campaign, there has been a shift in emphasis. While the Conservatives continue to present themselves as the only party capable of governing the province in an orderly manner, there has been a noticeable effort to present their leader in a more human light.

The voice, a comfortable monotone throughout the 1971 campaign, has been raised in anger in response to suggestions by Liberal Leader Robert Nixon that the integrity of his government is open to question. He has been trading pleasantries with opposition candidates, kissing brides, cutting birthday cakes.

He has also jumped on political issues, imposing a price freeze on gasoline, offering a sales-tax rebate to purchasers of new cars to stimulate the suffering automotive industry.

The 46-year-old Conservative leader started his political career as a lawyer, moving into the legislature in 1959 and becoming minister of education three years later.

He held the portfolio for nearly 10 years, a period marked by expansionary educational spending and development. Ironically, economic stringencies forced an abrupt reversal shortly after he became premier and some of Mr. Davis's strongest supporters in the education community have become vociferous critics.

The premier still commutes to Queen's Park from his home in Brampton, 12 miles west of Toronto. The family—his wife Kathleen and their five children—also maintains a cottage on Georgian Bay and a condominium in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Mr. Davis is the fifth in an uninterrupted line of Conservative leaders that began when George Drew formed a minority government in 1943. It is the longest time a single party has ever remained in office in Ontario.

If they are returned Sept. 18, and serve a normal term, the Tories will move into second place among the longest-lived provincial dynasties in Canadian politics, surpassed only by the Quebec Liberals who held power for 39 years until they were defeated in 1935.

Mr. Davis's Peel North constituency, somewhat reduced in area by redistribution, has been renamed Brampton for the current campaign. He won it by more than 18,000 votes in 1971.

Spy Plan Unveiled

WHEATHAMPSTEAD, England (CP) — In a bid to unmask bands of vandals, the village council here is planning to recruit its own "spies." Council clerk Bill Hewitt said the most likely candidates for the job will be the local senior citizens who know the names of villagers and "who are prepared to work odd hours." He said that no one will know the identities of the "spies."

Today's Milkman Lacks Time To Be Neighborhood Romeo

VANCOUVER (CP) — Forget all those jokes about the lady and the milkman. They're obsolete. Milkmen just don't have time.

Alf Edinger remembers when he delivered milk in bottles to doorsteps 29 years ago. He talked with people and he knew his customers' health and welfare.

"It was like one big family then," he said between the 300 stops he would make that day.

"It's against union rules to run. I just do a brisk pace."

Mr. Edinger picked up the empties at the door, doubled like a sprinter, started off, levelled to the three-quarter position, dropped the empties in the truck and drove off.

He was on the school track team and habits are hard to break.

"When I started, I worked every day for six weeks straight and then had a week off."

He now gets six weeks holidays a year, works a nine-hour, four-day week for 7.76 an hour plus double time for overtime.

"I missed my daughter's first five Christmases. We worked holidays, and we worked until we finished our route."

The personal touch has been picked up by a computer which anticipates customers' needs and figures out their bills. Milkmen don't sell tickets or tokens because the computer won't tolerate them.

Mr. Edinger works for a co-operative that delivers milk to 55,000 homes in Greater Vancouver. He likes his job because "it's progressing with the times . . . it's a thriving business, a challenge."

At one house he frowned, questioned the computer's information and pronounced it incorrect, "because we've served this woman for year sand years and obviously something's wrong."

The computer had asked him to drop her "a good morning note" because she owed money. He didn't and she didn't.

Something ther compute doesn't," he said while praising the computer for lowering prices and speeding up business.

"Home deliveries are increasing all the time because now we can compete with supermarket prices."

Only once did he engage in a conversation with a customer this day but he says the romance hasn't yet gone out of the milkman's life.

He remembered a Ukrainian wedding where "I had an awful time getting out."

"They had a big spread and I had to have a bit of everything. And the result of that wedding is a little girl. She's 10 now."

He checked the computer pages and darted across the street with the next order.

Persian Highway Location Changed

ANKARA (Reuter) — American explorer Victor Von Hagen, back from an 18-month expedition tracing the royal route of the ancient Persian empire, believes he has helpd achieve an important change in historical records.

With a four-member crew in two Landrovers, Von Hagen explored possible routes of the 2,400-year-old Persian highway from the Dardanelles in western Turkey across ancient Mesopotamia touching on Iraq to Susa and Persepolis in Iran.

Elated, Von Hagen came back convinced that, as he put it, the expedition had changed the course of history.

"Historians and archeologists have got the route wrong ever since Herodotus wrote about it in 450 BC," he said. "Well, he never travelled the road, but we did."

The road covers 1,686 miles with 111 rest stations. Mounted couriers were able to ride 100 miles a day, which Von Hagen said explains why the Persians were able to carry out quick conquests.

Scholars hav[illegible] argued about the course of the road. Around 457 BC, King Darius of Persia threw a pontoon bridge across the Bosphorus and pushed into Europe.

Behind was a network of routes running through Sardis in western Turkey, and across the Anatolian Plateau to Susa in southwest Iran.

Nuclear Plant Security Tight

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—A dispute between rival guard forces resulting in two loose bolts at a nuclear power plant here has sparked fresh debate over the chances of generator takeovers by saboteurs or terrorists.

Officials say the system is not impenetrable. But they say security devices would prevent serious trouble.

"It's a car with six steering wheels and seven sets of brakes," said Jack Herbein, superintendent at the Three Mile Island power plant eight miles south of here.

"I think it's virtually impossible for a saboteur to do something that would result in a catastrophic release (of radioactivity). He probably could keep us from making electric power for a couple of months," Herbein added.

A tour of the plant showed an outsider would face considerable difficulty getting in und would risk danger to himself if he tried to inflict serious damage. An intruder also would have to cope with backup systems designed to prevent the nuclear reactor from getting out of hand.

The current furor started when two guards at Three Mile Island allegedly loosened two bolts securing the corner of a gate at a water intake facility.

Plant officials said the action was designed to embarrass members of another guard force on the island.

The two guards, along with two others who brought the incident to public attention, have been removed from their jobs.

How secure is the plant? Herbein notes there are three independent electric power lines from outside power sources serving the plant in case it is not generating its own electricity. To back up those lines, there are two diesel generators, each of which could supply power to the complex.

"We're not impenetrable. If there were an armed force—20 of these guys with the necessary firepower, they could come in here and they could actually damage the equipment so we couldn't make electricity," Herbein said. "But in the process of doing that, the reactor would shut down, and that's a simple evolution. You go over there and push a button."

Herbein said that even the water intake structure, where the current controversy began with the disabled gate, is backed up with more than enough systems.

He indicated that without the backup systems, the intake structure would be vital, because it takes 150,000 gallons of water to keep things cool. But there are two auxiliary tanks that stay filled. Each holds 265,000 gallons."

The current flap began last year when the plant went into operation. Earlier, when construction began on the billion-dollar complex, the construction contractor hired Burns International Security Services to provide guards.

The first reactor went into full commercial operation Sept. 2, 1974. It is run by three subsidiary companies of the General Public Utilities Corp.

General hired Attorneys Investigating Service of Pittsburgh to provide security for its unit. The Burns guards remained at portions of the complex still under construction.

Retired Couple Plans Japanese Living Style

OTTAWA (CP) — A diet of fish, seaweed and rice may not appeal to many Canadians but that's how two federal public servants plan to spend the first year of their retirement.

Frank and Mary Curry are looking forward to travelling halfway around the world to adopt the daily life-style of the Japanese.

Mr. Curry said he first became enchanted with the Japanese way of life six years ago during a two-month tour of Japan, where beef now sells for $15 a pound and a tea bag costs a dime.

"We stayed in Japanese inns, called ryokan, where you take your shoes off at the entrance, change into kimonos, have a cup of green tea, and then have someone show you where the bath house is.

"The inns are beautiful, built around a courtyard with a garden," he said. "They try to make guests feel like part of the family."

But, he cautioned, "the Japanese don't encourage Westerners to stay there unless they're going to adopt the Japanese way of doing things."

He has had a problem trying to make friends understand why they want to spend a year in a country with such different traditions and foods.

Developers Can Cure Housing Problems: Lewis

THUNDER BAY, Ont. (CP) Developers are sitting on more than enough unused land near urban centres to meet Ontario housing needs far into the future, NDP Leader Stephen Lewis said Monday.

Campaigning for the Sept. 18 provincial election, he renewed his call for government measures that would force developers to build houses on properties they hold.

The province faces a severe housing crisis and the hoarding of land for speculative gain can no longer be tolerated, Mr. Lewis told a news conference.

He said an NDP government would ask developers to co-operate with a crash program that the party advocates to ease housing shortages.

If they refused, land would be expropriated at the original purchase price plus carrying costs. No profit—"not a penny"—would be allowed.

Mr. Lewis said NDP research indicates that there are aboout 53,000 acres of unused land in the Toronto area alone—enough to accommodate the province's entire anticipated population increase until 1990 or 2000.

The situation is similar in most urban centres, he added. But what makes the housing potential "really astonishing" is the "even greater" amount of land held by small individual and family land speculators, he said. NDP figures included only those development companies whose shares are sold publicly.

Mr. Lewis said it would take only 11,200 acres of land a year to build the 116,000 units annually that the NDP has set as a minimum government target for the next decade.

He based his calculation on a ratio of 15 units an acre with an average of three persons occupying each unit. The acreage could be cut to 6,844 if the density were increased to 20 units an acre and the occupancy level to 3.5 persons a unit, he estimated.

The NDP leader said the actual availability of land conflicts with often-heard arguments that building sites are scarce.

"It's simply not so. . . . The land is there."

Because of wide-scale availability, large-scale housing construction could take place without using prime farm land—something the NDP is committed to preserving, he argued.

He said earlier in the campaign that Ontario is losing 26 acres of prime farmland an hour to developers and other buyers. Premier William Davis has denied the figure.

Political Debates Now in Jeopardy

TORONTO (CP) — The future of a scheduled debating series among the party leaders in Ontario's general election campaign is in doubt after a Saturday walkout by NDP Leader David Lewis because media reporters were barred from the studio of CFTO-TV here.

Mr. Lewis and Liberal Leader Robert Nixon were to have taped the first of three one-on-one encounters Saturday but the NDP chief withdrew when police kept reporters from the station.

Mr. Nixon, who had said earlier that he would not participate if the press were refused admission, changed his mind and was interviewed alone by Fraser Kelly.

Later, Mr. Lewis delivered personally to Progressive Conservative headquarters a letter in which he asked the premier to join him in urging CFTO to admit the media to its two remaining debates—Davis-Lewis and Davis-Nixon.

"It makes sense that you and I should engage in open debate," he said. "I can't imagine that a premier would begrudge the presence of press and media."

Up until today, there was no announcement of any direct reply by the premier to Mr. Lewis, but Mr. Davis said in an interview Sunday he will attend next Saturday's scheduled taping session regardless of whether Mr. Lewis does.

Davis Says Liberals Power Hungry

GODERICH, Ont. (CP) — Premier William Davis accuses the Liberals of lusting for power and says all he wants from the Sept. 18 provincial general election is the opportunity to do something for the people of Ontario.

In campaigning here during the holiday weekend, he also deprecated an attack on his personal integrity by Liberal Leader Robert Nixon.

He called it "offensive" and "unfair" Monday but said he did not intend to wage a war of words on the subject with Mr. Nixon.

People are more interested in hearing solutions the three major parties may have to such problems as inflation than they are in hearing party leaders insult one another, he said.

Mr. Nixon said in a television interview Saturday that the premier's integrity, as well as that of his government, is open to question.

Mr. Davis, talking to reporters, said the question of integrity "is something the people of the province are going to have to settle."

Mr. Davis said in a luncheon speech he is concerned over a lust for power displayed by the Liberals—a craving he said he does not share.

Rather than power, Mr. Davis said, he is interested "in the opportunity to do something for the people . . . of this province and I think there is a very real difference between that and what is being said by some others."

He said he is prepared to discuss the issues but that most people would consider inflation rather than his personal integrity a more legitimate topic.

Mr. Nixon, he charged, is making contradictory promises to the electorate. In one instance Mr. Nixon would promise to chop education spending by 1 million, he said, then would promise to remove education spending ceilings imposed by the Conservative government.

"Eleven million on one hand and hundreds of millions on the other. And you know you've got to ask yourselves just really what do these people think they're saying."

He criticized the Liberal leader for telling voters that regional government will continue to spread if the Conservatives are re-elected Sept. 18. Such is not the case, he said.

One of the "great disappointments" of the campaign, he said, is that he is still waiting for something new from the Liberals in the way of policy.

"I think the issue in this election, when you get right down to it,, is going to be the decision by the people of this province as to who they think can best govern their affairs."

Mr. Davis walked in a Labor Day parade and visited two hospitals in Sarnia earlier Monday before coming here for the luncheon and helping open a softball tournament.

Sunday, Mr. Davis dined with Peter Lougheed, premier of Alberta, who was in Toronto to attend Calgary Day at the Canadian National Exhibition.

On Saturday, Mr. Davis restated that he is opposed to granting civil servants full political rights.

The Liberal and New Democratic parties both favor extension of full political rights to civil servants. The Civil Service Association of Ontario has engaged upon a high-budget advertising campaign to put their case across to the public.

Existing law allows civil servants to take unpaid leave of absence to run for public office, but prevents employees from taking part in provincial or federal electon campaigns.

Streetsville Riding Worries Davis

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) — The attitudes of voters in Mississauga North riding to the issue of regional government might be one area that has Premier William Davis worried.

In June, 1973, Mr. Davis was booed at a meeting in the riding when he announced that Streetsville would not survive as an independent municipality in the new region of Peel, but would become a ward in Mississauga.

But when the premier recently attended a meeting for the Progressive Conservative candidate for the riding, Terry Jones, he received a different response.

One man who had walked out of the 1973 meeting said: "Time passes, and you start to be more realistic."

After talking to many residents who expressed the same opinion Mr. Davis said he was pleased to see so many "who a year or so ago were less than enthusiastic about decisions the government was making."

But others feel that the regional government issue will swing the riding.

Liberal candidate Vince Zuccaro said it's "the No. 1 issue" and bitterness is producing a lot of new Liberal votes.

Mr. Zuccaro said residents resent the additional costs and the increase in bureaucracy caused by regional government and "fear that they're going to lose local autonomy."

Mississauga is 10 miles west of Metropolitan Toronto.

Shorter Work Hours Expected

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian labor leaders say they are looking to a future of shorter hours, extended benefits for all workers and cleaner plants with fewer health hazards.

Joseph Morris, president of the Canadian Labor Congress, said in an interview that the trend toward a shorter work week reflects society's preference for more leisure time and is "economically justifiable."

Mr. Morris said the productive ability of Canada has reached a point which makes it unnecessary for the worker "to toil long hours as he did 25 years ago."

Unions and their members will also want a greater voice in controlling work conditions and in matters affecting job security, he said.

Dennis McDermott, director of the 120,000-member Canadian section of the United Auto Workers, said: "You can't argue that it's economically necessary to work 40 hours when workers are laid off for three months."

But some union leaders say the shorter working hours will create problems of what to do with increased leisure time. Lynn Williams, director of District 6 of the United Steelworkers of America, said in an interview that the emphasis will be on vacations and sabbatical leaves in education.

New Prime Rate Hits 9 Per Cent

OTTAWA (CP) — The Bank of Canada signalled a period of tight credit Tuesday by raising its prime lending rate a hefty three-quarters of a percentage point to nine per cent, effective today.

The move is regarded as a sign of federal endorsement of recent increases in interest rates on money markets for various types of credit, including mortgages, and consumer loans.

In acting to dampen credit spending, bank governor Gerald Bouey said the central bank is determined to avoid "excessively rapid" expansion in the amount of money in circulation, which could add to the inflation rate.

Noting the recent increases in money market interest rates, Mr. Bouey said a rise in the central bank rate was needed to "re-establish a more satisfactory relationship" between the market rates and the central rate.

The central bank lending rate is the rate charged chartered banks for loans. The retail banks rarely borrow from the central bank—doing so only to compensate for brief periods of low cash—because the rate is higher than that for other money available to the banks.

But the central rate is seen as an indicator of federal views on economic policy—higher rates tend to restrict the availability of credit while lower rates encourage lending.

The new rate is the highest since the historic peak of 9¼ per cent between July and November, 1974. The bank rate has been steady at 8¼ per cent since Jan. 13, when it dropped from 8¾ per cent.

The three-quarters of a percentage point jump was the largest change in recent years. The 11 previous changes in the last five years have been no more than one-half of one per cent up or down.

Although the chartered banks' prime interest rate—the rate charged their most credit-worthy customers—has remained at nine per cent for the last several months, interest charges on other loans have increased. The average rate on mortgages increased recently to 11½ per cent from 11¼ per cent.

Mr. Bouey said in a prepared statement that the recent increases result from current and projected demands for credit from public and private borrowers.

With the amount of money in circulation already increasing at a high rate, Mr. Bouey said the bank was not prepared to relieve the upward pressure on interest rates by further increasing the money supply because this would increase the inflation rate.

Increases in interest rates will have some inflationary impact in themselves, however, because they increase cost of doing business.

Israel Blasts Camps

SIDON, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli planes blasted a Palestinian refugee camp today while Israeli artillery shelled border villages in the second straight day of attacks on southern Lebanon, witnesses said.

Phantom and Skyhawk jets flew over the Borgholieh camp at rooftop level strafing and rocketing while the 1,000 refugees scrambled for shelter, the witnesses said.

There was no immediate report of casualties.

Shortly after the attack at Borgholieh, about 25 miles north of the border, Israeli artillery opened up on three villages and surrounding lemon groves in the hills overlooking the border, villagers reported.

It was the second day of cross-border shelling by the Israelis against settlements in the southern hills known as the Argoub in Lebanon and Fatahland in Israel because of the guerrilla encampments there.

Palestinian sources said their forces downed one Skyhawk with Soviet-made missiles. But the Israelis said all their aircraft returned safely.

The Israelis were believed to be retaliating for a pair of Palestinian raids during the weekend in northern Israel. The attacks, at Zarit Saturday and Kfar Jeladi Sunday, were aimed at disrupting U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger's peacemaking between Israel and Egypt, guerrilla spokesman said.

Hockey Takes Bite For Dental Injuries

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Puck chasing has its serious side.

Hockey is the major cause of dental injuries among teenage sports players in Hastings County, district public health authorities have found.

The sport accounts for 50 per cent of all dental-injury insurance claims by high school students, the Hastings-Prince Edward Counties Health Unit reports.

Football accounts for 17 per cent of the claims, while the remaining 33 per cent is blamed on basketball, soccer, lacrosse and volleyball.

The unit's dental service will hold clinics during September in all high schools, fitting athletes with mouthguards.

The insurance statistics justify "the highest priority" on mouth protection in sports by students, parents and schools, says Dr. Dennis A. Warwick, he unit's dental services director.

School and organized league sports account for 83 per cent of all injuries, he said.

There were 3,936 students insured during the last school year of which 12 made claims totalling $2,839.

The clinics — launched two years ago when the dental service was organized — provide custom-made mouthguards at cost price. This year the cost of each guard is $4.

Insurance statistics also prove the wisdom of the annual project, indicates Dr. Warwick.

Of the 3,936 students who took out school insurance for the 1974-75 school year, one of every 328 sustained a dental injury.

"Although this is dramatic evidence of the value of the project, there still needs to be even greater awareness of the importance of mouth protection in sports," says Dr. Warwick. "It should be possible to virtually eliminate this type of injury."

Ford Predicts Boom Year

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — Ford Motor Co. is previewing its 1976 autos amid predictions the new model year might send the ailing auto industry into a boom.

Lee Iacocca, Ford's president, said the recession is coming to an end, consumer confidence has returned, and his firm's price increases are smaller than last year's.

These factors, he said Tuesday, might produce "a very good year for the auto industry—it might even be a boom year."

Water Bills Will Jump 196 Per Cent

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Residents here can brace themselves to pay 196 per cent of their water bill for sewage services when the new Centennial Park treatment plant begins operation in 1978, figures released by town officials show today.

In addition, there will be a raise in the general rate of 3½ to 4 mills per year, officials said.

Town council, in caucus Tuesday night, passed a resolution accepting the proposal for the project cost based on tenders received by the ministry of environment's (MOE) builder's and operator's of the plant.

The town will be charged 73.9-cents per 1,000 gallons by the MOE or $601,542 for the first year the plant is in operation. The costs will be maintained for an additional four years until the contract will be re-negotiated, officials said.

"Council had no choice but to accept the exorbitant costs," said Aubrey Sharp, town clerk. "No one was in favor of the raise but the alternative was to halt future development in Trenton," he said.

One six-home subdivision was rejected by the MOE, last spring, because the existing sewage treatment facility was overburdened, Mr. Sharp said.

The council was informed of the new price of the plant in a letter from Arden Royce, assistant town clerk.

"The low tenders for the constrution of the treatment plant and force main came in about 40 per cent over estimates," the letter said.

This increased the cost to the town from the original $298,737 to the proposed $601,542 charge.

Council had to reach a quick decision because the MOE must accept tenders within 30 days of closing and that date was Sept. 6.

Miners Continue Strike

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — About 30,000 southern West Virginia coal miners continued their strike today while union and industry officials prepared to discuss the roots of the three-week-old wildcat walkout.

A federal judge here chided both United Mine Workers (UMW) leaders and management Tuesday for their failure to end the strike, as he continued a $100,000-a-day fine against the national union.

The civil contempt fine, which reached $900,000 today, is aimed at the Logan-Boone-Kanawha county area of West Virginia where the strike began Aug. 11.

UMW officers said discussions would continue in Washington today with representatives of the Bituminous Coal Operators Association on "the whole problem of injunctions."

Labor Party Endorses Israeli - Egyptian Pact

JERUSALEM (AP) — Approval of the new Israeli-Egyptian agreement by the Israeli parliament today appeared assured after the ruling Labor party and two of its allies endorsed it.

Observers said acceptance of the pact by Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's Laborites and by the National Religious Party and the Independent Liberals promised Rabin the support of 69 or 70 of the 120 members of the Knesset, Israel's parliament.

Tentative plans were being made Tuesday for representatives of Israel and Egypt to sign the agreement in Geneva Thursday.

Opposition to the agreement in the Labor party's central committee was led by former defence minister Moshe Dayan. But the committee voted 370 to 4 with four abstentions to approve the accord.

Former prime minister Golda Meir made a rare public appearance at the meeting. Although she voted in favor of the agreement, she warned against "rejoicing and the tendency to exaggerate its achievements."

Meanwhile, U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger was winding up his latest Middle East peace mission with visits to Saudi Arabia, Jordan and Syria.

In Amman, he assured King Hussein that the Sinai accord is "only one step" toward an overall Middle East peace settlement. Prime Minister Zaid Rifai warned him that Jordan is "anxiously awaiting" progress on further peace moves and on other issues between it and the U.S.

Hussein is pressing for the U.S. government to carry out its promise to supply 14 Hawk missile batteries Jordan ordered from the U.S. Congress blocked the sale, but the Ford administration plans to try again to get its approval.

A similar reception awaited Kissinger today in Damascus, where the Syrian government is insisting that Israel return the Golan Heights captured in the 1967 war and recognize the rights of the Palestinians to establish their own state on the West Bank of the Jordan River.

U.S. officials said that Saudi Arabia gave a "broad endorsement" to the Sinai pact. King Khaled and Crown Prince Fahd reiterated the late King Faisal's demand that Israel relinquish the Arab sector of Jerusalem, but they did not press the point, one U.S.

Kissinger left Saudi Arabia convinced that oil prices will go up this fall, probably about 10 per cent, reporters traveling with him said.

Anti-Communists Protest Goncalves Appointment

LISBON (AP) — The drive to keep pro-Communist Gen. Vasco Goncalves from taking command of Portugal's armed forces continued to gather support today.

Unconfirmed reports said that despite a personal appeal from Goncalves about 240 army officers ended a 15-hour emergency meeting at a barracks 80 miles north of Lisbon by voting against his installation as chief of staff of the armed forces.

Goncalves was to have been sworn in Monday, but this apparently is being delayed until after a showdown meeting Friday of the Armed Forces Movement, the group of officers responsible for the overthrow last year of the fascist dictatorship.

Reporters were barred from the army meeting at a barracks in Tancos. It was attended by influential opponents of Goncalves who had been the driving force behind President Francisco da Costa Gomes' decision Friday to replace him as premier.

External Affairs Unveils New Foreign Aid Policy

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen unveiled Tuesday "a new look" in foreign aid policy, with a thrust toward more flexible assistance programs and increased help to the world's poorest countries.

Mr. MacEachen told a news conference Canada is committed to spending seven-tenths of one per cent of its gross national product (GNP) on international aid, but he would not set a deadline for that target. Canada spent $742 million, or .52 per cent, of the GNP on foreign aid in the 1974-75 fiscal year.

The new goal would be reached "through gradual increases in annual appropriations, Mr. MacEachen said."

The announcement came three days after World Bank President Robert McNamara said in Washington that the world's poorest countries are facing a severe crisis and criticized the industrial states for not substantially increasing their aid.

The United Nations conference on trade and development has set one per cent of the GNP of developed countries as its long-standing target for foreign assistance.

Mr. MacEachen said there are about 40 poor countries Canada "will be assisting substantially." The wealthier developing countries might qualify for new forms of aid, such as trade advantages or increased technological assistance.

Paul Gerin-Lajoie, head of the Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA), defined poor countries as those with annual per-capita incomes of less thn $200.

Mr. MacEachen said CIDA, which develops foreign ail policy, regards increased food production as a higher priority than accelerated industrial development in poor countries.

"There would be more sympathy . . . for countries which recognize this priority."

A CIDA report on foreign aid strategy to 1980 said the agency will work toward improved co-ordination with the international community.

Bilateral aid programs would be concentrated on "a limited number of countries selected on the basis of need, commitment to development, general Canadian interests and geographic distribution of other donors' assistance."

Conditions of new bilateral loans would be made more flexible "so that developing countries will be eligible to compete for contracts."

CIDA has been criticized for tying most of its bilateral loans to the condition that recipients purchase Canadian goods or services.

International Strategy

External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen (right) and Paul Gerin-Lajoie, president of the Canadian International Development Agency, (CIDA) unveil the CIDA report on foreign aid strategy at a news conference in Ottawa Tuesday. International aid programs will be aimed primarily at the poorest developing countries in the next five years, Mr. MacEachen said. (CP Photo)

Tupper Publishes New Work

Foxboro poet Charles Tupper has found that being the writer, producer and advertising agency for your own publication is no laughing matter but, says Mr. Tupper, it keeps him busy.

Mr. Tupper recently issued a limited edition of his new book of poetry Gateway To Canada.

Orders for the mobile-poetry books, featuring an open-faced concept that can be added to in a folder-form, have come all the way from libraries in Alberta and the University of Sherbrooke in Quebec.

Mr. Tupper receives correspondence daily from fans as young as one 12-year-old in Picton.

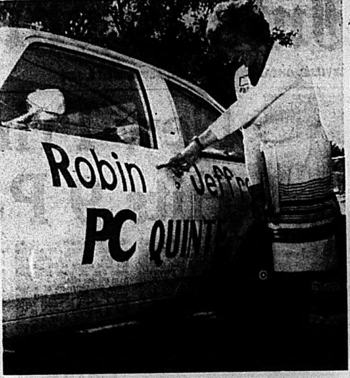
"It's quite a process trying to launch a book," he said, "especially when you're performing all the publishing work." A total of 44 have sold from 200 editions.

The soft-cover version is $5 and is available at Belleville General Hospital or by writing the author at Box 45, Foxboro.

Sewer Rates Accepted

TWEED — The recent increase in village water and sewer rates, that threatened for some time to bring about much "rebellion" has evidently now been accepted peacefully by most of the residents of the community, with only one ratepayer attending the August 25 meeting of council (Village of Tweed) to question the additional cost of their services.

Town Clerk, Heath Jones states that residents of the community, who have called at the Clerk's office to complain about the new (seemingly high) rates, when the cost schedule was explained to them, were satisfied and understood it fully.



The Big Yellow Machine

Robin Jeffrey, Quinte PC candidate, will be cruising the riding until Sept. 18 in her yellow campaign car hoping to win the hearts of thousands.

Jeffrey Cuts Loose on Nixon

Liberal leader Robert Nixon is a "wet-finger politician" according to Robin Jeffrey, Conservative candidate for Quinte riding, speaking Tuesday at a meeting of the Belleville Kiwanis Club.

"He develops policies when he sees which way the wind blows," said Mrs. Jeffrey.

In August, she said, the Liberal Party of Ontario suggested abolishing OHIP premiums as a method of helping reduce the government's deficit.

"You don't have to be an economist to understand that if Ontario's 8 million people don't contribute some share of the province's medical bill, that bill has to be paid by someone," said Mrs. Jeffrey.

"We are satisfied and happy with the facilities and health care that our people have available in this Quinte area, and we don't want the cradle or hospital to be rocked."

Despite rising costs, said Mrs. Jeffrey, the Conservative government has been able to deliver health care costs during the past four years without an increase in premiums.

Smoke and Heat Detectors Don't Do the Job: Culhane

Sprinklers are "fool proof" fire protection, Belleville Fire Chief, Leo Culhane, said Wednesday.

Smoke and heat detectors have been installed in some Belleville homes and are good protection, he said: "but they don't put out the fire."

Chief Culhane was commenting on statements made Tuesday in Mississauga by the president of the Canadian Fire Chiefs Association.

William MacDonald said at the chief's annual conference that he will ask the federal government to make fire alarm and sprinkler systems standard equipment in all new private homes.

"There's so much of a loss every year through fire," said Chief Culhane, who did not attend the conference.

The cost of sprinkler systems in residential buildings is estimated at less than one per cent of the total cost of the building.

Vandals Force Stricter Hours

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Increased vandalism and use of town hall exterior stairwells leading to the parking garage as urinals forced town council Tuesday to close stairwells after 5 p.m. weekdays and entirely on weekends.

The decision, reached in the first meeting after summer recess, was council's response to the report offered by Arie Hoornweg, commissioner of Public Works, who told the council maintenance crews had to clean the stairwells daily because they were being used as urinals by vandals.

"If we don't take the action, we will have to have a cleaner disinfecting the entrances daily and this would be too expensive," Mr. Hoornweg told the group.

Motorists using the garage will have to use the vehicle ramp to enter and exit the building when the main pedestrian passageways are closed. To reach the main shopping area on Dundas Street West they will have to walk out the Fraser Park motor ramp and circle the block.

Locks will be installed on the doors leading to the stairwells and fencing will have to be added to shut off access through the cement walls of the modern building, said Mr. Hoornweg.

"I hope we can have the work completed within two weeks," he said following the meeting.

Ronald Price, a councilman raised the issue of vandalism in the garage during the discussion.

He questioned the rising property damage to the building and cars using the garage and asked Mr. Hoornweg to explore the possibility of closing off the garage completely by installing a door on the motorist ramp, citing examples of vehicular and light fixture damage in the garage.

Mr. Hoornweg said this would be costly but that he would look into the matter.

Clerk Untimely Victim

TRENTON — While council was taking steps to stem the tide of vandalism in the town hall parking garage, underneath its council chamber, vandals struck.

The trunk lid of clerk Aubrey Sharp's car was "pounded in," according to a town hall spokesman.

The spokesman said that the damage was not done by a vehicle colliding with the clerk's car, but rather, the truck was buckled in, as if someone had struck it with fists, or a blunt object.

Mr. Sharp, in a meeting this morning, was unavailable for comment.

Reports indicate he discovered the damage upon leaving Tuesday night's council meeting around 11 p.m.

Mr. Sharp's vehicle was parked on the second storey-level of the parking garage, below the council chamber and municipal offices.

During Tuesday's meeting, council decided to close stairwells leading to the garage after 5 p.m. daily (entirely weekends) in an effort to end their use as urinals. Vandals have previously damaged vehicles and lighting fixtures in the garage.

The town hall spokesman said today Mr. Sharp's car, a compact, had once been lifted and moved into the centre of the parking garage.

Lights Coming At Wallbridge Intersection

Traffic lights are required at the junction of Highway 2 and Loyalist-Wallbridge Road, the provincial communications and transport ministry has decided.

The indication came today from Dr. Richard Potter, former MPP Quinte and provincial cabinet minister.

Dr. Potter said he had been informed that the ministry had conducted a survey of traffic conditions in the area — where the volume of vehicles has stepped up since the opening of Loyalist College and its subsequent expansions.

The ministry, said Dr. Potter, has "agreed to install traffic lights as soon as they can get them in."

Train Crossing Needs Study

TRENTON — A proposal to synchronize the traffic signals at the intersections of Dundas West and Division Streets and King and Division Streets with the Canadian National Railways automatic track crossing system making them simultaneously red, was returned to council for further review, Tuesday night.

When questioned by Mayor Robert Patrick about who might be responsible if an accident occurred at the intersections, Arie Hoornweg, commissioner of Public Works, told the group the CNR would not be held liable but that the town might if the traffic light did not agree with the train crossing signal.

Council decided to refresh their memories on the subject when councilman George Greer questioned a mentioned misunderstanding about the cost of the project to the town in a letter from the Canadian Transport Commission to council.

Mr. Hoornweg explained council had formerly though the modification would cost the town 12½ per cent of about $20,000.

Mr. Hoornweg informed the council the cost would be closer to $12,500 to the town. The total was based on a charge of $4,850 for the Dundas intersection, about $6,360 for the King Street intersection and 12½ per cent of the $9,000 expenses to be incurred by the CNR.

Garbage Collection Reduced

TRENTON — Town council has approved a request from Trenton Sanitation to reduce its garbage pick-up schedule from the current five-day week to Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday.

The changeover would begin September 15 with the people effected by the change receiving service twice in the initial week so they will not have to wait one and a half weeks between pickups.

The downtown area is the only part of Trenton receiving twice a week collection and this will be maintained by the company which has one year remaining on its five-year contract.

Mr. Hoornweg told the council the change in procedure was made possible by the company acquisition of new equipment which speeded up the collection process.

The company will undertake the job of informing the public of the new schedule by distributing handbills to all the customers effected by the change.

Wethead Is Dead in Pool Program

By SUSAN McCONNELL
Staff Reporter

With posters proclaiming slogans like 'the wethead is dead . . . he drowned' adorning the cement walls of the Kiwanis Community Pool, you can be sure instructors and swimmers are doing their best to promote safety in the swim program.

Three-week sessions during the past year have prepared 8,969 swimmers to handle themselves much better in the water. But attending the sessions isn't enough; swimmers must undergo both oral and practical examinations.

Most recently, a bus-load of children from Thurlow Township were trying for their Red Cross safety badges.

The cost for a session is $7 per child for 15 hours and $3.50 for each additional child. The maximum cost is $15.

Mike Kalnay, pool director, said the purpose of the badge awards was to familiarize the swimmer with safety in the water and to improve their basic swimming performance.

Registration for the next session is on Sept. 20 from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m.

A total of 269 awards were presented to pre-beginners, beginners, junior, intermediate and senior swimmers this summer. The top winners, the senior division, were Sue Palmer, Debbie Warren, Joe Williams, Mary Hinchey, Corrine Hadden and Cathy Goodfellow.

This week swimmers will be tested for their Bronze Medallion entitling them to be lifeguards, at the Kiwanis Community Pool next week.

Picton Wants Lease Extended

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Town council will seek a five-year lease on its office facilities before spending an estimated $3,475 to redecorate the building owned by Mur-Van Developments of Picton.

The decision followed observations by Picton deputy-reeve Richard Byers that the one-year lease considered by the town was impractical in view of the high renovation costs involved. Actual cost to the town is about $2,900 with $600 to be paid by the landlords.

He observed the money will be spent to improve a facility the town does not own and when a one-year lease expires there is nothing to prevent landlords from increasing rental fees.

Deputy-reeve Byers said purchase of property for town offices would represent a good long term investment. He added that if council could not support this view more consideration should be given to its lease agreement with its present landlords.

Picton reeve Larry Richardson called the municipal offices "a disgrace to the town" unless improved.

Similarly, councillor Charles Hepburn supported renovations and observed the town has an image that must be maintained.

Councillors voted to seek a five-year lease at the same rent figure with provisions for subletting of the property.

It was noted that should the town decide to acquire its own offices it would not be "stuck" with the facilities now rented. Also, if county government were re-structured council would be able to sublet its offices.

Depurty-reeve Byers said he supported a long term lease as a compromise measure.

He said that purchase of facilities would provide the best solution for council.

Construction Subsidy Up

TRENTON — At the first meeting following the summer recess, Tuesday, council was informed of an additional $25,000 construction subsidy allocated for the municipality by the Ministry of Transportation and Communications.

The supplementary subsidy, whose use is subject to approval by the Ontario Municipal Board, raises the total construction allocations from the ministry in 1975 to $225,000. Maintenance allocations to the town were $150,000 for the same paid.

Pool Lease Expiring

Mike Kalany, director of the Kiwanis Community Pool, says the leasing of the pool from Black Hawk Motor Inn expires Dec. 31, 1975, and a new lease is currently under negotiation.

Mr. Kalany said the pool was just "breaking even. Although attendance is up approximately 20 per cent, we're still just meeting costs," he said.

Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund contributes $2,000 monthly, said Mr. Kalany.

Mr. Kalany said a total of 13,692 people had used the pool this year.

UNESCO Prize for Architecture

'Emergency Habitat' Couple from India Will Put Skills to Work Back Home

By PIERRETTE POSMOWSKI
in
UNESCO Features

The 1975 Unesco Prize for Architecture has been awarded jointly to two Indian students, Vidhyadhar Chavda and Alka Shah. They received the award last 29 May from Unesco Director-General Amadou Mahtar M'Bow at a ceremony at the Organization's Paris headquarters.

Their project, one of 151 entries submitted by 91 schools of architecture in 36 countries on the theme "Emergency Habitat", was selected unanimously by a jury set up by the International Union of Architects. The $3,000 prize is awarded every three years.

Mr. Chavda and Miss Shah, or rather Mr. and Mrs. Chavda since they are now husband and wife, are students at the Ahmedabad School of Architecture. They were in their third year of study when the competition was announced and had already made several surveys in rural districts of India where they were appalled by the plight of poor people left homeless and destitute by disasters such as floods, cyclones and drought. "We were very excited," Mr. Chavda recalled, "because the contest was a way for us to express our ideas."

These ideas have materialized in the form of a simple but effective system of housing for disaster victims and the homeless generally which can serve multiple purposes. It provides:

— a temporary shelter in areas struck by floods, cyclones and other catastrophes;

— a framework around which disaster victims can later build themselves a permanent home;

— the technical advice and incentive needed to generate a spirit of self-help among the homeless;

— and last — but not least important in a country where natural disasters are frequent — housing units which can be stored away once they have served their purpose in one district, ready to be sent to another as soon as the need arises.

Like many of the best ideas, the system is unsophisticated. It consists of folding aluminum frames, assembled to form a block of 10 living units, each 8 ft. x 12 ft., over which coverings of laminated polyethylene are placed. It is easy to pack, transport and erect, and the units can be folded back and stored flat in a special box containing all parts as well as sanitary appliances.

One of the advantages of the system is that it can be extended to a greater or lesser degree. Small families are housed in one unit, larger ones in two or more. And should there be a bigger influx of refugees than expected they can be accommodated at a moment's notice by putting up dormitory units.

Water and cooking facilities are laid on at the community level — at least initially. "Emergencies," Vidhyadhar Chavda explained, "can be divided into three categories: a short-term period of a week or two immediately following a disaster, during which food and relief are supplied by social and government agencies. Subsequently, for six to nine months, people remain in temporary accommodation with community kitchens and water provided. After this may come a rehabilitation or self-help building stage, and there, facilities should be installed in individual dwellings."

In India, 80 per cent of the population live in villages. These are the people who suffer in times of flood or drought. Thousands of them migrate in search of food and jobs, often taking their cattle with them.

They plan, of course, to return to their villages once the emergency is over. But in some areas drought conditions persist for as long as three or four years. When this happens, settlements that started out as temporary refugee camps may become permanent villages.

It is this type of development that the Chavdas' system sets out to encourage through a do-it-yourself approach. "If we tried to provide ready-made houses," Vidhyadhar Chavda explained, "the cost would be so high that few people could afford them. We prefer a self-help system in which we supply the metal framework and they build the walls according to their own needs and ideas."

"We are merely trying to turn their traditional skills to account," said Alka Chavda. "Rural people in India usually build their own houses, and some of the structures they produce are really very interesting. I don't think an architect could do any better. All that is needed is to give them enough technology to make their own materials — mud bricks and clay tiles — and for this we provide a workshop unit on each site."

Sanitation is another item of technology supplied with the emergency housing package. Most Indian villages have no such facilities and the Chavdas hope that experience at the community level will provide incentive for families to equip their own homes with sanitation.

As to costs, the use of materials such as aluminum calls for a relatively high initial investment. But the Chavdas are confident that it will quickly be amortized.

Now back at school in Ahmedabad preparing for their final examinations, the Chavdas next year will be in the United States studying the problems of urban settlements in developing countries at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

After that?

"We are going back to India", they say, "to work among the poor people. Very little is being done for them in the slums and villages. India has few architects and most of those it has are busy catering to the demands of people who can afford houses. But today a movement is developing among architecture students and we want to play our part."

Corby Library's Appeal

The Corby Library has always been a bastion of good reading and culture in our midst.

It is all the more so now, with the downtown area showing increasing signs of revival — a trend Mrs. Robin Jeffrey, before vacating the office of Mayor, said should be encouraged.

The preservation of downtown areas as both commercial and residential areas is a worldwide trend, as witness what has been happening in a number of European cities and discussed in a recent UNESCO Features article reproduced on this page.

The library meanwhile is more than just a collection of books and art, for in the way these are presented it reflects the contemporary scene—where it's at, as the saying goes.

Titles in the front display case are typical, dealing with a variety of subjects of moment: such as, Old is Not a Four-letter Word, by Jean Beaven Abernethy.—this at a time when the Ontario Advisory Council on Senior Citizens has brought out its first annual report. The Stock Market Crash of 1929, by Gordon V. Axon, is another title which bears comparison with the economic trends of our day. Others, too, bearing on the present: The Other Side of Divorce, by Helen K. Hosier; The Polar Regions, by Lyn Harrington, significant in the context of Arctic defence, and a topic of interest locally in recent days, Veteran and Vintage Cars, by Peter Roberts.

As ever, the library provides an opportunity also for enjoyment of the work of some of Canada's greatest artists, including, of late, paintings by the Group of Seven, and the legendary Tom Thomson. These were on view along with the compelling interpretations of the Hastings countryside of Danish-born Poul Thrane.

Currently, the library is presenting the Quinte country sketches of Jerry Stapley, as well as prints by the incomparable Grandma Moses.

The Corby library is one of the best patronized establishments of our downtown area. With the core development taking place, its reputation is sure to be enhanced further.

Youth Involvement

"Generation gap" is a term which, mercifully, could be on the way out. Certainly, it is not given much play any more.

This at a time when senior citizens and the younger generation have been getting together in a variety of community schemes aimed at both companionship and as a learning experience.

Teenagers for instance benefitting from the knowledge of the older folk, and the still younger kids getting to know the seniors as they would with grandparents.

It is part of the modern therapy being brought to bear these days in an effort to make the ordinary day-to-day more meaningful for everyone.

Simlarly, a group of Sir Mackenzie Bowell girls have spent happy hours with youngsters from the LIP-sponsored recreation program for mentally handicapped children at the William R. Kirk School.

This is real involvement for the young people of the school, showing them a side of the human experience they might not see in the ordinary way, let alone understand fully. This way, they both understand and have found renewed fulfillment in helping the handicapped. The latter, in turn, have an opportunity to express their own happy personalities.

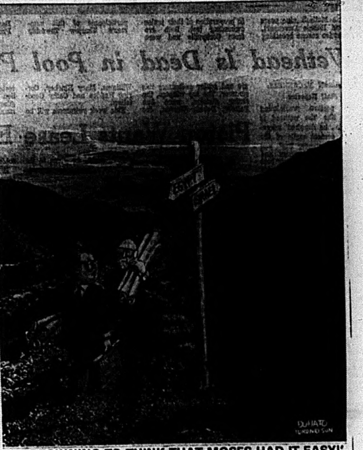
Veterinary Progress

One of Belleville's busiest people is veterinarian Bob Burns. In his late twenties, Dr. Burns has packed a lot of experience into his relatively young life.

Recently he told fellow Rotarians of developments in his profession, noting that the staff of the Belleville Animal Hospital where he works have joined with two other vets to bring five within a group. This way it is hoped to provide a more complete service to the public.

Dr. Burns believes a key problem for his profession is that it stands alone, has no government support for building of facilities or in meeting costs. He says a report on the profession is being prepared for the government and changes may be anticipated.

Having spent some time in his training days in Africa, with the help of a bursary, as well as in Great Britain, the Irish Republic, and the United States, Dr. Burns is now preparing for another trip overseas. This time it will be as a Rotarian — he has been chosen to lead his district's group study exchange to Israel next year.



'I'M BEGINNING TO THINK THAT MOSES HAD IT EASY!'

A Polish Immigrant Discusses Freedom, Work, and Sacrifices

Letter in Brantford Expositor

In answer to William Fuller's letter criticizing my opinion of Derek Blackburn and the new federal gas tax, I would like to state the following:

(1 The federal gas tax increase has been passed by the majority. So be it!

(2 Surely the labor class cannot be described as the select few. The majority of Canada is made up of the labor class. (including myself.

I have been in Canada since 1947 so certainly do not consider myself a newcomer. I am also very happy to state that I am a Canadian Citizen and extremely proud of my heritage. I consider myself of the more fortunate people who were given the opportunity to migrate to Canada and worked to carve the agricultural and industrial empire and still maintain that it was and is my privilege.

(4 For years I served with the Eighth Army in the Middle East, North Africa and the Italian campaign. I chose Canada to be my homeland since my country had succumbed to Communism.

I have clung to the tradition of a free Poland and thank God that in this great country I am able to raise my family in the freedom of religion, speech and as this letter indicates, the freedom of the press.

Our government is elected by the majority of the people and being a democratic country, we must have faith that our leaders are doing what they feel is best for us. Using the deprivation of a beer or a pack of cigarettes was merely a way of putting across the fact that some small sacrifices which might also include less hydro, lower thermostats, and slower speed limits might indirectly help our economy.

Also, investigating the ridiculous rates of welfare handed out to individuals who are physically able to work but too lazy to do so might save a great portion of taxpayers' money.

The Tobacco Harvest And Worker Migration

Kitchener—Waterloo Record

The tobacco harvest in western Ontario will soon be in full swing, and with it will come the annual migration of thousands of harvest workers. As farm jobs go, the pay for seasonal work in the tobacco fields is good, but the work is hard. Long days under a hot sun, moving down the rows to strip leaves from tall plants, leave the back aching and the arms black with the tars and gums exuded from the stems.

For years a high proportion of the workers have come from Quebec. For farm boys from rural Quebec it can be a chance to make a stake. They can't help saving money, because at the end of a day in the tobacco fields they are too tired to do any spending.

According to Jack Legault, an official of the Quebec division of Canada Manpower, money is not the only incentive. "They like the adventure, or the excitement," he says. A trip to English-speaking Ontario can be a new experience.

Mr. Legault has been on a trip through the tobacco-growing areas of Norfolk, Elgin and Kent counties, looking at the job opportunities and working conditions for harvest workers. One of the ideas that has been put to him is that migrant workers from Quebec should have contractual arrangements as good as those provided for temporary farm labor brought in from Caribbean countries.

Workers who come for limited stays in the cash-crop harvests of southwestern Ontario, from countries such as Mexico or Jamaica, are protected by guarantees of minimum amounts of income and inspected housing. Workers from Quebec take their chances. It seems only fair that a French-speaking Canadian in Canada should be treated at least as well as a Spanish-speaking co-worker from outside Canada.

'Wintario' - backed Theatre?

One cultural project which is deserving of support through Wintario lottery funds in the proposal for a theatre in the Upper Canada Village area.

Such a theatre would provide live entertainment, summer theatre if you like, thus supplementing other attractions offered by the St. Lawrence Parks Commission and keeping tourists longer in the area.

The plan has the support of the Seaway Valley Tourist Council and has been presented to the Ontario government a number of times over the past year or so. One of the presentations was made to a cabinet committee at Belleville some months ago.

There can be no doubt that towns such as Stratford, Niagara-on-the-Lake and Charlottetown, P.E.I. have prospered and won international respect because of similar ventures into live theatrical entertainment. There is no reason why this area could not do the same.

Anyone who has spent a Sunday afternoon at any of our beaches or picnic grounds over the past decade knows that Quebec residents, particularly those from Montreal, already know about us, if they support our parks they would likely support a theatre too. And Montreal is a very large city.

But above and beyond that advantage, Upper Canada Village is within two hour's drive of a large population in New York State. Similarly, it is not that far from Ottawa and Kingston. And it is close to Highway 401, of course, so is a natural for all tourists using that artery.

Canada's Political Smugness

Ottawa Journal

The moral posturing by Canada's government grows more stifling and more stupid. Having driven away the UN conference on crime prevention to show that Canada is against terrorism, the federal government now denies a grant to an international track meet in Toronto because 13 of the participants are South Africans. This, apparently, to say that the government stands four-square against apartheid. How inspiring!

Fortunately, Canadians have better understanding and better manners than their government. The Canadian Masters Association told the South Africans, whom they had invited to Canada months ago, to go ahead and take part in the track meet, even though the federal subsidy might be lost.

South Africa's policy on apartheid will not be changed in the slightest degree by the government's action. The progress being made towards equality in South Africa occurs in spite of hypocritical boycott attempts such as that engineered by Ottawa.

Ingredients of Safety

Niagara Falls Review

No one can control all the factors involved in a traffic collision, but there are simple precautions that reduce the risk more than half. Driving carefully, wearing seatbelts, maintaining the automobile in peak mechanical condition are all factors operating against the likelihood of a collision. Some would add driving less, walking more, and keeping all insurance and health benefits paid up. It may seem incredible that drivers would permit these latter to fall behind, but statistics show there are many that do. And just as when everything is paid up they do not have an accident, so when insurance is not paid up they do. It may be that we hear only about the cases where such happens, but it does happen all too frequently.

Of all the people living in Ontario today, almost 13 per cent will be killed or injured in a motor accident within the next 10 years. Over the next 40 years, 32 per cent of the current population will be killed or injured as a result of a highway accident. That is more than two and a half million people. These dismal predictions are the finding of our advanced studies in statistics and probability.

The problem of drinking and drunk drivers is closely tied in with these statistics.

Minister's Gesture

Montreal Gazette

In leaving his previous post as minister of state, which included responsibility for the status of women, Fernand Lalonde made a welcome parting gesture in calling for an end to the evictions of Indian women from the Caughnawaga Reserve.

In assuming the solicitor-general's portfolio, Mr. Lalonde can make a civil libertarian gesture of broader scope by calling off police grilling of physicians who have acknowledged publicly that they performed illegal abortions or referred patients to illegal abortionists.

And Claude Forget, who continues in the social affairs portfolio, can take Quebec out of the gynecological dark ages by setting up province-wide contraception information centres and ensuring that contraceptives are available to anyone desiring them.

Ulster Brothers Whose Name Is Perpetuated in Canada

Ulster Commentary

Carleton is a place-name which occurs quite frequently in Canada, writes George McBride. There are a college, counties, towns and even a mountain called Carleton and all of them perpetuate the memory of two Ulstermen who made a tremendous impact on the Canadian scene in the 18th century — Sir Guy and General Thomas Carleton.

The elder, Sir Guy (later the first Baron Dorchester), was born in Strabane, County Tyrone, in 1724. As Quartermaster-General, he accompanied General Wolfe on his historic siege and capture of Quebec and he commanded the Grenadiers at the battle of the plains of Abraham. He became Lieutenant General and then Governor of Quebec.

The younger brother, Thomas Carleton, was born in Newry, County Down. He served on the continent during the Seven Years War and in 1776 he went to Canada to become Quartermaster-General to his elder brother. On 16th August, 1784, he was appointed the first Governor of the newly-created Province of Brunswick after a after a brilliant career.

A number of places are named after the Carleton brothers. An early community in St. John County, New Brunswick, and another in the Bonaventure County of Quebec were both named after Sir Guy. And there is a Carleton College — renamed Carleton University in 1957 — in Ottawa, the seat of Carleton County from which it takes its name.

Carleton County was named in honor of Sir Guy. It lies on the Ottawa River between Russell and Renfrew Counties.

Carleton County in Western New Brunswick was originally part of York. It was proclaimed a separate county in 1832 and renamed in honor of Thomas Carleton.

Carleton Place, Ontario, is a town of Lanark County. Its first settlers were mostly veterans of the War of 1812, together with a number of Scottish and Irish immigrants.

And finally there is Carleton Mountain, the highest point in New Brunswick. It had no name until 1899 when it was called Carleton in honor of Thomas Carleton.

Taylor Shifts Blame

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Efforts to lift a development freeze in Hallowell township have been delayed by municipal councillors, not the "red tape and bureaucracy" of Queen's Park says James Taylor MLA Prince Edward-Lennox riding.

Mr. Taylor feels that Hallowell reeve and Prince Edward-Lennox Liberal candidate Keith MacDonald has distorted the issue.

"Mr. MacDonald said he didn't know the reason for the freeze," observed Mr. Taylor referring to the reeve's comments on an open line radio show. Reeve MacDonald blamed red tape at Queen's Park for delays in lifting the freeze and said he did not know why it had been imposed.

Mr. Taylor said he actively assisted Hallowell township in every possible way in recent efforts to enact a township bylaw to control development.

A residential landfreeze was placed on Hallowell township on October 28, 1974, by an order-in-council. Catalyst for this step was the proposal for a large three-phase subdivision, Waring Estates, just west of Picton.

"The freeze was to permit the municipality to control its own development instead of letting someone else walk in and do it," said Mr. Taylor.

About two weeks after the land freeze was placed on Hallowell, then housing minister Donald Irvin met with township council, the township planning board and representatives of the Central Prince Edward planning board and the Prince Edward County planning board.

Mr. Taylor said in January, 1975, he was asked to arrange a meeting between Hallowell councillors and Mr. Irvin. The meeting was delayed until February because reeve MacDonald was holidaying in Florida.

"There was no delay on the part of the province," stressed Mr. Taylor, who added that in mid-February Mr. Irvin met with township council and told councillors if a land-use by-law were passed the order freezing land in Hallowell would be withdrawn.

Mr. Taylor noted that the by-law was "very simple and about two pages long" but it was not prepared and passed by Hallowell council until April 2, 1975.

"I hardly think you can call this a delay on the part of the minister or bureaucratic red tape," he said.

On June 7, 1975, the by-law was submitted by the township to the Ontario Municipal Board.Mr. Taylor said one objection to the by-law was filed by a Hallowell land owner and an OMB hearing has been called for October 8.

"If the municipality had discharged its normal responsibilities and passed its own land use by-law then there would have been no freeze, commented Mr. Taylor

Mr. Taylor said that after the freeze was imposed many township residents seemed confused and misinformed about provisions for exemption orders. He said they were not directed properly at the local level and he was asked to assist several "poorly guided" persons who wanted to build. Most of the applications for exemption orders were granted.

Smithfield Opens Doors

Smithfield Experimental Farm, Canada Department of Agriculture, research branch, will stage a fruit and vegetable field day Thursday with guided tours from 1 p.m. until 4:30 and 6 p.m. until 8:30.

The open house will include variety tests, weed control tests, processing tests and exhibits.

The 10 to 15 minute tours will include orchard bed plantings, hedge row training and harvesting aids and spacing studies on vegetable crops.

The 300-acre farm is located 4 miles west of Trenton and one mile north of Highway 2.

Fire Hazard Rated 'Moderate' in District

TWEED — Ministry of Natural Resources officials here now class the fire hazard in the Tweed district as moderate, an improvement over the "extreme" category listed last week.

A ministry spokesman said rains over the weekend have decreased the fire hazard in the area.

Three fires continue to burn in north-central Hastings, but all are under control, he said. The largest is burning over 40 acres in Elzevir township.

Two others, both under an acre, are burning in Effingham and Hungerford townships.

Since April 1, 140 fires have destroyed 1,408 acres of trees, underbrush and grass in the 1.5-million acre Tweed district.

Native Birth Unnecessary

PICTON — The fact than an election candidate was "accidentally" born in Prince Edward County is not "a divine right to rule as a member of the legislature," says James Taylor MLA Prince Edward-Lennox.

Mr. Taylor observed that Liberal candidate for Prince Edward-Lennox riding Keith MacDonald has stressed in his campaign that he would offer truly local representation because he is county-born.

"The Liberal candidate and his followers are saying only someone born in Prince Edward, not someone from Lennox would qualify as a candidate for this riding," he remarked.hhhh

"I think people want a member that produces and is energetic and understands the complicated issues at the provincial and local levels," he added.

Mr. Taylor, who was born in Timmins and moved to Prince Edward in 1970 said he decided to live here because "it is a delightful place to raise a family."

"We live here, it's a family thing. I don't know why I would be disqualified because I wasn't born here," he said.

$100 Fines For Damage

PICTON — Two Milford men charged under the Highway Traffic Act with damaging parking signs on Main Street Friday were convicted and fined $100 each plus costs.

Fined were Ritchie Bronson, 18 of RR 1, Milford and Paul McKee, 18 of RR 2, Milford.

The men also were charged under a town by-law with kicking garbage into the streets. These charges also led to convictions and further fines of $10 each plus costs.

Picton police chief Charles Fletcher said Friday that two signs indicating five minute parking were damaged on August 5 in front of the post office. One sign was kicked loose and thrown into the street. Value of the two signs was approximately $20.

Fewer on Bus

At a recent meeting of Belleville Transit Commission it was reported accounts payable Aug. 28 amounted to $18,514.98.

Expenditures as of July 31 of $55,615.77 less revenue of $26,271.14 left a budgeted deficit of $30,344.63.

A total of 86,109 passengers in July 1975 compared to 95,094 passengers in July 1974 showed a decrease of 9.4 per cent.

Begin Your Meal with a Snappy Fruit Salad

Californians we are told, innovated the custom of serving salad as the first course, rather than with, or after the main course.

Here is a first couse salad that is truly unique. "Different" is a pale adjective to use in describing it, because the ingredients, from land and sea, create a tantalizing flavor that defies description. Bright bits of unpeeled tart red apples, coral pink shrimp, colorful sliced stuffed olives, scarlet caviar, bright green chives and bronze strips of anchovies contribute a color harmony as charming as a still-life painting.

Keep the dressing simple — just mild red wine vinegar and oil — no seasonings.

Other fruit salad recipes follow.

Land and Sea Salad

two small oinions, sliced
one can (5-oz.) whole baby clams
one can (4½-oz.) shrimp
one can (2-oz.) flat anchovy fillets
two unpeeled red apples, thinly sliced ½ cup sliced stuffed olives
one tbsp. chopped chives
one jar (2 oz.) red caviar

Arrange all ingredients attractively over salad greens. When ready to serve, toss with red wine vinegar and salad.

Banana Devonshire Salad

one cup sour cream
one tsp. prepared mustard
½ tsp. salt
two tsps. sugar
½ tsp. paprika
½ tsp. prepared horseradish
one tsp. minced onion
½ cup diced pared cucumber three bananas
Salad greens

In small bowl, mix first seven ingredients. Stir in cucumber; chill.

Peel bananas, cut into halves and place each half on salad greens on individual plates.

Serves six.

Bananas with Hot Bacon Dressing

six slices bacon, diced
½ cup chopped onion

Opportunity Shop Re-opens

Volunteers at the Belleville General Hospital Auxiliary Opportunity Sobp began sorting clothing and other good used items Tuesday for the annual fall opening of the Market Street shop Thursday.

The shop, which has been a fund raising project of the auxiliary for 27 years, got a facelift this year with newly painted clothing bins and a new coat of white paint donated by the city.

Opportunity Shop chairman Wynn Bowler explains that articles of clothing, drapes, dishes, pots and pans are all sorted by 100 volunteers and priced for sale to bargain hunters.

"We have a very generous public," Mrs. Bowler adds.

Proceeds from the shop, which last year netted $13,700, go to the hospital auxiliary.

"It's an opportunity for people to get rid of clothing and other things without just throwing them out," Mrs. Bowler says, "and an opportunity for people to obtain good clothing at very reasonable prices."

At the shop, an article like a pair of children's pants might sell from five to 25 cents.

All clothing donated to the shop, which is open from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. daily and from 10 a.m. to noon and 2 p.m. to 8.15 p.m. on Friday and from 10 to 2 on Saturday, should be clean.

"We don't ask people to dry clean clothes, but they should be neat," Mrs. Bowler adds.

When clothing is unusable, buttons are removed and sold by the jar and cotton clothes are sold for rags to tradesmen.

"We try not to waste anything."

Recipe Correction

Our apologies to Peto Cumming, whose winning recipe in The Intelligencer Cookbook, Sole with Shrimp Sauce, had an omission in the list of ingredients.

"At least people must be trying it out," said Mrs. Cumming Tuesday, "since I've had several calls asking how much cream to use."

Although cream was mentioned in the recipe method, the amount — one cup — was left out. The complete, corrected recipe is reprinted here so that experimenting cooks need no longer phone Mrs. Cumming.

Sole with Shrimp Sauce

2 lb. frozen fillets of sole
2 small onions, chopped fine
2 tbsp. flour
3 tbsps. butter
½ lb. mushrooms, chopped fine
2 tbsp. chopped parsley
one 4½-oz. can shrimp, rinsed and drained two-thirds cup dry white wine
¼ cup water
one cup light cream
salt and pepper
½ cup grated Swiss cheese

Thaw fish, just until it separates. Heat oven to 400 degrees.

Butter 13 x 9½ x2 inch pan. Place fish in pan in single layer.

Heat butter, add onions, mushrooms and cook until soft. Sprinkle in flour, salt and pepper and stir to blend. Remove from heat. Stir in wine and cream and water. Cook until boiling (thick and smooth), stirring all the time. Remove from heat.

Stir in parsley and shrimp. Pour over fish. Sprinkle with cheese; bake 25 minutes or until fish flakes.

From Kimonos to Mao Caps, Fashion Faces the Orient

NEW YORK (CP) — American designers have turned their talents to the Orient for fall and the result has been a revolutionary Chinese look that if it catches on, will see women wearing everything from workers' clothes to kimono tunics and mandarin jackets.

Tops such as sleeveless vests and jackets, long slim slit-sided evening coats are quilted, and many are styled with frog or toggle closings.

Even the colors are Oriental—in rich jade, lacquer red, onyx black, pale ivory and peach bloom.

Pat Sandler has designed a short printed coolie coat styled with frog closings and worn with a coolie hat. This type of headgear in the West is really just an Oriental whimsey and is not to be taken as a serious fall trend.

Some designers have included in their lines a practical Chairman Mao peaked cap, which could become popular.

The quilted look runs through all the fall collections, and is shown in every color and fabric from Malcolm Starr's quilted pumpkin wool jacket to Abe Schrader's quilted black satin evening coat.

Bill Blass' Oriental red quidted jacket is hip length with toggle closings and mandarin collar, worn over black pants.

In individual collections, Jerry Guttenberg showed extremes from a quilted, zip-front and hooded jacket worn with a poplin jumpsuit to a wood violet printed and quilted chiffon Lurex jacket and matching long skirt.

During a recent showing here John Anthony said: "I've put Oriental overtones in my collection because the new feeling of slimness and my own preference for rich fabrics suggests the Far East."

The mandarin cut in Anthony's coats and suits is a modern version of the narrow Chinese dress with slashed sides and high rimmed collar.

"I have also added quilted satin jackets to some of my costumes," he said, "and I like the look of soft Oriental pyjamas in satin for evening.'

Oriental side closings appeared on several of his coats such as the black braid clasps on a laquer red Melton coat.

Narrow mandarin-inspired coats appeared in many collections.

Stephen Burrows likes it in gray loden cloth and Kasper did the look in willow green ultrasuede.

Toggle closings are on most of the coats—even on their non-Oriental-look toppers.

Designer Haire showed a costume which included a kabuki wrapped jacket in ivory flannel with matching trousers and turtleneck sweater. he also introduced a Chinese fencing coat in jade brushed mohair.

Cathy Hardwick of Korean ancestry, has always favored the look of the Far East, and so this fall finds herself in the fashion forefront.

One of her raincoats sports a mandarin collar and side toggle closings in contrasting color.

For daytime, Kasper designed a long and slender Manchurian tunic with slit sides to be worn over a charcoal wool dress. Haire showed dress with mandarin collar in ivory lannel worn over pin-stripe flannel trousers.

Ann Landers

Bed-wetter Suffers Humiliation

Dear Ann: I read your answer to the woman whose grown son had a 20-year-old buddy over for the night and he wet the bed.

The guest was ashamed so he made up the bed and the woman didn't discover it until after he had gone.

She was furious because the fellow had ruined her mattress. You agreed that the son or his guest should buy her a new mattress.

Your answer showed a shocking lack of understanding. That poor fellow probably suffered untold humiliation and YOU want to heap more misery on him. I am—Very Disappointed

Dear Very: Sorry, but a 20-year-old boy who wets the bed knows he has the problem. To accept overnight hospitality and take no precautions against damage is grossly inconsiderate. Please read the next letter.

Dear Ann: I am 22 and sitll wet the bed occasionally. I've ruined mattresses, shocked friends and embarrassed myself plenty—but not in the last nine years.

Whenever I sleep away from home, I wear a diaper and rubber pants. Go ahead and laugh, but they are undetectable under pajamas and I feel very secure.

I'd rather swallow my pride and wear the "baby outfit" than go around ruining mattresses.—Solution Found

Dear S.F.: Good for you—and thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a boy 16 who disagrees violently with the woman who called you a Communist or a nut because you print letters on sex. She asked if you were aware that teen-agers read your column. She then accused you of corrupting the nation.

I'm a teen-ager who has been a fan of yours for at least four years and has profited greatly from your advice. You have kept me out of trouble and helped me do the right thing.

You were so right when you said: "Sex is a part of life and that's what the column is all about."—One Who Appreciates You

Dear One: Thanks for the vote of confidence.

Many teen-agers wrote to say their parents never told them a thing about sex and much of what they heard in the locker rooms was wrong. It was from my column that they got the straight goods.

Dear Ann Landers: I read the beef from "Turned On" who is getting very bad and he complained about her friend who refused to admit she was becoming deaf.

I am 17 and my father has the same problem. His hearing won't face the truth. He yells at us for "mumbling" and is forever asking, "What did you say?" It gets on everyone's nerves to repeat everything twice and three times.

Mom has suggested that Dad go to a doctor but he says we should take speech lessons. Any suggestions?—Losing My Voice

Dear Voice: You can't drag a person to a doctor if he doesn't want to go. You mother should suggest that Dad get his blood pressure checked. (One out of 10 adults has high blood pressure and doesn't know it.) She should then tip off the doctor to check his hearing. Word from a medical source, rather than a relative, can make a big difference.

Model Disenchanted with European Capitals

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal is "a happening city" compared with London—"a rock horror in David Bowie's time—or Zurich—"like a well-run hospital—or Milan—"a city of let-downs" and Paris—"a bisexual paradise."

These are Judi McDonald's impressions of the cities she worked in during the last two years as a professional model. She has come back to Montreal, where she began as a model six years ago, in search of security and freedom.

The 24-year-old blonde from Chatham, Ont., who began here as a showroom girl, ended up doing the best shows and working with the most successful photographers. Now she is an international model listed with such name agencies as Audrey Morris of Montreal, Eileen Green of London, Pauline's of Paris and Fashion Model in Milan.

She left her work and a budding reputation in Montreal to broaden her experience and change the place and pace of her work.

For Miss McDonald, the big money came from commercial assignments which emphasized her innocent-little-girl look. Based in London, she found the work aggravating and boring.

"I was a child monster! Every time I went on a photographic job I was either sucking lollies or roller-skating in Hyde Park or looking even smaller than I am in rubber Weilies.' I think I did 45 covers of one magazine that caters to 12-to 15-year-olds."

After being Little Miss Bubble Gum in London she went to Milan as Bride of the Year.

Paris had her type-cast as an "early Bette Davis type—perfect for all the '30s and '40s things." In Zurich she was dealt her first blow.

"My agent told me I had a very funny face and didn't think that the Swiss would go for it. I decided not to give them the chance."

Miss McDonald, categorized in Montreal as a fragile waif-type or as "the boy from Satyricon," said she was trying for editorial assignments with newspapers and magazines.

"Most models want to do editorial jobs, not only for the prestige but also because there is a special quality of involvement. It's much more rewarding when everyone is working together on a special mood or theme. By comparison, most commercials are just stand-there-like-a-dummy routines."

One of the leaders of the nostalgia scene of 1973, she said she is turned off by its pretension today.

"Photographs are more natural. So is makeup and hair. Clothes are more classic. All that campy stuff seems out of touch with reality."

Family Viewing Hours Dominate Prime Time TV

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The idea is downright wholesome: a designated time each night for television programs a family can watch together.

Programs that neither bore adults with simplicity nor inundate children with violence and sex. That's the plan for the hours between 7 and 9 p.m. each day of the week on the East and West coasts, and between 6 and 8 p.m. elsewhere.

So much for the abstract.

The reality, as the three networks go about putting just such a plan into effect for the fall season, is that the family viewing time has thrown the television industry into controversy.

Top-rated shows like All in the Family, Kojak, and Sunday Mystery Movie are getting later, post-family time slots. Comments:

—"A sham . . . a scary mess . . . a euphemism for some very dangerous goings on." Larry Gelbert, co-producer of M.A.S.H.

—"A significant step in responsible self-regulation, and in protecting the rights of our diverse audiences." Arthur R. Taylor, president of CBS Inc.

It is censorship, critics of the plan say, because it means programs airing during the family time cannot deal with some subjects.

"What we're all afraid of," said Gelbart of the irreverant M.A.S.H. (now scheduled during the family hour period), "is that in these times, when there is a greater need than ever to deal with themes which can improve and even preserve the quality of life, we're being possibly asked to stay away from these areas altogether."

Advocates of the plan say that all they want to do is reduce violence and sexual references during the early evening.

Here's an indication of what family viewing will mean this fall: CBS's Kojak and NBC's Sunday Mystery Movie will move back half an hour from 8:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. ABC has switched The Rookies from Monday at 8 to Tuesday at 9. All movies will begin when the family hours end.

CBS also will uproot the top-rated All in the Family from its Saturday night eight o'clock berth and move it to 9 p.m. Monday.

The network's claim that the move was made solely to bolster the Monday lineup has drawn considerable skepticism, especially when executive producer Norman Lear said CBS contacted him before the schedule change and asked if he would consider altering Archie Bunker. He declined.

Into the networks' family hours are going such new shows as The Invisible Man, The Swiss Family Robinson, Mobile Two, When Things Were Rotten, Three for the Road and Phyllis, as well as holdovers such as Cher, Walt Disney, The Waltons, Emergency, The Jeffersons, Sanford and Son and Chico and The Man.

Critics argue that the family hour won't shield many children from violence and sex. They cite projections from the A.C. Nielsen Co., which compiles the weekly TV ratings, showing there are 20 million kids between the ages of 2 and 17 watching television at 9 p.m. any night, 13 million at 10 p.m., and 5.5 million hanging on at 11 p.m.

And what about the Central Time Zone in the Midwest, they ask, where network programs are seen one hour earlier than everywhere else? There a child who stays up until 9 p.m. will be able to see many of the so-called adult programs deemed inappropriate for youngsters.

But Jerome H. Stanley, NBC's West Coast vice-president of broadcast standards, says the family hour has its impact because children are more in control of what is watched between the hours of 7 and 9 p.m.

"You have to assume that after 9 on any given night, adults have control of the set and that any children watching are there with the permission of those adults," he said.

MEAT SAFETY IN YOUR HOME

From store to family table, meats need tender, loving care to ensure safety and full value for your food dollar.

Take perishable protein foods home as quickly as possible after shopping. Unwrap fresh meat, poultry or fish, place on a clean plate, cover loosely and refrigerate. If planning to freeze any, re-wrap excluding air, date and freeze them quickly. Cooked meats, too, should never be left at room temperature. Use them immediately or refrigerate at once.

Before and after handling meats, thoroughly wash hands, utensils and work surfaces. Avoid wooden surfaces or scrub well, as they can harbor bacteria.

Quinte Candidates Give Priorities to Farming Community

Farm finances and provincial spending were the key areas of discussion Monday at a Quinte riding, all-candidates meeting held in Sidney Township.

Farmers told the three provincial candidates, "we don't want government handouts and appear to the rest of the province as welfare cases. We want a fair return on our investment from the market place."

Ivan May, president of the Hastings County Federation of Agriculture, said during a brief introduction to the meeting; "The government must take steps to build some stability into farm produce prices."

Robin Jeffrey conservative candidate in the riding, pointed to the present government's leadership in pioneering marketing boards as an indicator of the government's intentions to help the farmer.

She also stated she would like to see increases in grants available to the farmer.

"We have to ensure a fair return for capital investment and hours of work done — to encourage young people to remain or enter the farming industry," she said.

Mrs. Jeffrey said when and if she is elected, she will advise the premier of her preference to work on the agricultural committee. Later in an interview when asked if this meant she would become a rural member, she said she would also ask to work on municipal committees of the province.

Liberal candidate, Trenton businessman Hugh O'Neil, told the meeting "I'm no specialist in farming. My only claim to fame is being married to a farm girl.

"If elected I'd need the advice of all of you people," he said.

"I'm definitely interested in seeing you people get a fair shake," he said. He also offered to take the prepared speeches of federation executive members with him today when he meets with provincial Liberal leader Robert Nixon.

The Davis government deficit spending brought Mr. O'Neil and Mrs. Jeffrey head to head.

While Mrs. Jeffrey said Ontario has a triple A credit rating from New York bankers where the Davis administration has secured loans, Mr. O'Neil said "New York bankers should take a look at New York deficits before preparing a credit rating on the provinces of Ontario."

When Mrs. Jeffrey pointed out the province's deficit for this year was $617 million, Mr. O'Neil reminded the meeting the accumulated deficit gathered by the Conservatives in the past years now amounts to $5.3 billion.

"How long will Ontario hand onto that New York, triple A credit rating if we keep spending like that," asked Madoc farmer Wilfred Forestall.

from New York is to provide jobs for our children during this inflationary period," said Mrs. Jeffrey.

Carson McLauchlan, New Democratic Party candidate, "The financing we received said the farming industry has always been a "major concern" of his party — the most important issue being the loss of frm land as agricultural operations become financial failures.

"Something has to be done," he said. "The government has allowed farmland to go out of production in a mindless, destructive fashion."

He said his party would launch a public relations campaign which would bring the producer and the consumer closer together.

The NDP would also secure roll back powers which would restrict and monitor price increases, he said.

Economy Chief Issue

Quinte riding candidates (from left) Hugh O'Neil (Lib.), Robin Jeffrey (PC) and Carson McLauchlan (NDP) discussed farm and province spending Tuesday night at an all-candidates meeting sponsored by the Hastings County Federation of Agriculture. All three candidates agreed more support is needed for the farmer to provide a fair return on capital investments and hours worked.

Northern Will Produce New Phone System

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Belleville's Northern Electric plant will be the manufacturing hub for a newly-developed telephone system that its inventors say is "internationally unique."

Christened the SL-1, the new communications system provides a complete range of services to the customer and at the same time minimizes the cost to the telephone company, said Peter Cassidy, Northern's product manager in charge of marketing the new device.

The system is completely computerized "marking a new generation" in telephone development, said Mr. Cassidy. Initial development of the SL-1 began in the late 1960s with research intensified during the last two years as a joint effort of Bell-Northern Research.

The new approach is geared to office buildings where a minimum of 100 individual stations or desk phones will be in operation. It is not appropriate for individual home use.

Among its capabilities is allowing six telephone parties to carry on a conference all using their individual phones, automatic or speed dialing, hand-free operation where the hand set may remain in the cradle while the party talks and automatically ring again.

Many of these services were available before but this is the first time that operation has been simplified and the whole works put into one package, said Mr. Cassidy.

At the heart of the system is the computer terminal which handles all of the individual telephone functions Through the terminal, phone numbers can be automatically changed, long distance dialing restrictions may be placed on certain phones allowing communications cost control "all simply by pushing buttons."

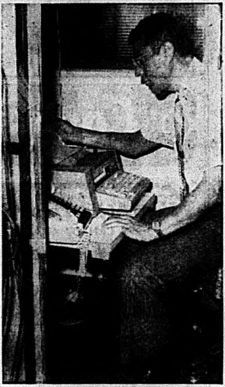
Mr. Cassidy said that with installations of at least 100 units, the new system will be as "cost effective" as the more conventional systems which generally take up more office space and do not provide the scope of services to the user.

"What the final cost to the user will be depends entirely on the tariffs applied by the individual telephone companies which market the product to the consumer," he said.

Hal Lilly, manager of the Belleville plant, said production of the new equipment line will begin later this year and that a fair amount of interest has been shown by telephone companies in the SL-1.

Apart from the "substantial commitment by Bell," a number of other companies have shown a great deal of interest in the product — both from Canada and international markets including European countries, said Mr. Cassidy.

The important aspects are "telephone companies won't need craftsmen running around in little, green trucks to change telephone numbers and users will get a more efficient system that will save them money," said Mr. Cassidy. "The equipment sells itself at both ends in this respect."



New Phone Era

Godfrey Muehle, SL-1 project director, works at a computer console that serves as manual communication with an "internationally unique" communications system to be manufactured in Belleville this winter. The new, fully computerized system is described by its Bell-Northern research inventors as the "next generation" of telephone communication.

Vandals Had Busy Time

It was a big weekend for vandals and thieves in Belleville as damage was reported to police Tuesday.

About $800 damage was caused at an Ontario Hydro Corporation project at North Park Street. Sod was overturned and eavestroughs were torn off four units.

Damage at Emmanuel Baptist Church, 68 Rollins Dr., was estimated at about $200. Two stain glass windows were smashed by persons throwing apples. Two vases behind the windows were also broken.

Thieves removed three spare tires from trucks at Trudeau Motors. Loss was estimated at about $200.

Speakers and speedometer parts were removed from a car parked at 19 Reid St. Loss was estimated at about $300.

Sports Centre Sod Turned, Yardmen Keep Low Profile

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

Belleville Mayor Ben Corke was scheduled today to turn the sod at the Cannifton Road site of the proposed Quinte Sports Centre, an approximate $6 million complex initiated by the Belleville Yardmen's Benefit Fund.

But when actual construction will start is still unclear.

Yardmen project co-ordinator Jack Lundberg said Tuesday a start date will be set by complex architects according to material availability and time of year.

Mr. Lundberg said the turning ceremony will follow a meeting with Yardmen officials and their Toronto architects to decide the final design of the centre.

Neither Mr. Lundberg nor Ernie Belanger would reveal the subject matter of the meeting, saying only that minor adjustments to plans are likely to be made.

Known plans call for construction of an Olympic-sized swimming pool and covered ice surface.

Mr. Lundberg said Yardmen will announce the final decision on "certain parts of construction" at a press conference scheduled after the sod-turning ceremony.

He declined to reveal present estimated construction costs and the amount of money Yardmen how hold to meet such costs. He also refused to indicate what involvement, if any, city council and the provincial government may have in meeting building costs.

The co-ordinator said he did not want to "steal someone else's thunder", in announcement of plans today.

Approximately $2 million, and possibly up to $2.5-million, is now in a trust fund for complex construction, spokesmen for the Yardmen and the provincial government have indicated.

City hall involvement, as well as that of the provincial government deepened earlier this year with creation of a special investigative committee of council. The committee met with provincial officials last month and received an "enouraging response" to city interest in gaining provincial funding for the sports centre.

Construction funds have been raised by the Yardmen for more than four years through a monthly lottery. Provincial funding was sought to supplement the $60-70,000 raised monthly.

Power to Remain On At Palmer Highrise

Hydro at an apartment building at 191 Palmer Rd., will not be cut off by Belleville Public Utilities Commission Sept. 10.

Ontario Hydro spokesman, Norm Manning, said after an inspection of the building Tuesday that wiring to the eighth floor has been approved and the owners granted a four-month temporary hydro permit.

In August Ontario Hydro gave the owner 30 days to upgrade temporary wiring in the 114-unit building. If the work hadn't been done service would have been cut off when a temporary hydro permit for the building was cancelled.

Renewable temporary permits have been issued to the owners since construction began in 1972.

"It's not up to standard, but it's a lot better than it was," said Paul Stephenson, Belleville fire prevention officer, who went on yesterday's inspection.

Mr. Stephenson said the fire department is "reasonably happy" with the bottom eight floors of the building but, there is "an awful lot of work to do" in the top floors.

"They're going along pretty good," said Grant Stickle, Belleville building inspector.

Mr. Stickle said the electrician has done a "pretty good" job up to and including the eighth floor.

There are no occupants above the eighth floor and no apartments are completed.

Mr. Stephenson said the fire alarm system was tested during Tuesday's inspection and was approved.

Layoff Situation Remains the Same

The manufacture of an internationally unique product at Belleville's Northern Electric plant won't be of any help to the more than 450 workers laid off during the past 10 months.

It was announced Tuesday that a fully-computerized business communications system would go into production at the Belleville plant by the end of the year.

For the past several months a prototype model of the system has been in operation in Northern's plant here to iron the bugs out, according to company spokesmen.

Plant manager Hal Lilly said during an interview with The Intelligencer Tuesday the Belleville plant will be the major manufacturer of the product which will be sold to an international market — both in the United States and in Europe.

But, it won't likely bring back the staff we've been forced to lay off, he said.

"I don't think it will do a lot to staffing," said the plant manager.

During a luncheon, Mr. Lilly suggested the early 1970s had been exceptional business years for his firm which led to expansion of both the plant and staffing. At its peak, Northern in Belleville employed nearly 1,400 workers.

Company spokesman said softness in the United States economy led to business cutbacks in late 1974 and throughout this year which led to staff reductions to a present 906.

Brian Kilgore, public relations spokesman for the firm, said earlier during a press briefing concerning the new equipment ". . . the new product line very nicely sets up the future of the plant but it certainly won't bring everybody back."

"We may bump up against 1,000 in staff," said Mr. Lilly. "But, they likely won't all be re-called unless the SL-1 is a phenomenal success."

Morris Back to School

E. T. (Ted) Morris, superintendent of special education with the Hastings County Board of Education, is leaving this week for a year's sabbatical at the University of Sussex to study curriculum development and educational technology.

Twelve students will be taking this course which involves an analysis of current practices and development of new approaches. A major part of the studies also includes the management of planned changes and crucial issues in educational planning and resources management.

Mr. Morris said he expects to be able to apply this valuable new knowledge to the current system in Hastings County.

Mr. Morris, a graduate of the University of London, England, McMaster University in arts and the University of Toronto in education. He received his early teacher training in Britain before coming to Canada in 1955 where he taught in St. Catharines.

Mr. Morris joined the Hastings board in 1969 after four years with the former Trenton Board of Education where he was the first municipal superintendent of public schools.

Rescue Unit Sends Out Call

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The Quinte Rescue Squad never refused a call.

Now it's the squad's turn and the unit is hoping the public will respond to its appeal — for financial support.

Donations to its operation have been declared tax deductible.

The Corbyville-based squad of Thurlow Township's fire department went into operation three years ago. Since then its volunteers have made a reputation as a reliable aid at local highway mishaps — rescuing the injured from the wreckage of crashed vehicles.

As such: It's a public service. But there's an ironic hitch: It's operation doesn't qualify for public funds. While demand for its service mounts, the squad is in a financial limbo.

What the unit is seeking is more sophisticated equipment.

For grants from any level of government "we're in the wrong type of business — saving lives," squad captain Bob Pearce says wryly.

In fact, the provinial government unwittingly may be responsible for the squad's dilemma.

The service was launched — and financed ever since — mostly from $1 raffles. First prize was a steer of beef.

But the recently-introduced provincial government's Wintario lottery now offers tickets for the same price — but more dazzling prizes.

Capt. Pearce says Wintario has siphoned off funds from local citizens understandably lured by the chance of bigger gains for the same price.

Meantime, approaches to both federal and provincial government have revealed the emergency squad does not qualify for grants.

Local government need not necessarily be expected to aid such a service, indicates the captain. Most of the squad's responses involve highway mishaps — and this is provincial jurisdiction.

In the U.S., says Capt. Pearce, the federal administration pays 50 per cent of operating costs of similar units where a national highway is involved.

The only new brightener came last week. The federal government agreed any donations could be deducted from income tax — as with charitable organizations.

Actually, it makes no difference whether donations are cash or apparatus bought by a community group, says Capt. Pearce.

Lack of better equipment doesn't mean the squad will disband, he emphasized. The volunteers have run on a make-do basis since they started.

The firefighters made over a Bell Telephone truck for their first vehicle. Last year, its replacement was a provinial police paddy wagon — also converted.

"There's no way we'd fold up," says the captain" . . . but the whole point is the sooner we get this equipment the better it'll be for the people unfortunate enough to be in accidents. There's a job to be done and we can do it properly."

Statistics affirm the demand.

In 1972 the squad — its territory unrestricted — had five calls to help police and ambulance operators. Three years later, the emergency unit so far this year has answered 30 calls.

"It's almost automatic now (to call the unit) when a person is trapped," says Belleville district OPP Staff Sgt. Vic Clive. "We've come to find them so efficient we rely on their assistance. They're . . . thorough and prompt."

To realize its ideal, Capt Pearce figures the squad would need as much as $30,000.

But the benefit of having the squad on call means needed rescue equipment — from oxygen apparatus to cutting tools — is instantly available.

"It means you don't have to go shopping around when there's an emergency," says Capt. Pearce.

Emergency Lettering Better in Reverse

Not every driver yields the right of way to a flashing red light — the mobile beacon of emergency.

But the Quinte Rescue Squad has tried a new tack in solving the problem.

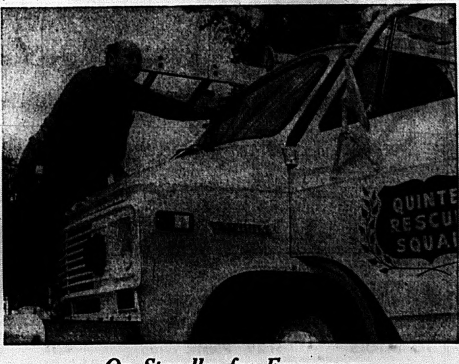
It has the word emergency printed on the front of its truck — backwards. This means that drivers looking in rear view mirrors can make no mistake about the urgent mission of the vehicle. The mirror reverses the word into its proper order.

Squad captain Bob Pearce said the idea is in wide use in the United States.

The reason: not every driver yields passage to vehicles on emergency assignment, whether ambulance or police cars.

"There's still a problem with the flashing red light. Even the police have difficulties," he says.

"Some people just don't know . . . just don't much care unless it's something that is happening to them," he says.



On Standby for Emergency

Capt. Bob Pearce gives Quinte Emergency Squad truck checkover at Thurlow Township, Corbyville fire hall. The vehicle, on round-the-clock standby, is in increasing demand by local police to extricate victims from wreckage during serious mishaps.

Nuclear Worrier

Dr. Gordon Edwards, a mathematician living in Montreal, is a founding member of the Coalition for Nuclear Responsibility. In the 1960s it might have been regarded as a 'radical' group. In the 1970s it includes not only ban-the-bomb advocates of the last decade but an array of worried citizens from Nova Scotia, British Columbia and Manitoba. The coalition is pressing for an inquiry into the use of nuclear energy in Canada. (CP Photo)

Brazil Claims Best Conditions For Launching Space Craft

HELL'S BARIER, Brazil — (Reuter) — Amid white sand dunes and red cliffs, haunted by the soul of a drowned fisherman, Brazil has set up an international space launching station said to offer better natural conditions than Cape Canaveral in Florida.

Situated only about 385 miles south of the geographical Equator and even closer to the magnetic Equator, the station symbolizes Brazil's desire to enter the space age as part of its over-all aim to reach great power status by the turn of the century.

Hell's Barrier is the only fully-equipped space station in independent South America. The only other station in the area is at Khourou in French Guiana.

The Brazilian station has already been used for launching United States and West German space probes, Brazilian atmospheric and military rockets as well as for tracking satellites and rockets launched from other sites.

Hell's Barrier was given its name by local fishermen who were awestruck by the red rocks which seemed from offshore to be transformed into fire by the rays of the setting sun.

According to local legend, the place is haunted by the soul of a fisherman who was drowned long ago. The reflection of the burning red rocks in the water is seen as the presence of the supernatural.

Although the equipment and facilities of the base cannot be compared with those in more advanced countries, Brazilian experts chose the site in the 1960s because of its natural conditions, which they consider better than those at Cape Canaveral.

Its proximity to the magnetic Equator ensures minimum magnetic interference with the sensitive equipment, they say. It has an average of 300 sunny days a year, excellent visibility, little air and sea traffic and low population density.

Since the first installations were built in 1965, 1,364 rockets have been launched from here.

The U.S.has used the site for launching its Nike-Apache and Javelin rockets. There have also been joint tracking projects with France and Canada.

Other international schemes undertaken here include the Exametnet Project set up by Brazil, Argentina and the U.S. to develop an inter-American meteorological network.

Brazil has launched its own national Sonda meteorological rockets reaching an altitude of 77 miles with a payload of 20 to 44 pounds.

Brazilian surface-to-surface rockets carrying up to 66 pounds of explosives for military purposes have also been tested here.

British Compound Safeguards Eyes

LONDON (CP) — A new transparent material, with the simple name Compound 224, has been invented by British scientists to give complete protection to the eyes and face in the event of a nuclear explosion. The compound may also have potential in interior decoration, fashion and even energy.

The new material has been developed by a team led by Dr. Michael West of Applied Photophysics Ltd., the research and development company of the Royal Institution here. Already goggles are being made from it for the protection of servicemen, but Dr. West and his colleagues foresee that the uses for Compound 224 in civilian life will soon be at least as important.

In arc-welding, for example, it will give much better flash protection and will make even ordinary sunglasses much more efficient. Compound 224 is more effective and much cheaper to produce than protective devices developed in other countries.

Dr. West gave a demonstration of its action at the Royal Institution, showing a slab of pale yellow, perfectly transparent plastic.

When a bright flash was let off in front of it, it at once turned a dark bluey-green, absorbing the flash completely. Even brighter flashes turn the material inky-black, yet it returns to its original color within half a second.

Its potential was dramatically demonstrated to reporters when a powerful carbon arc was struck a few inches from a piece of simulated skin. The skin charred and melted when exposed to the arc without protection, but was unaffected when a sheet of Compound 224 was placed between it and the arc.

Built into ordinary windows, Compound 224 could offer a means of providing an absolutely even heat and light environment. The greater the intensity of sunlight, the more would be absorbed, and vice-versa.

In the case of windows other photochromic materials have been developed which work in the opposite way to Compound 224. These offer the intriguing possibility of making windows which are also, so to speak, built-in curtains. The compounds darken as the light intensity falls, becoming inky-black when it is dark. With windows like that one would never need to draw the curtains.

Compound 224 could, of course, be used to control light and heat coming through car and aircraft windshields windows. It could provide automatic light intensity control in optical devices such as cameras, television screens and recording instruments.

It could also provide a fascinating and beautiful new element in architecture, interior decoration, cloth and furniture fabrics. Furniture, carpets, clothing and buildings might change color subtly as the sun rose or night began to fall.

Dr. West hinted at other developments which could emerge from research. One involves so called photogalvanic effects and materials. It might well be possible to develop materials which produce electricity from sunlight much more efficiently than the solar cells of today.

Ship Navigates Northwest Route

HALIFAX (CP) — Despite rough weather and two ice jams, the Canadian Coast Guard vessel Skidegate arrived in Sydney, N.S., on schedule from Tuktoyaktuk, N.W.T., Monday, becoming one of the smallest vessels ever to navigate the Northwest Passage.

Not much bigger than a large yacht, the Skidegate is 87 feet long and displaces 200 tons. By comparison, the first vessel ever to navigate the passage, the RCMP vessel St. Roch, was 104 feet long and displaced 323 tons.

However, the Skidegate's two 340-horsepower engines vastly outpower the single 300-horsepower engine of the old St. Roch.

The Skidegate does not have ice-breaking capabilities, but like most northern service vessels her hull is strengthened to withstand ice.

The Skidegate was sent to Sydney to be used as a training vessel at the Coast Guard College.

Built in Vancouver in 1964, she had been in mothballs at Tuktoyaktuk since 1972 after being replaced as a bouy tender because her draft was too deep for the shallow waters of the Mackenzie River basin.

Captain Peter Kalis was called up temporarily from his commabd of the coast guard cutter Rider in Victoria to command the Skidegate during the voyage.

With him was a crew of two instructors and six students from the college, and a cook and a steward from Vancouver.

"We had about everything you could think of thrown at us," Captain Kalis said in a telephone interview from Sydney, adding that there were especially heavy seas as the Skidegate came through the homestretch Monday afternoon.

But the little vessel behaved without fault through the trip. Ice conditions in later August are at their mildest.

The Skidegate left Tuktoyaktuk Aug. 8, originally planning to sail by the westward route over the tip of Alaska and through the Panama canal. However, at Herschel Island, where the Skidegate took fuel and supplies from two other coast guard ships, the route was blocked by ice.

"We waited for two days for ice conditions to improve, then we got orders from headquarters in Ottawa to proceed east as ice conditions were improving there," Captain Kalis said.

The Skidegate sailed to Cambridge Bay to pick up charts of the Northwest Passage. On Aug. 21 she reached Spence Bay on the Boothia peninsula, where she veered north for the passage through Franklin Strait and the route's most northerly point, Barrow Strait.

The next day she encountered heavy ice about 40 miles south of the Tasmanian Islands, and had to wait for a passage to open. Reaching Barrow Strait, she encountered more ice.

"At the western entrance of Barrow Strait was a large ice cube, and this was hard, solid ice—what we call multi-year ice," Captain Kalis said.

"There is no way of breaking through that, not even with an icebreaker. The field was moving into the strait with the current, so we sneaked through along the shore between the shore and the icefield, and got into the Barrow Strait."

There was some ice in the strait, but the Skidegate navigated it in two hours. From there the sailing was ice-free.

Captain Kalis, who has previously sailed in the Arctic but had never before traversed the Northwest Passage, was asked if he would make the trip again.

"Yes I would because it has been a great experience—a once in a lifetime experience."

He will return to Victoria to resume command of the River.

Pilots Support Demands For One Language Control

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Owners and Pilots Association (COPA) announced Tuesday that it supports demands by the Canadian Air Line Pilots Association (CALPA) for the use of English only in air traffic control communications.

Russell Beach, president of the 10,000-member COPA, said in a statement that pilots are able to anticipate what they must do only if they understand all messages received.

"This necessitates the use of only one language as instructions must often be given in such rapid-fire order that there is not sufficient time to allow for translations to take place," he said.

However, Mr. Beach said the association feels French should be allowed anywhere in Canada for advisory communication such as weather information.

Airline pilots, through their association, have said they will halt all flight operations for 24 hours Oct. 17 unless the government ends experiments in bilingual traffic control. An expirement in bilingual air traffic control for visual flight rules operations is underway at airports near Quebec City St. Jean, Sept-Iles, Baie Comeau and St. Honore, Que. Visual flight rules generally apply to aircraft smaller than commercial passenger airliners.

Jim Livingston, president of the Canadian Air Traffic Control Association, has said the controllers may go on strike in support of the pilots if Ottawa does not limit the licences of unilligual French-speaking pilots to areas where bilingual air traffic control is being tested.

Government Warns Fluctuating Enrolments

OTTAWA (CP) — Statistics Canada says fluctuating enrolment will take the education system on a roller coaster ride over the next 25 years—with the gap between the highs and lows totalling more than 1.5 million students.

The agency warns that its projections cannot be considered absolutely accurate but that they "indicate the direction and magnitude of future developments".

It says birth rates and school enrolment will inevitably follow a wave motion as a result of the post-Second World War baby boom that forced rapid expansion of the education system in recent years.

A second-generation baby boom will provide a series of new crests in national educational demand over the next quarter century as the post-war babies send their own offspring to school.

In between, however, will be periods when demand plunges, a situation agrravated by a declining national fertility rate—the average number of children given birth per woman during child-bearing years.

The second-generation baby boom will provide enrolments similar to the first boom in the Prairies and Atlantic provinces while there will be record highs in Ontario and British Columbia.

Quebec, which has the lowest fertility rate in Canada and an annual loss of population to other provinces will face a permanent surplus of teachers.

Based on the 1972 student-teacher ratio and average enrolment per school, national projections to 2001 forecast demand fluctuations totalling almost 90,000 teachers at all levels.

The report states that all industrialized nations face similar problems, but solutiins will be [illegible] difficult for Canada be[illegible] regional variations, the distances between rural schools and a decentralized education system controlled by the provinces.

Elementary school enrolment peaked about 4.2 million in 1970 and will decline to about 3.2 million in the early 1980s. It will climb to an all-time high of 4.3 million by the mid-1990s before beginning to drop again by the end of the century.

Secondary enrolment will peak in the 1976-77 school year at about 1.7 million, decline to 1.4 million in the late 1980s and jump the following decade to a high of 1.98 million.

About 1,800 fewer schools will be needed in the 1980s, but by the late 1990s the demand will have jumped to about 17,600.

Full-time post-secondary enrolment is expected to continue rising to a peak of about 670,000 in the early 1980s, up from a 1974 total of 562,000. This will fall to about 520,000 in the early 1990s and then recover to about 660,000 by the turn of the century.

The agency says that if post-secondary institutions can avoid further expansion of facilities during the next decade, the existing facilities will suffice for the remainder of the century.

Regardless, the unit cost of education will increase as the enrolment drops because staff cutbacks are likely to be at the lower-salaried levels and buildings and other facilities will have to be maintained through the declines.

Wants Lewis to Document Hoarding Land Allegations

TORONTO (CP) — Somer Rumm, president of the Ontario Urban Development Institute, said Monday that NDP Leader Stephen Lewis should document an allegation that developers are hoarding land for speculative gain during a housing crisis.

Mr. Lewis, campaigning for the Sept. 18 provincial general election, said Monday at Thunder Bay that developers are sitting on more than enough unused land to meet Ontario's housing needs far into the future.

Mr. Rumm said he knows of no developer who is not trying his best to develop land he owns.

He said the main reason developers' holdings are sitting unused is reluctance of municipalities to permit rapid urbanization of their areas.

"We're getting good co-operation from the province, but the municipalities are doing little or nothing to release these lands for development," Mr. Rumm said.

Jack Schiff, president of Bramalea Consolidated Developments Ltd., said any developer with private land banks is inviting financial suicide because of federal tax law which disallows carrying charges on such land as a tax deduction.

Consumers Must Pay For Goods

BURFORD, Ont. (CP) — Ontario consumers should be prepared to pay for the cost of goods they consume, including a reasonable profit, rather than having government subsidies, Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said Tuesday.

Mr. Nixon, speaking at an all-candidates meeting in this community about 70 miles west of Toronto, said the province should be supporting an economic balance in which consumers pay a proper price for their products.

At the same time, he promised that under a Liberal Ontario administration a farm-income insurance policy to be detailed today would be jointly financed by farmers and the provincial and federal governments.

"You should have just as reasonable a participation in the business life and economic profits as anyone in the country," he told his largely rural audience.

Mr. Nixon was campaigning in his own riding of Brant-Oxford-Norfolk towards the Sept. 18 provincial election.

The all-candidates meeting was sponsored by a local agricultural group.

"The consumers . . . must be prepared to pay for the cost of the products they consume, whether it's automobiles, whether it's a trip to Florida, whether it's a tractor, or whether it's, in fact, food itself," Mr. Nixon said.

"We should pay the price it costs with a reasonable profit rather than having government at all levels—federal and provincial—embark on subsidy programs, which obscure the actual cost of food."

Canada Assured Of Power

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada is assured adequate domestic supplies of fuel for the country's nuclear reactors for at least the remainder of the century, the energy department reported Tuesday.

The information was contained in a survey of uranium supply and demand, based on late-1974 data, which is to become an annual forecast. The forecast is aimed at ensuring a 30-year supply of uranium for all domestic reactors expected to be in production 10 years from the time prediction is made.

Reactors expected to be in production by 1985 will require a 30-year fuel supply of about 92,000 short tons of uranium oxide.

A department spokesman said that total domestic consumption of uranium oxide to the year 2,000 will be about 170,000 to 180,000 tons.

Denies Morale Problem

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen laughed off a suggestion Tuesday that the foreign service branch of his department has a morale problem because of political interference.

"That's a typical Cossitt statement and it should not be taken seriously," Mr. MacEachen said in response to Progressive Conservative MP Tom Cossitt's earlier comments on morale in the department.

Mr. MacEachen said in an interview that he is not aware of any problem in foreign service and denied Mr. Cossitt's claims that a special group has been formed to study staff morale.

Mr. Cossit,t MP for Leeds, said a common complaint among external affairs employees is a "lack of expectation of the right of promotion" as a result of the appointments of former cabinet ministers and non-career diplomats as ambassadors.

Cautious Investors Blamed for Takeover

OTTAWA (CP) — Cautiousness on the part of Canadian investors is largely responsible for the United States takeover of Canada's innovative industry, says a report prepared for the federal science ministry.

The study, prepared by Toronto consultant Robert H. Grasley, states that a lack of Canadian funds has led many inventors to look to the U.S. for support and development.

"When the Canadian industrial economy was emerging, instead of borrowing funds externally as the Americans did and retaining equity control, we did the reverse, allowing others to assume the risk of ownership, and, in many cases, loaned them the funds to exploit our own opportunities."

Meanwhile, the high risk investment scene in Canada has been growing steadily worse.

The report says a survey of venture capital available in 1971 showed that the 17 largest lenders had approximately $64 million available. In 1974, the same firms reported only $3.35 million available for venture capital.

Davis Criticizes Nixon's Attitude

GRIMSBY, Ont. (CP) — Premier William Davis Tuesday night accused Liberal Leader Robert Nixon of "flooding the province with information that is false" during the Ontario general election campaign.

The accusation came near the end of a speech announcing that the government is prepared to buy all the surplus from this fall's Niagara grape harvest.

Earlier in the day, the premier announced that the government will give rent review boards power to press legal action against landlords chargin "unconscionable" rents.

He also found time in a day laden with policy statements to meet representatives of the ethnic media in Toronto, visit an aircraft assembly plant in Fort Erie, speak at a luncheon in Port Colborne, greet voters on the main street in Thorold, say hello to venders at a farmers' market in St. Catharines and give workers at Attorney-General John Clement's Niagara Falls campaign headquarters a pep talk.

In his address to more than 700 persons attending a Conservative rally here, the premier said he continued to be impressed by the frequency with which Mr. Nixon changes his mind.

He said Mr. Nixon appeared on a television broadcast Monday night and "repeated a statement he made three weeks ago and which he now knows to be false."

The Liberal leader charges that administration costs for the ministry of education have grown by 295 per cent since 1971, Mr. Davis said.

"Such is not the case."

Mr. Nixon had looked at government accounts and estimates, compared apples to oranges and charged ahead without checking his facts, said the premier.

"The budgetary item labled departmental administration in 1971 totalled $36.9 million. The comparable costs in 1975 were $54.1 million. That is an increase of 46.5 per cent for an average annual increase of 9.3 per cent, which is more or less in keeping with the rate of inflation for the period in question.

Parties Outline New Policies

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario general election campaign picked up impetus today with all three leaders of the legislature parties on the record with new major policies.

Premier William Davis Tuesday promised tenants protection against rent-gouging landlords and said the government will buy up this year's Niagara grape crop surplus and help finance long-term improvemet of the industry.

Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said that if his party forms the government after Sept. 18 it will offer a farm-income insurance plan—based on joint premiums by the farmer and federal and provincial governmennts—to be spelled out in detail today.

NDP Leader Stephen Lewis called for a shakeup in the province's education system. He also promised Northern Ontario Indians help in overcoming the health and economic handicaps caused by mercury pollution of fishing waters and in fighting their battles with the federal government over lands, as well as meeting periodic disruptions of their wild rice harvests.

Premier Davis, whose campaign ranged between Toronto and the Niagara Peninsula, said in a statement released in Toronto that the government plans to amend the Unconscionable Transactions Act to cover rents. He said the province will allow the courts to decide whether a landlord is gouging tenants and, if this is the case, the court could set a figure for the rent.

The government announced July 30 that it planned to set up rent review boards in cities with low apartment vacancy rates, but the boards were to have power only to publicize the names of offending landlords.

Mr. Davis called the new approach "a very effective and unique way to deal with the problem."

But Mr. Lewis said at Wawa that the proposed new system is ludicrous and silly. It would not work effectively.

"You'll be retired by the time you get a settlement," he said in a speech to party supporters.

Marketing Board Says Egg Quotas Changed

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says the Ontario Egg Producers Marketing Board is allowing the temporary transfer of egg quotas among producers, although it does not have the authority to do so.

When asked by the newspaper Tuesday whether the approval of the Ontario Farm Products Marketing Board was required for the policy change, William Stewart, provincial minister of agriculture, said: "There's no question about it."

He said the farm products board had not heard of the change until Tuesday when it was telephoned by James Johnstone, the egg board chairman.

The egg board has not formally announced the policy change to producers but news of it has passed among them in the last week, the newspaper says.

It says some producers called before the egg board for allegedly being over quota were told they might avoid punishment by leasing quotas.

Egg production in the province is regulated by quota, with each producer being told by the board how many hens he can keep. The total number of hens in Ontario is set in the federal-provincial egg-marketing agreement which tries to gear egg production to Canadian demand.

Under the agreement, Ontario producers have been asked to reduce production below the capacity of their barns. Producers with partly-filled barns might fill them if they acquired quotas from other producers who do not want theirs, the newspaper says.

In the past, the government has not allowed quotas to be bought and sold unless the barns were sold to other farmers.

Smelting Company Ordered To Install Useless Controls

TORONTO (CP) — The provincial environmental hearing board was told Tuesday that Ontario's environment ministry tried to force a Toronto smelting company to install expensive pollution control devices which were not able to do the job and which might have produced a new pollution problem.

Ian Outerbrilge, counsel for Toronto Refiners and Smelters Ltd., said the control devices, called scrubbers, would have added the pollution problem of disposal of a lime substance used in cleaning sulphur dioxide from air emissions.

The scrubbers were recommended in April after the City of Toronto blockel the ministry's recommendation of a 175-foot smokestack to control air emmissins. The ministry eventually ordered installation of the smokestack.

CARL YASTREMSKI

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Boston Red Sox won't be the Boston Red Faces this year, if they can help it.

"We'll be all right now," Carl Yastzremski said Tuesday night after the Red Sox whipped New York Yankees 7-4 in an American League baseball game. "We're going to hit and our pitching looks good."

The Red Sox, mindful of last year's flop when they blew a big lead in September, begin an eight-game road trip tonight against their chief antagonists—Baltimore Orioles.

The Orioles, who caught the Red Sox in last year's stretch run in the American League East, can cut off some of Boston's six-game lead in their two-game series.

"We'd like a split in Baltimore," said Boston third baseman Rico Petrocelli. "Everyone feels that way.

"The pressure is on them more than us. They can't afford to lose."

Baltimore manager Earl Weaver, quite naturally, would not prefer a split—rather a sweep.

"We'll have to pick ourselves up," said Weaver, whose team split a doubleheader with Cleveland Indians Tuesday night. "If we can pick up two against Boston, we'll close it pretty good. Of course we can't afford to go eight out."

The Orioles beat the Indians 3-2 in the 10th inning of the opener Tuesday before losing the second game, 2-1.

In other American League games Tuesday, California Angels defeated Oakland A's 4-1, Kansas City Royals trimmed Chicago White Sox 4-1 in 12 innings, Minnesota Twins stopped Texas Rangers 5-3 and Milwaukee Brewers nipped Detroit Tigers 6-5.

Carlton Fisk, returning to the regular lineup for the first time in 10 days, drove in three runs with a pair of singles to help Boston snap a three-game losing streak.

Fisk, who suffered a split finger when hit by a foul tip on Aug. 23, lined a bases-loaded single to centre to cap a four-run third inning. He added a run-scoring single in the fifth.

Boston right-hander Reggie Cleveland, 10-9, allowed the Yankees a 1-0 lead on Chris Chambliss' ninth homer in the second inning. The Swift Current, Sask., native needed relief help after giving up a three-run homer to Thurman Munson in the eighth inning.

Bobby Grich singled home a run with two out in the 10th inning giving Baltimore its first game victory over Cleveland. Rico Carty's home run in the eighth inning gave the Indians the second game.

"We've put some pressure on the Red Sox by playing .667 ball since the all-star break," said Weaver. "If we hadn't done that, it would've been a cakewalk for the Red Sox."

Weaver will pitch 20-game winner Jim Palmer tonight against Rick Wise, Boston's 17-game winner.

Frank Tanana struck out 14 batters and pitched a five-hitter, leading California over Oakland.

George Brett's two-out single in the 12th inning gave Kansas City its win. Amos Otis doubled and came home with the deciding run as Brett lashed a single to right.

Dan Ford, Rod Carew and John Briggs hit home runs as Minnesota defeated Texas.

George Scott collected five hits and drove in two runs to lead Milwaukee past Detroit.

Willie Burden

Calgary Rookie Cut Off at Pass

TORONTO (CP) — Willie Burden made a great charge at Johnny Bright's long-standing record, but the exciting Calgary Stampeder running back missed by just that much.

The rookie cowboy rushed for 100 or more yards in five straight Canadian Football League games before being, as it were, cut off at the pass by Edmonton Eskimos.

He was limited to 93 yards in 17 carries as the Stampeders bowed 35-31 to Edmonton Monday, leaving Bright's eight-game run of 100-yard rushing games back in 1957 intact.

Bright, a former Eskimo, had nine 100-yard plus games that year while compiling 1,669 yards.

Burden, meanwhile, still has a shot at the single-season output of 1,794 yards set in 1961 by another Calgarian, Earl Lunsford, now general manager of Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Burden would have to maintain a 98.5-yard average over the Stamps remaining nine games to have his name entered in the CFL record book. If he continues his present pace, that has seen him grind out 908 yards in seven games, a 2,000-yard season is not out of reach.

Bill Drennan Burlington Sparkplug

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Bill Drennan threw a one-hitter and scored the winning run in the 13th inning to lead Burlington Provisioners to a 2-1 victory over London Dukes in the first game of their quarter-final series in the Ontario Fastball League on Tuesday.

Drennan started the 13th inning with a triple off Metro Szeryk, London starter and loser. He scored on Chuck Kingston's double.

The only hit Drennan allowed was Ron Sadler's home run in the fourth inning.

Drennan struck out 11 batters and walked two. Szeryk struck out 20 and walked none. He gave up five hits.

The next game in the best-of-three series is in Burlington Thursday.

The opening game of the Newmarket - Oshawa best-of-five series was postponed until Thursday because the field in Oshawa needed repair following the recent Canadian softball championships.

The best-of-three series between Hamilton and St. Catharines begins tonight in Hamilton.

JIM DWYER

Expos Nip Phils

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jim Dwyer's two-run double in the third inning led Montreal Expos to a 4-3 victory Philadelphia on Tuesday night, the fourth consecutive National League baseball loss for the Phillies.

Barry Foote opened the third inning with a double. After winning pitcher Dennis Blair struck out, Jerry White singled and Dwyer came through with his two-run shot off loser Larry Christenson, 9-5.

The Expos made it 3-0 in the fourth inning on a single by Larry Parrish, a sacrifice and Tim Foli's single to centre.

The Phils scored in the fifth on a walk to Milk Schmidt and singles by Tommy Hutton and Johnny Oates. Blair got out of the inning when second baseman Pete Mackanin got a force play at second, throwing from a sitting position after stopping a hard smash by Larry Bowa.

Woody Fryman relieved Blair, 8-14, after six innings, but with two out in the eighth he gave up singles to Bowa and Garry Maddox and was replaced by Dale Murray. Greg Luzinski drew a walk to load the bases, then Murray walked Dick Allen to force in Philadelphia's second run. But Mike Schmidt flied out with the bases loaded, ending the inning.

Winds Blow

NEW YORK (AP) — Refusing to go along with the kind of financial arrangements that spelled disaster a year ago, the World Football League instead has revoked the Chicago Winds franchise.

The removal of the Winds following withdrawal of two of the club's key investors, leaves 10 WFL teams to carry on through the remainder of the league's second season.

When the Chicago franchise was formed, certain partnership documents and other ownership arrangements were not completed. Two of the club's backers placed their investment totalling $175,000 with the league, pending clarification and final filing of the ownership documents.

But that clarifiation never came.

At a special board of governors meeting, Chicago requested time to attract new investors. "That was just the kind of request that was granted last year," said WFL president Chris Hemmeter.

This year, it was not granted.

Instead, Chicago was stripped of its franchise. The Winds players were distributed in a dispersal draft and a revised schedule was adopted. The WFL said it would guarantee refunds to all season ticket holders and that all player salaries would be paid.

Leo Cahill, general manager of the Winds, is expected to join the league staff in New York as an assistant to Hemmeter and the WFL also expects to retain coach Abe Gibron. Cahill was a former coach and general manager of Toronto Argonauts of the CFL.

Cahill said both he and Gibron had contracts which would be honored.

"The only thing I can say is that I did not give up a four-year contract to come here for two or three weeks just to have things pulled out from under me."

Marathon Meets Set for Cindy

TORONTO (CP) — Long-distance swimmer Cindy Nicholas of Toronto says she is to compete in two marathon meets in Egypt and Syria next month.

The Egyptian Long Distance Swimming Federation has invited her to swim in a 40-kilometre (24.8-mile) event down the Suez canal Oct. 10, she said in an interview Tuesday.

From there she will go to Syria for a 25-kilometre (15½-mile) marathon in the Mediterranean from Jablah to Lattakia.

All expenses will be paid except for air fare to London for herself and her father and coach, James Nicholas, Miss Nicholas said.

The 18-year-old swimmer set a record for a woman challenger in her English channel swim July 30, completing the 21-mile crossing from France to Dover in nine hours and 46 minutes.

She also holds the record for the 32-mile crossing of Lake Ontario from Youngstown, N. Y., to Toronto which she completed in 15 hours and 15 minutes on Aug. 16, 1974, at the age of 16.

Records Tumble At Yearling Sale

TORONTO (CP) — Records tumbled Tuesday night at the Canadian Thoroughbred Horse Society's 32nd annual summer yearling sale.

Seventy-six yearlings sold for $1,031,500 for an average of $13,572 each.

This surpasses the previous record average for the first night of $13,280 set in 1973. In 1974, 74 yearlings sold for an average of $12,990 in the initial session.

Top price of the evening was Windfields Farm's bay colt by Northern Dancer out of Allegro, a full brother to undefeated stakes winner Swinging Apache, who was knocked down for $65,000 to Viscount Hardinge of Montreal.

The Windfields colt sold for only $1,000 more than the price realized for a Bold Commander Colt from Gardiner Farm. He was purchased by Jack Doyle of Ireland acting as agent for Ryan Price, one of the top English trainers.

Plans are to ship the colt to England where he will race for a partnership of Price's owners.

Top-priced filly of the session was also consigned by E. P. Taylor's Windfields Farm. Their filly, by Impressive out of the Kauai King mare Contact, was bought by Jack Stafford for $60,000.

Leading consigner was Windfields Farm, which earned $227,500 for 10 yearlings.

LEDUC NAMED COACH

LEWISTON, Me. (CP) — Bob Leduc, former coach of Toronto Toros of the World Hockey Association, has been named player-coach of Maine Nordiques, the North American Hockey League team announced Tuesday. Leduc was a forward with the Toros before taking over coaching duties from Billy Harris mid-way through the 1974-75 season. Bobby Baun has been named to coach the Toros this season. Leduc succeeds J. C. Gravel, who coached the Nordiques for one season.

WILL COACH SUNS

TABER, Alta. (CP) — Vic Stasiuk, a member of Boston Bruins' famed Uke Line of the late 1950s, has been signed as coach of Taber Golden Suns of the Alberta Junior Hockey League. He played with Johnny Bucyk and Bronco Horvath during part of his National Hockey League career with Boston, forming the Uke Line, one of the league's highest-scoring trios from 1957-1961.

GEORGE SCOTT

George Scott Is Hot

DETROIT (AP) — George Scott collected five hits and drove in two runs Tuesday night to lead Milwaukee Brewers to a 6-5 victory over Detroit Tigers in an American League baseball game.

Scott had two doubles and three singles in a perfect night and raised his season RBI count to 86—19 against Detroit. Jim Colborn with relief help from Ed Rodriguez, won his 10th game, against nine losses.

Milwaukee scored twice in the fourth off loser Joe Coleman, 9-15. Bill Sharp and Scott hit consecutive doubles and Darrell Porter singled in the second run.

The Brewers knocked Coleman from the mound with a three-run outburst in the fifth, one run scoring on a Scott single, another on a forceout by Sharp and one on Hank Aaron's sacrifice fly. Charlie Moore doublel in a Milwaukee run in the sixth off Fernando Arroyo.

Ron Who?

DETROIT (AP)—What ever happened to that super sophomore season some insiders were predicting for Detroit Tigers' centre-fielder, Ron LeFlore?

He was going to steal maybe 60 bases, hit .300 and generally set the baseball world on fire.

Instead, LeFlore's credentials have slipped considerably and he is struggling to avoid setting a club strikeout record-although it should be noted that the 22-year-old may have less baseball experience than anyone in the major leagues.

Going into Tuesday night's game, the speedy American League team's leadoff man was batting .263 with only eight home runs and 34 runs-batted in.

He's got plenty of power and the lack of homers is puzzling. Although leadoff batters usually don't get a chance for big RBI production his total could be much higher if he didn't strike out so much.

His strikeout total of 119 is just 22 behind the 141 team-record set in 1961 by Jake Wood.

"It's gotta bother you," said manager Ralph Houk. "Here's a man with great speed and if he hits the ball at all he'll get base hits. It looked like he was getting to the point where it wouldn't happen any more.

"Another disappointing thing to me is his base stealing. I think they (opposing pitchers) have suckered him out. He's only stolen four bases since the all-star break and been caught six times. He's not getting the jump. He's got 27 stolen bases and been thrown out 20 times. That's not good for a man with his speed. Against left-handers he has a hell of a time."

One thing about the strikeouts that Houk considers "a good point" is that LeFlore doesn't fan on any particular pitch. He'll miss anything from a fastball to changeup curve with equal grace. Houk believes that's better than if pitchers use one certain pitch to strike him out.

Pirates Back In Stride

WILLIE STARGELL

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Slugger Willie Stargell of Pittsburgh Pirates says consistency will determine the outcome of the four-team pennant scramble in baseball's National League East.

Philadelphia Phillies are developing the kind of consistency that could take them right out of the race.

Philadelphia suffered its fourth consecutive loss and ninth in the last 12 games Tuesday night, dropping a 4-3 squeaker to Montreal Expos. First-place Pittsburgh, meanwhile, opened up some breathing room by pounding out an 8-4 triumph over New York Mets.

"Going down the stretch you need all the consistency you can get," said Stargell. "The team that is the most consistent this month is going to win it."

But Philadelphia has been displaying the wrong kind of consistency.

"I don't think it's pressure, we just haven't played well," said Phils manager Danny Ozark after his club's latest loss. "We're not swinging the bats any differently. It beats me what's happening."

In Tuesday's other National League games, Chicago Cubs beat St. Louis Cardinals 5-3, Cincinnati Reds whipped San Diego Padres 10-4, San Francisco Giants topped Los Angeles Dodgers 7-3 and Atlanta Braves defeated Houston Astros 4-1.

The Pirates belted six extra base hits, including home runs by Bill Robinson, Manny Sanguillen and Rennie Stennett, in beating the Mets and Kent Tekulve turned in 3 1-3 innings of one-hit relief work.

Pittsburgh now leads St. Louis by four games, the Mets and Phillies by five.

"One of the real big things the Mets have is their Big Three: (Tom) Seaver, (Jerry) Koosman and (Jon) Matlack," said Stargell, referring to the Mets' ace pitchers. "We love to swing the bat, so it's power against power."

Seaver stymied the Pirates' power with a four-hit shutout Monday, but the Bucs' bats won out Tuesday. Tonight it's Matlack's turn.

A bloop by Barry Foote dropped in short right field for a double in the ninth inning, driving in Tim Foli to give Montreal a 4-2 lead. That proved to be the difference as Philadelphia rallied for one run in the bottom of the ninth but could not draw even.

St. Louis failed to keep pace with the Pirates when two errors by second baseman Larry Lintz helped Chicago snap a 1-1 tie with two runs in the seventh, then Manny Trillo hit a two-run single in the eighth.

MARV LEVY

Levy Expects Battle

MONTREAL (CP) — Coach Marv Levy of Montreal Alouettes knows Ottawa Rough Riders will present a stiff test for his Eastern Football Conference-leading club when they meet tonight for the second time.

"We acknowledge Ottawa has a fine football club," said Levy. "Sure we beat them in Ottawa, but I wouldn't say it was decisive."

Montreal won the first clash 34-31 as Don Sweet connected for a last-play field goal.

For tonight's contest, the Alouettes have prepared for the possibility of either Conredge Holloway or Tom Clements starting at quarterback for the Rough Riders.

"We have to prepare for both of them," Levy said. "We didn't see much of Clements the last time we played them, but we've seen him operate on the game films and we respect him."

Holloway, a graduate of the University of Tennessee, started in the first game against Montreal and was outstanding.

"It's hard to come up with a quarterback who is that agile," Levy said. "It's going to put a lot a pressure on our defensive line and secondary. He's something else."

Mike Widger and Carl Winfrey are still be hampered by injuries. Widger has a hip pointer and Winfrey is coming off two charlie horses.

"We felt he'd be better by now but the healing process has been slow," Levy said. "He's a doubtful starter."

Ottawa coach George Brancato said both guard Bob Neece and defensive tackle Bruce Smith are limping and he will not know until game time whether they will be able to play.

Neece has ligament trouble and Smith is being bothered with a hamstring that has already sidelined him.

With running back John Bledsoe on the injury list, Brancato plans to use Art Green and Jim Foley as his running backs with Gary Kuttk taking over Foley's slotback position.

Tonight's game will be carried on the CTV Eastern network starting at 8 p.m. EDT.

Chris Loves Clay

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — The Christine Marie Evert Invitational tennis tournament resumes today with Australian Kerry Melville Reid scheduled to make her farewell appearance.

Miss Evert, a cool, emotionless executioner disguised as a pretty, bright-eyed 20-year-old with a movie-star smile, has turned the women's half of the U.S. Open into a series of challenge matches. And none of the challengers has done much challenging.

Miss Evert has disposed of three opponents with a minimum of fuss thus far, losing only five games. The tournament is being contested, if that is the word, on clay and Chris just doesn't lose on clay. Not much anyway.

"No one can beat Chris on clay," said last year's champion Billie Jean King, who has retired from singles for the time being and is not defending her title.

The last time Miss Evert lost on the soft surface that rewards patience and sound ground strokes was in 1973 at the U.S. Clay Court championships in Indianapolis. Since then she's won 16 successive tournaments and an amazing 81 consecutive matches on clay.

"I don't think about the streak," said Miss Evert. "Other people bring it up, but I'm not concerned about it.

"It does put some pressure on me though because everyone is aiming for me. They're all trying to get Chris."

Second-seeded Virginia Wade of Britain meets unseeded Katja Ebbinghausof West Germany today. The other two quarter-final matches have fourth-seeded Evonne Goolagong of Australia going against Japan's Kazuko Sawamatsu and third-seeded Martina Navratilova of Czechoslovakia squaring off with Australian veteran Margaret Court, seeded fifth.

Chris' clay streak inludes four meetings with Mrs. Reid and the Australian got as many as three games in a set just once.

Tuesday's play saw three Latins and a Romanian advance into the quarter-final round in men's singles.

Guillermo Vilas, the 23-year-old Argentine, seeded second, hammered 15th-seeded Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia 6-2, 6-0, 6-0.

Vilas' opponent in the quarters will be Jaime Fillol, the 29-year-old Chilean who has been playing marvelous tennis, having won four straight matches without losing a set, despite a threat against his life.

Fillol received the warning, apparently from an activist group in Chile about a month ago. He was told not to play in a Davis Cup match against Sweden later this month in Bastaad.

Officials are considering shifting the match to another site.

Fillol disposed of Karl Meiler, an erratic West German, 6-1, 6-1, 6-2.

Romanian ace Ilie Nastase, keeping his well-known temper in check, outlasted Mexico's Raul Ramirez 6-4, 5-7, 6-0, 6-6, 6-3 in the tournament's first five-set match. It took three hours 20 minutes.

Nastase will meet Manuel Orantes of Spain in the quarterfinals. Orantes defeated Francois Jauffret of France 6-4,3-6,6-3, 6-4.

The other quarter-final pairings have top-seeded Jimmy Connors meeting unseeded Andrew Pattison of Rhodesia and fifth-seeded Bjorn Borg of Sweden going against 24-year-old Eddie Dibbs, a clay-court specialist who upset Wimbledon champion Arthur Ashe on Monday.

It's That Time Again, Bobcats' Camp Opening

Although Belleville Bobcats face a major rebuiulding job for the 1975-76 Metro Junior B Hockey Leage season, general managers of the club, Jim (Snipe) Matthews is confident the city will be well represented in the group.

With the official opening of the club's training camp scheduled for Trenton's Community Gardens, Friday, those in charge of the team, including new coach Meehan Bonnar, have already been getting a look at hopefuls during weekly sessions in the neighboring community's arena.

Upwards of 45 players have come under the watchful eye of club brass. But Friday, it all begins in earnest as open practices begin.

The camp has sessions scheduled Friday and Sunday, following up with the final two dates in Trenton on Monday and Tuesday, September 8-9. The Friday, Monday and Tuesday practices will run from 9-11 p.m. Sunday's workout is a three-hour grind, from 8-11 p.m.

Wednesday, September 10, the camp moves to Belleville's Dick Ellis Arena for a four-day stint with workouts 7-9 p.m., Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

SNIPE MATTHEWS

From there, the club hopes to move into its home, Memorial Arena.

Matthews reports interest in the club has been shown from many centres in the United States with players writing for tryouts. With Junior B hockey out in Peterborough, some players from that city have also shown an interest in coming out for a shot at making the club.

But the GM expects the team will be staffed, in the main, by players from Belleville and the immediate area.

Certainly, some returnees are expected to crack the lineup. Some of these could be late cuts from Junior A camps they will attend. Most important, is the confidence already being shown by Matthews who has supported junior hockey in Belleville for years.

"We'll have a good team," he promises.

Naturally, it is still too early to begin thinking of a set lineup. But Snipe vows Belleville will be there when the league opens, and for the Bobcats, that will be in Toronto, September 30 with Whitby Bruins supplying the opposition. Bobcats open at home, October 3 with Kingston Voyageurs the visitors.

Cats have their 34-game schedule divided evenly with 17 home and 17 away. Sixteen of the home games will be Friday nights with one Sunday date set.

But before all that, there will be a series of six exhibition games.

Those contests begin on the road, September 17 with the club in Oshawa. Cats are home to Whitby, September 19. Then two away games are on the program, in Kingston, September 21 and Toronto (against Whitby) September 23.

Cats conclude their preseason series with home games against Oshawa, Friday, September 26 and Kingston, Sunday, September 28.

The 17-game home game package is available to season ticket subscribers for $25. Season tickets are now on sale at McKnight's Variety.

And the Belleville Bobcat Blueline Club will operate again this season with 200 members paying $5 per month for eight months. Lucky members share in monthly cash prizes.

On the home game closest to the 15th of each month, a bonus will be declared to a lucky member. Bonuses will be $200 for the months of September, October, November, January, February and March. Decembers bonus is $500 and April's, $1,500.

Yes, it's Bobcat time again. And things are looking good at this stage of the game.

SLICES — Mark up two gold medals for a pair of talented Belleville athletes. Competing in the Summer Games in London on the weekend, Harold Townsend and Linda Adamson of the city showed their ability to the rest of the province in water skiing and archery, respectively.

Harold scored 2,170 points in the water ski "tricks" section and was second in jumping with a mark of 115 feet. The over-all scores from these two events gave Harold the gold medal in the senior men's division.

Competing in the intermediate girls' freestyle, Linda, a member of the Belleville Archery Club, set records from distances of 55, 45 and 35 metres, totalling 661 points to take the gold.

And Bayside Secondary School's great runner, Carrie Richards, representing the Trenton Track Club, took the bronze medal for her third place finish in the women's 3,000 metre run.

Says Christa:

"'Congratulations to the Belleville All Star Lacrosse team and their coach Keith Kaine for their excellent performance in Toronto. We are very proud of these fine young men who left Belleville to win the Ontario Minor Lacrosse Association chmpionship without financial help from anyone.

'The sportsmnship displayed during the games and throughout the weekend was something to be seen.

"My family and I are very proud."

Benefit Game

Quinte Umps To Meet BYBF

On Sunday, one of the great softball meetings in Belleville will take place when the Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund of the Belleville and District Ladies' League takes on the Quinte Umpires Association in a seven inning exhibition.

The cause is one of particular interest to both parties, to raise money to assist Bruce Nickle, a member of Quinte Umpires Association, and one of its founders. Bruce's wife is seriously ill, and soon will go to Boston for her third operation. Bruce has had to travel to Boston each time and the cost is mounting.

"We feel Bruce has done more for Belleville umpires than we can every pay him for an this is just our way of saying thank you", said Vera Whalen, the associations umpire in chief.

The men in blue will be well represented, as just about every member of the organization plans to participate.

Coaching the team will be Don Gavey and Jim Tebworth, while on the playing field it'll be Vern Whalen, Bert Whalen, Peter Whalen, Ron Lucas, Ray Lucas and Wayne Brown. Also planning to play are John Linfield, Soup Campbell, Al Eros, Alan Tebworth, Cam Smith, Jack Willis John Emerson, Claude Carr and Tom Gavey

Umpires for this event will be Mike Whalen Sr. and Mike Whalen Jr.

All of the BYBF team will be on hand to play.

"We're taking this game very seriously" said Donna Lucas, one of the BYBF players.

Tickets for the match, being played at the Alemite at 3 p.m., can be obtained from any of the BYBF players, members of the Umpires Association or at the ball park, Sunday.

Devolin Takes Lead in Final

Anyone who attended the Quinte Fastball League final series match between Devolin Motors and Bardon Supplies, Tuesday night, had to keep his eyes on the game. If he didn't, he might have found himself somewhat bewildered by the numerous pitching and defensive moves of the Bardon squad.

Devolin took advantage of Bardon's reluctance to stick with one hurler defeating them 6-3 to take a 2-1 lead in the series.

There was never any question about the Devolin hurler, as Don Holoway struck out five batters on the way to the win. He gave up seven hits and walked two in the game.

Carl Stacey, Ken DeMille and Wayne McConnell shared the mound for Bardon. DeMille had two stints on the mound and played in right field as well. Stacey found himself the starter, then moved to centre field, and finally to third base. Just to compound the confusion McConnell started in centre field then hurled six innings, absorbing the loss. The trio allowed 11 batters to reach base on safeties and walked two. Combined, they struck out six Devolin batters.

If Bardon had trouble with the pitching during the night they could have used some help in the field too. In all, they made six errors.

Gary Johnson got a measure of revenge on his old teammates by slamming a triple in the top of the second inning. The ball was pounded hard to right field and Johnson scored on a Bardon overthrew at third base.

Rick Rosebush added to the Devolin attack with a double and a single while Eric Maher singled twice. Jim Horwood duplicated that feat while other safties came from Ralph Plane, Tom MacDonald, Dave Horwood and Holoway.

All seven Bardon hits were singles; coming from Denis Neron, Marv Stacey, Carl Stacey, Warren Ostrander, McConnell, DeMille and Bill Harrison.

With Bardon tied up in Ontario Amateur Softball Association playoffs they will be playing every night until Saturday. That will definitely tie out a few players and pitching could be the area most affected even though Bardon is knee deep in pitchers.

Five players have hurled before in the Quinte League. They are, Earl Foster, Ken DeMille, Wayne McConnell Carl Stacey and Bill Harrison. The problem is getting a strong QFL effort from one of them despite the OASA series with Markham.

The next meeting of the two finalists will be Thursday at Alemite Park, game time is 8 p.m.

Bonnar — Player or Cat Coach?

Belleville Bobcat management has the wheels turning for the 1975-76 campaign. Season tickets are on sale and training camp dates have been released (more information on those two items is located in today's sports column). The only major question mark looming on the Cat horizon is one of coaching.

While Meehan Bonnar, former Detroit Red Wing, has taken up duties at the helm his stay may be only a tentative one.

"My first love is playing," said the rookie coach, "if I can't play, then I definitely want to try my hand at coaching. It's the next best thing."

Last year Bonnar was sidelined with a shoulder injury. Although he is still lacking full mobility in his arm, his doctor has suggested he may be able to play.

"I was told to go ahead and try," said the 28-year-old.

MEEHAN BONNAR

When the optimistic news was received by Bonnar, he passed it on to his lawyer.

"He's working on a deal right now," added the Cat coach.

While Detroit holds his rights, Bonnar has been given the go ahead, since he's in his option year, to make whatever deal is best for himself.

Nevertheless, until the deal is solidified, Bonnar will continue under the assumption that he is going to be coaching the local juniors.

"I think we have the nucleus of a good, solid young team," estimated Bonnar, "I'm quite impressed with the talent I've seen so far."

The Cats have held six Sunday practice sessions at which players attended through invitation.

"The only thing is," he said, "some players are planning to attend Major A and Tier Two camps and that leaves us a little high and dry until we find out how they make out."

Bonnar cited several players that would be at other camps when the Cats' open practices begin.

"I'm sure though, we'll have a good season," he added.

Black Diamond BISL Champs

Black Diamond wound up their most successful season in many Tuesday night with a 9-5 victory to take the Belleville Industrial Softball League championship. The team finished in first place in the East Division standings and swept third place Brooke Bond, also as East squad, in four straight games in their best-of-seven series.

Prior to the finals, Black Diamond had eliminated the Independents in three straight games and in the semi-finals had beaten out Post Office 3-1. Brooke Bond earned their berth in the championship round by ousting Constellation in the quarter-finals and the Intelligencer in semi-final action. Both series were taken to the five game maximum.

The champs compiled a 15-4-2 record in regular season play and a 10-1 mark in the playoffs.

Ron Andrews took the win Tuesday, while Tom St. Jules was tagged with the loss. Ron Bateman and Jack Francis were the key offensive threats for the winners and St. Jules and Lou Rivers were tops at the plate for Brooke Bond.

Special Honor For McDonald

PICTON — Although 1975 is the first year since 1927 Don McDonald has not been directly involved some way in racing of powerboats, he was a winner even before racing got started in the annual Prince Edward Gold Cup Races on the weekend.

The 66-year-old McDonald was honored for his work in the Canadian Boating Federation over the past years by being named on Saturday to the post of Life Vice-Commodore of the CBF, the first such honor ever bestowed by the Federation. The announcement came at an informal meeting at the Prince Edward Yacht Club Saturday to introduce members of the Canadian, American, and Mexican boating federations.

McDonald started his long and successful career in boat racing in 1927, and continued driving the high powered rigs until 1967. In the Centennial year, McDonald was badly injured in an accident while racing at Valleyfield, Quebec, and ended up spending six months in hospital recovering.

DON McDONALD

Over his 40 years of racing, he amassed what could possibly be the largest collection of boat racing trophies in Canada.

McDonald owned several North American records during the 1960s, and at one time held a world record in the 135 class. His boat, Colour Flame, attained a speed of 109 miles per hour.

More recently, he owned Miss Canada, a Grand Prix boat that competed for the Prince Edward Gold Cup in the past year. The boat raced this year, but under different ownership.

McDonald has always been involved in some way with boat racing, and now is involved with the organization of races. He is in charge of setting up the Festival Canada races, which are held each year on the Ottawa River, under the auspices of the Secretary of State of Canada.

His work with the Boating Federation, as a driver, owner, and organizer have now been recognized with the Vice Commodore post. The honor is a rare one indeed, for never before has a life membership been granted without the recipient having been an elected Commodore of the Federation.

"The decision was actually made to honor him several months ago," said Vic Waring, a director of the CBF, 'but it was kept under' wraps until Saturday. We thought this would be a good time to announce it". The timing was good. The announcement caught everyone, including McDonald, off guard.

Town and Country And McCombe's Are Champions

Paced by the four-goal production of centre half Jim Fleming, McCombe's BP rolled to the playoff championship of the mosquito division of the Belleville Minor Soccer Association, downing Richard Ellis 6-1.

Tony Rohgibur and Chris Christopher were the other marksmen for the winners in the title match. Replying for Richard Ellis was Dennis Campbell.

In the semi-finals, Richard Ellis got by Belleville Police while McCombe's knocked off Jim's Pizza.

Members of the championship team are Paul Wilkins, Melvin Bowers, Paul Canty, Danny Coughlin, Chris Christopher, Jim Fleming, Ken Fitzroy, Scott Granville, Tom Johnson, Imtaz Kahn Mike Lawson, Pat Meloche, Todd Pointer, Bobbie Rykman, Tom Kochubir and John Tobin. The team was coached by David Wingert.

Adam McArdle's goal gave Town and Country the atom title in a tight 1-0 win over National Billiards. Mathew Smith earned the shutout.

To qualify for the final, National Billiards defeated Coveney's

Coached by Derek Lawday, the champions are Eric Dayman, Mathew Smith, Paul Belch, Greg Bemis, Stephen Behrens, Adams McArdle Peter Seniuk, Sean Harris, John Bennett, Greg Lawrence, Scott Campbell, Ian Dikeson, Adam Moore and Craig Lawday.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Fred Noble is going back to college this fall at the age of 92.

It won't be an unfamiliar experience for the Jacksonville lawyer. He earned a master's degree in education at Jacksonville University just last year. This time he will aim toward a bachelor's degree in French at the same school.

CAIRO (AP) — The West German automotive giant Volkswagen and the British Lonrho Group, have six months to withdraw its license to an Israeli firm to produce Wankel engines, the Arab boycott commissioner Gen. Seize Drugs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Customs Bureau says it seized more than $82 million worth of illegal drugs during August, including a record 68 tons of marijuana worth $39.4 million. The marijuana seizures were the largest ever for one month and included a 43-ton cache discovered in the Grand Bahama Islands. The bureau reported heroin seizures totalled 18.51 pounds worth about $6.2 million.

Claims Seat

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Communist government of South Vietnam has claimed its seat in the 127-member International Monetary Fund (IMF) without protest from other members, an IMF spokesman said Tuesday. Representing South Vietnam at the week-long meeting of the IMF here are Dinh Ba Thi, ambassador and permanent observer to the United Nations, and Huynh Huu Nghiep, a member of the observer delegation to the UN.

Faulkner in Sophia

VIENNA (Reuter) — Canadian Secretary of State Hugh Faulkner arrived in Sofia Tuesday on a four-day visit to Bulgaria, the Bulgarian news agency BTA said.

Pledges Increase

TORONTO (CP) — About $1.2 million has been pledged across Canada for the Muscular Dystrophy Association of Canada, compared with $483,000 last year, officials say. Frank Murphy, executive director of the association, said the figure is amazing considering the state of the economy.

Predicts Problems

REGINA (CP) — An official of the Canadian Egg Marketing Agency (CEMA) said Tuesday the agency faces severe problems if two provinces continue refusing to pay levies assessed by the agency. Harold Crossman of Stoughton, Sask. declined to name the provinces involved, but said one is in the East and one is in the West. He said he believes one of the provinces is not adhering to egg production quotas set by CEMA.

Investigates Deaths

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Cmdr. S. C. Weatherell of the United States Coast Guard (USCG) base in Buffalo, N.Y, said today that a USCG investigation into the deaths of three persons Friday during a test raft ride on the Niagara River below Niagara Falls has "just begun."

Oil Found

LONDON (Reuter) — A subsidiary of Continental Oil Co. of the United States announced Tuesday an oil discovery in the British sector of the North Sea, 90 miles northeast of the Shetland Islands.

CIA Suspected In Army Coup

ATHENS (AP) — An official investigation has begun into the possibility that the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) was involved in the 1967 army coup in Greece and then gave the military dictatorship active support.

Investigating Magistrate Nicholas Papageorgiou began the investigation in response to a suit filed by Antonios Monsan, a lawyer in Salonica.

"It is about time the foreign element involved with the former Greek dictatorship is examined and not just the local side," said Monsan.

Among those whose actions would be investigated, he continued, will be Henry Tasca, the U.S. ambassador to Greece from 1970 to mid-1974, and Greek-U.S. industrialist Thomas Pappas of Boston, Mass. Both were considered enthusiastic supporters of the military regime.

Pappas, who was instrumental in setting up the Esso oil refinery in Greece, maintains an office in Athens. His office declined to comment on the investigation, as did the U.S. Embassy.

Ontario Awards $4.5 Million To Improve Tourist Facilities

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal and Ontario governments announced Tuesday that $4.5 million will be made available to improve tourist facilities in the Kenora-Minaki area of northwestern Ontario.

"As well as making tourism more attractive, the improvements are expected to generate greater commercial activity in the Kenora-Minaki area, and to increase local employment for native people," said the joint press release.

The money will be made available under the Canada-Ontario Subsidiary Agreement for northwestern Ontario.

Under an amendment to this agreement the two governments agree that the communities of Kenora and Minaki are not experiencing their full potential for economic growth.

Turner Optimistic Over World Problems

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canadian Finance Minister John Turner says he believes a powerful new consensus now is developing in favor of a concerted political drive to solve the world's outstanding financial problems.

But France and the United States have again stated their almost-complete disagreement over what action should be taken towards reforming the international currency system.

The test will come sometime during the next four months, probably during a Jamaica meeting of an influential international policy committee, headed by Turner, in January.

The Canadian minister made his remarks Tuesday to the annual conference of the International Monetary Fund (IMF) and World Bank, after France's Finance Minister Jean-Pierre Fourcade and U.S. Treasury Secretary William Simon had reiterated their opposing views.

So far, the meeting, which opened Monday, has scored a major advance by reaching conditional agreement on two of the three most serious difficulties besetting the international financial system.

China Prepares For Any Invasion

TATUNG, China (Reuter) — Factory workers have built an elaborate network of tunnels, bomb shelters and workshops under this north China city in case of Soviet invasion.

The labyrinth even includes a bakery which would produce biscuits should the 470,000 population of Tatung be forced below ground.

Foreign correspondents were shown a one-mile section of the narrow, white-walled tunnels under a cake and soft drinks factory here.

Equipped with store-rooms, water tanks, kitchens and an air-filtering system, they compared well with shelters in larger Chinese cities such as Peking and Nanking.

Tatung lies between Peking and the Mongolian Republic where thousands of Soviet troops are deployed.

Local officials said that "'in case of attack from the north, Tatung will be one of the first places to experience it."

Closer to the Mongolian Republic is the city of Huhehot, but Chinese officials there play down frontier tension. They say cattle sometimes strayed across into the republic but were always returned.

One administrator insisted the proximity of the border is "'not a particular concern. The Soviet threat is chiefly directed against the West."

Although Chinese militiamen living on communes in the border area always carry arms, any incidents are left to the People's Liberation Army, the official said.

He also told journalists he had no evidence to back up a British newspaper report of a Soviet military buildup in the frontier zone.

In Tatung, however, preparations against invasion have reached the point of building concealed concrete pillboxes. From the tunnels beneath the cake factory, snipers can climb into a pillbox which is disguised as a flowerbed.

"'The enthusiasm of the masses for preparing against the eventuality of war is quite high here," said one official.

He reported that each factory and apartment block have air raid shelters linked together. "'It is possible to walk from one end of Tatung to the other underground."

Mrs. Ma Chiu-Fang, chairman of the cake factory's revolutionary committee, said if there is an invasion, the factory will move below ground and continue production.

Emergency supplies are on hand for the moment the air raid sirens wail.

'It would take three minutes for our 'workers to report to their respective positions," she told reporters.

Mrs. Ma said 10 per cent of the factory's 280 staffers had been assigned to help build the tunnels between 1970 and 1974.

The tunnels lie between 29 and 39 feet underground and, according to the Chinese, could withstand a direct hit by a conventional bomb.

NEW REFERENCE BOOKS ON THE ARTS:

THE ART OF WALT DISNEY FROM MICKEY MOUSE TO THE MAGIC KINGDOMS — Christopher Finch.

Anyone who has ever enjoyed Walt Disney films will find this book a delight to browse through. The author traces Disney's rise to fame through a combination of hard work and imagination, and offers critical commentary on his major films. The basic techniques of animations are explained and all the elements that go into the making of an animated film are illustrated. Hundreds of illustrations, may of them full-page and in color, will bring back memories for the young in heart of all ages.

A HISTORY OF FASHION — J. Anderson Black and Madge Garland

In more than four thousand years of fashion, from the stone age to the space age, what people wear has been a reflection of their social, political, and esthetic ideals. The shifts between simplicity and opulence, comfort and constriction, are well-documented in this beautifully illustrated book, in paintings and fashion plates from the time of the cave men to the 1970's

A PEOPLE'S ART: PRIMITIVE, NAIVE, PROVINCIAL, AND FOLK PAINTING IN CANADA — J. Russell Harper.

Folk art, unlike "high" art, is the expression of "ordinary" people rather than accomplished artists, and reflects their daily living experiences. The large selection of paintings dating from the seventeenth century to modern times illustrates the settlers' experiences in a new country, their work, their leisure activities, and their love of the land. These unpretentious paintings enrich our understanding of Canadian social history.

THE MOUNTAINS AND THE SKY — Lorne E. Render.

The two most impressive features of Western Canada — the mountains and the sky — have shaped the growth of art in the West. From early pioneer artists who came with military or survey expeditions, to major contemporary artists of the West, all have been influenced by the grandeur and beauty of the natural environment. This theme runs through the author's chronological treatment of Western Canadian art, as exemplified in the illustrations of works from pioneer days to the 1970's.

UNDERSTANDING PICASSO — Domenica Porzio and Marco Valsecchi

A record of the life and work of the man who dominated the world of twentieth-century Western art, this book includes a biography of Picasso and a critique of his career, as well as a selection of comments by Picasso on his own work and excerpts about him from the writings of people who knew him. Half the book is devoted to 144 colorplates showing, in chronological order, the best of his prodigious output during a span of more than seventy years.

PICASSO, THE ARTIST OF THE CENTURY — Jean Leymarie

Equally enjoyable is this large book which, like the other, emphasizes Picasso's creativity and his joy in life. Leymarie deals with the themes of the artist's work: for example, women mythology, or drama and history, tracing the development of his ideas through the many different styles of painting in which he worked during his long lifetime. Much of the book consists of illustrations, including a large number of colorplates, accompanied by the author's explanations and excerpts from the writings of Picasso and his contemporaries.

Papua Sets Rules For Foreigners

PORT MORESBY (Reuter) — Papua New Guinea has finally decided what to do about its 37,000 foreigners after it achieves independence on Sept. 16.

Long-term residents will be allowed to stay as naturalized citizens but with restrictions on their business activities for 10 years and their property rights for five years.

"I want Papua New Guinea to have a multiracial society," said Chief Minister Michael Somare recently during the closing stages of a constituent assembly debate on citizenship. "But they will have to come on our terms."

For the vast majority of Papua New Guinea's 2.5 million people, citizenship will be no problem.

Those with at least two Papua New Guinean grandparents and most mixed-race people, other than those holding foreign citizenship, will become citizens automatically.

It is the expatriates who came during the country's 70-year colonialist era, which only came to an end with self-government in December, 1972, who have caused the headaches for constitutional planners and legislators.

Unofficial estimates say the present non-indigenous population consists of 33,000 of European extraction—mostly Australians along with some New Zealanders, British and Germans. There are just under 3,000 Chinese and about 1,000 others, including Fijians and Samoans.

The non-indigenous population has dropped considerably since 1971 when there were at least 47,000 Australians and Europeans alone.

Debate on the future of the expatriate groups has been raging for more than a year.

The assembly decided that expatriates who have lived in the country for more than eight years at independence, will have until Nov. 16, a period of two months, to renounce their old citizenship and become naturalized Papua New Guineans.

Somare emphasized that these people will have to make their minds up in the two-month period or lose all rights to citizenship.

Somare stressed that long-term expatriates who do not become citizens will be treated the same as any foreign visitor or temporary resident.

They could be deported if the circumstances arose and would need visas and entry permits to stay and re-enter the country.

Any business interests they have will be treated the same way as foreign holdings. The two-months time limit and business and property restrictions are clear enough.

Observers see them as a means of ensuring that only people who genuinely want to remain in Papua New Guinea apply for naturalization.

GENEVA (Reuter) — Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton, divorced 14 months ago after 10 years of marriage, will end their week of hideaway reconciliation in Switzerland and fly to Israel together today, a spokesman for the couple said Tuesday.

Maurice Solowicz, the couple's lawyer, said they would stay four or five days in Israel, where Burton is scheduled to make a film in October.

Solowicz said Miss Taylor, 43, and Burton, 49, would not be remarrying in Israel, although the Welsh-born actor had been quoted as saying he hoped it might be arranged.

"Legally it is not possible," Solowicz said.

Miss Taylor converted to Judaism before her wedding to singer Eddie Fisher. But Burton is not Jewish and Israel does not have civil marriage.

TORONTO (CP) — Black Christmas, a Toronto-mad film thriller, has become English-speaking Canada's number two domestic box office champion and the second to crack the 1-million barrier.

The film's gross, 10 months after initial release, stands at $1,274,000—second only to the record $1.8 million of The Apprenticeship of Duddy Kravitz.

Warner Brothers has opened the movie in selected U.S. markets under the title, Silent Night, Evil Night and says it will play at 600 U.S. theatres this fall. The title was changed because it was felt white audiences would stay away thinking Black Christmas was for blacks, said producer Gerry Arbeid of August Films.

The film features Keir Dullea, Olivia Hussey, John Saxon and Margot Kidder.

TEL AVIV AP) — Elizabeth Taylor has been offered the feminine lead role opposite Richard Burton in a film to be shot in Israel, the director said Wednesday.

Producer-director Wolf Vollmar, speaking soon after the couple arrived to inspect the locations, said he had no information on the possible remarriage of Burton and Miss Taylor, who were divorced 14 months ago and reconciled last week.

Spokesmen for the couple announced last week they had permanently reconciled and Burton was reported to have spoken of a possible wedding in Israel.

Burton is to star in the movie Abokarov, about a Soviet pilot who immigrates to Israel.

ROME (AP) — The negatives of Federico Fellini's Casanova and two other films in production have been stolen from the vaults of the Technicolor Co. here in a theft bearing the earmarks of Italy's Kidnap Inc.

Film industry officials said Wednesday the daring theft of 74 reels threatens a loss of millions of dollars and would only have been carried out by persons seeking ransom money.

"For me, the damage is incalculable," said Fellini, who was filming a 10 million epic on the life of the 18th century Venetian adventure to follow up his Oscar-winning Amarcord.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Thursday, Sept. 4

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Others will find you a dynamic person to be around today. You'll have a way of making good things happen for them as well as yourself.

TAURUS (April 20-May 2;) You have the ability to finalize situations today. Don't fool around with small stuff. Get to the major issues.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There's a pleasant surprise brewing regarding something you've been hoping for. It will unfold in a very unusual fashion.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You're still in a fortunate cycle for accumulating possessions. Another little windfall may come your way unexpectedly.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll be receiving good news from two different sources—perhaps today. Return all calls. Read your mail carefully.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Seeds you've sown in the past fell upon fertile soil. Rewards you're entitled to will be forthcoming.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't turn down any invitations today where there'll be a large gathering. You'll make interesting contacts you couldn't make elsewhere.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Conditions are more favorable for you than usual today regarding your career and your image.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll hear from a friend today who you haven't seen in some time. You have much to share. You'll pick up where you left off.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're luckier through others today than you would be acting on your own. Let your associates call the shots.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You'll find others will be extra-willing to go out of their way today to be co-operative. Ask for aid if needed.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your material prospects are very bright, but you must do something constructive with opportunities that come easily now. They may be fleeting.

Tenant Involvement Is Seen as a Duty

EDMONTON (CP) — Tenants have a right to make decisions about how they live and a responsibility to do so, says Ron Kolbus, general manager of the Edmonton Housing Authority.

That belief has led to formation of the Alberta Tenants Association, which has as one of its objectives an increase in tenant involvement and pride.

"Housing is a right, not a gift," says Wayne Kirton, public relations officer for the newly-formed association.

"Look at the money spent on low-cost housing in relation to that spent on developing the oil sands. The government would be far better off subsidizing people instead of industry."

Mr. Kirton said it's up to tenants to get programs implemented. Albertans had to be re-educated to realize "we are your neighbor."

Liz Susi, president of the Youngstown Tenants Association in Edmonton and one of the new association's founders, said there are more public housing tenants in Toronto than there are in all of Alberta. Public housing was accepted in Toronto, but still carried a stigma in Edmonton.

"In parts of this city, if anything goes wrong in a community, people say: It's those damn people in the housing developments.

"We want to be part of the community as a whole. We all have the same goals—to raise our families, and do our jobs. We're all the same, we're all people."

Mr. Kolbus said sometimes when a public housing development goes into a neighborhood it receives initial hostility from the community.

"In Edmonton, though, the projects are located in our middle-class areas, the normal family-type areas. The integration process has been pretty good, but the crucial issue is good tenant involvement. Ideally, public housing should be growing with the community."

Mr. Kolbus said that in public housing people can feel their house is their home, they can fix it up. The lease is for two years, during which time the rent doesn't change. The tenants' incomes are reviewed every year. Rent is geared to income.

The whole purpose of public housing was to upgrade tenants' standards of living. When the salary became high enough, tenants were encouraged to move out into the regular housing market.

The housing authority has 1,453 public housing units, all committed. There's a waiting list of 600 but people are still encouraged to apply.

"We should have a three-per-cent vacancy rate (or 30 units of the present 1,453), to be in a healthy housing situation. But it's not a healthy situation, and it's the low-income people who suffer."

Mr. Kolbus said Edmonton needs a whole variety of housing. There were 156,615 houses in the city either already built or under construction but less than one per cent of the total was public housing.

"I'd like to see a program established where up to 20 per cent of housing is government-subsidized in some way. That would mean five per cent public housing and senior citizen accommodation; five per cent limited-dividend housing; and 10 per cent assisted-home-ownership, co-op housing, assisted mortgage or

Gonorrhea Needs Prompt Treatment

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a girl of 16, soon to be 17 in two months. I live in a very small town where something like this can get around, and you know what would happen?

Problem: I have gonorrhea, and I can't go anywhere to get help because I don't want to embarrass anyone. I read somewhere that gonorrhea is more serious in women, that they can go blind. Please help me, because I don't know what to do.—No Name, Please.

Here's what you have to do. You have to gather every bit of courage you can and go to a doctor immediately. The consequences could be quite serious for you if you delay. The infection can spread quickly to the Fallopian tubes and other areas of the body.

It could even cause you to become sterile. Otherwise VD is no respecter of sex.

Scary? You bet, and I hope I've scared you and other young people with your problem (the numbers must be astronomical, from recent reports) into seeking prompt treatment. Young girls should also know that while the pill, which many of them use, may be a dandy contraceptive, it will not prevent VD.

As a matter of fact, there is evidence that the pill can, in fact, make women more susceptible to gonorrhea. It does this by changing the vaginal membrane chemistry, making it more hospitable to the germ. The best method to assure women they will neither become pregnant nor contract VD in intercourse is the use of the condom by their partners.

But remember, some discharges in young girls, that may appear to be VD-caused need not be at all.

Although your community is small, you should see a doctor. These problems are handled very confidentially.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like to know how food cooked in wine or flavored with an alcoholic beverage would affect an alcoholic who is taking the drug Antabuse, or an alcoholic who is trying to maintain sobriety without any drugs.

I like to entertain by cooking, and many of my best recipes call for some alcoholic beverage addition.—Mrs. J.G.

Much gourmet cooking does involve such things as marinating with wine sauces. Most of the alcohol probably disappears with cooking, but in recipes that don't call for cooking, it does, of course, remain. In either case, because of the nature of the drug you mention (it causes violent symptoms in the presence of alcohol), I would recommend that you exercise prudence and not use wines, etc.

If such a drug were to be prescribed, it would be done with careful instructions about this.

I am sure you can gather some succulent recipes that will turn your friends on rather than your husband. It does not require much alcohol to upset the Antabuse user or tip the abstainer from his sobriety program, whatever it is.

It could be like hiding some strawberries in a recipe and serving it to a person who has a violent allergy to that fruit.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been taking estrogen supplements for over a year. At age 77 do you think they are of any benefit to me?—Mrs. A.

That is very nearly impossible to answer sensibly. The obvious question is why were you placed on the estrogen therapy to begin with? If, for example, it was for post-menopausal estrogen-deficient vaginitis, then the effectiveness of the estrogen use would dictate future use.

A general rule is that the dosage be the lowest possible one to produce the desired effect. Discontinuing the estrogen completely would quickly tell you how effective it was. Perhaps at some future date your doctor will suggest an adjustment in your dosage. For now, continue with your prescribed dose as long as it is of help to you.

All-suit Stayman, as the name implies is a form of the Stayman convention in which the response is in the cheapest decent four-card suit.

Most modern experts use the jump from one to four notrump as a slam invitation, the jump from one to six as a stop bid—not that they aren't stopping pretty high—and the jump from one to five notrump as an all suit Stayman grand slam invitation.

North has only 18 points opposite his partner's notrump opening, but he has two four-card minor suits and is definitely interest in seven, if South can show a four-card fitfor either of them.

When South does bid six clubs, North is off and running. His six-diamond call announces that he has grand slam interest. South's six-spade bid accepts the idea of a club grand slam. South has a mere 16-point notrump but his doubleton diamond looks like money from home. Hence, his six-spade bid.

This is enough for North. He bids seven clubs and South has no trouble making the club grand slam. On the other hand, there are only 12 tricks at notrump.

Ask the Jacobys

A Halifax reader asks, "What is the correct standard American response to a one diamond opening with ♠ Q ♥ J 10 2 ♦ K 10 6 5 4 ♣ K 9 5 2?"

The answer is that you have to make the underbid of three diamonds. This hand shows why we like to play the jump raise from one to three as good, but not forcing.

Getting to Bottom of Glass Only Brief Break from Toil

LA GRANDE, Que. (CP) — There are three ways to escape to the bottom of a glass at this construction site of the world's largest earth-filled dam.

At the 1,000-seat tavern, men in dusty work clothes chug-a-lug draught beer in a smoke-filled room so noisy that an hour of conversation leaves a person hoarse.

Those able to latch onto one of the 150 women at this camp of 2,600 persons can drink beer at Le Club Femina and dance to music popular in Montreal discotheques 600 miles to the southeast.

Employees with real status can sip cocktails with their wives at the Club des Cadres, which sits on a hill overlooking the main camp. There is a great temptation to compare the Club des Cadres to a feudal castle brooding over a valley of serfs, except the architecture f this watering hole for management types is more like a spanking-new machine shed.

At this camp, known as LG-2, escapes are brief, whether they be alcohol, sports, movies or just plain solitude in a quiet corner.

Everyone, management and workers, toils long hours. Some work 10 hours or more a day, seven days a week. Bedtime is early and breakfast is at 5 a.m.

During work or leisure, it is impossible to escape the harsh environment, the dust in summer, the cold in winter, the absence of Sunday dinners with the family.

After 60 days of work, an employee receives a free airplane ticket to Montreal. One young road worker from Ste. Agathe, Que., in the Laurentian mountains, said he marks the days with Xs on his dormitory wall.

For some, the isolation in the land of spindly black spruce is too much.

Marcel Vigneault, a hard-boiled veteran of the 135,000-square-mile James Bay territory and director of its municipal police force, says that only a small minority "go bush."

Going bush is when the mind snaps and a man's friends start to notice peculiar habits developing like standing on the edge of a pier for three hours staring into space.

At LG-2, the largest of the four damsites along La Grande River, and at the nearby executive community of Radisson, most people admit life is hard. But most do not find it unbearable.

Gerald Hamel, a James Bay Energy Corp. administrator with 21 camps under his charge, appears to be comfortable with his life at Radisson. But then, he is one of 150 management personnel lucky enough to live with his wife and family in a trailer, which is furnished like a middle-class Montreal apartment.

The majority of people in the James Bay territory live in spartan dormitories and eat in huge antiseptic cafeterias.

At such cafeterias, dressing up for dinner means shaking the dust off your clothes at the doorstep.

"My wife? Oh, she just loves it here," Mr. Hamel said during an interview in his trailer, which he rents for $60 a month—fuel and electricity included.

"She's found a new talent since she's been up here—art," he proudly says showing her latest paintings.

His wife is an exception, though, he said. "Probably nine out of 10 wives at Radisson would jump at the chance to go home."

Mr. Hamel admits that sometimes he misses things from his former life in Longueuil, Que., near Montreal.

"Sometimes I get the taste of pizza in my mouth and I say to the wife, 'Wouldn't it be nice to go out and have a pizza?' "

There are a lot of things like that, he said, such as being able to buy good clothes, nights on the town.

"When you start to complain about those things, it is just the tip of the iceberg. Once you start, it's hard to stop."

He said some people are disappointed with their lives in the James Bay territory because conditions are not more primitive.

"We're men transplanted in the forest, but we're not fighting the wilderness. . . . Some people find they have just exchanged tall buildings for small trees."

He believes it is important to allow people to continue as many traditional social customs as possible.

"You'll see some men who go to the tavern every night with their work clothes on, but on Saturday night they will put on a white shirt. They're drinking in the same place with the same people, but before they always got dressed up Saturday night and now they can't change that habit."

Maude Delangis, an office worker for a construction company at LG-2, has had to cast aside a few habits from her previous life in Joliette, Que., a small town near Montreal.

Mrs. Delangis, a petite, spunky woman in her early 20s who speaks as fast as a jackhammer, is vice-president of Le Club Femina, which she likes to call "our women's only sanctuary."

Men can attend the club, which is basically a discotheque, only if invited by a woman.

"Some men will beg a girl just to be taken inside for a few minutes," she said during an interview in the dimly-lit club where couples repeatedly played the slowest waltzes on the juke box.

She does not think life is any harder for women than for men in the James Bay area.

"People have to reconcile themselves to the facts of life here and once that is accomplished, they survive."

Mrs. Delangis had to reconcile herself to the fact that her husband works at the same camp, yet they are not permitted to sleep together. Men and women are forbidden to enter dormitories housing the opposite sex.

Life at LG-2, however, is not without some compensations. The cafeteria may not be one's ideal spot for dining out, but the food is plentiful and good.

Marcel Menard, kitchen supervisor, said pastries are destroyed when their whipped cream topping starts to sag.

"If the pastries weren't perfect, the men would lose confidence in the kitchen," said Mr. Menard, who bustles around the cafeteria like a maitre d'hotel at an elegant restaurant.

"The big dinners are their only pleasure," he said a bit sadly.

In the men-only, 1,000-seat tavern, men in dusty work clothes chug-a-lug draught beer in a smoke-filled room so noisy that an hour of conversation leaves a person hoarse. The LG-2 camp in La Grande, Que., is the largest of the four damsites along the LaGrande River in the James Bay area. (CP Photo).

Tunnels Return Water

Four 4,000-foot-long runnels will eventually return water to La Grande River from the powerhouse at the world's largest hydrocletric power project. The James Bay project will cost $11.9 billion and financing will come from Hydro-Quebec revenues and its substantial borrowing on the American market. Photo shows a contractors worksite and the exit portal of the four tunnels. (CP Photo)

James Bay Development Called Quebec Pyramids

LA GRANDE, Que. (CP) — Jean Rousseau likes to toy with the idea that he is helping build Quebec's pyramids.

"Yes, the James Bay project is monumental, isn't it?" he says, grinning and wiping the sweat from beneath his hard hat.

"The pyramids ... yes ... I like that comparison." His eyes sparkle.

From his crew-cab truck perched atop a hill scraped clean of all vegetation, the construction mining specialist peers down into the valley of La Grande River and sees one of Quebec's 20th-century pyramids slowly rising, 600 miles northwest of Montreal.

To compare the 10,000-megawatt hydroelectric power project on La Grande River to the pyramids may sound presumptuous, but then Premier Robert Bourassa describes it as "the project of the century."

It is a project that evokes superlatives. The earth-filled dam at LG-2, worksite No. 2 on La Grande River, will be the largest in the world—525 feet high and 8,300 feet long at the crest. Plans call for 30 million cubic yards of fill.

Combined with the other three sites along the 300-mile-long river, which pours into James Bay, the project will generate more electricity than any other in the world.

The development was inaugurated to satisfy the rising energy needs of Quebec, which according to Hydro-Quebec, double about every eight years.

The publicly owned utility says Quebec will need about 30,000 megawatts of electricity by 1985, the year the James Bay development is to be fully operational.

If, by 1985, Quebec has an energy surplus, some will be exported to other provinces or to the United States. However, if demands were underestimated, more hydro projects are on the drawing board.

Hydro Quebec calculates harnessing La Grande River will cost $11.9 billion, double the original 1971 estimate. Many critics, however, say $15 billion is a more realistic estimate.

The financing will largely come from Hydro-Quebec revenues and its substantial borrowings on the American market.

The hydro project will be the catalyst to open up the entire James Bay region, 135,000 square miles, or one-fifth of the area of Quebec, for mining, forestry operations and tourism.

The area is dominated in the north by scrubby black spruce surrounding a thousand lakes and swamps. Moving southward the vegetation becomes more luxuriant. The eerie silence permeating the area is disturbed only by the thundering of river rapids.

For Premier Bourassa, the James Bay project is not just a physical monument. He also hopes that the project will be remembered as an integral part of the beginning of Quebec's "cultural sovereignty."

"The James Bay development is the symbol of our youth taking hold of its future," Mr. Bourassa wrote in his 122-page book, James Bay, a document aimed at quelling the resistance to the project from native peoples, environmentalists and political opponents.

Most of the youth at James Bay camps are "taking hold of their future" in a way perhaps less idealistic than that to which the premier was referring.

Walk around the hockey arena-sized cafeteria at LG-2, now unofficially called La Grande, and ask people why they are there. Amid the roar of 1,000 conversations and the clattering of as many dishes, almost everyone answers "l'argent"—money.

It is money to further education or to pay for the mortgage on a suburban house—both tickets to the fulfilment of the North American dream, Quebec-style.

Many workers at mnagement level, or "les cadres," already have the university degree and the suburban house after having worked on every other Quebec hydroelectric project in the last decade.

James Bay was the next logical step after Churchill Falls and the Manic-Outardes projects for people such as Mr. Rousseau, for the superpower construction companies and the loyal bands of workers that follow them like rock-star fans.

Premier Bourassa's evolutionary plans for these people have been like the harnessing of the area's rivers—dangerous bends and rapids had to be negotiated.

The 6,000 Indians and Inuit who inhabit the region tried to block the project through the courts but eventually settled, at least temporarily, for $150 million compensation from the Quebec government. That compensation represented the cost of the white man's presence in their aboriginal homeland.

In March, 1974, some workers at LG-2 sacked the camp for reasons no one clearly remembers. Mr. Bourassa's evolution took time out while strategy was replanned.

Now, no one at La Grande's projects likes to talk about that rampage. It has been hidden in their memories like an insane relative shipped off to a distant asylum.

Damage from the rampage was in the millions of dollars and prompted the Quebec government to institute the Cliche commission inquiry, which unearthed considerable corruption in Quebec's construction industry at the union, management and government levels.

Although workers still have complaints—bad telephone service, dry sandwiches for lunch and a shortage of women—their leaders do not foresee another fiery outburst of frustration.

There is, however, a new type of dissatisfaction among some senior staff.

Gerald Hamel, an administrator with James Bay Energy Corp., says he has noticed a high turnover at junior management levels because those employees may earn $18,000 annually brainstorming while their subordinates may earn twice as much streaming sweat in a tunnel.

It is here the pyramid analogy falls on its ear. Although the thousands of hourly-paid workers toil in a harsher environment than the ancient Egyptians, they are far from underpaid or underfed.

Most workers may earn at least $20,000 in a year. Even a summer job washing dishes pays a minimum of $200 weekly. Overtime places a thick icing on the cake.

Although the wages are lucrative, the hours still smack of slave labor. Many workers employed by construction companies assigned to various phases of the project work from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m., seven days a week. No one, not even a female office worker, clocks less than 10 hours a day, six days a week.

Yvon Sarrazin, an engineer with the energy corporation, the Hydro Quebec subsidiary which oversees all work on the project, is not happy.

"The hours are very long," he said. "It is not reasonable to work 60 hours a week," especially for those whose jobs require decision-making.

"After working so much, you become blase," he said during an interview which was interrupted several times by two different telephones ringing and several signatures to hastily-read documents.

"Life is very hard here."

Boost Viewing Range

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Astronomers say they have perfected an instrument that boosts the viewing range of a telescope 10-fold and allows study of stellar bodies 100 times fainter than those now visible. The instrument, a two-dimensional photo-counting television detector, will allow more exact study of quasars, pulsing bodies at the edge of the universe, says Gordon Gilbert, University of Arizona astronomer.

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Pete, a 14-pound Maine lobster, who became a newspaper and broadcast celebrity at the age of 84 has died. He was promoted by the restaurant where he lived in a tank recently and 200 patrons arrived one night to have dinner. But sometime between closing that night and opening the next, Pete died. He was cooked immediately after he was found, and his frozen remains were used for lobster bisque.

James Bay Project to Affect Lives of 100 Million People

LA GRANDE, Que. (CP) — A siren screams; lights are extinguished; a dozen men dash for cover; dynamite disintegrates a few more feet of rock in a tunnel.

After the smoke clears, the process is repeated.

The setting for such daily explosions is one of four 4,000-foot-long tunnels which will eventually return water to La Grande River from the powerhouse at the world's largest hydroelectric project.

This is James Bay country, 35,000 square miles of bush, rock and lakes which Premier Robert Bourassa has earmarked for development unprecedented in Quebec's history.

Primarily, the region is going to provide 10,000 megawatts of hydro to help satisfy the insatiable energy requirements of consumers and factories in the south. Mineral and forest products await entrepreneurs while scores of lakes and rivers will attract tourists to spend their vacation pay.

Four gigantic earth-filled dams will be built along La Grande River which flows 300 miles westward into James Bay.

About half of the electricity generated will come from the 16 turbines at the LG-2 site (unofficially called La Grande), about 600 miles northwest of Montreal and 74 miles east of James Bay.

The reservoir behind the LG-2 dam will flood 1,095 square miles of scrubby black spruce forest.

The first turbine should be spinning by late 1979 or early 1980; the rest, two or three years later. The entire La Grande project is scheduled for completion in 1985 at a cost of at least $11.9 billion.

Once LG-2 is completed, an average of 117,000 cubic feet of water a second, falling from a height of 450 feet, will pass through the 16 generator groups, each having a 333,000-kilowatt capacity.

The water then will rush through four tunnels back to La Grande River, about six miles past the dam, which is 525 feet high and 8,300 feet long at the crest.

Two of these exit tunnels are already almost completed. Norman Cameron, an inspector with James Bay Energy Corp., expects the four tunnels, carved out of solid rock, to be completed in a few months.

The awarding of the contract for the LG-2 powerhouse has been delayed a few months. A contractor, however, should be chosen by all, say energy corporation officials.

The other three sites along La Grande are smaller and construction is less advanced than at LG-2.

Once the four powerhouses are functioning, only minimal maintenance staff will be required. Hydro-Quebec, which owns the energy corporation, will control most operations from its Montreal headquarters.

While the energy corporation supervises the hydroelectric project, its sister organization, James Bay Development Corp., has the mandate for mining exploration.

Already, along a narrow strip in the south of the territory, the combined production of copper, silver, gold, zinc, lead, nickel and asbestos has topped 1 billion in the last decade.

Matagami, a pleasant community of 4,000, began 14 years ago from this mining activity.

Eight mining companies, operating 15 largely automated mines, expect in a few years to double output by starting to exploit 70 million tons of non-ferrous metal reserves, said Clement Bouffard, a development corporation spokesman.

Important iron deposits also have been identified near the towns of Matagami and Chibougamau, the Great Whale River and the lakes called Duncan and Albanel. Many of the fast-flowing rivers of the area have the telltale reddish tinge of iron.

There also are indications of the existence of uranium deposits, said Mr. Bouffard.

The Quebec government, along with the Canadian and perhaps the French government, hopes to build a costly uranium enrichment plant in the territory.

No site has yet been designated, Mr. Bouffard said.

The development corporation also has the responsibility for creating a transportation and communications network, to promote activity in forestry and tourism and to administer the territory—one fifth of Quebec—as one large municipality.

To link the scattered communities and exploration camps, already hundreds of miles of roads have been built since 1971. Each mile costs about 250,000.

In describing the necessity for developing the area, Premier Bourassa has written:

"Our ancestors' courage and will must live again in the 20th century. Quebec must occupy its territory; it must conquer James Bay. We have decided the time has come."

The first time the area was conquered, by fur traders in the 17th century, the plundering almost killed off the beaver. The current exploiters of the area promise to be more careful with the ecology.

The energy corporation's 101-man environment department boasts a budget of 1.5 million for 1975. Much of that expenditure will finance an environment protection camp at Lac Denise, near LG-2.

Lac Denise is the only camp in the area where trees are left to shade the trailers and temporary buildings.

Abbas Moussawi, an employee at the camp, has been publicly critical of the ecological safeguards, which he termed a facade.

Energy corporation officials, however, maintain they adhere to the recommendations of their ecologists.

The site of the LG-1 dam, the closest to Fort George and other native settlements on James Bay, was moved because of complaints from the native population, which feared environmental damage.

Maude Delangis, an office worker for construction company at LG-2 and vice-president of Le Club Femina, does not think life is any harder for women in the James Bay area. Mrs. Delangis had to reconcile herself to the fact that her husband works at the same camp, yet they are not permitted to sleep together. Men and Women are forbidden to enter dormitories housing the opposite sex. (CP Photo)

Hoffa's Foster Son Appears Before Grand Jury Today

DETROIT (AP) — Jimmy Hoffa's foster son appears before a federal grand jury today to answer questions on his whereabouts July 30 when the former Teamsters Union president disappeared.

Charles (Chuckie) O'Brien has acknowledged to the FBI that he was driving a car owned by the son of a reputed Mafia leader near a suburban Detroit restaurant where Hoffa was last seen.

FBI special agent James Esposito said in an affidavit filed with federal court he has probable cause to believe "O'Brien has used Joseph Giacalone's automobile to facilitate an abduction of Hoffa."

Giacalone, son of reputed Mafia chieftain Anthony (Tony Jack) Giacalone, was the leadoff witness before the grand jury which launched its probe Tuesday.

Lawyers for the U.S. government questioned young Giacalone for half an hour and followed with 10 minutes of questions for young Giacalone's uncle, Vito, another alleged Mafia figure in Detroit.

Hoffa's family said Hoffa told them that on the day he vanished he was on his way to meet Anthony Giacalone. The elder Giacalone has denied he was to meet Hoffa.

Primary Grades Need Special Care Says Stephen Lewis

KIRKLAND LAKE, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario education system must treat primary and pre-primary children with special care, NDP Leader Stephen Lewis said Tuesday night.

The early years are crucial in a child's learning process, he said during his first major education speech of the Sept. 18 Ontario election campaign.

He raised the issue after focusing earlier in the day on mercury pollution hazards faced by Indians in northwestern Ontario.

At a meeting with Indian chiefs and leaders in Kenora, he accused the government of mistreating natives who have been subjected to the dangers of Minamata disease, a sickness that attacks brain and nerve cells.

He also promised that an NDP governmnet would help northern Indians with their wild rice harvest—sometimes disrupted by floods—and push the federal government to settle Indian land claims.

His education speech criticized both the Progressive Conservative government and the Liberals.

He said the government of Premier William Davis has taken an insensitive approach to education and the Liberals are too simplistic.

"The Tory answers are preposterous. They think of buildings, they think of dollars, they think of numbers, that's all they think about."

Ontario's Communist Party Complains About Coverage

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario committee of the Communist Party of Canada announced Tuesday it has sent a letter to the Ontario Press Council, protesting what it calls a virtual blackout of news coverage of Communist candidates in the Sept. 18 provincial election campaign.

William Stewart, head of the provincial branch of the party, said the letter singled out Toronto Star for lack of coverage and asked the council to take immediate action.

The text of the letter said The Star "either ignored the existence of our candidates or has dealt with them as an afterthought, not always making it clear that they are indeed candidates" in stories analysing various constituencies.

Canada Pinpoints Economic Changes to Update Trading Patterns

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canada has placed before the UN a multi-dimensional approach towards helping change the old international economic order to fit the present-day situation.

It goes far beyond increasing development aid to the poor countries. When China is included, there are about two billion people living in countries where the gross national product (GNP) for the average person is less than $200 a year.

The Canadian approach pinpoints economic adjustments needed to update trading patterns, particularly in commodities, thus helping Third World countries close the poverty gap.

External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen told reporters Wednesday that Canada's attitude on the question of the Third World economic development contains some new ideas, new approaches and reaffirmation of existing policies.

Later he delivered Canada's major address before the special session of the General Assembly on development and economic co-operation.

MacEachen told the delegates: "We are determined to play a positive role, to use our resources and our influence, in efforts to bring about constructive change in the international economic system and thereby to reduce the gap between rich and poor nations."

At a news conference, MacEachen said Canada acknowledges the gravity of the financial problem Third World countries face because of their growing indebtedness and the burden it places on them.

He said international efforts must be taken within the next year or two to meeting this situation.

In his UN address, MacEachen outlined Canada's proposals to deal with the "boom-or-bust" cycle in the international commodities market.

The instability of the market is a major weakness of the international trade system, he said.

Outlining Canada's approach to help solve this instability, he made these points:

—"We believe commodity arrangements nvolving both producers and consumers constitute the most practical approach to the problem.

—"We are prepared to examine positively the idea of negotiating arrangements for a wide range of products. . . .

—"We recognize that the use of buffer stocks and alternative stock mechanisms may be an appropriate stabilizing technique for a number of commodities.

—"We recognize that commodity prices have to reflect market forces. At the same time, we are well aware that no one's interest is served by commodity prices which are so low as to discourage production."

He said Canada's new strategy for International Development Co-operation (SIDC), published in Ottawa on Tuesday, provides a fresh approach to development aid.

Canada's programs will exceed $900 million this year "and they will grow significantly in the years ahead," MacEachen said.

Canada is determined to achieve the official UN target of seven-tenths of one per cent of its GNP and to move toward it by annual ncreases in official development assistance.

The bulk of Canadian bilateral aid will be concentrated on the poorest countries and on the poorest sections of their economies.

Canada also will provide one million tons of grain as food aid this year and n 1976-77.

Sign Peace Pact

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The new Israeli-Egyptian agreement negotiated by U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger is to be signed in Geneva, Switzerland, today following approval of the pact by the Israeli parliament.

Israel's legislators debated for nine hours Wednesday, then voted 70 to 43 in favor of the pact with seven abstentions. But before Israeli troops begin to withdraw behind the Gidi and Mitla passes through the Sinai mountains, the U.S. Congress must approve a key provision providing for the stationing of about 200 American civilian technicians at electronic surveillance posts in the passes.

Kissinger returned to Washington on Wednesday night and begins his campaign for congressional approval with an appearance today before a closed session of the Senate foreign relations committee.

Reporters travelling with the secretary were told he would assure the senators that the U.S. is committed only to serve as a "watchdog" in the Sinai and a "transmission belt" between Israel and Egypt.

Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin also sought to quiet American fears that U.S. involvement in the Sinai might lead to another Vietnam.

"Israel is not asking American troops to fight in its defence," Rabin told the Knesset, Israel's parliament.

In contrast to the demonstrations against the agreement that right-wingers organized during Kissinger's diplomatic shuttle, about 10,000 Israelis demonstrated in favor of the agreement outside the Knesset.

$8 Million Centre Starts November

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

Quinte Sports Centre architect Bill Sanford said Wednesday the complex, estimated to cost $8 million, will begin in November whether or not the Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund receive grants from the provincial government.

An architect with Marani, Rounthwaite and Dick in Toronto, Mr. Sanford predicted the construction start after a sod turning ceremony by city mayor Ben Corke at the Cannifton Rd. site.

Construction will begin after Yardmen have filed an application for a grant with the Culture and Recreation Ministry, the source of Wintario dollars.

"We want to do everything according to proper channels" said Mr. Sanford. But he said "we can safely say there will be a construction start in November whether we get grants or not."

Yardmen now have $2.77 million set aside in a fund for centre construction, according to a statement made in an address by Mayor Corke during the ceremony, attended by local politicians and other Quinte dignitaries.

Yardmen project co-ordinator Jack Lundberg said the Yardmen recently received Wintario grant application forms and are now studying filing methods.

The complex, to be completed in late 1977, will contain an Olympic-sized swimming pool, international figure-skating calibre enclosed ice surface, a gymnasium, squash courts, and dressing rooms.

Mr. Sanford said the arena is planned as a multi-use facility seating about 4,000. A multipurpose auditorium with a 100 to 300 people capacity is also a possibility, he said.

In a meeting Wednesday morning architects and Yardmen discussed a construction program for the complex. It was not revealed whether, if any, changes had been made in the contents of the centre.

All building, according to Mr. Sanford, will be done in one phase. Exact placement on the 28 acres on Cannifton Rd. will be decided soon based on soil test, now underway.

He said the order of construction over the two years will depend on Yardmen wishes.

Bennett Announces Trade Conference

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Claude Bennett provincial minister of industry and tourism, today announced plans to correct Canada's foreign trade imbalance by "instilling confidence" in Ontario's small and medium-sized industries.

Mr. Bennett said a special foreign trade conference will be held in Toronto, Oct. 15 to introduce Ontario businessmen to existing trading houses which will develop foreign markets.

He said the decision to hold the trade conference came about four days ago when he received the report back from Ontario Trading House Committee which diagnosed the reluctance on the part of small industrialists.

At a press briefing at Progressive Conservative Party campaign headquarters here, Mr. Bennett said "It is extremely critical that the trade imbalance be taken care of — and that Ontario businessmen get into foreign market before they tighten up."

Canada now has a trade deficit of about $10 billion. Ontario accounts for 52 per cent of all Canada's exports and 82 per cent of all finished products sold to foreign markets.

"Ontario businessmen have never had the jugular instinct to get the purchase order signed," he said. "They have been reluctant because of foreign government uncertainties."

He said the provincial scheme has received "full approval" from the federal government.

Explaining why he chose to make the announcement in Belleville, he said this community is one of the "most aggressive industrial communities in the province."

"The success of Belleville in the industrial area has largely been due to the $10 million loaned to it by the province over the last eight years, which has lead to the arrival of 35 or more new industries and the creation of 2,000 jobs in the Quinte area," he said.

He said the trade conference would have direct implication on the growth of all industry, including the Belleville firms.

Boards Challenge Bill 22

MONTREAL (CP) — The constitutionality of Quebec's controversial Official Language Act—known as Bill 22—is being challenged before the courts by 10 regional Protestant school boards in the province.

Robert Stock, lawyer for the Quebec Association of Protestant School Boards (QAPSB) which represents the 10 member boards, Wednesday described the action as "the only alternative left."

Mr. Stock said the court challenge—which is beginning with suits in seven separate Quebec Superior Court districts—will likely go all the way to the Supreme Court of Canada and may take years to complete.

The QAPSB lawyer said the suit has been launched because the federal cabinet refused to make its own court challenge or disallow the legislation altogether.

The QAPSB, said Mr. Stock, will contend that the act violates the constitutionally-guaranteed rights of denominational schools under the board's jurisdiction.

In additional to challenging the act, the 10 boards will ask the courts to declare unconstitutional an April 5 regulation of the provincial education minister.

Under this regulation, former education minister Francois Cloutier devised a quota system under which the ratio of English school enrolment in the province could not exceed the ratio of the English-speaking population to the entire Quebec population.

The QAPSB contends that the British North America (BNA) Act granted Protestants the right to manage their own schools, Mr. Stock said.

Plane Hijacked

CANBERRA (AP) — Fifty gunmen hijacked an Australian Air Force transport plane in Portuguese Timor today and forced it to fly to Darwin, the

It said the plane was engaged in Red Cross relief flights from the territory, about 450 miles north of Darwin. Portuguese Timor is to achieve independence in 1978, and two rival independence groups have been fighting for control of the colony.

Portugal's Navy Rejects Regime

LISBON (Reuter) — Portugal's navy and air force will decide today whether to follow the lead of the army, which has overwhelmingly rejected Communist domination of the 17-month revolution.

Following a decision by the army Wednesday "to vote against the nomination of Vasco Goncalves, pro-Communist former premier, as commander of the armed forces, delegates of the left-wing navy met into the early hours.

And representatives of the air force—the smallest branch of the Portuguese armed forces—are due to confer outside Lisbon later today to take a formal stand in the current military and political crisis, touched off by the removal of Gen. Goncalves from the premiership and his appointment as armed forces chief of staff.

The 54-year-old general indicated Wednesday he was not prepared formally to relinquish the leadership of the government.

Army chief, Gen. Carlos Fabiano, and air force head, Gen. Jose Morais de Silva, have both publicly rejected the appointment, and army political delegates rallied round Gen. Goncalves's moderate opponents Wednesday.

Leaders Take Sides On Federal Issue

TORONTO (CP) — Conservative Premier William Davis took a belt at the federal government while Liberal Leader Robert Nixon urged an end to the "phoney war" between Ontario and Ottawa Wednesday as they stumped for the Sept. 18 provincial general election.

NDP Leader Stephen Lewis accused the Davis government of a "shabby election ploy" in a campaign announcement of steps to hold down rent-gouging while announcing a tougher policy of his own.

The Conservatives' language also warmed up as the premier taxed Mr. Nixon with making false allegations about education and Education Minister Tom Wells charged he was "conning" the public on the same subject.

Donald MacDonald, NDP farm critic and former provincial Leader, sketched his party's farm-income stabilization policy and accused the Conservatives of "welshing" on such a program outlined in their March budget.

Gold Accord Sound Say World Economists

WASHINGTON (CP)—Both British and United States delegations to the International Monetary Fund (IMF) annual meeting say they now are convinced no European countries are seriously planning to scupper a major new agreement on the future of gold.

A series of interviews this week with members of both delegations and with leading international economists from the renowned Brookings Institution indicated a clear consensus that the gold accord is a sound one which is highly unlikely to be abused.

Canadian Finance Minister John Turner, head of the IMF interim policy committee which forged the agreement earlier this week, has indicated some cautious reserve about the accord. It basically scraps the official price for dealings among central banks of $42.50 an ounce and values the metal at the free market price, currently about $150.

IMF says this is part of a package designed to phase gold out of the world financial system entirely as a form of official reserves.

Turner said in an interview that one of his concerns is that central banks in Europe now might try to deal in gold among themselves in a way that would effectively revalue the metal and peg it at a new fixed price near the market level. His further thinking on the subject, however, was not completely clarified, possibly because of his extremely delicate position as head of the interim committee.

But a series of subsequent discussions with various officials indicate that most worries about the accord are based on two related possibilities. In the first place, it is theoretically possible that France and some other European countries might trade in the metal in a way that would fix the price, as Turner mentioned.

If this happened, it would likely signal a French-led drive to restore gold to an even more important role in the system by making it the base for setting new fixed values for all currencies—which now float largely in response to market demand.

The second problem troubling some Western countries is just how various states will react to the fact that the value of all gold—including that held in their official reserves—will be dramtically increased, in an accounting sense at least, under the new accord. It only takes effect if there is a subsequent agreement on currency reform at an interim committee meeting in January.

Grant Appreciated

Marmora Recreation Committee has sent a letter of appreciation to the Marmora and Lakes Townships Council for the $400 towards the swimming program at Legion Park.

The letter also stated that the committee welcomed Bob Sanderson as the Townships representatives.

Tenders Opened

A special meeting has been called for Friday, Sept. 12 at 1:30 at Marmora Town Hall for the opening of tenders for the development road between Marmora and Lake Townships and Belmont and Methune Townships.

It is expected that members of the two councils and probably Hastings MPP Clarke Rollins and Peterborough MPP John Turner will be present at the meeting.

Replacement of the Deer River bridge, which collapsed under the weight of a log truck last winter, is expected to be done first.

Construction of the road itself will probably start at Carl McMillen's property, Reeve Ritchie Wells has explained, and it hoped that 1½ miles of the proposed four miles of development can be done this fall.

Wells Strikes Back

TOORONTO (CP) — Education Minister Thomas Wells, accusing Liberal Leader Robert Nixon of "conning" the Ontario public on education policy, Wednesday challenged him to a public debate on the subject.

"The election campaign has brought out instant policies in the Liberal party," he said in a campaign speech for the Sept. 18 provincial general election.

"Mr. Nixon's headline-grabbing is irresponsible," the minister said. "It's pure political opportunism."

Mr. Nixon has contended that the quality of education has deteriorated under the Progressive Conservative government. He has promised to institute a core curriculum.

EMO Co-ordinator Cleans Out Office

By SUSAN McCONNELL,
Staff Reporter

Angus Duffy has been spending the last few days clearing out hundreds of files, maps and plans at the now defunct Emergency Measure Organization (EMO) in Ben Bleecker Auditorium.

Although, says Mr. Duffy, a provincial government inquiry in 1974 found EMO valid, the provincial government withdrew financial support April 7 immediately following the federal government's withdrawal of finances.

Mr. Duffy said Ontario was the only province dropping the EMO services.

The annual $25,000 budget for EMO was paid through financial support of the three levels of government: Federal supplying 75 per cent: Provincial 15 per cent and Municipal 10 per cent.

Mr. Duffy, the co-ordinator of EMO for the last 13 years, said he advised a committee meeting of the Quinte Area EMO executive that the centre should operate at least until the end of the year. "I even offered to work for nothing until something was worked out," he said.

Mr. Duffy said every year people were faced with potential disasters. "Aircraft accidents, floods . . . every year we are concerned with the possibilities' he said.

"The amount of radio-active sources transported through this area would shock some people. And this is increasing every year."

The centre was established to deal with emergencies through the co-ordination of plans under the authority of the municipality. The last district emergency EMO handled was a wind storm in 1973 in Brighton.

Five Waters Club, Tri-County GRS Club and St. John's Ambulance are a few of the organizations EMO has dealt with.

Mr. Duffy, 61, said he plans to put in some time working on the Quinte-Hasting Recreation Trail but meanwhile he's cleaning out the office and preparing the plans for storage at Belleville City Hall.

"You can't throw this stuff out the window because some idiot in the cabinet thinks it's the thing to do," he said.

"Any municipal official has a duty to plan and prepare to cope with disasters and if he's not prepared to do this he shouldn't be in this job."

"I am really concerned when I think about something happening" he said.

Marmora Newsmakers

Not Participating

Marmora and Lake Townships will not be taking advantage of the provincially funded Home Renewal Program.

The decision was made by the Townships Council at its monthly meeting following a rehash of all the problems council would have to face if they decided to proceed with it.

Council's main concern was that the small amount of money involved would make it difficult to approve some five or six applications and not create hard feelings among those who were rejected.

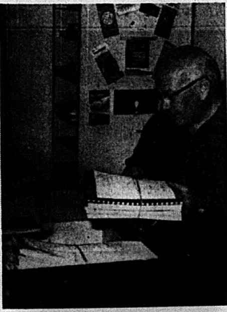
Roadwork Out

Four cottage owners from the east Twin Sister Lakes have been advised by Marmora and Lake Townships Council that it is financially impossible to do any road work there this year.

Deputy-reeve John Wilkes, chairman of roads committee, commented that "If the good Lord spares us we will try to look after it next year. Our road budget is whipped for this year." He suggested that, in the meantime, the cottagers get together and buy some gravel for the road.

Rebate Smaller

Instead of the $4,000 which they had hoped for and thought would be forthcoming from an overlevy by the Hastings County Board of Education in 1970-71, a refund of $2,532. will be the amount Marmora and Lake Townships will receive, the Townships Council has learned.



Clearing Out Desk

Angus Duffy, co-ordinator of the now defunct Emergency Measures Organization, places records and maps in a trunk for storage at Belleville City Hall. The organization closed in August.

OTTAWA — An interim rate structure for utilities in housing for married personnel at military bases and stations in Canada and overseas was unveiled Wednesday by national defence headquarters.

Beginning Dec. 1, the national consumer price index for fuel and utilities will be the basis of the new rate structure. The current index is $2.68 per month for each 100 square feet of living space.

The new rate replaces the fixed $21 monthly charge in effect since 1968 and defence headquarters conceded that the utilities will be higher for most houses. However, it adds that a ceiling of $19.20 per month has been placed on all rate increases.

It is apparent the increase will not approach that amount for most married servicemen. Capt. Don Marsh of defence information services estimated that 85 per cent of the 27,000 government-owned houses on bases and stations in Canada and Germany contain between 900 and 1,100 square feet homes.

For home of 800 square feet, the monthly increase will be only 44 cents. The rate will actually decrease for houses which contain less than 800 square feet of living space.

However, it is clear the new rate structure is only an interim measure. Defence headquarters said a revised policy on charges for quarters for both married and single personnel can be expected next April. Utilities for houses larger than 1,500 will be further considered under the new policy.

Defence headquarters said the fixed $21 monthly charge is considered inequitable both from the various sizes of accommodation occupied by different ranks and in relation to the economic rise in the cost of fuel and utilities.

Nixon Tours Trenton

TRENTON — Liberal leader Robert Nixon told a group of party supporters that local candidates would be swept into office in the September 18 election, following a 25-minute whirlwind tour of the downtown district Wednesday afternoon.

Accompanied by Hugh O'Neil, Liberal candidate for Quinte riding who met Mr. Nixon at CFB Trenton, the provincial opposition party leader simultaneously thanked and cajoled the assembly for their partisan efforts.

Mr. Nixon told the group it was about time for Premier William Davis, the Progressive Conservative leader, to once again promise the riding a new bridge to connect Belleville with Prince Edward County. He said the premier brings up the bridge issue for every election, but that if the Liberals were elected he would work for the bridge for the convenience and safety of area people.

Mr. Nixon mingled with the supporters before boarding a bus for a visit to Belleville.

Back Seat Campaigning

PICTON — A small but enthusiastic group turned out Wednesday afternoon to greet Ontario Liberal leader Robert Nixon who stopped briefly at the committee rooms of Prince Edward-Lennox Liberal candidate Keith MacDonald.

Mr. Nixon headed a motorcade riding with Mr. MacDonald in the rumble seat of an antique car.

The Liberal leader told party supporters Picton has a real housing problem although many may think such shortages of facilities occur only in cities like Toronto.

He said a Liberal government would put responsibility back at the local level. "The bureaucrats at Queen's Park have run your community for too long."

He said Prince Edward-Lennox candidate Keith MacDonald is needed by "your community, our party and the province."

Bancroft Gemboree Gets Boost

By NAN WHITLAW
Staff Correspondent

BANCROFT — Mineral collectors and rockhounds coming to the North Hastings areas in the next years will be treated to freshly developed and maintained collecting sites.

The provincial Ministry of Natural Resources has made a $5,000 grant to Carl Bosiak, owner of the Bancroft Rockhound Gemboree.

According to Mr. Bosiak, "The money will be used to develop and freshen five sites this October."

The sites will be available to collectors in the spring of 1976.

The sites for this year's freshening were chosen by Mr. Bosiak in connection with Jim Trussler, regional geologist for the Ministry.

The concept of provincial funding for the local mineral sites has been advocated by Mr. Bosiak and the local Chamber of Commerce for several years.

"About three years ago I submitted a list of more than one hundred sites that could do with help, but this is the first part of a three-year program now," said Mr. Bosiak.

All the sites chosen by Mr. Bosiak and Mr. Trussler are within the Bancroft collecting area.

According to Mr. Bosiak there is only going to be one problem with the project, "How are we going to keep the professional collectors out?"

Young Grits Get Together

PICTON — Campaign manager for Keith MacDonald, Liberal canlidate in the Prince Edwjrd-Lennox riding, Roy Wight says that a Young Liberals group will be formed here to promote enthusiasm among young voters.

Mr. Wight observed that at an organizational meeting in Napanee this week about 20 young persons turned out in support of the Liberal candidate.

Today a meeting of young Liberals was scheduled.

"We want them to take over a portion of the campaign and run it as they like," observed Mr. Wight.

It is expected the young supporters will distribute literature and posters and assist the campaign in other important areas.

Faraday Pound for Dogs Only

FARADAY TOWNSHIP — North Hastings Municipal dog pound is back again receiving the attentions of local municipalities.

The pound, which was constructed by Bancroft on land donated by Faraday Township and paid for by seven participating municipalities has been a source of contention since it opened its doors on the Monck road in the fall of 1974.

Recently Faraday took over the administration of the pound from Bancroft and has instituted a billing procedure for maintainance of the building from each of the participating municipalites.

Faraday's by-law enforcement officer Vic Bartlett is also acting as pound supervisor.

During a regular meeting Wednesday Faraday council passed a resolution to have representatives of the participating municipalites meet to discuss the future of the pound.

According to Faraday Reeve Jack MacKenzie, he hopes that the meeting will result in the establishment of a board of directors for the dog shelter.

The board of appointees would be empowered to requisition funds and be responsible for the staffing.

Another concern of the Faraday councillors is the abandonment of animals at the pound.

"The pound is for the use of dogs only", said Reeve MacKenzie, "If people keep on abandoning cats and kittens there we're going to have to start prosecuting them."

Davis Lambastes Liberals For Increasing Lending Rate

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — The announcement by the Federal Government, increasing the prime lending rate from 8¼ per cent to nine per cent will not only mean further hardship for small business but is also tantamount to an additional tax on the housing industry, Premier William Davis told a Progressive Conservative rally at the Community Gardens Wednesday night.

Mr. Davis lambasted the federal Liberals for blunting special measure his government has included in its last two budgets to stimulate the housing industry.

"It is as though the more we tried to build homes for the people of Ontario, the more Mr. Nixon's federal friends tried to stop us," he told the enthusiastic audience who waited more than 30 minutes for the premier to arrive.

Mr. Davis said his government will maintain the integrity of the program despite the new interest rate by absorbing the increase.

"Assuming the mortgage rates will now rise by one per cent, treasury officials estimate that this will cost Ontario an additional "14 million over the next five years,'" Mr. Davis said.

Mr. Davis said he also does not agree with the Liberal or the NDP position that the 70,000 employees of the provincial government should be allowed to strike.

"I don't believe any third party should have the right to close down the government, to withhold government benefits and services or to close down the legislature," the premier said, stating the interests of the people come first.

He called Mr. Nixon's policy of allowing some to strike while denying others the privilege was somewhere "between a cave-in and a cop-out."

The premier told the group he was proud of the current educational system that Mr. Nixon has called inferior.

"Compared to a decade ago the drop-out rate has substantially decreased for every grade level at the secondary school level," Mr. Davis said.

Mr. Davis concluded the speech by touching on what he said was the fundamental issues of quality and strength of government.

"The quality of government cannot be measured by the numbers of special interest and factions it pleases. The strength cannot be measured by the instant popularity of its decision," Premier Davis said.

Two Candidates Call For Provincial Sewer Subsidy

TRENTON — The Liberal and New Democratic candidates for the Quinte riding seat have called for provincial subsidies to absorb some of the impact of the rising sewage rates when the new treatment plant opens here in 1978.

Former Belleville Mayor Robin Jeffrey, the Progressive Conservative candidate said Trenton was one of the only towns of its size without a secondary sewage treatment plant and that residents should be expected to absorb the cost for upgrading facilities.

"You can't continue to dump what amounts to raw sewage into the bay." We must consider the enviromental consequences of our actions, she said.

Hugh O'Neil, the liberal candidate and a resident of Trenton, blasted Progressive Conservative spending and said the province should "be channelling some of its to help them reduce the strain on homeowners and renters cost of upgrading services."

Carson McLauchlan, the NDP candidate said it was important for the government to help the small home owners who would be placed in dire financial difficulties by such projects.

Trenton town council announced Tuesday it had accepted provincial figures for the new treatment plant that would raise the cost of sewage to 196 per cent of the water bill. In addition, a levy of 3½ to 4 mills would be charged on the general tax rates.

Former Defence Secretary—Sword Into Plowshare—Weeps Over World Hunger

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Robert McNamara, president of the World Bank, didn't read exactly the same speech his public relations people distributed around the world on the occasion of the annual meeting of his bank.

Rather, the man who directed the vast war machine of the United States under the late President John Kennely and who still slicks back his hair like a Wall Street banker, was moved to emotion and stumbled more than once over the new words he had placed in his speech.

He chose to quote from a poem written by an African president in a book of poems he gave to him a few days ago.

The words on which Robert McNamara paused and which brought tears to his eyes are:

"Who would give back the memory of life

To the man whose hopes are smashed?"

Robert McNamara would not finish a speech, originally overburdened with statistical data, without being moved again at the plight of one billion human beings for whom no major measures of aid assistance and borrowings from international banks have yet done much good.

The changed and newly-committed World Bank president whose struggles of 15 years ago were over all-purpose super jet military aircraft have been replaced by the one for man's survival, was only one of many world figures speaking out over the Labor Day weekend about human deprivation through lack of food, shelter and security of life.

The International Monetary Fund also met in Washington at the same time to discuss new high level financial methods to give relief to developing countries on their balance of payments.

The discussions here were highly specialized, largely devoid of the emotion displayed by the cool and precise McNamara. Other Third World international meetings which are coming in an unprecedented bunch have been more strident.

In Lima, Peru, seat of a socialist-oriented military regime, the foreign ministers of 82 so-called non-aligned countries set down again in tough words the demands of developing countries.

Among them were very hard-line nations like the African Republic of Libya, the Socialist Democracy of Algeria, the Palestine Liberation Organization, as invited conference delegates, who want Israel removed from the United Nations.

And in that body on Labor Day, the seventh special session of the General Assembly since the UN was founded in April, 1945 has opened again to discuss Third World problems.

The major event at the UN opening was Henry Kissinger's speech on the United States position relative to Third World's pressing problems, but read by Daniel Moynihan, U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations and defined as "realistic . . . also compassionate."

The fear running through many delegations opposed completely to any motion to expel Israel from the United Nations is that such a move will be made by the many ideologically-determined Arab, African and even Asian enemies of Israel to disrupt the larger more complex concern of balancing out the world's resources.

But we must hope that such bitter political divisions do not rip into the vital discussion of world poverty and hunger.

Robert McNamara has set the tone not only with his words, but in the new soft loan arrangements of his huge bank, among whose membess are most of the developing nations which need them.

Snakes Alive!

St. Patrick is said to have banished the snakes from Ireland. Most other countries of temperate climate are free of them, and so too is Ontario save for rattlers whose habitat is the Georgian Bay area.

If memory serves, these reptiles have been responsible for some fatalities over the years, but not many. By and large people can go about their business in the Ontario wilderness without worrying on this score at least. But what about the proposal for a reptile breeding centre in Athol township across the bay?

Visions of some of the critters running loose must be animating opponents of the scheme — and there are not a few.

So what to do? The building, a cement structure, surely would be secure enough. And the purpose, as a supplier of zoological institutions and experimental work at the University of Toronto, worthy enough too. Would its establishment devalue nearby homes, as some suggest? Or would it, properly supervised, fade quickly as a matter of contention?

As a commercial enterprise, or one of value to university research, it certainly is one of the more unusual ones to come this way. Like another one that was mooted in Prince Edward though — deer hunting with bow and arrow — it has sparked some controversy.

Legend in His Time

Long before the peacemaker, Kissinger, and the terrorist, Arafat — and his revolutionary blood brothers near and far — there was . . . de Valera.

Eamon de Valera, a prime mover in the Easter Rebellion in Dublin in 1916, who was condemned to death then by the British but as an American-born, was set free.

Like other republican Irishmen overshadowed and outlived by this man who for many years was prime minister and subsequently president, de Valera sought unification of his Irish Free State, as it was known initially, then the Republic of Ireland, or Eire, with Northern Ireland.

But even as he was buried, the mellowness of character that grew with the years, (and with the events of 1916 receding still farther into the past) was not paralleled by affairs in the recalcitrant north. There, the "Shadow of the Gunman" which playwright J. M. Synge wrote of long ago still haunts that tragic region.

The observer of these contrasting events, heavy with irony and splashed with the blood of warriors and innocents alike, has to stop and think for a moment just how long de Valera was around.

A legend in his own lifetime, he was 92 when he died. "Dev," as he was known, even with grudging admiration, by friend and foe alike. Or as a cartoon in Punch magazine many years ago, aptly characterized him: "The Spanish onion in the Irish stew," a reference to the fact he was Spanish on his father's side.

Ocean Sagas Recalled

Buried treasure has long been a source of fascination. Some men climb mountains, others go in search of treasure.

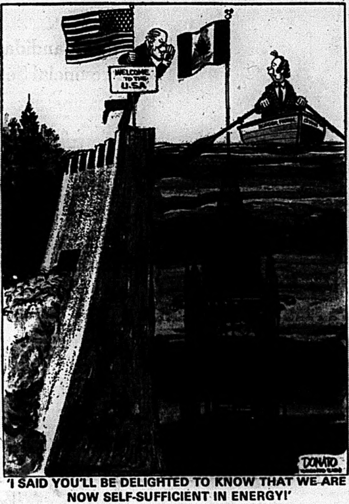
Men like the Belgian diver, Robert Stenuit, who in 1968 headed a team which came upon the treasure of the Spanish Armada vessel, Girona. It had lain on the seabed off the coast of County Antrim, Northern Ireland, since 1588.

Then in 1970 Australian searchers made some exciting finds on board the sunken Batavia, a Dutch ship which foundered off the west coast of the island continent in 1629.

Now comes word of the finding of an 18th century British warship wrecked off the south of England in 1798, with a load of ancient pottery and wounded soldiers. The pottery includes a unique and priceless collection of Etruscan vases, which are more [illegible]00 years old.

What about Canadian waters? There have been discoveries off the Maritimes and it will be recalled that a former Belleville resident, Swiss-born Ed Imhoff, once considered probing the remains of seven vessels of the fleet of Admiral Hovenden Walker which foundered in the St. Lawrence. Mr. Imhoff heads a team called the 1711 Archaeological Society (1711 was the year the ships were lost) but rather than the ship probe, for the past few years they have undertaken underwater archaeological expeditions in the French river area of Ontario. Their finds have included Indian artifacts and other relics.

Adventure still is to be found — in enterprises such as this, and with rewards that are as surprising as they are of historical value.



'I SAID YOU'LL BE DELIGHTED TO KNOW THAT WE ARE NOW SELF-SUFFICIENT IN ENERGY!'

Our Fat-cat Bureaucracy Paid More than Americans

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — As you'll recall, Prime Minister Trudeau went on vacation leaving Canadians with the dire warning that they were headed for financial disaster.

He blamed them for putting themselves in peril.

He shrugged off the responsibility as leader, placing the onus on the led.

Oh sure, he muttered again — as he has for years — about the "initiatives" of what he keeps calling his "contingency plan" to cope with the emergency.

But he wasn't using the plan.

In fact, he wasn't even hinting what it was.

But it was all our fault.

With our greedy, graspingly outrageous wage and salary demands, we were pricing ourselves out of the world's competitive markets and headed for economic chaos.

He forgot to mention who has been leading the wage and salary parade.

So who has?

The federal government itself.

And who's in charge, who is the man at the top, with the power to stop it?

Who else?

The big point the government, the cabinet, and the PM himself have been making is that we have so overpriced ourselves that we are out in front even of the wealthy Americans.

And so we are going to be in big trouble in our most-important-by-far market.

Funny thing is, that the government's own staff has been heading the high pay parade.

We the taxpayers — through the great good generosity of the government — ,are paying our senior civil servants not quite double the going rate in the public service in Washington.

Here the top deputies are going to be making $66,000.

In Washington, "supergrade public servants," as they're called there, the top career people, 14,000 of them, make but $36,000.

In Ottawa we have perhaps 1,000 "supergraders," members of what the public service commission calls "senior executives."

And their salary range is between $30,000 and $60,000 with the ceiling due for a lifting to the new $66,000 level.

Catch is, the government's very own salary advisory committee complained just the other day that, as it was phrased, "more than 58 per cent of the executives are in the top 40 per cent salary range."

Which has to mean that even more than 58 per cent of them are above the top-rated American public service executive pegged at $36,000.

Washington puts a "freeze" on its public service salaries back in 1971, and the ice is only now starting to melt.

Under a new law, which President Ford supported, American civil servants in October are to begin receiving annual "comparability pay adjustments," intended, as it is explained, "to bring federal salaries in line with those in the private sector."

Those 14,600 "supergraders" at the top $36,000 will move to $38,000.

But in Washington — and in some states of the Union where the Prime Minister warns we are pricing ourselves out of business — there are some questions about paying even a senior bureaucrat $38,00.

As Senator William Brock, a Republican from Tennessee, has been quoted as saying:

"It's going to be hard for me to tell the good people of Tennessee that they have to pay more taxes to give a senior civil service executive $38,000 a year No one down there makes that kind of money."

But they do in Ottawa, Senator Brock, and a good deal more than $38,000, as much, for a few of them, as $60,000.

But the Prime Minister has said nothing about that.

Nor about the doubling of the staff of the public service in less than 10 years, or the 100 per cent increase in the number of those top-paid senior bureaucrats.

Maybe he didn't mention it, because if he had, we wouldn't be blamed for pricing ourselves out of the market — but he and his government might.

Back-to-the-Basics of Education Facet of Robert Nixon's Campaign

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — The best political issue that has been brought up in this campaign almost certainly has been Bob Nixon's pledge to get back to the basics in education.

This is an impression that can be taken not only from one's own reaction but from comments by voters.

Personally, I know that when I talk election with people, this is the first topic that is put forward with most of them.

People are disillusioned with their children coming out of elementary and secondary school not being able to spell or do simple mathematics.

And what makes the point politically powerful is that it is close to home and is a concern of the whole spectrum of the community from the working man to the millionaire.

Nixon has some potent ammunition.

Perhaps the most potent comes from teachers through a recent survey by the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation.

It reportedly found that 79 per cent of the teachers surveyed felt student work habits had deteriorated over the past five years.

Some 58 per cent felt that the ministry's guidelines for teachers were too vague.

And 92 per cent believe students should be required to take certain basic courses.

Education Minister Tom Wells has made a rebuttal.

His major point was a claim that Nixon would spend $790 million more a year on education.

Then he went into statistics.

Our high schools, he said, now enrol 80 per cent of 15 to 19 year olds while back in the 50s it was just 40 per cent.

University enrolment has tripled in the past 10 years.

The ministry insists on basic skills being stressed, etc.

But Nixon, in turn, knocked these down.

For one thing there is nothing in the Liberal policy statement which would appreciably increase education spending.

Then the leader pointed out that in 1970 29 per cent of all students entering high school dropped out by Grade 12 and 62 per cent by grade 13.

Three years later these percentages had increased to 37 per cent and 69 per cent he said.

He claimed that students, like their parents, are losing confidence in their system.

There certainly is scope for some debate on just where we stand on education.

But it is likely to have little impact on parents (and employers) who see our youth emerging from the system not able to spell.

GNP Is Up Fractionally

Brockville Recorder and Times

The miniscule improvement in the Gross National Product, three-tenths of one per cent, is being hailed as an indication that the recession-depression is showing signs of breaking. Studies had previously indicated that this would happen as soon, or shortly after, the recession in the United States started to wind down. The recession is showing signs of declining in the U.S. this summer but productivity is improving at a much slower pace than in the recovery period of past recessions. This could be ominous.

Studies in the United States show there are shortages of industrial chemicals, plastics, energy supplies, steel and other basic materials. These shortages are considered so serious that it is expected that unemployment will continue at a high level for a much longer period than usual during an economic upturn. They could also lead to a continuation of the sluggish economic growth apparent the past year and a renewal of blistering inflation. While the situation may not have a Canadian application, it is certain that Canada's prosperity and continued economic growth depend to an overwhelming extent on U.S. prosperity.

Canada's Forest Industry and Asian Neighbors Hit by Recession in Japan

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

It's said that when Japan sneezes, Asia catches pneumonia.

That seems to be borne out by the current recession—the worst that postwar Japan has experienced.

Because of the business slowdown, Japan has been reducing its imports from the so-called developing countries of non-Communist Asia. Japan takes one-third of the exports of those countries, and more in the case of Korea.

Canada, as a Pacific nation, also depends heavily on trade with Japan. Our forest industries have been feeling the pinch of the Japanese recession acutely.

Other major sources of Japanese raw materials are Indonesia, Thailand, Malaysia and the Philippines. All have been hit hard by the cutbacks in Japanese orders and the worldwide slump in commodity prices.

Indonesia, for example, suffered a 20 per cent drop during the January-June period in earnings from its exports to Japan—which represent more than half of its foreign trade.

Hong Kong and Singapore, which depend heavily on the export of manufactured goods rather than raw materials, have been hit not only by reductions in Japanese purchases but, more broadly, by the worldwide recession.

A recession in Japan is not necessarily the same thing as a recession in Canada.

Consider unemployment, for example: The current jobless rate of 1.7 per cent of the Japanese labor force (less than a quarter of the Canadian rate) is considered excessive.

Thousands of this year's graduating students, after having been recruited by major Japanese companies, were told to stay home (at 60 per cent of their salary) rather than to start work this spring.

Japanese recessions are different in another respect as well: Government, labor and industry actually work together to correct the problem.

The government has reduced its spending—in Canada, that's an impossible dream—and introduced a variety of financial controls and fiscal measures to weaken the yen and encourage industrial production.

Labor, rather than demanding year-to-year wage increases of 30, 60 or 90 per cent, has agreed to no more than 15 per cent a year.

The maximum increase is paid only in rare instances where productivity improvements were exceptionally great.

Less commendable are Japanese plans for the discouragement of imports (described as "practical guidance offered to importers" in order to avoid "an uncontrolled, disorderly rise in imports."

In the course of its postwar recovery, Japan stalled for many years before opening its doors to foreign goods and foreign capital.

The trade-policy measures proposed in late July by the Trade Conference, an advisory body to the prime minister, would be another victory for Japan's protectionist forces if they are implemented.

But although not all of Japan's anti-recessionary measures are the acts of a good neighbor and a considerate trading partner, they appear to be doing the job they were designed to do.

Japan's real gross national product declined nearly two per cent in 1974. This year, it will probably show a net growth of between one and two per cent.

The greatest concern now must be whether the economies of the developing non-Communist countries of Asia have been weakened (by the loss of Japanese orders) to such an extent that they will be politically vulnerable to the ambitions of the Communist imperialists of Hanoi and Peking.

Fall Program Keeps 'Y' Busy

By SUSAN McCONNELL
Staff Reporter

The YMCA has just finished winding up its summer season only to get busy for fall. And this year there's something for everyone in the family at convenient hours.

An immense clean-up program now underway will finish before Sept. 15, the beginning of classes, although you can register now.

The regular swim and exercise program is offered for all ages but this year a new class has been organized for 'minnows'—children who are advanced in swimming and ready to perfect their water knowledge.

The nursery school already has a waiting list of seven and all children participate in gym and once a week, in the pool.

An addition to the ladies class of fitness and swimming is an aquabics class-water exercise offered in the afternoons.

And for the first time men can take part in the women's successful yoga class Wednesday from 7 p.m. until 8:30.

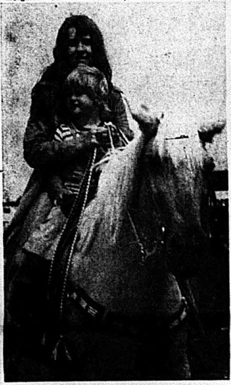
A new program designed for fiqure improvement and fitness for overweight people wil be held in the swimming pool. However, the ability to swim is not a necessity. This class is scheduled for Tuesdays from 7:30 p.m. until 8.

Besides these special programs the 'Y' still offers its family swim on Wednesdays and swim instructions and special rates for families.

Marmora Arena Gets Grant

A cheque for $6,593 towards the restoration of the Marmora arena was presented to Reeve Jack Reynolds by Hastings MPP Clarke Rollins on behalf of the Ontario Government during the opening ceremonies of the Marmora Fall Fair on Labor Day.

The proceeds of the Wintario Lottery draws have been designated by the Ontario Government to be used for such things as the restoration or building of recreation facilities throughout the Province.



Goldie Big Hit

Goldie the pony was one of the featured attractions for kids of all ages at the recent Stirling Fair. Here Dawn Pronson and her two-year-old brother David take a saunter aboard Goldie.

Fall Cleaning

Dave Moon, 20, 228A Pine St., has been busy the last few days scrubbing the inside of the swimming pool at the YMCA. Preparations at the 'Y' are underway for the fall season which begins Sept. 15.

New Bridge Possible

MARMORA — A new bridge at the Twin Sister Lakes in Marmora Township next year is a possibility.

Charles Young and Henry McFarlane, president and vice-president of the newly formed Twin Sister Lakes Ratepayers Association, were advised of this at the last Marmora and Lake Townships Council meeting.

Reeve Ritchie Wells revealed that he and Deputy-reeve John Wilkes had visited the bridge site Monday, August 25 with Clarke Rollins, Hastings-Peterborough MPP, and Lloyd Nugent, P. Engineer from the Kingston office of the Ministry of Transportation and Communications.

"The decision taken at that meeting" Mr. Wells said "was that it was too late to undertake the project this year but it was suggested that council make application for supplementary monies next year".

At Mr. Wells suggestion, council decided to ask the ministry to undertake an engineering study of the bridge as soon as possible so that an early start can be made next year.

Mr. Young said the purpose of the Ratepayers Association was not to "twist council's arm in any way" but merely to act in an advisory capacity. He thanked council for the work that had been done recently on the road into the west lake. Mr. Young asked that, when a bridge is built, that it be high enough to allow boats to go from one lake to the other.

Registrants Flood Loyalist

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

More than 1,000 post secondary students are beginning to flood Loyalist College registration counters this week in preparation for Sept. 8 classes.

Jim Hemsley, college registrar, said during an interview Wednesday, "it's extremely busy down here. We're hopping like mad to keep up with the students."

College predictions indicate approximately 1,025 students will be enrolling at the institute of applied arts and technology, the bulk of these registrations in progress this week. This total — if realized — marks a moderate increase over last year's enrollment of 949.

"We won't likely know exactly what our student population will be until late September when all registrations have been completed," said Mr. Hemsley. Registration began Tuesday and concludes today.

"There will be a number of late-comers throughout the month of September who for one reason or another could not make the regular registration dates," the registrar said.

Mr. Hensley said the 50 staff members working on registration processed 360 students Tuesday.

He said the enrolment is "fairly heavy in communication arts and diploma nursing courses," and that technology courses were about the same as last year.

Church to Burn Bond

First Pentecostal Church has invited Rev. Allan L. Ellis former pastor of the Church here, to return for a bond burning ceremony.

Rev. Ellis arranged for the sale of bonds so that the present church at 54 North Front Street could be built. Many purchasers gifted their bonds and the others have now been repaid.

Two years ago the church was covered with aluminum siding. At the present time the steeple is being repainted and the foyer and main auditorium are being carpeted. An electric organ has just been purchased.

Tourists and visitors from the United States often comment on the Colonial style architecture. With the planning of climbing roses in early spring it is hoped that the church will help make Belleville beautiful.

The bond burning ceremony is to take place at 2:30 Sunday, September 14. The "New Life Singers" from Hamilton will be providing inspirational singing. Many ministers as well as representatives from the City of Belleville are expected for the occasion.

Oil Export Tax Jumps 25 Cents

OTTAWA (CP) — The export tax on partially-processed crude oil shipped to the United States has been increased by 25 cents to $3.45 a barrel for September, the National Energy Board announced Wednesday.

The board also said the export charge on other refined patroleum products will remain unchanged for the month at $3.50 a barrel for gasoline, $3.25 for light fuel oil and $1.75 for heavy oils.

At the same time, a board spokesman said the tax on exports of crude oil in October will remain at the September level of $3.45 a barrel for light crude—high quality crude oil—and $2.95 for heavy crude oil.

The change in the tax on partially-processed oil, sent to the U.S. for further refining, brings it up to the level of the light crude oil charges, the spokesman said.

Toronto TV Station Questioned on Coverage

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario commission on election contributions and expenses has sent notices to Toronto TV station CFTO and the Civil Service Association od Ontario saying their actions during the current provincial election campaign are being watched in relation to Ontario's new Election Expenses Act.

CFTO has been attempting to stage a series of two-man debates among the three major political party leaders. In the first one last Saturday, NDP Leader Stephen Lewis refused to participate because reporters were not admitted to the studio, and Liberal Leader Robert Nixon went on alone.

Soviet Union Takes Lead In World's Oil Production

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union became the world's leading oil-producer in 1974, surpassing the United States for the first time, the U.S. Bureau of Mines noted Wednesday in a summary of petroleum trends.

The bureau said Soviet production of crude oil and field condensate, a related product, increased nine per cent to 3.4 billion barrels last year.

Meanwhile, U.S. production decreased five per cent to 3.2 billion barrels.

Petroleum demand was dampened by the 1973-74 Arab oil embargo and by steep increases in world oil prices.

Worldwide oil production in 1974 was nearly the same as in 1973 at 20.5 billion barrels, an increase of only 100 million barrels over the previous year.

The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), whose members include the Arab oil-producing countries which interrupted their deliveries to bring pressure on Israel, saw their annual production slip from 11.3 billion barrels in 1973 to 11.2 billion in 1974.

Europe and Japan, reacting to the embargo and higher prices, substantially reduced their oil imports in 1974.

Blackouts May Result In Cutbacks

DEEP RIVER, Ont. (CP) — Ontario Energy Minister Dennis Timbrell says Stephen Lewis's pledge to cut Ontario Hydro spending might leave the province facing power blackouts because of a shortage of electric generating potential.

Speaking Wednesday to an election rally for Bob Cotnam, Renfrew North Conservative candidate, the energy minister took issue with a number of the Ontario NDP leader's recent statements.

Lewis Is Relaxed Second Time Around

TORONTO (CP) — The change in Stephen Lewis since the last Ontario election shows in a poster pinned up at New Democratic Party rallies around the province.

Reflective, eyes cast down, the 37-year-old leader stands with an arm around his 10-year-old doughter Ilana.

The picture, in muted brown tones, contrasts sharply with the impatient, finger-jabbing portrait presented to the voters in his first caempaign as lader four years ago.

The NDP went into that campaign with high hopes of at least displacing the Liberals as Ontario's official Opposition. They fell one seat short, electing 19 members to the Liberals' 20, while the remaining 78 seats went to the Progressive Conservatives.

This time, Mr. Lewis said in a campaign interview, he feels much less pressure.

In 1971, he said, he was new on the job, over-anxious, intense and weak in his knowledge of the province.

His aides churned out press releases almost every time he opened his mouth. This time only one is planned—the text of the formal NDP platform.

The message is the same, stressing better social programs and higher corporate taxes. But the leader's rhetoric is softer. He smiles more, listens more and worries less.

Mr. Lewis said the change is a natural outgrowth of four years' leadership experience and not a conscious attempt to manipulate the media.

Aides say he has moved out of the shadow of his father, David, who stepped down in July as national NDP leader following his defeat in last year's federal election. But father and son still confer several times a week by telephone. "David's influence is absolutely central," Stephen said.

His voice is less riveting than that of his father, who was rated by many as the most eloquent MP in the Commons. But there are gestures, turns of phrase and mannerisms that evoke the elder Lewis's platform style.

Stephen said his more relaxed leadership also reflects a happier personal life.

"There were problems . . . balancing politics and family life. The low point was in the fall and winter of 1972."

His wife Michele, an associate editor with Chatelaine magazine took charge, he said.

"She just said enough is enough. Either the family thing gets sorted out or it just can't work."

He began taking the children with him on his travels—Ilane, his son Avi, 8, and Jenny, 5. They like it and he finds them good company.

While he is enjoying the campaign far more than four years ago, there are no predictions.

"I learned a long time ago that you either win or lose and I'm prepared to cope with either. I'm confident. I think we'll do well. Allow me, for the moment, my optimism."

Mr. Lewis, who won his Scarborough West constituency by a scant 90 votes last time, faces a formidable Conservative opponent in Syd Brown, president of the Ontario Police Association. Redistribution has brought some territorial changes to the riding.

Nova Scotia Uses Portable Swimming Pool

HALIFAX (CP) — The Nova Scotia recreation department wants to teach swimming to as many children as it can, but not every community in Nova Scotia has a swimming pool.

Undeterred, the department has found a solution: a portable pool.

In a pilot project, the department has bought an above-ground swimming pool and is moving it from town to town, staying in each place two to three weeks at a time.

About 500 children have received instruction at Canning and Annapolis Royal and 500 more are awaiting instruction at Salmon River and Kingston.

Even cold weather won't halt the program. When winter comes the department will experiment with setting up the pool in school basements or other indoors locations.

Making New Start Not Easy for Mom

"'Where are my socks?"

'Brush your hair before you go out that door!"

" Mom, make Kenny promise not to follow me all the way to school. He's old enough to go by himself. Please?"

"'Eat that cereal and finish that milk or you're not going anywhere!"

And then, finally, they're all out the door at last, and it's 8:30 in the morning and the house is quiet for the first time in two months. You sink into a chair at the kitchen table with relief. School has started again.

Sure, it's great having the kids around all summer, and you've enjoyed spending time with them, watching them grow. But now the time you've been waiting for has come.

Time for yourself. Precious hours when there is no one at home but you. You plug in the kettle for a cup of coffee as you clear away the remains of the hectic, excitable breakfast that gets eaten at the brink of every school year. You vow to yourself that this fall is going to be different.

Just like the kids, starting out neatly in their notebooks at the beginning of term, you're going to get organized this year.

You're going to be more than "'just a housewife".

Oh, how you hate that phrase. Where did it come from, anyway? From radical women who scorn traditional roles? Or from the distinction men have made between women who "'work" and women who "'stay home"?

Just because there are women who combine jobs outside the house with the work that needs to be done in it, doesn't mean that homemaking is a second-rate job. Nothing makes you more angry than people who put you down simply because you're not earning money for what you do.

But, to be perfectly honest, you feel you're reaching a point where the daily upkeep of rooms and clothes and the making of meals are beginning to take less time, less effort, and are less satisfying than they were 10 years ago.

There's not the same feeling of achievement that there once was, even though your husband and children are grateful and give you all the praise you need.

You're finding an unanswered question nagging in the back of your mind at the end of a busy day: Who would I be without my family?

Everywhere you turn these days you seem to come across some article, some program, some person, talking about "'women's roles" and "'identity problems", and even though you think much of it is nonsense, it still kicks about in your mind as you do up the breakfast dishes. Whoever you are, you know you're much more than a dishwasher. But how often do you make time to explore and express who you are?

So this year, it's going to be different. This year at least part of your day will be devoted to whatever you want to do. And as you ponder the possibilities, you give the kitchen floor a quick once-over with the sponge mop, and straighten up the counters and cupboards and then, you look at the clock.

An hour has gone by, and you have a clean kitchen all right, but you're no farther ahead than you were. You've fallen into the old habits again.

The solution?

Let those dishes lie! And settle on some course of action.

You don't have to take a typing course, or learn 17 macrame knots or swim endless lengths of the YMCA pool. You don't have to volunteer to visit shut-ins or be a women's group tea convener. You don't need to sell door-to-door jewelry or write a novel or grow African violets.

But you need to follow your instincts towards that desire to spend time on yourself. You may not use it in a way that achieves recognition from the outside world. You may not even have anything to 'show" for it, like handicrafts or refinished furniture.

But time is moving on. The kids'll be home for lunch before you know it. And what have you done with your morning?

They'll be grown up and away from home in a wink of an eye.

And who will you be then?

Lois McMechan was hostess to the Melrose Women's Institute who met at her home Wednesday evening to finalize plans for a float they have in the Shannonville Fair.

Mr. and Mrs. Gary Allen Thompson

Thompson — Anderson

Bridge St. United Church was the scene of the early August wedding of Wendy Mae Anderson and Gary Allen Thompson.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred E. Anderson Ameliasburg; the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Borden Thompson, Carrying Place.

Rev. George K. Ward officiated at the afternoon ceremoney.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of nylon sheer over sharkskin with a high neckline. Her shoulder length four-tier veil was caught in a band of lace and seed pearls and she carried a cascade of yellow sweetheart roses with baby's breath.

Marie Anderson, the bride's sister, wore a mint green gown and carried mums and daisies. Bridesmaids Cheryl Bonter, Margaret Cairns and Cathy Thompson, the groom's sister, wore ice orange gowns.

Teresa-Lynn Woodcock was flower girl and carried a basket of white daisies; Robert Thompson, the groom's nephew, was ring bearer.

Bruce McDonald, groomsman, was assisted by ushers Bob Anderson, Ron Anderson, the bride's brothers, and Steve Doxtator.

A dinner and dance was held at the Elk's Lodge, Belleville.

The couple will reside in Belleville.

'Getting Used to Being Back'

Back to school. It's always the same. A little sorrow that the summer's over, but a little relief as well. A little fear that the teachers will be too tough and the work too hard, but a little delight to be back in the midst of friends again.

What's the best and the worst of the return to the classroom this year? We asked a few Belleville school-goers their views

"Well, the worst thing about being back is all the work," says Chris Chapelle, a Grade 6 student at St. Michael's Academy. "We had five boards of arithmetic this morning, a lot of subtraction and addition. We're right back at work already."

"Oh, I'm really glad to be back at school," says Angela Parent, Grade 10 student at Belleville Collegiate Institute. "By the end of the summer there's nothing to do. I wasn't bored exactly, but I like the change. Of course, this good feeling lasts about three days. And then you realize where you are!"

"I like everything about school," says Andrew Rushlow, 5, who begins his second session of kindergarten at Prince Charles School this fall. "I like the store, and the house, and the post office, and the sand box, and the records. I even like the naps."

"But the best thing is getting back and meeting your friends again," says Paul Milligan, Grade 5 student walking home with Chris after a busy morning. "It's just great after the holiday to see everybody again, and that makes up for the work."

"This is really different from being at Queen Elizabeth School," says new BCI student Robin Horslen, who's just started Grade 9. "I like it, too. I like having my own locker and meeting all the new people. I've already met a lot of new friends. But the worst part about being back is that you don't have as much time to yourself."

These Abandoned Babies Could Have Been Loved

Dear Ann Landers: Today in the newspaper I read two heartbreaking articles—both were about Kentucky mothers (in different cities) who abandoned their newborn babies and left them to die, one in a garbage can, the other in a plastic bag beside the roadway. I am sure such incidents occur every day all over the United States.

We all realize the problems of a single girl who tries to raise a child alone, but they certainly don't justify attempted murder.

My husband and I have been trying for several years to adopt a child. We've had several foster children in our home and loved them all dearly. If one of the Kentucky mothers had given us her child we would have been in seventh heaven.

Please, Ann, you reach millions. Tell women who don't want their babies to take them to an agency where they will be assured of a good life with a family who will love them.—Blue Grass Reader

Dear Friend: Thank you for giving me an opportunity to say something again.

Open Plea To All Pregnant Women Who Don't Want To (Or Cannot) Keep Your Babies: Please, for the love of God, for your own peace of mind, for the sake of the child and for the thousands of couples who desperately want a child—contact a family service agency and let them know.

You will receive prenatal care, counseling, and be given complete assurance that your child will be placed in a home where he will receive infinite love and the start in life he deserves.

Dear Ann Landers: A friend of mine gets plastered four or five evenings a week—and I mean really bombed out of his head. He insists he is not alcoholic because he never touches anything but white wine.

I say if a person gets stiff that often he has a severe drinking problem. Will you please deal with this in your column? Thanks in advance—Sad On The Sidelines

Dear Sad: Anyone who gets bombed out of his mind four or five evenings a week is alcoholic no matter what he drinks. It can be beer, "cough' medicine," rot-gut gin or the most expensive champagne.

Many socially elite characters deceive themselves into thinking they are not problem drinkers because they drink only wine, which is anywhere from 12 per cent to 18 per cent alcohol. (Most whiskeys are about 50 per cent.) But if they drink until they are stinko four or five evenings a week, they are just as addicted as the wino who is lying in the gutter.

Dear Ann Landers: Please answer soon because the man I was married to for 23 years, the father of my grown children, may die any day now.

We have been divorced for 33 years, which seems like a lifetime—and it is. Bill remarried almost immediately after our divorce. We rarely saw each other after that, and then only by accident. He was always very civil and so was I. The children have kept in touch with their dad through the years and that's as it should be.

My question: Should I attend the funeral? Would it be in poor taste? I need your counsel—Split In '42

Dear Friend: The man was the father of your children and a part of your life for 23 years. By all means attend the funeral and pay your last respects.

Of course you would not sit with the family nor would it be necessary to make your presence known to them. But do go, dear. You'll be glad you did—and so will your children.

McMaster Program Welcomes Drop-outs to Medical School

HAMILTON (CP) — McMaster University has started a new program that will allow some persons who might not have completed high school to be admitted to medical school.

Dr. George Sweeney, chairman of a committee studying the medical program, said that to be eligible, a student must be at least 24 years old, have made an "exceptional contribution to society," and take four university extension courses or the equivalent in the year before admission to medical school.

Dr. Sweeney said the program, expected to begin in the 1977-78 academic year, will be limited in the first year to no more than five students who live in the Hamilton health region or the northwestern Ontario health region in the Thunder Bay area.

"There are probably many who chose not to go on to university, or even dropped out of high school, who have done well in life and decided they would like to enter professional training," he said. "Medicine is pretty well closed to them.

"We feel we should . . . serve those with a burning desire to do something, who may not have made all the right choices in the past."

A Family of Gymnasts

TORONTO (CP) — Mr. and Mrs. Ross McDonnell have six daughters, and five are gymnasts. Of the five, three hold international and national medals from competition and two are eagerly eyeing the 1976 Olympic Games in Montreal where they hope to compete for Canada.

Teresa, 21, and Nancy, 20, are members of the Winstonettes Gymnastic Club. In the McDonnell family, an older married daughter, Anne Marie, 30, was the first to compete in the sport.

She was followed by her sister Susan, 27, who won the Canadian championship in gymnastics in 1967. She also won the gold medal for the uneven bar event at the Pan-American Games in Winnipeg that year.

Both Teresa and Nancy have won high-level gymnastic competitions. Teresa, then only 13, was top athlete at the Canadian winter games, held in Quebec city in 1967—the same year Susan won the Pan-Am gold medal. Teresa was the youngest competitor at the Winter Games that year and won five gold medals for gymnastic events.

Nancy, the other possible Olympic contender in the McDonnell family, won the Pre-World Championship gold medal for vaulting in Bulgaria in 1973. And she won it, despite her concern for her sister Teresa who took a bad fall in the same competitions and broke her neck.

It took Teresa six months to recover from the psychologically bad effects of the fall and to get back into the swing of her former medal-winning style.

Not only has the first generation in the McDonnell family established a remarkable record of achievement in gymnastics, but the second generation is preparing to carry on the tradition.

Aimee Mask, 5, (Susan's daughter) and Cheryl McDonnel—a son's daughter who is 10 are training to become gymnasts.

Canadian women gymnasts are placed 11th in the world.

Participate in A Parts Replacement Plan

It won't be long before the weather begins to get chilly and you'll be in need of your furnace. The most economical furnace is a clean furnace and one that's in good repair. A good way to always be on top of any furnace problem is to buy a Parts Replacement Plan from Moira-Schuster Fuels, 17 S. Pinnacle St. The Parts Replacement Plan costs $39.60 a year and covers your furnace cleaning once a year. You'll also find it handy should your furnace need repairs because it covers the cost of replacing all parts of the oil burner and related controls, plus costly labor charges. Should your furnace be getting old, it might be worth your while checking into Moira-Schuster furnace re placement plan. They are the Home Comfort People.

One Stop for All Your Electrical Needs

Many people find that their only day to shop is Saturday. During the summer it's a little difficult when some stores close on Saturday so that their staff can also enjoy the summer fun and sun. However, now that we're into the fall the stores are also getting back to normal. Starting September 6, Ruddy Electric Consumer Division will be open on Saturday for your shopping convenience. You'll be able to buy many of your electrical needs in the one store. They carry a large stock of all household fixtures for any room in the house and also outdoor lights. You'll find a complete line of Moffat appliances or even a sauna kit if you're planning one for your home. Stop in at 291 Coleman St. today for all your needs in fixtures or appliances.

Keep Your Glasses in Style

New fall styles and colors in optic frames are now available at Trenton Optical, 54 Bridge St. E. The new trend seems to be in large thin frames and you'll find them very colorful. In plastic frames you'll even find attractive, mottled, mixed colors. However, the frames with a future are the optyl frames. These frames look like plastic but were developed expressly for glasses. Where as plastic has a lifespan of 2 to 3 years because it becomes brittle and cracks and tends to fade, the optyl frames are lighter and stronger and they hold the color. An increasing number of people are turning to optyl frames because of their resilience and attractive appearance. Check Trenton Optical today. You'll find they have a wide selection of frames and their prices can't be beaten.

Work Training Program Tackles Three R's

TRURO, N.S. (CP) — It has been established fact down through the years that every student who goes to school will learn how to read, write, add and subtract with ease.

But in the last few decades teachers have discovered that, through various difficulties, many students were not grasping the basic fundamentals as quickly as others.

Educationists decided in Truro, 11 years ago, that this failure to grasp the three Rs could lead to a significant number of dropouts. Bearing this fact in mind, Boyd Barteaux, then supervisor of the Truro schools, and Gerald Quigly, school board chairman, initiated a work-training program that is at present part of the special education program of the Colchester-East Hants Amalgamated Schools.

Sadie Wood, program co-ordinator, said that the aim of the special education program was to provide the students an opportunity to receive individually the attention needed to assure satisfactory education growth.

"More than the usual time is spent in learning how to use reading, mathematics and social studies, as well as gaining some practical application of these subjects in a school shop, or in work experience in the community."

More than 300 students have been registered at the centre, said Mrs. Wood, and many of them have gone on to a higher education level, successfully passed courses at the vocational school or have gone directly into the work force after working part-time in the community while attending classes.

"This co-operation with business firms willing to assist our young people has proven to be of great help to each participant in learning practical skills in normal situations," she said.

Many former students are working and living in society and no program could receive more visits from grateful and interested former students than the one in Truro.

'Beyond this, we have a major task in helping students accustomed to rejection and frustration find a new self-respect and sense of purpose," Mrs. Wood said. 'Only when this extensive help on a purely personal and individual basis has been attempted can we hope to incorporate a student in the activity parts of our program.

"First and foremost, we must find out what makes them tick, then the students want to express themselves."

Mrs. Wood was appointed head of the program in Sept., 1965, and last year was appointed co-ordinator of the special education program, which now contains work training on a senior, intermediate and junior level. Mrs. Wood's husband, Tom, has been instructing the shop experiences program since April, 1964.

"My husband and I, as a team, are pleased to be associated with the students, seeing them make a place for themselves in society and are especially gratified that our efforts were not lost," she said.

This September the program will take on a new name: the work skills development program. For the first time these young people will occupy facilities on the same level as all students in the system.

New quarters will be located in the vocational school in Truro that are at present occupied by the administration staff, business office and industrial arts room.

Alberta Film Firm Business Maverick

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta's most successful independent film producer is "the Viet Cong of film-makers," says Harvey Spak of Edmonton, former vice-president of Filmwest Associates Ltd.

One of eight persons involved in the locally-based firm, Mr. Spak says established film-makers in Eastern Canada and government-subsidized producers in the west have made it difficult for Filmwest to become established.

In the four years since the film collective was established, it has produced more than 20 films, some of which have achieved international acclaim.

Three Minutes to Live, a half-hour industrial film about dangers of hydrogen sulphide gas, earned the firm an award for best educational film at the 1974 Alberta Film Festival, and placed third at an industrial film festival in New York City this year.

Ernest Brown, Pioneer Photographer captured the best film and best documentary awards at the Yorkton, Sask., film festival in 1973, one of the country's oldest and most respected festivals.

The firm's first break in the business came in 1971 when it signed a contract to produce eight half-hour documentaries for the CBC. Revenue from that contract led to subsequent films, some wholly or partly financed by government-connected agencies.

Filmwest "would not have survived without contracts for films funded by government-related bodies," Mr. Spak says, adding that established film-makers "have all the equipment and money."

"We don't have either, so we have to make it on our own hard work."

This year the company has produced two 30-minute documentaries on farming for Agriculture Canada, a documentary on the history of prairie women, and a 50-minute industrial film on the medical problems of flying.

Film-makers at the collective, who each receive the same salary, hint that the company may next move into the feature film market.

"I think our experience has made us the logical people to produce feature films," one associate said.

"I can see Alberta becoming very active as a film centre.

Car Sales Drop

OTTAWA (CP) — Sales of new motor vehicles during July dropped by one-half of one per cent from July, 1974, while the value of sales increased by 17.3 per cent, Statistics Canada reported Wednesday.

Hurricane Weakens

MIAMI (AP) — Still carrying winds of 105 miles an hour, Hurricane Doris showed traces of weakening Wednesday as it pushed through the North Atlantic, the National Hurricane Centre said.

Considers Appeal

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The director of Pittsburgh Institution and a senior correctional officer, both dismissed from the Canadian penitentiary service last week, say they are considering appealing. Joseph Doyle, 47, director of the facility since 1966, and Douglas Ritchie, 42, an officer for 16 years, received word of their dismissals last week through a letter from Andre Therrien, commissioner of penitentiaries.

War Only Answer

LUSAKA (Reuter) — Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole, leader of the external wing of Rhodesia's African National Council (ANC), said Wednesday that the constitutional problems in white-ruled Ahodesia can be solved only through full-scale guerrilla war.

Rates Cause Decline

TORONTO (CP) — Increases in prime lending rates announced by several major banks sparked a broad decline on the Toronto stock market Wednesday with industrials recording their largest losses in more than four months.

Approves Work

COBOURG, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario Municipal Board (OMB) gave its approval Wednesday to Cobourg's plans to spend $400,000 for restoration of the 115-year-old Victoria Hall.

Newspapers Suggest Reasons

LONDON (AP) — Two British newspapers today suggest different reasons for the apparent suicide of a navigator aboard a Soviet airliner shortly before it landed at Heathrow Airport.

The Daily Mail says an intelligence expert whom it did not name told it:

"The strange and virtually unprecedented timing of the suicide suggest actions of a man who knows that within a few hours something sinister is going to happen to him. It is our view that this man was either being held in custody or knew he would be taken into custody the moment the plane touched down in Moscow."

Ouellet Will Implement Business Corporations Act

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet announced Wednesday the government hopes to implement its new Canada Business Corporations Act Dec. 31.

The act was passed March 24 and overhauls part of the existing Canada Corporations Act. It will affect about 25,000 federally-incorporated companies.

Companies will have five years after the implementation date to bring their affairs into compliance with the new law. In that period, they can continue to operate under the existing statute. But after five years, a company would be declared non-existant if it did not comply.

The department held a cross-country series of seminars during the summer to acquaint businessmen with the new act. Mr. Ouellet said the department will consider the business reactions in preparing regulations.

The revised law will give ordinary shareholders new remedies to protect them from management, including privison for shareholders to initiate company bylaws and repeal old ones, remove directors and amend the company's articles of incorporation. Under certain conditions, a shareholder would be able to force the company to buy back his shares at fair value.

Zodiac Raft Investigation Snags on Mishap Cause

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP)—The Zodiac raft which capsized last Friday, drowning three of the 29 persons aboard, frustrated those trying to guide it downstream Wednesday in attempts to determine the cause of the mishap.

Police and employees of the company that owns the raft succeeded in freeing the craft from an eddy near the Canadian side of the Niagara River. The raft then shot through a section of white water rapids similar to the rapids which capsized it.

Instead of floating down the Niagara as police had hoped, the raft was captured by the currents of the whirlpool.

Police in a 12-foot aluminum boat attempted to tow the raft into the channels that flow out of the whirlpool toward Lewiston, N.Y., where police planned to pull the raft from the river and examine it to try to determine why it had overturned.

PC Energy Critic Raps Own Party

TORONTO (CP) — James Gillies, potential contender for the Progressive Conservative national leadership, said Wednesday the party needs a change of style to win confidence.

Softening his attack on the party's performance and leadership from remarks in a speech prepared for delivery to the Toronto Kiwanis Club, the MP for Toronto-Don Valley told that group he believes the Conservative party can form the government following a 1978 election.

What is needed, he said, is for the party to "articulate much more clearly than we have in the past" its political philosophy, return to a strong "shadow cabinet" organization and make inroads in urban areas of Ontario.

Mr. Gillies, 51, Conservative energy critic, did not rule out the possibility he may be a contender for the leadership race in February to replace Robert Stanfield.

"I haven't made the decision at this time."

He said in an interview he would likely decide "something this fall," possibly in the next six weeks.

Of the prepared text in which he described the Conservative shadow cabinet as "almost a joke", the lack of party organization as "shocking" and past leaders who rose from the ranks of provincial premiers as unable to successfully command federal politics, he said:

"I wrote the text on an island on Georgian Bay" and had second thoughts before its delivery.

However, he said the shadow cabinet prior to 1974 "met in a very informal fashion" and failed to make a serious reassessment in the fall of 1973 of the party's earlier position on wage and price controls despite changed economic conditions resulting from international price increases for oil.

Hastings Enrolment Exceeds Expectations of Director

Hastings County schools have over 300 more students than expected this week — a situation which sets this board apart from the provincial trend of steadily decreasing school enrolments.

Eric Runacres, director of education for the country, said during an interview Wednesday. "While the majority of the province is experiencing declining enrolments, Hastings is in a growth position.

"We have not exceeded last year's enrolment but have exceeded the number of students we anticipated — a guesstimate arrived at by charting the province-wide, downward trend," he said. This trend of decreasing numbers is expected to continue until 1980 at a rate of four per cent annually he added.

Mr. Runacres said following a tally of registrations, northern county figures have been exceeded by approximately 80 students with similar growth in the central areas.

"Bayside and Foxboro — the bedroom areas that house the urban labor force — have shown dramatic growth accounting for the bulk of the increase," said Mr. Runacres.

"Dramatic growth in the Bayside area has lead to 100 more students than anticipated," he said.

Mr. Runacres said three immediate byproducts of the increase are "stabilization of the decreasing trend, better programs and more suitable financing."

He anticipates another $65,000 in provincial funds will be granted the board for the fall term alone because of the increase.

It will also mean hiring 10 to 12 more teachers, said Mr. Runacres.

He said the increase in students is not in one particular age group but spread between kindergarten and grade 13.

This year the Hastings County Board of Education will spend approximately $32 million maintaining the school system for approximately 23,000 youngsters.

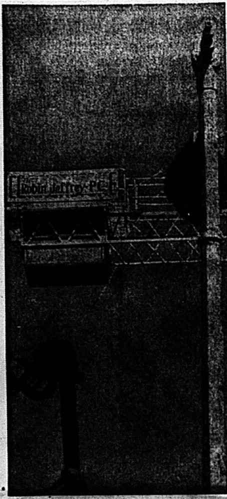
Ballooning Campaign

Behind the podium and encircled by balloons, Conservative candidate in Quinte riding Robin Jeffrey speaks to supporters at party dinner at the Four Seasons Hotel Wednesday. Highlight of the evening was an address by Premier Bill Davis who swung through Quinte riding by train yesterday.



Highly Political

Highest piece of political advertising in Quinte riding election campaign has been introduced by the Progressive Conservatives. Poster proclaiming candidacy of candidate Robin Jeffrey is close to 100 feet above ground in downtown Belleville — fixed to construction crane at Century Place building site.

Davis Makes Promise

No Quinte Region Unless Requested

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Ontario Premier Bill Davis says the Quinte area will not be forced to accept a regional form of government through a provincial order.

"The only way the area will get regional government is by area councils initiating the action and asking the province . . . not the other way around." Premier Davis told The Intelligencer Wednesday.

"We are taking no steps to develop future regions in the province," he said.

The premier arrived in Belleville Wednesday afternoon as part of a whistle stop sweep of Ontario meeting with party workers and urging support for party candidates.

After accompanying Quinte candidate Robin Jeffrey to Batawa, the premier spoke at a Belleville Progressive Conservative fund-raising dinner at the Four Seasons Hotel.

He said a "crunch issue" is the government's controversial stand on political participation of the province's civil servants.

"I don't want the civil service to be politicized," said the premier. "The service should not be involved in party politics."

"Neither do I believe the civil service should have the right to strike," he said.

Premier Davis told more than 150 local Tories, "You can't govern to satisfy all the people all the time . . . but my administration has governed with conscience."

"We have done things that haven't been totally popular," he said.

Listing the credits of the past four years of his administration, Premier Davis said 100,000 new jobs were created each year, quality medical service provided and the education system was the finest in Canada. "Believe it or not, the three Rs are being taught."

"It's a time for strength," said the premier.

Premier Davis acknowledged the efforts of Dr. Richard Potter as first a member and later as a cabinet member.

Following the Belleville supper, Premier Davis left for a party rally in Trenton the same evening.

Tweed Plans Own Stampede

TWEED — Anyone who has lived in hopes of seeing the Calgary Stampede but never quite made it, can now start planning to attend a reasonable facsimile of this famous rodeo right here in The Highlands of Hastings and Land O'Lakes area.

Tweed Legion, in collaboration with the operators of the Hayloft and Flinton Park are presenting the First Annual Roundup Days Saturday and Sunday, September 6 and 7.

The actual Rodeo shows under the production of former rodeo star and successful western rancher, Mel Walkefield, who now operates out of Norwood area, will be held at 3 p.m. both Saturday and Sunday.

Each day riders will compete in such exciting events as saddle bronc riding, bareback bronc, bramha bull riding and ladies barrel racing. More recently two attractions have been added to the original number, a new feature will be a Ladies' Open Barrel Race, with entry fee $5.

A second added special prominent part of the program, will be the famous clown, Dick McAllister, one of the leading clowns of North America, who participates at rodeo events, and whose job is distracting the bulls from the rodeo riders.

This sanctioned meet will be staged in a natural amphitheatre - arena surrounded by hills beside the Shootamatta River. Campers wishing to set up for the weekend will be accommodated for $2.00 per night per campsite.

Also sponsored by the Tweed Legion, tickets are being sold on a tooled saddle, now on display in the Imperial Bank of Commerce window, in Tweed Village.

The draw for this fine prize wil climax the Sunday night activity of Tweed Legion's First Annual Roundup Days.

Cabinet Promises Premature: Davis

Ontario Premier William Davis Wednesday refused to speculate on the possibility of Quinte candidate Robin Jeffrey receiving a cabinet post if successful in the Sept. 18 election.

During an interview with The Intelligencer, the premier said "Mrs. Jeffrey has all the capabilities of being a cabinet minister and has demonstrated her abilities on the municipal level."

"But I cannot make any predictions of that sort at this time," he said.

"I don't want my praise of Robin as a candidate to be turned into a speculation of her cabinet potential though," said Premier Davis.

Because of the government's continued interests in eastern Ontario where Mrs. Jeffrey is the only female Progressive Conservative party candidate, and because, the premier has stated in public he would like more women in his cabinet, it has been speculated Mrs. Jeffrey stands a good chance for a cabinet post.

Mayhem at Mailboxes

TWEED — Three youths are to appear in provincial court at Madoc Oct. 21, charged with causing mischief to 12 mail boxes between Aug. 9 and Sept. 3.

Damage to the government roadside boxes occurred in the Queensboro and Ivanhoe area. Total damage estimate is not available.

Twin brothers Ronald and Robert McCoy, both 18, of Huntingdon Township and David Ray Burris, 16, of 118 Rollins St., Madoc, were arrested by Madoc OPP fter youths were seen damaging a box about 9.30 p.m. Wednesday.

Another youth in the car at the time was not charged. Investigating officers included Constable Walter Sawkins and Constable Robert Bruce of Madoc OPP.

Charged in Taxi Theft

A 25-year-old Trenton man has been charged with car theft following the disappearance of a taxi cab from Doug's Taxi, 186 Dundas St. E. in Trenton late Wednesday.

Clarence Wade Beull, of 40 Bocage St., Trenton, was charged with impaired driving and refusing to submit to a breathalyzer test after a vehicle he was driving was stopped by Belleville police on Bridge Street about 1.15 a.m. today.

Liberals Crank Bay Bridge Into Quinte Riding Campaign

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Quinte riding Liberals briefly cranked the antiquated Belleville-Rossmore Bay Bridge into their provincial election campaign Wednesday.

"What about the bridge?" called a party campaigner as Ontario Liberal leader Robert Nixon wound down a speech to supporters in Belleville.

"Ah. The bridge," rejoined Mr. Nixon transforming the query — which brought laughter from the crowd into a barb at Premier William Davis and his Conservative administration.

He said it was a "funny damn thing" that the only time the provincial government showed interest in the old bridge was at election time.

"When Bill Davis goes around this province handing out goodies and gifts from the taxpayers goods you know they've got to be desperate"

(Replacement of the present stucture — the Highway 14 link from the Belleville mainland to Prince Edward County was announced last year. Since then, officials have held public meetings on their studies in the interim. At the riding's Conservative nomination convention Aug. 11, Dr. Richard Potter former riding MP and cabinet minister announced the new bridge would be built at its present site).

Later, Mr. Nixon, enroute to Picton, stopped to inspect the Bay Bridge — where he was met by a cavalcade of Liberal workers from Prince Edward-Lennox.

The Belleville speech was part of the Liberal leader's itinerary during a visit to Quinte communities.

Vandals Stop Music At Trenton Rally

TRENTON — Vandals made sure the only music at the Progressive Conservative rally at the Community Gardens, Wednesday night, was the rhyme of Premier William Davis' voice as he campaigned for local candidates.

A band had been hired to entertain the crowd of more than 300 party faithfuls who turned out to greet the premier but during the time between the arranging of chairs in the afternoon and when the rally was started, someone ripped out half of the keys on a piano left in the room.

The premier and his party entered the hall with to the group singing "Hail the Gang's All Here", accompanied by the band's drummer.

Battalion Has Reunion

The 21st Canadian Infantry Battalion Association, consisting primarily of World War 1 veterans, will hold its 57th reunion at the Canadian Legion on Pinnacle St. at 6 p.m. this Saturday. Lt. — Col. Angus Duffy will be guest speaker.

Attacks Davis Approach

Election No Cup of Tea: Nixon

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Premier William Davis is treating the provincial election as a tea party, Ontario Liberal leader Robert Nixon charged Wednesday.

He fired the criticism at a Belleville stopover during a campaign tour of Quinte communities.

Mr. Nixon said Premier Davis doesn't like the way the Liberals have been discussing issues — including fiscal responsibility, government integrity, the quality of education.

"You know, the way he's campaigning you'd think we were in some kind of tea party—rather than competing for the responsibility of government in this cornerstone province of Confederation, said Mr. Nixon.

Governing Ontario now runs close to an $11 billion budget.

"To hear him talk about it my campaign isn't nice," said Mr. Nixon. "But we (Liberals) are talking about the things that are in the minds of the people."

Mr. Nixon's remarks came during a brief speech to party supporters at the North Front St. city campaign headquarters of Hugh O'Neil, Liberal candidate in Quinte riding.

The Liberal leader's visit was part of an itinerary that also saw him mainstreeting in Belleville, Trenton, Picton and Napanee after arriving by plane at CFB Trenton where he boarded his campaign bus.

His Belleville speech also reminded party workers that the Sept. 18 election day was that much closer.

"For the next two weeks this campaign is going to be a tough one. ." he said "We want to emphasize our alternatives (to Conservative policies).

Among them was a guaranteed income insurance plan for farmers who would participate on a premium — paid basis.

The only way to keep good farmland in production is to ensure farmers get a "fair shake and a fair share of the economic return.

The Liberals are not interested in "establishing some sort of new subsidy system," he said.

But the party wants a program which "is going to ensure the farmers that we, as a government, and all of us as consumers recognize the importance" of good productive land.

The Liberal program recognizes the need of maintaining "a fair income for the working farmer," said Mr. Nixon.

"My own feeling as a farmer is if you look after the farmers they're the ones that will look after the class one and two farmlands," said Mr. Nixon.

He said he was "deeply concerned" about the Conservative government's fiscal attitude.

The Liberals believed provincial governments should support many community efforts and wants local volunteer support behind such projects.

But "the attitude I particularly resent is the government using the taxpayers' dollars — wastefully, we believe simply to improve their own chance of election."

Grits Challenging Area Tory Supremacy

Ontario Liberal leader Robert Nixon says he's confident his party — in this provincial election — will breach the bastion of Conservative supremacy in Quinte area constituencies.

The same goes for the rest of eastern Ontario. As a result the Conservatives are becoming uneasy, said Mr. Nixon.

Among other reasons he gave for his prediction — in an interview during a visit to Belleville Wednesday:

— Polls that show the Liberals have strong support.

— The electorate is disenchanted after 32 years of Conservative government.

— The Liberals are talking issues uppermost in "the minds of the taxpayers and citizens."

Also: "We're very confident on the basis of the reception our candidates are getting in this area and all the constituencies east of Toronto."

Quinte ridings are part of the eastern Ontario bloc which have a strong tradition of Conservative loyalty.

The "Tories have felt they're going to get the support here whatever they do. Now they're getting a little uneasy."

So disquieted are the Conservatives, he claimed, "they're coming in and promising bridges" and funds for various causes.

Premier William Davis and his cabinet ministers "are going through the country with their pockets full of taxpayers' dollars saying "if you need money, if you're a brass band — or anything — write us a letter. And we'll send you money.

Meantime, "it so happens the treasury of this province is going into debt this year by close to $2 billion," said Mr. Nixon.

Firemen In Sidney Raise $3,300

East and south divisions of Sidney Township fire department have been doing a lot of door pounding.

In a one-week door-to-door campaign 30 fire fighters raised $3,300 for muscular dystrophy.

Their goal was $2,000 Last year they collected $1,600.

The department's west division has not as yet completed their campaign.

Politics and The Bridge

Local provincial election activity fleetingly touched on the Belleville - Rossmore Bay Bridge Wednesday. Ontario Liberal Robert Nixon mentioned it in a Belleville speech, then stopped to view the structure with Quinte riding party candidate Hugh O'Neil (right) during tour of area.

Series Even At 1-1

Bardon Supplies pitcher Ken DeMille had given up only three hits in seven innings Wednesday night at Alemite Park, but in the eighth Markham put three more together to score two runs and win the second game of their best of three Ontario Amateur Softball Association Intermediate B series 2-1.

The Picton crew appeared headed for the victory after scoring a run in the bottom of the third on a pair of walks, a double by Ron Weese and an error the only one of the game. However, for them to win the series now they'll have to wait until the third and deciding game in Picton, Wednesday, at 8.30 p.m.

DeMille gave up six hits in the contest and fanned 12. He handed out no free bases.

Larry Kelson was his only real threat as the Markham batter punched a pair of singles and drove in the tying and winning runs with his eighth inning double.

Besides Weese's double, Bardon got a double from Earl Foster.

John Annis was the winning pitcher, firing a two-hitter. He struck out seven and issued four walks.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Gary Flakne, Hennepin County attorney, informed the president of the National Hockey League Wednesday that he will prosecute cases of excessive violence in league hockey games. In a letter to Clarence Campbell, Flakne suggested the league president notify all NHL clubs and players of his policy. "It is my firm conviction that no professional athlete is exempt from the criminal process if his conduct is in violation of the law," Flakne wrote.

SMITH LEAVES WHALERS

HARTFORD (AP) — New England Whalers and goaltender Al Smith, who played in the net for the World Hockey Association team most of last season, have parted ways, the team said Wednesday. By mutual agreement, the Whalers terminated Smith's contract, making him a free agent and thus eligible to deal with any team in hockey, said Jack Kelley, New England's general manager and coach.

RIVERS SIGNED

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Wayne Rivers has signed a three-year contract, reported to be worth $70,000 a year, San Diego Mariners of the World Hockey Association announced Wednesday. The 33-year-old winger scored 54 goals and 107 points last season but has been a holdout with the club for three months.

Quinte Hockey League

More Interest Needed

Many hockey enthusiasts would like to get the Quinte Hockey League off the ground for another season. But in this case, many is not enough . . . or wasn't, Wednesday night.

At a meeting called to discuss formation of the loop for the 1975-76 season, attempts to elect a group of officers failed simply because enough interested persons were not in attendance.

And the QHL, a four-team grouping over the years, is one club short so far.

Wednesday, three teams were listed as definite starters. They are, Reid's Dairy, Devolin's Combines and a new entry as yet unnamed.

Another attempt to elect officers, get another team involved, and lay plans for the new season will be made Wednesday night, September 10. The meeting will be held at the Recreation Centre on Pinnacle St., at 8 p.m.

Sizzling Reds Just Won't Stop Rubbing It In

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cincinnati Reds are driving Los Angelts Dodgers batty.

Generally conceded the pennant in the National League's West Division, the Reds rubbed the Dodgers' noses in the mud Wednesday night with a 13-2 beating.

"Those touchdowns are hard to beat," smiled Steve Garvey after his failing Dodgers dropped 19½ whopping games behind the leaders. "When you're beaten like that, you're just beaten."

That sums up the Dodgers' status now: They're just about beaten.

The Reds' decisive triumph Wednesday night, which included a 10-run inning, reduced their number to five. Any Cincinnati victories or Dodger losses adding up to five will clinch the division title for the Reds.

"If there's any club you want to beat bad, it's this one," said Cincinnati outfielder Merv Rettenmund. "It's not embarrassing to win any game right now, no matter the margin, because we're going out to win.

"They did it to us last year. It shows we're still pushing."

In other National League games Wednesday, Pittsburgh Pirates beat New York Mets 3-1, Philadelphia Phillies turned back Montreal Expos 6-3, Chicago Cubs beat St. Louis Cardinals 11-6, San Francisco Giants walloped Houston Astros 9-4 and San Diego Padres nipped Atlanta Braves 10-9.

Gary Nolan, backed by the Reds' big offence, notched his first victory over Los Angeles in three years. The Reds' 10-run fourth inning bettered Cincinnati's previous high this season by two.

Nolan, 13-8, allowed six hits in seven innings of work as he extended his season record at Riverfront Stadium to 10-1. The victory was the Reds' 57th at home, tying their all-time high set in 1970. They have lost only 15 times for a home winning percentage of .790.

It was the Dodgers' worst defeat in three years. Andy Messersmith, 15-14, was roughed up for nine runs in three and two-third innings before leaving in favor of Charlie Hough.

Tony Perez singled in two runs and Rettenmund doubled in a pair to highlight the wild fourth inning. The Reds scored three times on two throwing errors by rookie third baseman Jerry Royster.

Bill Robinson's seventh-inning home run, his sixth of the year and second in two nights, broke up a pitching duel and helped Pittsburgh beat New York.

Robinson, who now has hit half of his homers against New York, led off the inning by sending a Jon Matlack fastball over the fence in left field, ruining a fine pitching performance.

Matlack struck out eight, walked one and allowed only six hits before leaving in the ninth, but was victimized by poor infield play.

Garry Maddox socked a triple and home run—the only hits off Dan Carrithers—for three runs batted in as Philadelphia snapped a four-game losing streak with a victory over Montreal. Tom Underwood, 13-10, was Philadelphia's winner with late relief help.

Boston's Cooper Calls the Shot

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cecil Cooper had a feeling he was going to hit a home run.

Cooper, a young batting star overlooked in the boopla over Boston rookie stars Fred Lynn and Jim Rice, got the notion late in Tuesday night's American League East showdown between the Red Sox and Baltimore Orioles.

"I'm not a home-run hitter," says Cooper. "But I was in the clubhouse about the seventh or eighth inning and I told Reggie Cleveland and Luis Tiant that I was going to hit one.

"I just felt like I would."

He did, and he picked the right time for it. Cooper's homer leading off the 10th inning broke up a sparkling pitching duel between Boston's Rick Wise and Baltimore's Jim Palmer and gave the Red Sox a 3-2 win, stretching their lead over the Orioles to seven games.

What does Baltimore manager Earl Weaver think of his club's prospects for catching Boston?

"The're one game worse than they were before tonight," he replied. "We'll just have to wait and see."

In Wednesday's other American League games, New York Yankees blanked Detroit Tigers 8-0, Cleveland Indians whipped Milwaukee Brewers 11-3, Kansas City Royals edged Chicago White Sox 5-4 in 10 innings and Texas Rangers trimmed California Angels 5-4.

Catfish Hunter, 19-13, tossed a five-hitter for his 26th complete game of the season for the Yankees, and Thurman Munson backed him with four runs batted in, including a two-run homer.

Hunter needs only one more victory to become the third man in league history to win 20 or more games in five consecutive seasons, joining Hall of Famers Walter Johnson and Lefty Grove.

Buddy Bell knocked in two runs with a home run and a single and Duane Kuiper capped a four-run ninth inning with a bases-loaded single to pace the Indians.

Al Cowens belted a two-run triple in the 10th inning to give Kansas City its victory.

Foote Powers Bayview Team

George Foote's two-run homer in the bottom of the seventh inning powered Bayview Orchards to a come from behind 5-4 victory over Ameliasburg A's, Wednesday. The win gave the Orchards' team the Prince Edward North Shore Softball League playoff championship 4-1 in games.

Ameliasburg appeared capable of extending the series until Foote connected in the final frame. The circuit smash came with one out.

Don Bonter got the nod over Harold Werkhoven in a tight pitching duel.

The winner fired a six-hitter while striking out two and walking none. Werkhoven allowed seven hits, struck out five and walked four.

Foote had another safety to go with his homer while sparking the champs' attack. John Allison also had two hits for Bayview with one each for Bonter, Wayne Craig and George Chapman.

Tops for Ameliasburg was Murray Maracle with two safeties. The others were divided among Werkhoven, Gary Thompson, Brian Montgomery and Art Earle.

Olympics Facing Key Match

With an important Premier Soccer League match on tap in Kingston, Sunday, Belleville Olympics' coach, John O'neill, is looking for his club to "tighten up defensively and regain its scoring touch up front".

Olympics face Kingston Italo-Canadians, who are one point up on the Belleville team in the standings. It's a battle for second place, Sunday and the Kingston team has a game in hand on Olympics.

A loss would dim Olympics' chances of finishing in first place.

In pre-season games, the teams split, with Kingston winning 4-2 at home and Olympics taking a 1-0 decision in Belleville. In the recent Smiths Falls Tournament, it was Italo-Canadians over Olympics 2-0.

Injuries are hurting the Olympics. Key defender Eugene Courtney is gone for the season with a fractured leg.

Zdravko Fundic, a 22-goal scorer in the Bay of Quinte Soccer Association this season, may also miss the important Kingston match. He is recovering from a leg injury.

Coach O'neill feels Olympics can pull off a win, Sunday, by coming up with a strong overall effort and thus put themselves in the thick of the fight for first place.

Olympics must keep Kingston striker Tommy Moran under wraps if they are to acomplish their task. A proven scorer, Moran is one of the top attackers in the league.

Even Coach Brancato Surprised at Riders

GEORGE BRANCATO

MONTREAL (CP) — Coach George Brancato admitted Wednesday night his Ottawa Rough Riders have surprised even him in the young Eastern Football Conference season.

Brancato was visibly pleased after his club's 18-11 win over Montreal Alouettes that deadlocked the teams with 4-3 won-lost records atop the standings and evened their season series at 1-1.

"'I think they have surprised me a little," he said. "They're a young team—there's 15 new people here.'"

Among the newcomers is quarterback Tom Clements, who threw 11 yards to Jim Foley early in the fourth quarter for the winning touchdown against the defending Grey Cup champions.

"Clements has played well," said Brancato of the signal-caller who was spelled on several ocasions by fellow rookie Condredge Holloway.

"I don't like to say Clements is the starter because they're both so young. He played three years at Notre D'ame before crowds of 70,000 every game. So did Holloway at Tennessee. They're kids who've been exposed to big crowds and pressure."

Clements said he was able to stick to his game plan of attacking with short passes.

"I went into the game thinking to pick at them short so we could get them uptight and throw longer. I guess I didn't throw long too much."

His longest completion, a 40-yard toss to Rhome Nixon, came after the Riders recovered a fumble by Montreal quarterback Jimmy Jones at the Alouettes 51-yard line and was the first play in the drive that produced Foley's game-winning catch.

Art Green grabbed a five-yard toss from Clements for Ottawa's first touchdown with 52 seconds left in the third quarter after Montreal had built an 11-3 lead. Gerry Organ kicked two field goals and the Riders were unsuccessful on two-point conversion attempts after both their TDs.

Steve Ferrughelli catapulted one yard over a stacked Ottawa line for Montreal's only touchdown at 4:34 of the third quarter. Don Sweet added the convert after kicking a 26-yard field goal in the first quarter and a 42-yard single in the second on a wide field goal try.

Montreal coach Marv Levy was upset about 15 penalties, for 115 yards, assessed against his club but said they had only themselves to blame for the loss before 25,225 fans.

"I'm not going to comment on the officiating because I'll probably gain momentum and get fined. We should have played better anyway. The Alouettes lost—offence, defence, kicking, coaches."

Brancato said improvement in Ottawa's specialty teams was instrumental in reversing the decision from a 34-31 Alouettes win Aug. 12, when Montreal's Lewis Cook had a punt return of 98 yards for a TD and a kick-off runback of 86.

"I think we covered our kicks better and the defences of both teams were better," Brancato said.

Sonny Wade, who split Montreal quarterbacking duties with Jones, said the Riders put on a brutal rush.

Larry Waxman Will Portray Character in Home District

TORONTO (CP) — When actor - producer - director Al Waxman appears as Larry King in the CBC-TV situation comedy show, The King of Kensington, at the start of its fall run, Sept. 25, it will mark a home-coming.

Waxman was born 40 years ago in the Kensington Market area of downtown Toronto, and though the district has changed somewhat since those days, the personalities haven't changed that much.

It's a show about a small shop-keeper who is the acknowledged community leader, something between an ombudsman and general fixer for his friends and customers.

It's also the subject of the biggest publicity build-up currently being undertaken by the CBC, which presumably makes the show the headliner of the new CBC-TV season.

If it goes as well with the viewing public as the CBC hopes, it will run longer than the initial 13-week scheduled season. And Waxman, just as aggressive a guy as Larry King, says: "I ain't stepping up to the plate to hit anything but a homer."

Waxman, with an international record behind him of some success in radio, TV and films, said in an interview the new show can be as distinctive in North America as any other TV hit has been.

It is to be recorded on tape within six days of each week's episode, making it "directly topical . . . up to the minute . . . as close as possible to live TV."

Each half-hour show will relate an incident in which one or more of Larry King's customers tangles with society's problems, and how the owner of the neighborhood store, by hook or by crook, confounds authority.

Waxman, whose formative years up to the age of seven were spent in the Kensington area, feels a kinship of soul and spirit with today's residents of Kensington, probably the most polygot lot in the whole of Canada. He says the show will have the smell of curry and the taste of garlic.

And Waxman feels he is not just acting the role of Larry King, but is King, in fact.

"Acting, to me, is not just pretending as a lot of people think it is, but it's being. You are, or you aren't and you're just a phoney, and the audiences can pick out the difference."

Once a few years ago he played the role of a convict in St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary in Montreal, and was filmed in a prison fight. When it was over, the prisoners were told he was just an actor.

"He don't look no more honest than me," said one of the real prisoners. Waxman took it as an accolade.

The stocky, almost overweight (he took off 40 pounds for the role), battered-faced actor has an appearance which is at times gentle, and at times aggressive. While just 40 now, he has been in show business 27 years.

That means he started when he still was a high-school kid in downtown Toronto, playing roles in radio when, at his age, it was considered among his peers that it was sissified to be an actor. Sissified or not, he fought his way to prominence in American and British show business.

Now back in Canada, he's counting on at least a six-month run for King of Kensington, and is planning a new film production following, or concurrent with it.

While most of the initial 13-week run has been planned and written, gaps have been left in the script by writers Aubrey Tadman and Garry Ferrier so that topical references can be made to the latest social or economic crisis—the latest government crisis, or cost-of-living increase.

Waxman gives credit to producer-director Perry Rosemond for conceiving this kind of instant drama. But it is obviously the kind of television which CBC-TV drama head John Hirsch wants to bring to the TV screen, comedy and drama reflecting the concerns of today's people today.

The new 1975-76 CBC-TV drama season starts Sunday, Sept. 7, with Ann Henry's moving play, Lulu Street, about a family coming apart during the 1919 Winnipeg general strike.

It includes such hour-long productions as Six War Years, a drama based on Barry Broadfoot's recent book; 1837, Theatre Passe Muraille's production about the 1837 Rebellion in Upper Canada; and The First Night of Pygmalion, starring William Hutt, Paxton Whitehead and Elizabeth Shepherd—not to be confused with the Shaw Festival's production of much-the-same play in Niagara-on-the-Lake this summer.

House of Pride and The Beachcombers will be back again. A newcomer attracting wide interest among theatre folk is Peep Show, in which producer George Bloomfield has invited young theatre and film directors to try their hands at the television medium.

Bare Point of Law

DES MOINES, Iowa. (P) — The city council has changed its nudity ordinance to insure that it's just as illegal to appear naked in public if you're 17 as it is if you're 18. The old law prohibiting public nudity exempted infants but the council changed this after legal counsel noted that in some cases, an infant is anyone who is not an adult.

Shakespeare in Pioneer Days In Canada Subject of Study

EDMONTON (CP) — An interest in the staging of Shakespeare's works in early Canada took a University of Alberta English professor into the labyrinth of Canadian theatre three years ago.

He has emerged with strained eyesight, a wealth of anecdotes and a strong desire to record factually Canadian theatre history on computer.

During a sabbatical leave in 1972-73 in Montreal, Prof. Gerald McCaughey studied stacks of withered newspapers, theatre playbills, letters to the editor and assorted documents to construct the foundation of post-Quebec Conquest theatre in Canada. His diligence in confronting the small, yellowed print weakened his eyes but strengthened his enthusiasm for determining exactly what took place more than two centuries ago.

Prof. McCaughey, a tall, angular man with an engaging personality, began the study with a $4,800 Canada Council grant. He transferred the project to Alberta last fall and now is involved in storing the accumulated knowledge in a computer bank.

Timing and flexibility are the reasons he chose the electronic medium over the print medium.

"The computer provides fast, concise information and it's easy to adapt any subsequent findings. It scans and it doesn't make mistakes."

However, it's time-consuming and expensive, necessitating weekend work in order to gain a reduction in computer-terminal rates.

Prof. McCaughey says the computer can answer questions in detail in a matter of seconds. It is capable of yielding such arcane titbits as the fact that 1786 was the year of the first recorded play in Canada, that there were no performances of King Lear in Fredericton during the first 100 years of the study and that there were only two performances of Hamlet during that period.

Prof. McCaughey knew nothing about computers before starting the project and taught himself by reading instruction manuals and practising in his spare time.

He thinks the information will be useful to social historians as well as theatre historians.

He has found that Montreal was the most active theatre centre in the 19th century and that garrison officers took at least half of the stage roles during the early part of the century.

The history focuses on Eastern Canada because theatre in the west didn't really begin to assert itself until early in the 20th century. Prof. McCaughey did some research on theatre in Winnipeg and Edmonton a few years ago and would like to incorporate his findings into the main body of the work.k

The study will be a continuing process designed to bring theatre history into the proper perspective.

"Our history has been thoroughly underplayed. People now want to know the truth, not some Pollyanna version of what happened. Our goal is to make a portion of the past available to them."

To implement this plan, Prof. McCaughey recently formed the Institute of Canadian Theatre History. The organization will sell theatre information to the devotee and the casual observer at cost and its members will ultimately contribute information to the data bank.

Phys-ed Backup Trade For Nightclub Singer

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — What's a bachelor of science with honors in kinesiology doing singing in nightclubs?

Well, in the case of Waterloo, Ont., resident Steve Paul, he's doing what he likes best.

His degree, obtained after five years of study at University of Waterloo, would enable him to become a physical education teacher, but "teaching is just a backup" in case he gets "turned off" in his efforts to become a recording artist.

That has been his dream since high school days in his native Sudbury, Ont., when he played with rock bands for school dances. And, in a limited sense, the dream already has come true.

He has recorded two songs, both of which he wrote himself, at the Mercey Brothers studio in Elmira, Ont., and he has had one of them released in a limited-copy production at the cost to himself of $2,000.

The song, Angel In Disguise, recorded in both stereo and monaural versions on the 45 single-play disc, has been getting airplay this summer on radio stations between Halifax and North Bay, Ont., but so far Steve hasn't found a record company interested in issuing it on a major label.

Sales from his own stock of 1,350 copies consequently have been pretty much limited to members of his night-club audiences.

He is booked as a club performer for a full year, doing month-long stints alternately at a Kitchener motor inn and at a hotel in St. Catharines, Ont.

During his college years, Steve kept his hand in musically as a member of a weekend rock band. On his own he plays organ and sings.

And at least twice a night, one of the songs he sings is Angel In Disguise, a pretty, soft-rock and middle-of-the-road ballad about a man who loses his wife when she is giving birth to their daughter.

He wrote it a little over three years ago when his own wife, Linda, was pregnant.

"I was thinking she was going to have a girl and we were just wondering one time what would happen if she didn't make it through the delivery or something."

Linda did deliver a daughter, whom they named Crystal, and without any tragic consequences. The song, however, remained one that Steve felt was worth recording.

"I've only composed about 10 songs. I could have composed 80 or 100 songs, but if a song doesn't sound good to me as I'm writing it I'll just scrap it right there. I only complete a song I feel could be recorded and do well."

He finds songwriting fairly easy.

"An average song takes maybe half an hour to get the music to it, maybe an hour at the longest, and then maybe another 15 minutes to put the words to it.

"The music always comes first and then I get a feeling about what kind of words would go with it."

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Friday, Sept. 5

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be extra-attentive to safety procedures while working today. Use proper tools and select them with care.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't make this too much of a party day. Your self-discipline isn't all it should be. Some form of overindulgence is probable.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Try to keep your temper when you meet with domestic frustrations today. A few heated words will make the pot boil over.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'de not completely forgiven someone for an indiscretion. Today you may look for excuse to rehash the issue.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be protective of possessions today. Otherwise, loss is likely through carelessness. Don't leave the car unlocked at the shopping center.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Though you may be ambitious today, little of value is apt to be achieved. Your goals are far too fuzzy. Get on target.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't be too hasty about acting on flashes of inspiration today. Sleep on your bright ideas—they may be burnt-out bulbs.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A friendship could be placed in jeopardy today over something of a material nature if you let it become an issue.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Consider the interests of others today, not just your own. Being too self-centered won't do much for your image.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't try to impose your ideas on unwilling ears today. You won't be appreciative of the rebuttals.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Proceed carefully in business dealings today. Don't buy merchandise whose quality you may be suspicious.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You're very susciptible to being pressured into agreeing to things or doing something you know you shouldn't today. Watch out.

Symbionese Army Unmasked SWAT

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army (SLA) shot it out with police in May, 1974, they blasted the cover off a tightly-sealed secret: the nature of a mysterious platoon called SWAT.

In their dark jumpsuits and gas masks, wielding high-powered weapons, the elite band of men rushed onto American television screens like creatures from outer space.

"We had tried to keep SWAT as invisible as we could," said the creator of Los Angeles' Special Weapons and Tactics force, the first in the country.

But it was bound to come out. For several years—before the SLA blasted them to prominence—SWAT teams had been spreading across the country like an underground current. The spark for their creation, say lawmen, was the bizarre nature of modern urban crime: snipings, riots, hijackings, holding of hostages.

"This is a day of specialization," said former Mayor Sam Massell of Atlanta who approved SWAT's development there. "That's what SWAT is all about, a group of experts."

There are at least 35 SWAT teams in police departments across the country. An exact figure could not be dteermined because some teams still are secret and others are being formed almost daily.

The teams' expertise is mainly in heavy firepower. SWAT officers, many with military experience, are sharpshooters with M16 automatic rifles, revolvers and semi-automatic weapons as well as tear-gas guns.

The FBI offers SWAT training for new teams at its Quantico, Va., bureau, and the essential team strategy of SWAT—with five men forming a unit including observer and scout—has military overtones. But SWAT commanders nationwide deny any paramilitary goals.

With its new visibility—there's even a weekly TV show called SWAT—the special force concept has become the most fashionable trend to hit law enforcement in years.

Although designed for big cities, SWAT has caught on in small towns too. Hillsborough, Calif., a tiny, comfortable suburb nestled on the San Francisco peninsula, has a two-man squad, and Shelley, Idaho, with a population of 1,600 and little crime formed a six-man SWAT team—partially to relieve boredom for its officers.

"I'm sure the teams have been proliferating since the SLA thing," said Los Angeles Assistant Police Chief Darryl Gates, architect of the first SWAT team.

"How many are needed I don't know," he added. "Probably every major city needs something to deal with the strange kinds of situations that develop."

Tho situation SWAT teams prepare for are inevitably violent, leading to complaints from civic leaders that SWAT sharpshooters are trained killers.

To Your Good Health

Breast Tissue Is Mainly Fat

By G. C. Thosteson, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My daughter is 18-years-old. She is considered to have an extremely pretty face. But she has the body of a 12-year-old child. She began menstruating at an early age (11), but she has not had any development of her breasts whatsoever.

I have taken her to several doctors for complete examinations and they have all found her to be in perfect health. Lately, I have noticed that she seems depressed and self-conscious about her lack of development.

Can she be given hormones, or is there any other course of action she could try? I am very concerned. — L.F.

When you say she has the body of a 12-year-old, just what do you mean? It could be a clue to your problem. You give no height or weight data. Do you mean that she is of small frame? Let me explain what I am trying to get at.

The fact that she is menstruating implies that her sex hormones are being supplied normally. No problem there. Now about the development.

Breast tissue is made up mainly of fat, no matter how we choose to otherwise romanticize this portion of the female anatomy. If your daughter does not have much breast development, as a matter of fact, she might look disproportioned if there were.

You say she has "no development." I suspect there is some, however small. Incidentally, as her mother, what is your build? or more important, what was it when you were 18? If it was pretty much what your daughter's is now, drag out an old bathing suit picture and show it to her.

Both of you should accept the fact and not monkey with hormones or creams. Since several doctors have found her to be in good health, that should satisfy you both.

Nature may have decreed a less than voluminous breast for your daughter, but it has compensated with a pretty face — a fair exchange in my book. Get her some dresses, blouses and other accoutrements that will accentuate her plusses and make her less self-conscious about her "inadequacies."

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I've been told that scrubbing the tongue will help rid one of bad breath. I've tried this, but still have it.

I'm wondering if my condition can be caused by stomach condition? My breath seems to be worse when I eat highly-spiced foods or tomatoes. Can you help me? Should I see my doctor? p.s. I have a lot of canker sores in my mouth. I've had them all my life. — C.B.

Scrubbing may help, but it's no cure. Use of dental floss to clean between the teeth would be much more effective if the cause is in the mouth itself.

The canker sores could be cause. These are often due to allergies, especially to citrus juices including tomato and sour foods as vinegar. The stomach is not a source of bad breath, although some bad breath can be produced via the blood stream, a fact most folks find difficult to believe. A particularly offending food, garlic for example, can return after ingestion as an odor emanating from the lung tissue.

See your doctor. This is advisable, because bad breath can often be a symptom of some underlying disorder. Perhaps something ought to be done for your canker sores.

Opening lead—2♠

By Oswald and James Jacoby

What do you lead from a three-card suit? The old rule was to lead the top unless headed by an honor, in which case you would lead the lowest.

The modern expert practice is to lead the bottom from three small. Today's hand shows the advantage of the modern practice.

West opens the deuce of spades against South's three notrump. East rises with the ace and leads the suit back.

Now put yourself in South's position. If his opponent makes old-fashioned leads, he knows where the queen of spades is. He rises with his king and loses the club finesse, but it doesn't cost him his contract. West's queen blocks the suit. There might even be an unexpected dividend. West might drop his queen to unblock and thereby establish South's jack.

South might make the same play against a modernist, but he would be guessing well—not playing a cinch.

Ask the Jacobys

An Alaska reader wants to know what bridge writers mean when they say that a contract is cold.

The expression means the same at the North Pole and the equator. It is a colloquialism of bridge and means that declarer is sure to make it. Not that all cold contracts come in. Sometimes they are only sure fire if declarer knows how to play them.

Dibbs Set to Take on Borg

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Eddie Dibbs of Miami Beach plays the most important match of his career today when he steps in with the heavyweights at the U. S. open tennis championships.

"I feel I'm playing the best tennis of my life right now," said Dibbs on Wednesday night. "I thought that since they changed the surface from grass to clay I would do all right here.

"Now I think I can win this tournament. I really do. This is the best I've ever played."

In today's quarter-finals, Dibbs meets 19-year-old Swedish star Bjorn Borg, the No. 5 seed.

Dibbs, a 24-year-old clay-court specialist, buzzed through the early rounds here, losing only one of 10 sets against four opponents. His last victory was a straight-set romp over Wimbledon champion Arthur Ashe, who plays his best tennis on grass.

The Dibbs-Borg showdown is the first of four men's quarter-final matches on tap today. Jimmy Connors meets Andrew Pattison of Rhodesia, Ilie Nastase plays Manuel Orantes of Spain and Guillermo Vilas of Argentina goes against Chile's Jaime Fillol in the others.

In women's play Wednesday, top-seed Chris Evert continued her awesome display with a 6-2, 6-1 romp over Australian Kerry Melville Reid.

The 20-year-old Floridian has now won 82 successive matches on clay and has dropped just eight games in four matches here en route to the semi-finals.

Long Island Takes the Lead

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (CP) — Long Island Tomahawks opened their National Lacrosse League playoff series against Quebec Caribous Wednesday night with a 19-13 win.

Jim Johnston led the way for the Tomahawks before 3,135 fans with four goals and two assists, and team-mate Chuck Medhurst scored three goals and an assist.

Brian Evans had two goals and three assists for the losers, while Murray Cawker scored twice and helped on two more.

In the other semi-final series, which opened Tuesday in Montreal, the Quebecois defeated Boston Bolts 9-8. The teams continue their series tonight.

Action in the Long Island-Quebec series picks up again here Friday.

Canadian Girls Miss a Chance

EDINBURGH, Scotland (Reuter-CP) — Canada and Belgium battled to a 0-0 tie in the world women's field hockey championships Wednesday, enabling the Dutch girls to advance to the final round.

Canada needed a win to finish in the top two of its division and move into the next sector. Belgium and division-winning Scotland were among the 10 countries moving up after the end of preliminary rounds.

The Canadian girls were 1-1-1 in their division matches. Scotland finished at 2-1-0 and Belgium 1-2-0.

In other games Wednesday, Jamaica edged Bermuda 1-0, Wales and Argentina played to a 1-1 stalemate, Scotland romped 9-0 over Denmark, Spain nipped Jjapan 2-1 and Austrlia bombed Zambi 10-0.

Ilie Nastase Fined $8,000

FOREST HILLS (AP) — Ilie Nastase of Romania was fined $8,000 Wednesday for conduct reported detrimental to the game in the Canadian Open tennis championships in Toronto two weeks ago.

The fine was levied by a joint council of the Association of Tennis Professionals and the International Lawn Tennis Association after considering charges made by Toronto's Don Fontana, the tournament director.

Fontana said Nastase did not play his best in a final match against Manuel Orantes of Spain after objecting to a line call. Nastase has acknowledged that he was upset by the call and that his performance suffered as a result.

The council said it had imposed the fine and had decided against any suspension after considering Nastase's good record and his defence.

It ruled that the Romanian, frequently fined by authorities for his conduct, should return his second-place prize money, $8,000, to be used specifically for a Canadian junior development program.

Nastase has the right of appeal to an independent tennis committee.

Later, he said he would appeal the decision.

Game Officials Ready to Sue

TORONTO (CP) — Four World Hockey Association game officials say they are going to sue the league after being advised their contracts would not be renewed.

The officials—referees Bob Sloan and Brent Casselman and linesmen Mike Entwistle and Dennis Dahlman—contend they were not informed by the WHA until well after the date stipulated on their contracts.

"The contract states I must be informed by July 1 whether or not I am to be retained," said Sloan, a former National Hockey League referee and senior WHA game official for three years. "I was not informed officially by Bud Poile (executive vice-president, hockey operations) until last Thursday."

Sloan's contract called for about $30,000 a year with Casselman, another former NHL official, making about the same. Linesmen Entwistle and Dahlman, who also worked as referees in the Southern Hockey League as part of their WHA grooming, earned about $12,000 a year.

Sloan joined the WHA in its first season—1972-73—after six years in the NHL. Casselman joined him the same year.

"We decided to add six different officials and we had to let somebody go," said Poile. "That's all I can say."

The WHA will have 21 officials for the 1975-76 season, the final selections to be made at the league's training headquarters in Brantford, Ont., Sept. 21.

Most of the officials let go had just completed three-year contracts.

Emergency Coalition May Avert Civil War

LONDON (AP) — Shaken by the threat of all-out civil war in Northern Ireland, Irish Protestant and Roman Catholic political leaders are near agreement on the formation of an emergency coalition government for the blood-soaked province, an informed source reported today.

Meeting for the last five months in Belfast's Stormont Castle, a 78-member constitutional convention has made little headway toward permanent arrangements for the sharing of power between Northern Ireland's Protestant majority and the Catholic minority.

But the mounting violence and talk of full-scale civil war is pushing leaders of the Protestant United Ulster Unionist coalition and the Catholic Social Democratic and Labor party toward agreement on a stop-gap government, the informant said.

He stressed that this would not be a final solution of Northern Ireland's constitutional difficulties "but it could be a big step toward that goal."

Rev. Ian Paisley, a member of the triumvirate running the Protestant coalition, attacked the British government Thursday for failing to secure the safety of the people of Northern Ireland, and he also criticized the convention.

But some other members of the Protestant faction thought he was trying to strengthen his position in the bargaining for allotment of cabinet posts in the government.

The constitutional convention expires in early November, after six months, unless the British government renews its life. Prime Minister Harold Wilson said when it was authorized that it was virtually the last chance for Northern Ireland to work out its own destiny.

In recent weeks, the killing in Northern Ireland has increased despite a ceasefire declared last February by the Irish Republican Army, the Catholic guerrilla movement fighting to reunify Ireland. Prior to the ceasefire, the IRA attacked British troops as well as Protestants, but lately the pattern has changed to largely sectarian action and counter-action, with tit-for-tat killing by Protestant and the province for the six-year Catholic gunmen.

The confirmed death toll in the province for the six-year war exceeded 1,300 this week, including 11 killed this week.

And once again the war is spilling over into Britain. There have been four bombings in and around London in the last week.

If the politicians agree on a coalition government, the IRA is not likely to oppose it. But it will be threatened by Protestant diehards who believe that any sharing of power with the Catholics is the prelude to British abandonment of Northern Ireland, its union with the Irish Republic and the end of Protestant power in the six Ulster counties.

A Protestant-Catholic coalition government—the first in the history of Northern Ireland—was formed in 1974, but militant Protestants brought it down with a general strike that paralysed the province.

Bomb Kills Two

LONDON (CP) — A bomb exploded in the crowded lobby of the London Hilton hotel today, killing at least two people and injuring more than 40.

The explosion, coming at the start of the lunch hour, smashed through the front and side of the hotel and left the lobby spattered with blood, injured bodies and smoking carpet.

An anonymous warning was telephoned to a news organization just before the blast, but it came too late to permit an evacuation.

"One minute the lobby was normal and then there was this almighty explosion," said Anthony Peters, who was working at an airline desk in the lobby.

Police, rushing into the debris, spotted another suspicious-looking object and treated it as a bomb.

A robot bomb-handling device, a model developed in Northern Ireland, was sent into the hotel to check out the suspect object. Police cordoned off the area.

Yet another bomb alert was sounded at Waterloo Bridge, a Thames River crossing more than a mile from the Hilton.

Portuguese Army May Plan Boycott

BEIRUT (AP) — A group of officers tried to overthrow President Jaafar el-Numairi of the Sudan early today, but loyal forces crushed the rebellion, the Sudanese government radio reported.

Maj. Gen. Bashir Mohammed Ali, the army commander and defence minister, said the rebels were routed within two hours.

"On behalf of the president and the people and as defence minister and commander in chief, I address my comrades in arms everywhere," Ali said in a broadcast. "I address first those who stood as men and crushed the plot in only two hours after they moved to recapture the radio station and reinstate authority."

His statement indicated that mopping-up operations were continuing.

Ali's broadcast was made about three hours after the official Sudanese radio station broadcast the claim of an unknown major named Hassan Hussein Osman that he had taken over the government and dissolved parliament, the cabinet, the secret police and the Arab Socialist Union, the country's only political party.

In his broadcast, Ali reported that forces loyal to Numairi took back the radio station at Omdurman, just across the Nile river from Khartoum, the Sudanese capital.

Egypt's official Middle East News Agency said it telephoned Khartoum from Cairo and was told of pro-Numairi demonstrations in the streets.

It was not disclosed what happened to Osman.

Army Crushes Sudan Rebellion

LISBON (Reuter) — Hundreds of Portuguese army delegates met unexpectedly today, reviving the possibility that the army might boycott a crucial meeting later of the armed forces' movement.

An army spokesman said the delegates would decide whether to attend the full assembly of the ruling movement, called by President Francisco da Costa Gomes following a week-long crisis over the future of the pro-Communist ex-premier, Gen. Vasco Goncalves.

The army announced Thursday night it was reversing an earlier decision to boycott the assembly, which it said is Communist-dominated.

Ford Optimistic About Sinai Peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — No significant congressional opposition threatens United States commitments in the Sinai truce pact, and President Ford predicts that Congress will approve the agreement.

Ford told a Republican fund-raising dinner Thursday in Portland, Ore., he is certain "Congress will support this gamble for peace" were the alternative is "almost inevitably war in six to eight months."

He had said earlier that there was "near unanimity" of support among 20 congressional leaders who were briefed Thursday at the White House by State Secretary Henry Kissinger.

Senate and House leaders expressed hope for action within two to three weeks on a resolution giving congressional consent to the stationing of American civilian technicians in the Sinai desert buffer zone to monitor compliance with the agreement.

Kissinger told the congressional leaders that Israel will not sign the military protocol to the agreement until Congress approves the U.S. monitors.

The question of secret commitments was raised at the Kissinger briefing by Senator Clifford Case of New Jersey, ranking Republican on the foreign relations committee, who said: "It is my belief that there is no such thing as a valid secret United States commitment."

Kissinger agreed to give the panel all documents relating to the Sinai agreement, and then decide what portions should remain secret.

He also said he agreed to support a suggestion that U.S. technicians in the buffer zone be withdrawn immediately if new hostilities break out.

Meanwhile, both Israel and Egypt demanded large amounts of assistance before agreeing to the interim settlement, under which Israel surrendered some land on the Sinai Peninsula in exchange for political concessions by Cairo.

Phoney Money Abounds

By CLIFF KENYON
Staff Reporter

MADOC — If you're not careful you may have money to burn counterfeit money.

'You may not have seen much counterfeit currency in this area but it's around," said Constable Brian Turner, Belleville OPP community services co-ordinator, speaking here Thursday at a crime prevention seminar at Centre Hastings High School.

And there will be more in circulation next year during the Olympics, he added.

About 30 local business persons turned out for the seminar which included an OPP training slide show on how to detect counterfeit bills and documents, shoplifting, alarms, locks and business lighting.

Constable Turner said he expected an increase in bogus American bills during the Olympics. Counterfieters have not as yet been able to copy many denominations of the new Canadian currency design.

Passing of fake bills is on the upswing, said Constable D.M. Kuzyk, of Belleville OPP.

Thirty-three counterfeit $100 bills were detected in Toronto during June and 59 $20 bills. There was only one each of $10 bills and $20 bills.

"The printing process (due to the new design) has become so expensive the return has to be high," said Constable Kuzyk.

The easiest way for businessmen to detect bogus bills, according to the training film, is through comparison. By comparing the portrait, the planchettes (blue blotches of paper in the bill) and the serial numbers, (to check that the figures are horizontally straight).

But it's best to check a suspicious bill before accepting it as payment. The copy is worthless and to pass a phony knowning it's counterfeit is an indictable offence.

The crime prevention seminar will be held for businessmen in the Belleville area Oct. 7 and 8 at Bayside Secondary School.

Guerrillas Bomb Pub

BELFAST (Reuter) — Guerrillas bombed a tavern and wounded at least eight people late Thursday night as more British troops were being brought into Northern Ireland in an attempt to stem a new wave of sectarian violence.

Police said the bomb destroyed a Roman Catholic-owned tavern near Laughgall in County Armagh, which has been the centre of sectarian killings in recent weeks.

An extra 650 soldiers were on their way today to Northern Ireland from garrisons in England.

Predicts Olympic Site Completion

MONTREAL (CP) — Olympic site construction will be completed in time for the opening of the 1976 Games, says French architect Roger Taillibert.

The statement came Thursday in answer to speculation that deadlines might not be met, as Mr. Taillibert and Raymond Cyr, chief engineer, accompanied a Montreal-Matin reporter on a tour of the site.

"These workers have a truly remarkable capacity for adaptation," Mr. Taillibert said.

"They catch on to what we're expecting of them very quickly and they work with great efficiency."

Mr. Cyr said the workers seem willing to take on the challenge of the project.

"I've never seen such tremendous guys," he said.

Mr. Taillibert's fee has been reported to be as high as $30 million, based on a rumored 3.45-per-cent commission on final cost of the facilities and a 1.5-per-cent copyright fee.

Although he has yet to sign a contract, he has already received a $1.8-million advance.

The architect designed the 70,000-seat stadium, the velodrome, an underpass at the Olympic site and the competition swimming pool within the stadium structure.

Loyalist Becomes Language Centre

HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Loyalist College appears to be gaining a growing reputation for language instruction, its board of governors was told Thursday night.

Two new programs were cited by college president Herb Young to support his claim:

— Approval from the federal government to organize an immersion course in French for civil servants.

— Selection of Loyalist to train a score of Venezulan post-secondary students in English.

"I really think we're gaining a first class reputations in this area of language instruction," Mr. Young told the board.

The one-year French course — involving 10 civil servants in each of two classes — is expected to start Sept. 29.

The program, requested by the federal Public Service Commission, makes instruction locally available to civil servants who otherwise might have had to travel to larger centres, said Paul King, Loyalist dean of faculty.

One instructor already has been retained while two others are still being sought, he said.

Kissinger Meets UN for Buffer Zone Talks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

State Secretary Henry Kissinger meets with United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim in New York today to discuss the work of the UN peacekeeping force in the enlarged new buffer zone assigned to it by the new Israeli-Egyptian agreement.

One UN source predicted that the Soviet Union, which disapproves of the agreement, might refuse to pay its share of the cost of the UN force. But another source said the Russians could hardly object to something both the Egyptians and the Israelis agreed to.

As an expression of their disapproval, the Soviets boycotted the brief ceremony in Geneva on Wednesday at which representatives of Egypt and Israel signed the agreement negotiated by Kissinger.

This provoked a harsh attack from Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, who charged the Russians with a "flagrant provocation and attempt to divide the Arab front."

Speaking in Cairo, he accused the Kremlin of providing Syria and the Palestinians "with information full of lies" that Egypt was selling them out.

"The Soviet Union is free to do what it wants, but to carry false information to our brothers with the intention of dynamiting the Arab position—that we don't accept," said Sadat.

President Ford told an audience in Portland, Ore., that the new Israeli-Egyptian agreement was a "gamble for peace," and he predicted Congress would approve the American pledge to station some 200 American civilian technicians at electronic surveillance stations in the U.N. buffer zone.

But the chairman of the Senate foreign relations Committee, Democratic Senator John Sparkman of Alabama, said many questions were unanswered and he did not know whether Congress would approve sending Americans to the Sinai desert.

Other congressmen said Kissinger indicated aid to Israel would run about $2.5 billion this year, while Egypt would get between $600 million and $800 million.

Other sources in Washington said American aid over the next three years to Israel, Egypt and other Arab nations would total at least $9 billion. They stressed that was the minimum sum expected.

Grants and loans to Syria and perhaps other nations would be about $100 million, the sources said.

There were no exchanges of smiles or handshakes between the Egyptians and Israelis at the 10-minute signing ceremony Wednesday at the Palais des Nations in Geneva, the European headquarters of the United Nations.

Vote Expected Next Week On New College Contract

Loyalist College instructors early next week will vote on a new work contract.

Agreement on terms was reached last Saturday between provincial government authorities and the academic division of the Civil Service Association of Ontario (CSAO), Loyalist's board of governors was told Thursday night.

Tomorrow, presidents of the CSAO college locals across the province will be briefed in Toronto on details of the new proposals, said Loyalist president Herb Young.

Next Monday the presidents will pass the information on to their local memberships. At that time it's expected instructors will vote on the agreement.

The news left the Loyalist board obviously pleased. The situation contrasts with the last contract talks which took about two years to resolve.

W. J. Wilkinson, board chairman, said a settlement would mean both college staff and administration would know where they stand at the beginning of the academic year.

The previous agreement expired Aug. 31. Details of the new proposals have not been made public since both sides in the neogtiations agreed to secrecy until local votes were taken, the board was told.

Taxidermist at 15

Big Fish Hooked Him on Skill

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — A big fish that didn't get away was the beginning of a fascinating hobby for 15-year-old John Waddingham, of Demorestville, who is competing with his work this weekend at the Prince Edward County fair.

When he landed his prize catch five years ago as a boy of ten, he decided to have it stuffed. A visit followed taxidermist Jacob DeVries of Consecon, whose outstanding work impressed the young fisherman.

Shortly afterward, John Waddingham tried his own hand at taxidermy with a large turtle as his first project. The experiment was a success and this "test turtle" is among the collection of his work displayed at the fair.

The ambitious youth enrolled in an American correspondence course to learn more about his hobby. He also received assistance from Mr. DeVries who pointed out errors in his early efforts.

Today, John holds a tanner's licence and a taxidermist's licence for migratory birds and is eagerly looking forward to his first customer.

The Prince Edward Collegiate Institute student says he is particularly interested in working with game birds such as ducks, pheasants and partridge but his collection shows a wide range of "subjects."

He has a bob cat, a wolf, a fox and a crow exhibited at the fair.

One of John's favorites is the Hooded Merganser duck he stuffed to top the family stereo.

Another project which affords him special pride is the wolf shot recently by a neighbor and left on his doorstep for his growing collection.

John's work is entered in the senior hobby division at the fair and is displayed in the County Centre.

Loyalist Art Centre Study To Receive More Scrutiny

The second phase of a community arts centre study was initiated Thursday night by Loyalist College board of governors.

The board decided that a committee involved with the project should expand its membership to include community representation from municipalities in the area served by the college.

The study was made possible by $75,000 in two provincial grants.

The initial phase — costing $25,000 — saw consultants assessing cultural needs in Hastings, Prince Edward, Northumberland and Lennox and Addington counties. Their report presented last month — suggested a $2.17 million culture centre located at the college.

The second study stage — for which $50,000 has been granted by the province's colleges and universities ministry — will include funding, design and demand in its scrutiny.

The committee at present is made up of board and college administration member and two representatives from the Quinte Arts Council.

Student Registration Increases at Loyalist

Loyalist College officials are confident enrolment will meet projections this year.

Already, registration at the college is up over last year's total enrolment, Loyalist board of governors was told Thursday night.

To date, 972 students have registered — well over the 870 at this time last year and more than the final total of 949, in 1974 said P.G. Harry, Loyalist director of finance.

Based on past trends this should see 1,022 students attending Loyalist for the new academic year, he anticipated.

The total would meet Loyalist's five-year enrolment project, said Mr. Harry.

Firemen Don't Receive Demand

By JERRY BROWN

TRENTON — For the fourth time in the last five contract negotiations, during the past seven years, salary talks between the firefighters and town officials are being given over to arbitration.

In a letter dated August 19, the bargaining committee for the firefighters requested the 4.1 per cent difference between the town's original and final offer and the unions demands be submitted to arbitration.

The town's first offer, the one officials have held fast with, is 12.4 per cent increase while the firemen are asking for a 16½ per cent increase over the one year, 1974 contract.

"We spent a lot of money on negotiations last year and we awarded a salary that placed us on par with the Trenton police force and the Belleville fire department," Dennis Smith, a firefighter and one of the negotiators for the 11-man force said. "We would be foolish not to retain the present equality."

The 1974 salary award brought the firemen, represented by the Trenton Professional Firefighters Association, to within $30 of police salaries. It called for a 19 percent increase from the previous contract.

Town officials say there are three reasons they are sticking with the 12.4 per cent offer and will not increase it.

"Both inside and outside workers represented by the Canadian Union of Public Employees accepted the 12.4 per cent increase offered by the town," said Aubrey Sharp, town clerk and one of the negotiators of the municipality. The average salary of this group is about $8,500 one town official said.

"Non-union employees and municipal department heads (Mr. Aubrey Sharp and Brian Fagan, town treasurer, the negotiators for the town are in this category) have also accepted the town's offer for the 12.4 per cent increase," Mr. Sharp said. The eight people covered in this group average about $15,000, town officials estimated.

"And finally, our offer related to the local police 1975 contract, has been settled with that department for a 15 per cent increase which will keep first class firefighters within $359 of first class police constables," Mr. Sharp said.

The firefighters demand will bring them to within $20-$30 of the police force.

Negotiations on the 1975 contract have been open since late June when the 1974 contract award was settled and the parties have met three times with the firefighters original offer of 19 per cent reduced to its current 16½ per cent.

The last meeting between the groups was on August 6.

The arbitration committee is comprised of three members. One appointed by each of the two sides and if possible a mutually agreed-upon third person. If they can not agree the Attorney-General's office will appoint an impartial committee member.

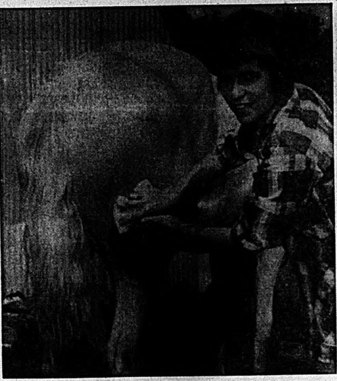
The town, while preparing its brief for the arbitration has not officially announced its appointment. The firefighters will be represented by Jeffrey Sack, a union representative from Toronto.

Both sides have expressed a willingness to return to the bargaining table for further negotiations to forestall arbitration.

Boy Cyclist In Collision

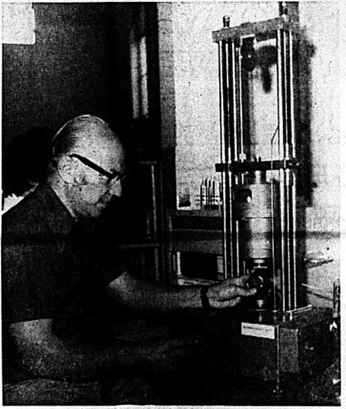
A five-year-old Belleville boy was taken to hospital for treatment of minor injuries after a bicyle he was riding was in collision with a car Thursday night.

Brad Soule, 44 Thorncliffe Drive rode out of a driveway and was in collision with a car driven by Douglas Sutherland of 373 MacDonald Ave., said police.



Happy Ending

The Prince Edward County fall fair opened this afternoon at Picton fairgrounds with halter classes for horses and ponies. Spectators enjoying the show often do not realize the long hours exhibitors spend readying their entries. Here, Mrs. Carol Tolley of Picton reaches the end of a heavy job as she bathes her Albino mare Silver Satin for the show ring.



Soft Touch

A new machine, recently developed by the engineering branch of the Agriculture department in Ottawa, to test the firmness of tomatoes and other fruits and vegetables is demonstrated by Martin Klock, a department employee. The firmness durability test was devised to measure new strains for how well they will withstand the handling received from shoppers in markets, Mr. Klock said.

The program, funded by the Venezuelan government is aimed at alleviating a trained manpower shortage.

Alarms Sounded at Seminar

New Devices Frustrate Burglars

By CLIFF KENYON
Staff Reporter

MADOC — Sounding the alarm is not as simple as it used to be, as local businessmen were shown in an OPP crime prevention seminar at Centre Hastings High School here Thursday.

Jim Stevenson of Alarm Systems, Belleville, was on hand to show about 30 seminar participants the latest detection devices designed to catch the most sophisticated thief.

On display, Mr. Stevenson has a motion detector — "becoming the favorite in homes" — that is so sensitive it will be activated by a person taking a half-step.

There are "many" such devices in use in Belleville homes, he said.

To beat the burglar who's figured out how to get around light-beam sensing devices with a flashlight Mr. Stevenson demonstrated use of the pulsed infrared photo electric cell alarm. The frequency of light over the protected area; a hallway, door or window, cannot be fooled.

Another "foolproof" alarm included an infrared detector that is activated by body heat.

"The latest thing in alarms is the flexigard," said Mr. Stevenson.

Used in Belleville by a number of persons who leave their homes for summer cottages the portable alarm consists of a cable that is unrolled around the house. If it is touched or moved by an intruder it is activated.

It costs about $60 to install and rents for about $20 a week, he said.

Mr. Stevenson and his display, including the microwave detector that "sees" through walls and a glassguard tuned to the frequency of breaking glass will be at the next OPP seminar at Bayside Secondary School Oct. 7 and 8.

OPP officers from Belleville, Bancroft, Kingston, Napanee, Picton and Sharbot Lake are taking part in the seminars to businessmen and industry.

MADOC — Most homes do not have adequate locks, says Paul Flack of International Hardware Co. of Canada Ltd., Belleville.

Car Stolen From Inn

TRENTON — Police are investigating the theft of a 1971 Ford Pinto, owned by a Belleville man, from the parking lot of the Dutch Mill Inn on Highway 2, Thursday night.

The vehicle, black on red bearing licence plate ECJ825 was taken from outside the local entertainment spot between 9.00-10.45 p.m.

The car is owned by Roger LaMorre, 266 Moira Street East, Belleville.

Experimental Farm Shows Off Produce

TRENTON — Would you like a Quinte tomato or perhaps you are interested in growing courtland apples on semi-dwarf trees with a high resistance to scabbing?

These topics and many other were explored at the open house field day at the Dominion (Smithfield) Experimental Farm by more than 200 area growers and other interested people Thursday.

The farm, located four miles west of Trenton, consists of 300 acres of land devoted to investigational work with horfruit and vegetable canning crops.

We are trying to develop new strains of fruits and vegetables, introduce new varieties to the area, in an attempt to increase the profit margin for Quinte area growers," said Blair Heeney, superintendent of the farm.

The Quinte tomato, a strain developed at the farm and praised for its higher qualities, in canning and selling, was recently named by staff who hope the area growers will accept the new vegetable.

The farm has research sections for studying plant nutrition, irrigation and weed control, fruit crop management, plant breeding and food processing, with concentration on problems facing the eastern Ontario fruit and vegetable industry, particularly on the north shore of Lake Ontario.

Short tours, conducted by staff, took guests around the farm giving them a first-hand look at new growing techniques being tested, both in small fruits and vegetables.

The laboratories at the farm, were open for public examination with growers being shown the off-field work and studies in progress being currently undertaken.

Cycle Crashes, Driver Dies

TRENTON — William C. Broomfield, 26, of Austin Manor in Frankford was killed when, the motorcycle he was driving went out of control and struck a telephone pole, Thursday night.

Mr. Broomfield was travelling south on Dufferin Avenue making a turn onto Carrying Place Road when his bike left the road and struck the pole, police said.

He was taken to Trenton Memorial Hospital, where he died.

Jones' PC Leadership Pitch and Ottawa's Hatchet Men on Bilingualism Issue

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA —Whether retiring Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield approves or disapproves — it makes little difference any longer — bilingualism shapes up as an increasingly unavoidable issue at the approaching Tory leadership convention.

And unless Prime Minister Trudeau can cool it, the ever more irritating and politically explosive language question could be big in the next federal election.

The backlash against bilingualism brought the Trudeau Liberals to the brink of defeat in the 1972 election, and they backpedalled furiously through the following two years.

Then in last year's election, whatever potentially winning support Robert Stanfield had left after blowing the bulk of it on his wages and price control policy, he kissed off with his renunciation of Leonard Jones, the very properly nominated Conservative candidate in Moncton.

Stanfield did it in what he thought was a politically virtuous gesture to Quebec and lost, well, nobody will ever be able to know exactly how many seats in English Canada to the Liberals.

And lost them unnecessarily because, as everyone who cared about it knew, Stanfield, deeply involved in learning French, an outspoken supporter of the language Act, and chilly if not openly hostile to those in his party opposed to it, was solidly sold on bilingualism.

So he didn't have to disown Leonard Jones to prove his commitment to the French Fact.

Now Leonard Jones, after a quiet year in the House of Commons — never invited, much less welcomed into the Conservative Caucus — is a declared candidate for the party leadership.

And whether Robert Stanfield likes it or not — that doesn't matter any more, either — Leonard Jones has some support among Maritime members of the Conservative Caucus and considerable strength among the voters of Atlantic Canada.

Who says so?

Ask your friendly neighborhood Tory MP.

He has support, too, in Conservative Eastern Ontario, the Tom Cossitt-Douglas Alkenbrack country.

There also could be pockets of strength in other Conservative constituencies across Ontario, and certainly in the West, where Supply and Services Minister Jean-Pierre Goyer, in a noisy row that drove out Mint Master Gordon Hunter, bilingualized the new branch of the Mint in Winnipeg.

Maybe Leonard Jones can't win the leadership, but conceivably he could command enough votes that, thrown in a bloc, behind another candidate, might make the difference.

Leonard Jones, Tom Cossitt, Douglas Alkenbrack, Walter Baker, Paul Dick, and other Conservatives aren't opposed to bilingualism itself, but do object strenuously to the one-sided way the government imposes it.

The standard method is to howl bigot at anyone who questions it.

For this, the government has recruited a couple of interesting English-speaking Francophiles.

From the West Coast, John Carson was brought in as Public Service Commissioner, and brands as "waspish" any suggestion that the government is redressing former discrimination against the French by current discriminations against the English.

It is, but to say so is to be smeared as a bigot.

It is because now all top executive positions in the federal public service, those $40,000 to $60,000-a-year jobs are to be held by bilinguals.

And some 90 per cent of bilinguals come from Quebec.

Which leaves someone in Charlottetown, Halifax, Moncton, Brockville, yes, and Toronto, Kitchener, Stratford, Belleville, and from Thunder Bay west to Victoria, sort of out on a language limb.

It gives the big edge to Ottawa, Hull, Montreal, Quebec City and points between.

John Carson counters that the English wanting these jobs can always take a full-pay year off — at the taxpayers' expense — to learn French.

The other English Francophile is Languages Commissioner Keith Spicer.

He is the language ombudsman, spending his time investigating cases of discrimination. But like bilingualism, to read Spicer's reports, discrimination is loaded, one-sided.

You wonder about it, question its fairness, or worse, protest, and Keith Spicer will let you have it.

He had a neat phrase for it: Westmount Rhodesians.

Westmount, in case it slipped your mind, being a culturally and lingually endangered English enclave in Montreal, and Rhodesians, of course, the kind of bigots who see nothing funny about Big Daddy Idi Amin.

Pressure on The Land

Creeping urbanization and the absorption of valuable agricultural land that goes with it has become one of the prime concerns of our day. Not surprisingly, it is an issue in the provincial election campaign.

But lest candidates and public alike succumb to the temptation to make it more of a political football than it really is, consider that the problem has been with us for some time.

That it is an issue is undeniable, but how to deal with it must be viewed within the whole fabric of conservation and husbanding of resources with which society more and more must contend.

In essence, the problem is less a political one (although it is being made just that) as one for the planners.

That is how Hastings agricultural representative Doug Tipper sees it.

How much encroachment there is on farm land he says is a matter of opinion Indeed, one might travel in any direction in Belleville and conclude that the physical confines or boundaries remain virtually as they were a decade ago. Enter the city on No. 2 for instance from the city's east end and observe in a field, across from the turnoff to Point Anne a herd of cows. This, but a stone's throw from city habitation that has changed little in recent years.

Yet in neighboring townships and between Belleville and Trenton the signs of urbanization are there. It has been going on for some time and Tipper acknowledges it is a natural trend.

The official plan will be a start, according to the Stirling-based agricultural rep. Subject as it would be to change and evolution. Influenced also by the checks and balances of any such plan, as well as existing restraints on agricultural land.

"In this kind of situation, if we want to preserve land that will produce food, says Tipper, "we have to be willing to set aside quality acreage."

Where to draw the line? There can be no arbitrary decision, in a situation of such magnitude, one that is constantly evolving, but planners can see to it that the needs of both industry and food production are met fairly. A case perhaps of making haste slowly and remembering there is only so much land to meet both current needs and those of generations to come.

Nursing is Popular

The nursing profession continues to attract young women leaving school. In fact, those in charge of the nursing programs at Loyalist college say there is a full complement in the courses for both registered nurses and nursing assistants.

Seventy are enrolled in the nurses course and 60 in the assistants' program. It is little wonder both Mrs. Madge Flindall, director of nursing education at the college, and Mrs. June Rickard, in charge of health programs other than nursing, say the nursing curriculum continues to be most popular.

To the best of their knowledge, the graduates have no difficulty obtaining jobs, although, as Mrs. Flindall points out, it may mean starting away from home ground.

According to Mrs. Rickard, there is less turnover than in years past, a factor she attributes to the economics of the moment, with nurses — as in other work situations — holding on to their jobs.

At Belleville General, director of nursing Mrs. Iona McInroy, says there have been more on staff this summer than was anticipated, although not by much. Hospitals in Canada have had many nurses from overstas on staff over the years, and Belleville is no exception. But there seems to have been some levelling off in the influx of nurses from abroad.

In an era of increasing automation, computerization or whatever, in the technical field, it may be assumed there will be no less demand for the human touch and the services of nurses. It is encouraging that the interest is there among the young people; it should mean a continuing supply of graduates in this interesting and necessary profession.

Kent State Jury Decision

An Ohio jury has refused to hold Governor James Rhodes personally and financially liable for the killing of four students and the wounding of nine by national guardsmen at Kent State University in 1970.

The jury was right.

If we ever started holding politicians responsible for their mistakes, who would dare to rule over us?

Davis Goverment's Campaign Defensive

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO This is not too obvious a point but it is an important one.

It perhaps has not happened to strike you, but the government has been very much on the defensive in this campaign.

The importance of this is that it is rare.

Seldom in 32 years have we seen a Progressive Conservative government on the defensive in an election campaign.

And never in my memory to the extent that the Davis government, and particularly the premier himself, have been in this one.

Since the first days of the campaign when Bob Nixon pinned him with the integrity issue the premier has been spending much of his time defending his policies and actions and himself.

Nixon got to him further with his charge of extravagance— "We can't afford another Davis government," his education policy, regional government and other things.

Stephen Lewis has pinned him back with his charges on housing and farm land.

So many charges have drawn blood in the form of answers from the premier it has seemed that at least daily he has been busy answering one point or another.

This has not been at all the Tory style.

In the hey-day of its three decades of power it mostly ignored the opposition and spent its campaigning time touting its record.

It used to give the impression of supreme self-confidence. This time it leaves the taste of being at least a bit scared.

This is added to by the fact that its rebuttals aren't always that good.

Though it has tried, it really hasn't been able to knock down the Lewis figures on housing.

It has produced figures and assertions but the NDP figures left the feeling they had been carefully researched and the government's rebuttal didn't stand up against them.

Its rebuttals, in fact, have been generally weak.

An extraordinary one was the premier's claim, in reply to the extravagance charge, that public debt had been reduced by $533 million last year.

This is at least very close to a half-truth. For though it is true that bonded debt was reduced it was reduced, with borrowed money; money received from the federal pension fund and which has to be paid back.

The use of such a figure doesn't add to the government's credibility.

Treaty of Portsmouth ended Russo-Japanese war 70 years ago today—in 1905—amid political crises throughout Russia. Initially, the aggressive Russians had lost every battle, and their fleet, which sailed three-quarters of the way around the world to Japan, had been sunk at Tsushima three months before. At home, the Potemkin mutiny had occurred and a great general strike swept all Russia in October. The Czar agreed to call parliament but arrested the St. Petersburg Soviet which precipitated the workers' rising in Moscow.

LETTERS

Quinte Group and Parkway Plan

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

The Loyalist Parkway is at present a proposal of the Quinte Association for the preservation and enhancement of the lakeshore between Collins Bay and Glenora.

Three issues regarding this proposal will be discussed in this letter: (1) expropriation, (2) industry, and (3) alternatives to the parkway concept. Let us begin by considering expropriation.

The Association has maintained that expropriation would not be part of its proposal. A sufficient amount of parkland could gradually be acquired without recourse to expropriation. Obviously as the years go by this basic viewpoint may become unrealistic, but at present the Association does not endorse expropriation.

Industry and the parkway can be combined most successfully as the Niagara Parkway clearly shows. There the Parkway goes past large hydro-electric stations, enormous primary industry and at least one trucking depot!

Obviously other alternatives to the Parkway exist. First is the alternative to leave matters as they are. If the present policy continues we will have, I believe, a lakeshore something between the wharf development of the port of Montreal and the ribbon development along the north shore of Lake St. Louis west of Dorval. Such a lakeshore would be very inferior to the Niagara Parkway along the Canadian side of the Niagara River A second alternative would be a Conservation Authority and this might, in fact, be the best solution. But if it is, why then did the Ontario Government in 1970 create the 1000 Islands Parkway between Gananoque and Brockville along the former scenic highway? The creation of that parkway is one of the strongest arguments for the naming of our lakeshore as the Loyalist Parkway.

The responsibility for such a designation rests with the Premier.

We in Canada must indeed be in bad shape intellectually if we have to look to the Americans even for our advertising copy.

Kierans Plans CDC Shares

Montreal Gazette

Wisely responding to critics inside and outside the investment community, the Canada Development Corporation is now launched toward one of the chief goals of its mandate from Parliament — 90-per-cent ownership by non-government investors.

A critic with great impact was Eric Kierans. But there is a strong element of irony in the fact that he helped to force the sweetening of the offer and hence its success. For his principal argument was that the CDC should not be going to the market at all but should be wholly owned by the federal government.

Mr. Kierans maintains that the CDC's objective of promoting long-term development necessarily involves a long wait for returns and is thus incompatible with share offerings tailored to attract the small investor.

This shortcoming is partly offset, however, by the government subsidy — in the form of interest-free loans to the CDC — that Mr. Kierans so much deplores. It could also be offset if the government would complement the CDC with crown corporations to undertake the type of investment Mr. Kierans has in mind, although the lamentable near-scuttling of Petro-Canada by the government itself offers little hope in this direction.

The board of directors of the CDC, however, is committed to getting shares into the hands of the public and particularly the small investor. While CDC may be applauded for getting its issue off the ground, it remains questionable that it should be doing so without waiting to issue a new prospectus: The old one is outdated and, in any case, suffered from the shortcomings in presentation that Mr. Kierans pointed out with such verve.

Considerable damage to tomato fields and to garden produce resulted from the hail storm which swept through the Bay of Quinte district last week. Leaves were severed from tomato plants, thus lessening chances of the fruit maturing. Garden produce, especially peppers, were damaged as the hail stones left holes in them. Damaged peppers at cut prices were offered on the market.

Americans Manning Sinai Listening Posts Alarms Congressmen

By BRUCE LEVETT

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Ford may argue from dawn to sunset but he still will have difficulty convincing some congressional leaders why armed Americans must be sent into the Sinai Desert.

The announced intention is to have Americans man electronic monitoring posts along the Egyptian-Israeli ceasefire line. Any military movements detected would be reported to the United Nations Emergency Force in the area.

But why Americans? That question puzzles U.S. news columnists and editorial writers and many of the political leaders as well.

Fears that the U.S. might be moving into the same sort of graduated involvement that took the country into the Vietnam war are countered by those who point out that the U.S. was invited into that conflict by one side.

In this case, they say, thes. military involvement—merely a force of civilian observers invited by both sides.

It's an argument that Egypt herself refutes, spokesmen in Cairo saying the U.S. technical force was Israel's idea and that Egypt went along with it because there didn't seem any pressing need to oppose it.

Israel maintains, however, that the idea was presented by the U.S. and that it may have been a joint American-Egyptian conception.

The Soviet Union has already voiced displeasure at the prospect of a unilateral American force in the Sinai, echoing a concern first articulated by Senator Henry Jackson (Dem. Wash.), who fears the Soviet Union may attempt to interpose a presence of its own elsewhere along the sensitive frontier.

Some observers speculate that the Israelis hope the U.S. would be drawn to their side in the event of any military move by the Egyptians that might tend to catch the Americans in the middle of a new dispute.

With that in mind, some congressmen are insisting that the American group be equipped to pull out fast at the first sign of trouble.

Still others go further—insisting on a commitment that if the momentum for peace negotiations along the Israeli border shows signs of slackening, U.S. personnel will be withdrawn.

That the Americans observers will be in a hot spot is not denied here even by those who favor the U.S. presence.

Palestinians in Lebanon have vowed to step up their attacks in an attempt to crack the overall Sinai accord. There is concern here that the front-line Americans would be a natural target.

There is even speculation that other Arab countries, viewing the Israeli accord with Egypt as a blow to Arabian solidarity, might be inclined to support the guerrillas in their announced intention.

Ford has pledged to put the Middle East peace plan to Congress, possibly as early as next week. And therein lies the germ of another problem.

Next year is a presidential election year in the U.S. If, in the meantime, the U.S. has been drawn into armed conflict in the desert, Ford and those legislators who backed the plan may have to answer for it at the ballot box.

CTV Has Country Show

TORONTO (CP) — CTV Television Network, busy launching its fall and winter program schedule, says a new country and western music show, Grand Old Country, is one of its headliners.

Starring an Anglo-Quebec farm boy, Ronnie Prophet, as the musical anchorman of the show, Grand Old Country will feature a variety of performers.

Recorded before audiences in the studios of CFTO-TV, Toronto affiliate of CTV, the pilot program had variety, with Diane Lee in a warm-voice solo turn, a step-dance group performing their version of barn dance, and an eight-piece backup band.

Prophet, described by Chet Atkins as "the greatest one-man show I've ever seen," will be the only regular on the show, which starts on most CTV stations Monday, Sept. 8, at 10 p.m.

Along with Diane Lee, the Canadian guest stars so far lined up for the series include The Peaches, Zeke Sheppard and Lucille Star.

Others to appear include Dottie West, Boots Randolph, Floyd Cramer, Charlie Pride, George Jones, Narvel Felts and Doug Kershaw.

Prophet was born and raised on a farm in Calumet, Que., but had to make his mark in the U.S. before being recognized in Canada as a star performer.

He makes his home in Nashville, Tenn., where he has lived since 1969. He was seen previously on the CBC-TV network in Counrty Roads, two years ago, and as a summer replacement last year in The Ronnie Prophet Show.

The CTV Network schedule for the fall and winter season starts Thursday, Sept. 4, at 7 p.m. on most CTV stations with The Montefuscos, an imported program from NBC about an Italian-American family.

Grand Old Country will be followed on Monday nights by Pig and Whistle, one of the veterans of the CTV network.

Another program with a contemporary music background and guest stars largely imported from the U.S. will be seen early Tuesday evenings in The Bobby Vinton Show. The Jeffersons follow early Wednesday evenings, and Pardon My French, which last season proved to be one of the most popular Canadian situation comedies, is back in the new season on Thursday nights.

Other programs returning to the CTV Network this season include Sanford and Son, CTV's Wide World of Sports, Question Period, Cher, Kojak, W5, Maclear That's My Mama, Streets of San Francisco Harry-O, and Friday Mystery Movie.

Cathy Miller picks mushrooms

Man's Favorite Fungus Needs Perfect Environment

By SHARON AIRHART

Imagine growing a crop that must be kept at exactly 60 degrees at all times, must have a perfectly controlled humidity of 86 to 88 per cent and must be picked in flushes seven days apart.

These are the complicated requirements needed to grow man's favorite fungus, the mushroom.

At the Wellington mushroom farm of the Campbell Soup Company, these requirements are carefully met in cool dark rooms stacked high with hemlock trays six feet long and five feet wide.

In these trays, thousands of mushrooms grow up to be picked by workers wearing two sweaters and helmets with miner-like lights shining down on the trays. There are 5,000 of the trays and each year the factory produces 3,000,000 pounds of mushrooms for use in soups and gravy and incidentally, for sale to the local public at a bargain 50 cents a pound.

"The mushrooms we sell to the public are number 2 mushrooms," explains manager Joe Karaz. "That just means they are one or two days more mature than the mushrooms we ship to Toronto for soup."

The plant sells 1,500 pounds of mushrooms to local persons every week.

It also sells the spent compost on which the mushroom are grown to home gardeners.

"Grass hay, straw, ground corn cobs, ground soy meal, gypsum and peat moss, along with exactly controlled amounts of moisture are combined and composted and then sterilized to provide an ideal growing medium for the mushrooms.

It is pasteurized in trays at 150 degrees and then spread with grain which has been inoculated with mushroom spawn.

Twenty-four to 30 days later, mature mushrooms are picked.

"There's considerable skill in picking mushroom," Mr. Karaz says, complimenting the 30 full-time and 30 student casual pickers.

Working quickly with a small sharp knife in rubber-gloved hands, they pick 40 to 60 pounds an hour or an average of 400 pounds a day.

After trays have been picked, another seven days passes and more mushrooms erupt from the compost which is infiltrated by a network of mycellia, thread-like growths which grow from the inoculated grain.

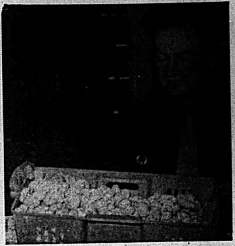
"It's all one living unit," Mr. Karaz says, adding that after six pickings the trays are dumped and the entire room treated to a livesteam "cook-out". This will ensure the growth of the next batch of 468 trays which will occupy the room after huge air-conditioning and heating units bring it to the critical temperature and humidity.

"Mushrooms are very sensitive to temperature and moisture changes," Mr. Karaz explains.

"They breathe in air and breathe out carbon dioxide just like people," he adds.

Surprisingly to many persons, dark is not necessary for the growth of mushrooms.

"Lighting the 468 trays would be a staggering design problems" Mr. Karez says, "and the light fixtures probably couldn't stand up to the high heat we use for pasteurization. So we grow them in the dark.



Joe Karaz with mushrooms.

How to Enjoy Mushrooms

Since like most Canadians you'll probably eat about 3½ pounds of mushrooms this year, you might as well know what you're eating.

First, it's a fungus, a non-chlorophyl producing growth which provides a limited amount of nutrients.

According to the Department of National Health and Welfare, one pound of mushrooms contains about 105 calories, 9.6 grams of protein (hamburger might have 85 grams, bacon 40 grams) 16 grams of carbohydrate and just over one gram of fat. A pound of mushrooms would supply four milligrams of iron (not as good as beet greens, better than potatoes), limited vitamin C and a good supply of niacin — more than four times as much as most vegetables.

Fresh mushrooms should be stored uncleaned in the refrigerator, spread in layers. To clean either wipe with a damp cloth or rinse very quickly in a colander with cold running water. Place on dry towel. Never soak mushroom.

To preserve light color in cooking, toss with lemon juice.

Don't overcook musrooms and don't cook in black iron pan or in aluminum. Save stems and use in stews and casseroles.

Joe Karaz, manager of the Wellington mushroom farm, says he's never found a successful way to freeze them and finds fresh mushrooms best.

It's Time to Volunteer

With the end of summer comes the beginning of a variety of community services — all needing volunteer help in order to function. A few hours here, a few hours there, volunteered by willing Bellevillians, means that essential meals are delivered, phones answered, rides given and help offered.

"It's the time of year for type of community involvement they want to get into," says Ruth Burrows of the Central Volunteer Bureau.

"We need volunteers in every area, and are ready to assign them to several jobs that are presently open," she says. "Interested persons should phone the bureau at 962-1355."

Some of the volunteer positions currently open are:

The Public Health Unit needs clerical help, two half-days a week. Training will be provided for this job.

The Quinte information and Assistance Centre needs a typist two half-days a week.

The Toy Lending Library needs volunteers to help in the distribution of toys to children.

Meals on Wheels needs co-ordinators for Wednesday noon hours only, to pack meals for home delivery.

Soup and Sandwich Service needs a co-ordinator each Tuesday and Friday noon hour, for home delivery of its meals.

The Central Volunteer Bureau needs a telephone convener for arranging its drivers. This job can be done at home. Drivers are especially needed, and any persons able to supply this service on either an occasional or regular basis are urged to phone.

Pre-school volunteers are needed to work with young children in several of the city's volunteer programs. Training will be given for this work, which will involve one or two half-days each week.

Office help is required at the Central Volunteer Bureau. Any volunteers?

RIVER VALLEY WI

On Sunday, August 31, the members of the River Valley Women's Institute catered for two wedding anniversaries in the area.

Roy and Bessie Bush, celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary, were honored by their family at an Open House in their home, and Claude and Essie Tucker, observing their 60th welding anniversary, celebrated with relatives at the River Valley Institute Centre.

RETIREMENT

Approximately 120 friends and relatives gathered at the residence of Ken and Doreen Lowry to honor Cot and Kate Edwards on their retirement from the Madoc Post Office.

The occasion was organized by Ken and Doreen Lowry, Bruce and Helen Warner and Dianne Willock.

Kel Kincaid, master of ceremonies, addressed the Edward's and Doreen Lowry presented them with a gift of money which had been collected on their behalf.

Kate received a corsage of yellow rosebuds while a white carnation boutonniere was pinned on Cot. The couple also received a floral arrangement from the Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 363, Madoc.

The evening was spent in reminiscing and dancing. A lunch was served, featuring a cake, decorated in the form of a postcard.

MOORCROFT REUNION

The annual reunion of the descendents of the late John and Agnes Moorcroft was held at the O'Hara Mill picnic grounds on Saturday, August 9, with 88 family members present.

All enjoyed a dinner under the sheltering roof provided there.

President Rodney Moorcroft, called for a few moments silence in memory of Kenneth Sager and Mrs. A. (Grace) Holmes, after which the election of officers took place. The following executive was elected: President, Rodney Moorcroft; Secretary, Alan Moorcroft; Sports, Ricky Moorcroft; Historian, Alma Moorcroft.

Monte Moorcroft took charge of the sports for the young people, while the adults continued to visit.

Relatives were present from as far away as Alberta and England, although most families came from within the province.

REDNERSVILLE W I

A tour of the Benedict-Proctor Silverplate factory in Trenton was arranged by Jean Vanclief for the August meeting of the Rednersville Womens Institute. Members were guided through the factory by James Leveridge and Claude Benham.

The tour began with the supplies of tin, copper and pewter, metals that are used in the making of trays and teapots and tankards. The members watched h[illegible] metal being poured into molds, and then saw cooled articles being buffed and cleaned before being silver-plated in silver-plating tanks.

A business meeting was held following the tour, at which the members answered the roll call with "Something I learned on the tour."

The needlepoint training school will be held Sept. 25-26, led by Edith Cairns. Members are all contributing cookies to the booth at the Picton Fair.

It was decided to send a donation of $35 to the Save the Sight fund.

No Pats on Head for Political Organizer

OYAMA, B.C. (CP) — Yvonne Cocke, the new president of the British Columbia New Democratic Party, says she has no plans to play a "political" role in the party as some presidents do.

"What a party needs is organization," she says. "That's the end of the business I enjoy and we must all know what we're best at."

She was speaking in an interview at a party picnic in this Okanagan community. The picnic was a stop on her tour of 55 provincial constituencies to gird the party for an election expected in 1976.

Mrs. Cocke, who was "born into politics" and has run several election campaigns including two for her husband Dennis, the provincial health minister, said that "in order to survive happily when your spouse is in politics, you must either drop out or get totally involved."

She said she and her husband travel together on business as much as possible but many times their work takes them in different directions.

"I think my separation from Dennis when he moved to Victoria to enter politics and I stayed in New Westminster with the family gave me the independence which changed a lot of my views on women's issues," she said. "I wasn't always a feminist."

Today, Mrs. Cocke describes herself as a rabid women's liberationist. Although she says conditions are improving for women, there still is discrimination.

"There are many crazy things you have to put up with if you're a woman in politics. Even the social thing is tougher for women, as they are suspect for such behavior as travelling alone.

"Being the mother of four daughters, I have seen the way opportunities cease and doors close after they reach a certain age, particularly in the education field.

"It's a part of our culture. Women are subtly streamed into accepted female occupations and a girl who may have had ambitions about becoming a lawyer or doctor at an early age is usually directed into a typical female vocation by the time she is ready to make the choice.

"One of my really big hang-ups is sports. By the time a girl reaches Grade 10, there are no organized sports to speak of and a girl must be super-aggressive in order to continue in sports.

"That has fortunately been changing because a lot of people have started making a noise about it."

She said laws must be changed before views about women's roles will change.

"In the case of the Canada Pension Plan, I've been trying to get the federal government to accept the fact that housewives are conributing members of sociey and should be able to contribute to the pension fund.

"The roadblock always seems to be the question, 'Who is going to pay the premiums?'

"I say the government must first accept the concept and then worry about the logistics of the thing."

As the first women who is not a political figure to become provincial party president, Mrs. Cocke says she has always been treated with respect by the party.

"I'm very glad to say I'm not getting any pats on the head."

Long-Term Marriages Often End in Divorce

TORONTO (CP) — The longer your marriage lasts, the better its chances for survival. Right? Wrong.

A recent three-year Statistics Canada survey shows that marriages are more likely to fail for persons in mid-life than at any other time. About 60 per cent of recorded divorces happened in marriages of 10 years or longer.

The survey notes that since liberalization of the divorce laws in July, 1968, divorces in general have been on the increase. In 1970 about 29,000 marriages ended in divorce and by 1973 the total had climbed to 36,000.

A decade ago it was expected that a marriage would endure if it made it through the early years. But the survey shows that mid-lifers have the highest chance of calling a marriage quits. Of the 128,000 divorces that took place between 1970-1973, about 75,500 were in marriages of 10 or more years duration.

Julien Payne, director of the family law project of the Law Reform Commission of Canada, says that if society wants to cut down on the number of mid-life divorces then it "helps to be aware that there are critical time zones in most marriages."

Dr. Ben Schlesinger, a sociologist at University of Toronto, says one of the critical time zones comes after the children leave home. If couples have spent too much time focusing on the children, they may find they have lost touch with one another.

Dr. Schlesinger says those who married 10 years ago at the age of 22 or 25 now are entering an individual mid-life crisis with middle-age looming on the horizon.

He says some are tempted to boost their feelings of self-esteem about sexual performance or job achievement by turning to an extra-marital relationship.

Sexual difficulties were not a major problem in more than 100 mid-life marriages which ended in divorce, says Dr. Claude Guldner of Kitchener, who conducted a study with his wife, Dixie.

The most frequent complaint was: "We have different interests and are going in different directions in life."

Many of the couples in his survey tended to marry earlier than the average—before age 20—and had done so on a "need fulfilment" basis, looking for a person who had qualities they felt lacking in themselves.

Dr. Lillian Messinger of the Clarke Institute of Psychiatry in Toronto says she has found recently that it is women "who are wanting out in most cases."

Dr. Messinger says the women's liberation movement and more social support is partly responsible for this trend. Women are no longer content to remain the anchor in the home while husbands are out at work.

Dr. Alfred A. Messer, a United States psychiatrist, says, many of the mid-life divorces are a result of the Second World War.

He says unions made in the war years often meant persons married without the opportunity to know one another well and a "crop" of these war - prompted marriages ended in divorce.

But several experts warn that the increasing number of failed marriages should not be seen as a negative thing.

"Maybe today more Canadians are unwilling to live an emotional sham and are more honest," one expert said.

Hardening of Arteries Cell Change Problem?

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A United States researcher says that atherosclerosis, the major cause of heart attacks and strokes, may begin as a tumor in the blood vessels of its victims.

Scientists have traditionally believed that the disease—hardening of the arteries—is caused by damage to the blood vessel wall, Dr. E. P. Benditt of Seattle, Wash., said Monday.

New evidence now suggests that blood flow in the vessel becomes constricted when a single rapidly-dividing cell from the wall of the artery forms a "plaque," he said.

Cholesterol, a fat-like substance found in most body tissue, then begins to collect on the initial "fibrous cap" formed by the cell's growth. In time, the constricted artery blocks the flow of oxygenated blood, essential to the life of tissue.

Dr. Benditt said researchers have long believed that the caps, or plaques, are formed solely by cholesterol collecting on the artery wall at the site of some form of minor injury.

Evidence now suggests that a virus or chemical agent starts a change in a cell and causes it to start growing, he said. It is also possible that the body chemicals of some individuals may cause the increased cell growth.

Dr. Benditt, here to take part in an international workshop on the disease, said a major risk to individuals with advanced atherosclerosis is that blood clots may break away from the growth and lodge fatally in the heart or lungs.

The disease is considered to be of epidemic proportion in developed Western countries, including Canada and U.S. researchers believe lack of exercise, smoking, diabetes, high blood pressure, obesity and high-fat diets play important roles in the disease process, he said.

Ann Landers

Hot Pink for the Wedding?

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter's wedding is only weeks away. After shopping for a dress until my feet nearly fell off I finally found something I really like.

Well, the dress is causing so much commotion I'm ready to blow my brains out. It's a hot-pink chiffon, closely fitted, a little low in the neckline, but not what you'd call indecent.

Already four people have told me the mother of the bride should wear something "conservative" and not take attention away from the bride. They say it's the bride's day and everyone else should fade into the background.

I say it's MY day, too, and I want to look my best.

It took a lot out of me to raise this girl and I don't happen to believe the mother of the bride should look like a washed-out hag. I can't face another day of shopping but I'll pay attention to what you say. Please be on my side.—Swollen Feet

Dear Feet: Sorry, dear, you lost me on two counts—the hot pink and the plunging neckline.

The mother of the bride needn't look like a washed-out hag, but she should not look like a go-go dancer, either. Save the hot-pink flumber for your next anniversary and settle for a pastel shade cut along conservative lines.

Dear Ann Landers: May I comment on Dr. Chester Ewing's statement that "brown-nosing" is one of the four most terrible words for us teen-agers to use?

In my high school classes, "brown-nosing" was applied not to students genuinely interested in learning, but to those who made every effort to display phoney enthusiasm towards teachers in order to receive higher grades.

Brown-nosing is laughing hysterically at every dumb joke the teacher tells. It is unequivocal acceptance of every opinion the teacher holds—including his political beliefs. It is staying late after class and pretending to be consumed with the subject.

Brown-nosing reduces education to performances for the teacher's pleasure. It teaches the student how to squelch his individuality. It develops all the subhuman skills people need to support a fascist dictator. As an "A" student, I'm thankful I never had to sink that low.—N.Y. Reader

Dear N.Y. You sound like the guy (or gal) a lot of people want to sit next to during a tough history exam. Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a respectable young woman (age 23) and am dating a young man who has asked me to marry him. I am going to say yes but I need to know something first.

In my freshman year of college I fell madly in love with a fellow I thought wanted to marry me. We had sex for several months. When he suddenly decided he wanted to be free to date others I felt really used. "The Romance of the Century" ended on a very sour note.

What I need to know is this Is it possible for a man to tell if his bride is a virgin? He has never asked and probably never will, but I'd like to know the answer to my question—Wish I Were

Dear Wish: The answer to your question is no.

Danson Queries Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — Urban Affairs Minister Barney Danson says he is troubled by recent increase in the Bank of Canada lending rate but hopes it will yield some benefits for moderate-income home buyers.

Mr. Danson said in an interview Thursday that the increase in the Bank of Canada lending rate to nine per cent from 8¼ per cent will push up mortgage rates but this may drive lenders to put more mortgage money into the federally-subsidized home ownership and rental housing programs.

The federal government's own budget for direct loans under these programs already is tight, increasing the need for additional funds from private lenders, the minister said.

"It is a mixed blessing," he said.

Conventional mortgage rates, now ranging between 11½ per cent and 12 per cent, may be too high for upper-income home buyers, Mr. Danson said. But these people were generally already well-housed and can wait for lower rates.

Mr. Danson said that although over-all housing construction is well below last year's pace, production of low-cost housing is up 50 per cent under the federal home ownership and rental programs.

This has placed a strain on Central Mortgage and Housing Corp.'s budget for direct government loans under these programs.

Nixon Rejects Wells

HAMILTON (CP) — Liberal Leader Robert Nixon Thursday rejected a proposition from Education Minister Thomas Wells that the two men meet in a debate on the issue of education in Toronto.

Mr. Nixon said while campaigning here for the Sept. 18 Ontario election he would be happy to debate the matter with Premier William Davis.

In a letter to Mr. Wells, he suggested Mr. Wells hold the debate with any one of several Liberal candidates, including Gerry Phillips, Liberal candidate running against Mr. Wells in Toronto Scarborough North. Mr. Phillips is the chairman of the Scarborough board of education.

Council Questions Modern Fire Fighting Concepts

OTTAWA (CP) — Traditional fire protection concepts are being questioned by the work of a National Research Council (NRC) researcher.

Dr. T. Z. Harmathy, after more than six years of research, says the standard procedure of fighting fires—starving them of air—is extremely risky.

He says better results can be achieved if the fire is given all the air it wants, provided steps are taken to isolate it.

Dr. Harmathy said the common practice of cutting down the air available to fires causes the fire temperature to rise, makes it last longer and increases the danger of serious damage.

"It is very rare that fire can be put out by cutting off the air supply," he said. "There is usually enough air leaking into the room to keep the fire going. It's far wiser to open it up to air."

Dr. Harmathy said the simplest way of allowing sufficient air into the room would be large windows.

"If the total window area is about 15 to 20 per cent of the floor area, there is a good chance that, after the breakage of the windows by the fire, enough air will penetrate to ensure that the fire will not last longer than 20 to 30 minutes and its temperatures will remain low."

He said this would mean the fire would burn at between 300 and 400 degrees Celsius instead of the 800-to-900-degree temperatures now common to house fires.

"For the past 70 years, people have thought fire spread by conduction of heat through the wall or the collapse of a wall or floor which allows flame penetration into another room," Dr. Harmathy explained.

"We now know that most fires spread through open doors left by fleeing tenants or up the sides of buildings through broken windows, but the consequences of this discovery have not been fully realized."

Dr. Harmathy said any house can be made much safer just by putting self-closing sliding doors on all the rooms and making sure there is enough window space in each room to allow adequate air in.

"These measures would hardly affect the cost of houses," he added.

For high-rise buildings, he also recommends the use of a flame-deflecting device for building exteriors to stop the spread of fire upwards through windows.

The deflectors he has invented are light, fire resistant panels about 3½-feet wide with a length equal to the width of the window it is protecting, plus four feet. The panels are held vertically above the windows by a low-melting bolt.

The flames issuing from the windows melt the bolt holding the panels to the wall and they fall into a horizontal position, deflecting the flame and stopping the spread of fire up the building exterior, but still allowing good ventilation.

Dr. Harmathy has also designed a fire drainage system of vertical ducts and heat-activated access and release gates for high-rise apartments.

The drainage system channels the flames and hot gases out of the building and ensures well-ventilated and highly-localized fires, he adds.

Inadequate Housing Poli cies Cost Ontario 56,000 Jobs

HAMILTON (CP) — Inadequate housing policies by the Progressive Conservative government of Premier William Davis have cost Ontario about 56,000 jobs, Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said Thursday.

Mr. Nixon told the Hamilton Home Builders Association in nearby Stoney Creek that a "decline in construction activity has more of an impact on jobs than a change in the output of any manufacturing or processing industry."

The Liberal leader, campaigning in the Hamilton area for the Sept. 18 Ontario election, said that one-quarter of the province's unemployed could be put back to work by reactivating the housing industry.

"Ontario's house-building performance as measured by the annual increase or decrease in housing starts has been significantly worse than the national average in three of the four years since Mr. Davis became premier," Mr. Nixon said.

A Liberal government would produce a "minimum" of 110,000 housing starts annually, he said.

Earlier, Mr. Nixon told a Hamilton high school audience that he could not rule out the possibility of a pay raise for MPPs.

"I'm not exactly sure that $15,000 a year, plus $7,500 expenses is going to be a legitimate amount of money to pay a person who's going to have to leave his community and do the work that is involved in politics," he said.

"We are not saying that we're more important than teachers or less important than doctors or more important than reporters," Mr. Nixon said.

The opposition leader said later in an interview: "I can't promise that just the same as I can't promise not to raise taxes."

The opposition leader spent the entire day campaigning in the Hamilton area after arriving by plane from Ottawa.

Nixon Contradictory On Election Promises

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP) — Premier William Davis questioned the competance of Liberal Leader Robert Nixon on Thursday, saying Mr. Nixon has been quilty of contradictory election promises and multi-million-dollar miscalcualtions.

"If there is anything Mr. Nixon hasn't promised anyone, it's only because he hasn't been asked," Mr. Davis told 350 persons at a Progressive Conservative rally here.

"Mr. Nixon is telling the people of Ontario they can't afford another Davis government but he has yet to bring a single substantive fact to support his slogan," Mr. Davis said.

"He is wrong in his facts and contradictory in his arguments," Mr. Davis said. "He says he wants to reduce government spending but he is against spending ceilings we have put on education. He wants to save money but he is committed to increasing provincial grants to municipalities by $530 million."

Mr. Davis also said that Mr. Nixon has promised civil servants full political rights while complaining about a Conservative government bogged down in political patronage.

Last Chance..

...to make sure qualified voters have been correctly included on the Ontario list of voters.

Revision of the Ontario list of voters for changes and additions ends in the Returning Office, Wednesday, September 10 at 9:00 p.m. EDT.

If you have not been enumerated, or you have found your name has been omitted from the list of voters, or there is an error on it, contact the Returning Officer of your Electoral District.

If you live in a rural area, and are qualified to vote, it's much easier if your name is on the list of voters. And there's still time to get on that list. However, qualified rural voters, not on the list by Election Day, may still vote by having a friend or neighbour on the same list "vouch" for them on oath.

Remember, it's your last chance to make sure you are included on the list of voters.

Museum Changes Image

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

In a move marking a shift from usual museum policy, Glanmore House visitors will soon touch, stroke and actually use a select number of museum artifacts during tours.

A departure from the usual "Do Not Touch" policy, use of Victorian and pioneer pieces in the Hastings County museum signals an attempt by museum guides to better acquaint visitors with the feeling of pre-modern life.

If it works well, says Shelagh Hannon, guide training program co-ordinator, a museum visit will be more fulfilling.

Miss Hannon is a Trent University history and English student, working at the museum under a Student Community Services grant from the Secretary of State Department in Ottawa.

For the past 15 weeks, she has been formulating a guide training program she says will be based more on the interpretation of the museum's collection, rather than a cataloguing of its contents to visitors.

"It's been a no touch museum," Miss Hannon said Thursday. Soon, guides will demonstrate parts of its collection — music box, organ, loom — to visitors. During tours, visitors will be allowed to use kitchen utensils, an apple-corer, for example.

Guides will attempt to interpret Victorian and pioneer artifacts to recreate a period life-style.

Glenda Emerson, a colleague of Miss Hannon, says that instead of labelling pieces by name ("This is a Prussian plate'), guides will instead tell visitors how, or where, it was used.

"'Most people, no matter what their age, like to be told a story," she says.

And more important, says Miss Hannon, a guide isn't going to say the same thing to a two-year-old as she would to a senior citizen.

Glanmore House's approximately 30 guides, and more are now being sought, have previously gotten into a rut. They're bored, she said. A six-week guide retraining program she hopes will end that.

It begins next week and Miss Hannon says "It will cover everything a guide needs to know in or about the museum."

It will deal with the concept of a museum visitor as a guest of the house, and a guide as hostess. Teacher-guide relationships during tours by school children (a large percentage of visitors) will be discussed.

Guides will also receive instruction in use of museum artifacts.

The course will end with a Victorian pioneer dinner and a film set in approximately the time Glanmore was used as a residence.

Playing a Tune

Glanmore House guide training co-ordinator Shelagh Hannon, Demonstrates a Victorian music box that is capable of playing 10 different tunes. The music box, along with a select number of other Hastings County Museum artifacts, will be demonstrated to visitors by guides soon, changing a "Do Not Touch" former museum policy.

Survey Prepared for Candidates

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

Candidates vying for Queen's Park seats in the upcoming Sept. 18 election will be asked within the week to respond to a 20-point questionnaire dealing with major social and economic issues, in Ontario, according to Doug Sword, president of the Quinte District Labor Council.

Mr. Sword said the questionnaire is now being prepared by his council, the Ontario Secondary School Teacher's Association and the Civil Servants Association of Ontario, Quinte branch.

Responses to the questionnaire will be made available to local newspapers.

Mr. Sword said the action was sparked by the feeling "that something should be done."

"We sometimes doubt the value of all-candidates nights," he said. "They are drawing their own people."

Influencing the decision to poll the 13 Quinte area candidates was the response received by the Ontario Federation of Labor to a questionaire submitted to sitting members.

Mr. Sword said that the response the OFL got was "most discouraging."

Only three of 74 Conservative members gave answers, 17 of 23 Liberals, and all 20 New Democratic Party legislators.

Sample questions in the Quinte area poll include: "Would you vote fore mandatory use of seat belts? " and "Would you vote for mandatory, joint (employee-management) safety committees in industrial plants employing more than 15?"

Cox Claims Red Tape Hurts Home Ownership

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

City Alderman Joe Cox Thursday charged municipal red tape is putting home ownership out of reach for many families.

"Municipal red tape and demands made of a developer is contributing to the staggering rise in the price of houses," said Ald. Cox at a meeting of the Quinte Planning Board.

"Every time council or one of its committees ask a developer for extras in a subdivision, the cost is just tacked onto the retail price of the home," he said.

He said all cannot afford Cadillac developments "and that council must begin looking at affordable properties.'

Ad. Cox made these comments following a planning staff recommendation that a subdivision application be turned down because of the length of the cul de sac design. The cul de sac to accommodate 22 homes would measure 1,100 feet long. "This is too long and no second access to the development is included in the plan," planning staff said. The development is planned adjacent to Elvins Gardens.

Ald. Cox fought to delay decision on the plan saying Belleville council should consider it first.

The Quinte Planning Board decided to concur with planning staff and will pass a recommendation along to Belleville for city council to reject the plan.

Bert Kenny, director of the planning board, said his staff, the city engineer and provincial government planners all lodged the same protest that more than one access should be designed into the development.

It was mentioned at the meeting that the subdivider in question had stated the plan would be financially impractical if more property had to be purchased to provide this second access.

"He's trying to provide moderately - priced homes," said Ald Cox, "something be can't do with the requirements we're putting on him."

The developer may appeal the decision at the Ontario Municipal Board or re-submit his application for a second look.

Candidates Formally Declared

The provincial election race in Quinte district constituencies will be run without dark horses.

No new political personalities emerged into the campaign fray as nominations of candidates formally closed Tuesday afternoon.

The deadline came at 3 p.m. when constituency returning officers formally declared nominations closed.

By that time, however, all candidates already known to Quinte voters had filed official nomination papers with the required 100 signatures of registered voters at local returning offices.

Some contestants already had met the requirement well in advance.

In fact, in Quinte riding Carson McLauchlan became the first New Democratic Party candidate in Ontario to file a nomination.

The last nomination filed before deadline was that of Nancy Arnold, Social Credit candidate in Hastings-Peterborough.

Her papers were registered minutes before 3 p.m. with returning officer Lloyd Price at Actinolite by Mrs. Arnold's official agent— Floyd Hawley, Shannonville — area farmer and Socred candidate in the 1974 federal election in Hastings.

The now-official roster of candidates in the Quinte constituencies sees only one riding without an incumbent in the race.

The constituency is Quinte —the seat held since 1967 by Dr. Richard Potter who recently resigned from a political career that led to cabinet membership.

But three Progressive Conservative office holders face challenges. The local election lineup following offici.l nominations is, in alphabetical order:

Quinte — Robin Jeffrey (PC); Carson McLauchlan (NDP); Hugh O'Neil (Lib.).

Prince Edward-Lennox — Keith MacDonald (Lib); Jan Nichol (NDP); James Taylor (PC).

Hastings-Peterborough — Nancy Arnold (Socred); Dave Hobson (Lib); Clarke T. Rollins (PC); Bob Thompson(NDP).

Northumberland — Isabel Kirkpatrick (Lib); Russell Rowe (PC); John Taylor (NDP).

Only Minister's Signature Required for Official Plan

Belleville's official plan, now under provincial government perusal, may be back in local hands by the end of September.

Quinte Planning Board director Bert Kenny said during an interview Thursday the plan has been circulated through all the provincial departments and now needs only the "minister"s signature" before it is returned.

A government spokesman told local planners the post circulation report of the plan has been completed and it is 'judged to be very good."

The plan does not seem to need too many modifications, said Mr. Kenny in his report to the planning board.

Following the meeting, he guessed "on the government's past peformance, we might have the plan back by the middle of the month."

Meanwhile, work is nearing completion on the second draft set of zoning bylaws which will provide the legislative "teeth" to the concept document being considered by the province.

Consultants have for several months been working on the bylaws and accompanying maps.

Mr. Kenny told the board an intensive, three-day meeting was held between planning staff and board consultants in July to iron out final details in the draft.

'We have since been told by our consultants that we can expect maps and texts of the bylaws by next week," said Mr. Kenny.

Once received, they will be sent along for local approval in the hands of Belleville's committee.

Once the official plan and accompanying bylaws have been approved by the city, Belleville development will be charted reducing any confusion of what uses can be applied to any parcel of land within the corporation's boundaries.

United Way Campaign After 30 Per Cent More

By SUSAN McCONNELL
Staff Reporter

The executive council of the United Community Services committee passed a resolution last night to set the annual United Way Campaign budget for 1975 at $146,000.

The campaign will begin October under the direction of Robert Burns, manager of Canadian National Railways.

Geoff Green, chairman of the Agency Review Committee, said the figure was what he termed a "realistic objective".

The budget is an estimated 30 per cent higher than last year's total of $124,000.

The campaign will raise funds for Belleville YMCA, Minor Sports Association, Navy League of Canada, Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, National Institute for the Blind, Victorian Order of Nurses, Easy Rollers, Association for the Mentally Retarded, Canadian Red Cross, St. John's Ambulance, Civic Action Committee, Central Volunteer Agency, and new applicants Belleville and District Children's Service and Quinte Information and Assistance Service.

"Everyone of them deserves as much support as we can give them," said Mr. Green. "But it all depends on what the community can afford."

American Tourist Asked If Oak Leaf on Canada's Flag

By CLIFF KENYON
Staff Reporter

Maple or oak leaf on the Canadian flag?

That was one question an American tourist asked students manning Belleville Chamber of Commerce tourist information booth this summer.

One determined traveller requested a map of the Yukon and another motorist wanted a Vancouver map.

Jackie Emerson, a student at University of Toronto and Mary Hawkins, a student at Queens University, manned the booth on North Front Street from June 30 to August 31.

"Anyone on holiday is in a good mood," said Miss Hawkins and this year there were more happy people than last year.

The two spent the past week compiling results of the annual survey of tourists visiting the booth near Quinte Mall and Highway 401.

This year, 1,266 groups of persons requesting information were asked where they were from, where they were going and the type of information, maps and pamphlets they were given was recorded. Last year there were 1,241 groups seeking information.

"American tourists," said Miss Hawkins, "were the friendliest."

People visited Belleville for many reasons: food, gas, business or job interviews, weddings, visit friends, participate in sports, taste cheese or check out Loyalist College.

But all the requests weren't from out-of-towners. About 400 persons visiting the booth were Belleville residents planning holidays.

A lot of persons, said Miss Emerson, were planning vacations in the Maritimes.

Miss Emerson said it was a good way to pass the summer: "You never know how many people you'd have in from one day to the next."

Chaplin Film Starts Society Series

The recently-formed Quinte Film Society will be showing three classic films, one a month, starting Sept. 12 at 8 p.m. at Loyalist College main lecture theatre.

Modern Time, Charlie Chaplin's first sound film, will be followed by a meeting to determine if there is interest in winter and spring programs.

The Third Man, starring Joseph Cotten, Trevor Howard and Orson Welles will be shown Oct. 10. Isabel, a Canadian film, will be shown Nov. 14.

Tickets for the three-film program are available from the Hastings County Historical Society.

Housing for Elderly May Start This Month

DESERONTO — Construction of a 35-unit senior citizens housing project may start here before the end of the month.

Reeve Georg Lyons announced Thursday that the contract for the project had been awarded by the Ontario Housing Corporation (OHC).

The contractor chosen is Dacon Corporation Ltd. of Kingston.

Reeve Lyons said it was hoped that work "would be started within three weeks.

Originally, 10 units had been proposed about three years ago. However, difficulties were caused by problems connected with the town's water system. Since then, however, town council made an agreement with the provincial government for installation of new municipal water works, the final phase of which is expected to be finished next year.

The senior citizens' residence is planned for the site of the community's old arena — four central building lots which the town sold last year to OHC.

The building, on Edmund's St., will be a two-storey structure, said Reeve Lyons.

Inflation Takes Another Shot at Minor Hockey

With inflation scoring on nearly every shot these days, it isn't surprising to hear that Belleville Minor Hockey Association is currently behind 20,000 to nothing in the fight to keep itself out of the penalty box. That flagrant number represents the approximate dollars minor hockey is shy of breaking even next year.

That isn't quite as bad as it sounds. Originally Belleville Minor Hockey Association had budgeted a deficit of $28,000. However, by cutting a little here and a little there, they have lowered it nearly eight grand.

The organization's original figures were presented to the Belleville Minor Sports Association two months ago. Tuesday night they were returned with the total figure of $56,000 sliced to ribbons. However, minor hockey took minor sports proposals and their own and came up with a, hopefully, happy medium.

BMSA, the governing body of all minor sports associations in the city, wanted to take 5 hours of ice time per week from the Ontario Minor Hockey Association teams. Minor hockey felt they could afford to give up three. In total, minor hockey will use 82 hours of ice time a week — 58 for games and 14 for practice. To accomodate Belleville Minor Sports Association, hockey gave up six hours of practice time and four hours of game time a week. That helped lower their deficit on the proposed budget.

Minor hockey pays $23 an hour for ice time at the Dick Ellis and Memorial arenas. That figure is up two dollars from last year and six from the year before. At the same time, the cost of maintaining ice surfaces in the two arenas has risen nearly four dollars an hour to $30 in the last year.

The rather ludicrous, but necessary, budget of minor hockey is being tabled, with its proposals and counter-proposals, to all of the member sports on September 10 at the Belleville Minor Sports Association's budget committee meeting at the recreation centre on Pinnacle Street.

If that $20,000 plus deficit figure has got you wondering what's going to happen, don't get too upset. Minor hockey worked on a red ink budget of almost the same magnitude last season and somehow made it through.

SLICES — While on the subject of minor hockey, registrations open Friday night and go through to next Saturday at the Recreation Centre, on Pinnacle Street, and on both the initial and closing weekends at the Quinte Mall main entrance.

The times when applications will be accepted at the Rec Centre are as follows: Sept. 5, 6-9 p.m.; Sept. 6, 9-12 a.m.; Sept. 8 - 12, 9 a.m.-4 p.m.; Sept. 12, 6-9 p.m.; Sept. 13, 9-12 a.m.

At the Quinte Mall applications will be taken: Sept. 5, 6-9 p.m.; Sept. 6, 9 a.m. - 3 p.m.; Sept. 12, 6-9 p.m.; Sept. 13, 9 a.m.- 3 p.m.

The registration fee is $15 per participant and any persons not registered by 3 p.m. on the 13th will be placed on a waiting list.

All registrants must have birth certificates before their applications will be accepted.

All out of town participants must have their township lot and concession number before being eligible to play.

Players interested in playing Ontario Minor Hockey Association (all-star) this year will be required to have a social insurance number before being eligible to play.

Any persons interested in coaching, refereeing or helping out in any capacity with Belleville Minor Hockey are asked to come to one of the registration centres and leave your name and other vital information with the BMHA officia's on duty.

Dodgers Find Bright Side to Pennant Race

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Los Angeles Dodgers may have lost a pennant race, but they've found a pitcher.

"He's shown steady improvement over the year," Los Angeles manager Walt Alston says of Doug Rau. "He's proven he can go nine innings. His control has been better and his changeup, too. But the big thing has been his control."

The left-hander has become one of the most vital and consistent starters on the Dodger staff and Thursday night, won his 13th game with a 3-2 National League baseball decision over Cincinnati Reds.

"You've got to have pride," said Rau, whose Dodgers are a hopeless 18½ games behind the Reds in the National League West. "It means a lot to me. At this stage of the season, beating a team that's won 92 games is pleasing."

DOUG RAU

Rau, who equalled his career high of 13 victories, credits his strong showing of late to a restful winter. He stayed out of winter ball for the first time in three years.

"I'm stronger now," says Rau."My arm's healthy. No oubt about that."

In the only other National League games, Atlanta Braves whipped San Diego Padres 2-1 and San Francisco Giants took a 2-1 decision from Houston Astros.

Rau pitched a four-hitter and Willie Crawford ripped a two-run homer as the Dodgers stalled the Reds' drive for the ing number remained at five.

Crawford's homer keyed a three-run first inning off loser Clay Kirby, 9-5. Dave Lopes opened with a single and moved to third on an errant pickoff attempt by Kirby.

Lee Lacey singled to drive in Lopes and Crawford followed with his eighth homer of the year.

The only hit Rau allowed in the first five innings was George Foster's 22nd homer. The Reds made it 3-2 in the sixth on three consecutive singles by Pete Rose, Merv Rettenmund and Joe Morgan.

Run-scoring singles by Ed Goodson and Marty Perez in the ninth inning gave Atlanta its victory over San Diego this season. A crowd of 1,062 watched the game, lowest ever for a major league baseball contest at Atlanta. Only 1,130 turned out for Wednesday night's game between the two clubs.

John Montefusco, 13-7, notched his third consecutive victory with ninth-inning relief help and Steve Ontiveros and Bobby Murcer each knocked in a run as San Francisco edged Houston.

Howell Retires

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (CP) — Harry Howell, 42-year-old defenceman who played 1,550 regular-season games in a 23-year career in professional hockey, announced his retirement Thursday.

Howell, who played for New York Rangers of the National Hockey League for 17 seasons before being sold and then moving to the World Hockey Association, was playing-coach of San Diego Mariners of th WHA, taking what had been a last-place club to the semi-finals last season.

He played in 74 games for the Mariners but a shoulder injury incurred late in the season reduced his participation in the WHA playoffs and was a factor in his decision to retire from the game. The Mariners replaced him as coach with Ron Ingram a few weeks ago.

Howell, born in Hamilton, broke into the NHL with the Rangers in 1952 after three seasons with their Ontario Hockey Association Junior A farm club, Guelph Biltmores.

The highlight of his 17 seasons with New York was 1966-67 when he won the Norris Trophy as the top defenceman in the NHL and was named to the first all-star team.

His 1,550 regular-season games are second only to Gordie Howe of Houston Aeros for professional hockey.

Indians' Robinson Would Like Contract Renewed

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Frank Robinson, first black manager in major league baseball, says he'd like to be back with Cleveland Indians next season.

"I have not been offered a new contract," Robinson said Thursday. "But I have decided I would like to come back and manage again if I'm asked."

Robinson, only man in baseball history to be named most valuable player in both National and American Leagues, said that earlier he was not sure whether he wanted to return.

"I had been debating it, but now I've reached a decision and I know I would like to come back," he said.

The Indians acquired Robinson from California Angels last September and gave him a one-year contract as player-manager a month later.

Fade?—Red Sox Never Heard of the Word

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Remember how Boston Red Sox were supposed to fade in the stretch? As soon as they started to feel the pennant pressure in September, critics claimed, the Red Sox would fold like an accordion.

Well, consider this:: Boston's magic number is 18.

"It'll be tough for them to catch us now," said Boston rookie Fred Lynn, echoing a tone of confidence heard in all corners of the Red Sox' locker room after they beat Baltimore Orioles 3-1 Thursday night to complete a sweep of their two-game series.

"You never really think you're in until it's clinched," said Red Sox veteran Carl Yastrzemski, "but I kind of like our situation now."

Boston's situation, which is looking better and better, is this the Red Sox have opened an eight-game bulge over the Orioles in the American League East, and with 25 games left to play, any combination of 18 Boston victories or Baltimore defeats will mean a division flag for Boston.

Elsewhere in the American League, Kansas City Royals blanked Chicago White Sox 7-0, New York Yankees beat Detroit Tigers 8-1, Cleveland Indians outscored Milwaukee Brewers 10-5 and California Angels defeated Texas Rangers 6-4.

With Luis Tiant a late scratch beause of musle spasms in his back, oston manager Darrell Johnson decided two Red Sox pitchers might do the job of one. So he split the mound time between Dick Pole and Dick Drago, and the result was a five-hitter.

Frank White drove in three runs and Paul Splittorff pitched a seven hitter to lead Kansas City past Chicago. Thurman Munson drove in three runs with a pair of singles and Rudy May, 12-10, tossed a five-hitter for the Yankees, who broke the game open with five runs in the fifth inning off Ray Bare, 8-10.

Melrose Advances To Final

This has been the year of the underdog in local playoffs and the South Hastings Baseball League is not one to rock the boat. Thursday night, Melrose, fifth place finishers in the seven team standings, eliminated Foxboro Merchants 3-2 in their best-of-five semi-final with a 6-2 victory. Melrose now faces Latta, the league pennant winners, in a best-of-seven final. The first game of the series is slated for 2 p.m., Sunday, at Latta.

Ted Abrams was the winning margin for Melrose throughout their semi-final. He earned the victory Thursday night and added it to his club's previous two wins in which he was also the pitcher.

Thursday Abrams gave up just three hits, fanned 10 and issued one free base. Loser Ron McTaggart was touched seven times, gave up four walks and set six down on third strikes.

Bruce Pascoe had a pair of singles and Glen McMechan and Scott McLaren each added a double to lead the winners at the plate. John Masterson was the losers' offensive threat with a triple and a double.

Devolin Motors third baseman, Eric Maher, wasn't about to miss Ron Weese with the tag in Quinte Fastball League action Thursday night. However, Maher was missing something — the ball. The third sacker missed the throw as Weese charged from second to third on an infield grounder. The ball ended up out of play and Weese scored. His run proved to be the winner as Bardon held on for a 2-0 victory to square their best-of-seven final series at 2-2. Action resumes Monday at Alemite Park.

BQSA Roundup

Rule Quickly Forgotten

To comply with a new Bay of Quinte Soccer Association regulation, Belleville Parsons travelled the distance to Cobourg Thursday night, changed and were ready to take the field at 5.45. The only things missing were the referees and the home, Cobourg Tony squad.

According to the new requirement, all remaining games in the BQSA schedule were to begin at 6 p.m. instead of 6.30, an adjustment made due to earlier nightfalls.

As it was, the Parsons waited around for 35 minutes before the game and ended up losing 1-0 when Cobourg reportedly beat Parson goalie, Roger Sprague, because of darkness. Apparently Sprague couldn't see the ball. The goal was scored at 8.07 p.m. with three minutes to go in the game.

In other Bay of Quinte Soccer League action, Quinte Hellenics shutout CFB 5-0 and Wednesday Belleville Olympics edged Citizens Finance 3-1 and Quinte Italo downed Warkworth 4-2.

Ted Adams led Hellenic to their win with a pair of markers. Zoltan Vigh not only earned the shutout, but also scored on a penalty kick. Nick Milonas and Nelson Azetdey added the other goals.

The Olympics fell behind 1-0 in the early going, but stormed back to nail down a firm 3-1 lead at the half. From there, they settled into a strong defensive game. Chris Johnson scored the first goal for the winners on Bob Watson's rebound off the goal post. Kevin Kirby tallied what proved to be the winner and Watson scored the third goal, making no mistake on this attempt as he dribbled around the Citizen goalie and booted the ball into the open net. Jim McDonald was the only Trenton player to beat netminder Gary Donavan.

In the other Wednesday game, Nick DelGrosso and Joe Romano scored twice each to lead Italo-Canadians to their victory.

Madoc Strikes Early

Madoc Purinaettes scored three times in the first inning, at home Thursday night and never looked back. They put together 12 safeties to account for seven runs in the 7-1 Belleville and District Ladies Softball League semi-final victory over Ellis Construction. The Construction crew faces elimination tonight at Alemite Park should they lose.

Sandra Fleming earned the win as she scattered seven hits and gave up just two walks. Sandra Claus toiled on the mound for the losers.

Bonnie Jones was the key to the winners offence with a home run and a pair of singles. Teammate Jane Bailey added a pair of doubles.

Sharon Francis and Claus punched a pair of singles apiece for the losers.

Ullman Won't Be Going

EDMONTON (CP) — General manager Bill Hunter of Edmonton Oilers said Thursday that because Al Eagleson is Norm Ullman's agent makes it doubtful the veteran centre will sign with the World Hockey Association team.

Hunter said Ullman telephoned the Oilers' office Wednesday about prospects for the coming season and was advised "to have your agent get in touch with us."

Ullman became a free agent after being released by Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League. He spent most of his career in the NHL with Detroit Red Wings.

Hunter said he is willing to deal with Ullman if Eagleson does not represent him. Any dealings with Eagleson would take place only under specific conditions.

'Our association with Mr. Eagleson has not been good and that's putting it mildly," said Hunter.

"The only way we would deal with one of Mr. Eagleson's clients would be if the agent wrote a salary figure on a piece of paper and guaranteed to sign for that price. Then, based on our budget, we would make our decision."

Square Final Series at 2-2

Foster's Comeback Timely One

If Earl Foster's shoulder was bothering him on Thursday night it wasn't noticeable in his play. A question mark after the second game of the Bardon Supplies-Devolin Motors final series, he bounced back from his injury to hurl a four-hitter, shutout Devolin 2-0 and put Bardon back on even terms in the Quinte Fastball League playoff. The best-of-seven series now stands at 2-2.

"We played good defensive ball and that was the key," coach Keith Stacey said.

Foster walked no batetrs and struck out six enroute to the victory.

The loss was taken by Larry Griffin, who hurled a three-hitter and was the victim of a poorly timed error. Griffin walked two batters and had 10 strikeouts in the game.

The two Bardon runs scored in the top of the sixth inning when Ron Weese opened things up with a hard hit double. He moved to third on an error and scored when Foster singled.

Foster was the big hitter for Bardon with two singles while Weese's double accounted for their only other safety.

The four Devolin hits came from Ralph Plane, with a double, and Griffin, David Horwood and Eric Maher, all with singles.

Bardon Supplies weren't exactly a healthy team going into the game, with three injured players on the field. Earl Foster started with a bad shoulder, Ron Weese played second base with a sore arm and catcher Doug Noble played despite a knee injury. Coupled with the tough Ontario Amateur Softball Association schedule Bardon has to go through and the win is all the more important to the Picton club.

With the series tied at 2-2 the game on Monday night at the Alemite is crucial to both teams. The winner of that contest will have a dominating edge.

Just before the game began on Thursday night, an award ceremony took place at home plate. The First Annual Al Rump Memorial Award was presented to the most improved Ellis Junior player. That player was selected by QFL fans who regularly attend contests. The winner was Paul Wilson, the young Junior hurler who was among the top five QFL hurlers over the 1975 season.

"Al was a big fan and his favorites were the Ellis Juniors" said league president George Rutledge.

The plaque was presented to Wilson by Al's son, Craig, a former Ellis Junior.

Forgets Pain to Be In Forest Hills Doubles

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Maria Bueno of Brazil would give her right arm to be playing in the singles at Forest Hills, scene of her greatest tennis triumphs in the late 1950s and early 1960s.

But that arm, seven times operated on without success, forced her into premature retirement.

Miss Bueno, who won four United States Open titles between 1959 and 1966, is here at Forest Hills foregoing pain in her arm for the pleasure of at least playing doubles and rubbing elbows with today's youthful, and wealthy, stars.

"This is my favorite tournament, it's nice to be back," she said Wednesday after her first appearance at the West Side Tennis Club since 1969.

In today's women's semi-final pairings, No. 1 seed Chris Evert takes on Martina Navratilova of Czechoslovakia, the No. 3 seed, and Virginia Wade of Great Britain plays Evonne Goolagong of Australia, the No. 4 seed.

It is the first time since the tournament beame an open event in 1968, and some knowledgeable observers say the first time in memory, that the top four seeds have survived the quarter-finals.

Four of the top-seeded men also are into the semi-finals—No. 1 Jimmy Connors, No. 2 Guillermo Vilas of Agentina, No. 3 Manuel Orantes of Spain and No. 5 Bjorn Borg of Sweden.

Connors, seeking his second consecutive Open title, breezed past Andrew Pattison of Rhodesia 6-2, 6-1, 6-2 in Thursday's shortest match—one hour, 13 minutes.

Vilas, virtually unstoppable of late, took only slightly longer in downing Jaime Fillol of Chile 6-4, 6-0, 6-1.

Orantes needed two hours,11 minutes for a controversial 6-2, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3 triumph over eighth-seeded Ilie Nastase of Romania. Borg, who opened the day's play before a sellout crowd of 15,627, gave them their money's worth for two hours, 55 minutes before he downed a tenacious Eddie Dibbs, troubled by leg cramps, 6-4, 7-6, 4-6, 7-6.

The Nastase-Orantes show was somewhat of a replay of Orantes' triumph over the fiery Romanian. in the Canadian Open after Nastase lost his spirit over a disputed line call in the first-set tiebreaker. By his own admission he quit trying in that match, a move that cost him an $8,000 fine handed down only Wednesday by the joint Professional Tennis Council.

Don Fontana, chairman of the Canadian Open tournament, said Thursday he is unhappy with the council's decision.

'I am not satisfied with a fine," Fontana said. "I felt that really he should have been suspended."

Fontana said he plans no further action because he was told that as chairman of the Canadian Open, he cannot appeal the decision. Nastase, meanwhile, says he will appeal because the fine is too harsh.

The dispute in Friday's match came in the final game of the final set.

Nastase's service had just been broken to trail 3-5. On the first point for 0-15 he hit a ball down the sideline which would have made it 0-30 and put him en rout to being even again with service in the set. Linesman Adrian Clark called it out. Nastase got mad, umpire Jack Potter over-ruled Clark, that made Orantes mad. Finally, referee Mike Blanchard intervened, upholding the umpire.

Then Nastase frittered away three of the last four points, giving Orantes the match.

Relative Unknown Takes Men's Title

CALGARY (CP) — A 27-year-old Scarborough, Ont. teacher came out of the pack to win a gold medal Thursday in the Canadian National Summer Diving Championships and Pan-American Games trials.

Skip Phoenix, diving for the North York Diving Club, amassed 478.56 points on 11 dives to upset favorite Rick Friesen of Simon Fraser University, Vancouver, in the men's three-metre event at the University of Calgary.

Friesen had an early lead through five compulsory dives but faded in the sixth—optional choices—to finish third.

The silver medal went to Fin Temple of North York, Ont., with 460.32 points, almost 31 points ahead of Friesen.

It was an exceptional performance for Phoenix, who didn't start diving competitively until seven years ago.

"I guess it goes to show that old dogs can still learn new tricks," said Phoenix, a physical education teacher.

It was the first win on the three-metre board in any nationally-ranked competition for Phoenix, who said his age inspired him to greater effort.

The two strongest Canadian divers in the three-metre event, defending champion Scott Cranston and last year's silver medal winner, Ken Armstrong, both of the Pointe Claire, Que., Diving Club, did not compete due to injuries.

Daniel Marcoux, 16, of Pointe Claire demonstrated his ability to compete with the country's best by finishing a strong fourth in the eight-competitor event with a total of 419.49 points.

Only three of the eight finalists were Games Plan divers. The Games Plan philosophy offers financial assistance and special training facilities for those divers most likely to compete for Canada at future international meets, eventually leading to the 1976 Olympics at Montreal.

Two games plan divers who did not make the preliminary cut early Thursday were Ron Carrington of British Columbia and Frank Turner of Etobicoke, Ont.

Teri York of Vancouver led qualifiers in tower diving.

York, the defending champion, will join seven other divers, including second-place qualifier Bev Boys, in the tower finals.

She edged Boys, of Pointe Claire, by 15.96 points in the preliminaries.

Dukes Bow Out

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Shortstop Vern Agnew hit a two-out, inside-the-park home run in the eighth inning Thursday to give Ancaster-Burlington Provisioner a 3-1 victory over London Dukes and a sweep of their best-of-three, quarter-final series in the Ontario Fastball League.

Agnew's fly ball, missed by London's Charlie Winger, drove in Hal Kemp who earlier stole second after earning a walk.

Provisioners now await the winner of the St. Catharines-Hamilton series for the semi-finals. The deciding game in that series will be played Saturday in Hamilton.

Hamilton Waxman Scrappers evened their series with St. Catharines Mr. Jackets at one game apiece Thursday with a 6-0 victory in St. Catharines.

In Oshawa, Newmarket Rays beat Oshawa Tonys 6-1.

Bill Drennan, who relieved Al Few when London scored the tying run in the seventh inning, was the winning pitcher. Metro Szeryk took the loss in relief of Bob Dominas.

Provisioners scored in the third when Tim Salter singled, moved to third on Keith Dow's hit and went home on Kemp's sacrifice fly.

Visiting London tied the game in the seventh on Winger's double, a walk, a hit batsman and a bases-loaded walk to Harry Bartley.

Bill McNelis was the winning pitcher of the game in St. Catharines, with Ed Neudorf throwing the final two innings after McNelis injured his knee. McNelis struck out 14.

The loser was Dick Balint, who went the distance for St. Catharines and struck out six.

Hamilton had an 11-5 margin in hits.

Cookie Appleby had a triple and two doubles for the winners. Bob Christie had a triple and two singles and Dick Bosher a home run.

Bill Berg led St. Catharines with two hits.

Yearlings Sale Tops Three Million Mark

TORONTO (CP) — The 32nd annual Summer Sale of Select Yearlings conducted by the Canadian Thoroughbred Horse Society topped the $3,000,000 mark for the second time in its history following the close of proceedings Thursday evening.

A grad total of 217 yearlings bought final bids of $3,025,800 for an average of $13,944. This represents an increase of 15 per cent over the $12,084 average realized from the 210 head sold in 1974.

The gross figure was up more than 19 per cent over last year.

On Thursday's final session 63 youngsters were optioned for $845,450, an average of $30,019.

Highprice on the final night was $66,000 paid for Windfield Farm's bay colt by Northern Dancer, the last offering of the sale. Purchaser was the North American Bloodstock Agency of Toronto.

Gardiner Farm's filly by Damascus was the over-all sales topper. It was actioned for $75,000 on Wednesday evening to Ontario trainer Norm Boes, acting as an agent for an undisclosed client.

The leading consigner over-all was E.P Taylor's Windfield Farm of Oshawa, Ont., which sent 28 yearlings to the block for a total of $833,000, an average of $29,750.

Soccer Referees Viciously Assaulted

TORONTO (CP) — Those who call the shots at soccer games in the Metropolitan Toronto area are calling for more severe penalties against players and teams that assault game officials.

Ron Edwards, a 13-year veteran soccer official, was attacked four times, losing all his front teeth.

John Hilley, referee-in-chief of the Toronto and District Soccer League, was kicked twice in the groin.

Adam Gillard was kicked to the ground during a game and admitted to hospital with a blood clot on his intestine.

During 1974, there were 11 attacks on officials in the T. and D. league and 18 over-all in the Metro area. This year, with still a lot of soccer to go, there had been nine attacks on officials in the T. and D. league and 15 in Metro.

"'It's out of control," Ray Robertson, T. and D. president, said this week. 'Drastic action is needed, and soon."

Hilley was the latest victim of the epidemic of violence. He claims the attack, which followed a game Tuesday night, was a '"setup."

While one player from the losing team came up as if to shake hands, the handshake became a firm grip and another player from the losing team, kicked him twice. An assault charge has been laid against Cosimo Alessis.

Hilley spoke of one official who filed charges against a player last year. The hearing was postponed five times before the official finally gave up because of having to take too much time off work.

Three similar cases are before the courts, but other officils cannot afford to pursue the cases, he said.

Clubs are subject to $300 fines and, without exception, the guilty players are suspended, often for life. Les Osborne, chairman of the T. and D. discipline committee, feels stronger measures are needed.

"I've recommended that the complete team should be subject to the same kind of suspension," Osborne says. He said six teams have been thrown out of the 84-team league this year, mostly for disciplinary reasons.

Liske Unleashes in Second Half

Lions Get It Together Under Direction of New Head Coach

VANCOUVER (CP) — Cal Murphy is the only undefeated coach in the Western Football Conference, thanks to the strong right arm of quarterback Peter Liske.

British Columbia Lions made Murphy's debut a happy one Thursday night when Liske directed the Lions to four second-half touchdowns for a 29-17 victory over Winnipeg Blue Bombers before 17,073 fans at Empire Stadium.

Liske was the author of the come-from-behind performance of the Lions, who trailed 9-1 at halftime. He threw three touchdown passes and called a near flawless game during the final 30 minutes.

Liske threw scoring passes of 58 yards to Ross Clarkson, 53 yards to Terry Bailey and 51 yards to Jim Young. Lou Harris scored the other B.C. major on a 36-yard run which started the Lions' comeback early in the third quarter.

"There were some holes in the Winnipeg defence," said Liske, "but Lou (Harris) did most of the work himself.

"On the touchdown they hit him in the hole and he still broke the tackle and went the distance."

Harris finished the game with 142 yards rushing on 20 carries, by far his best performance of the 1975 season.

John Wintermeyer completed the B.C. scoring by kicking two converts and a single on a missed field goal from the 30-yard line.

Place-kicker Bernie Ruoff led the Blue Bombers with 11 points on three first-half field goals, a single on a 52-yard punt and a convert. The only Winnipeg major came on a 49-yard pass from Chuck Ealey to running back Steve Beaird.

Murphy, who took over as head coach a week ago when club directors fired Eagle Keys, thanked the players for their performance.

The Lions, who had a total offence of only 78 yards in the first half, finished the game with a net offence of 491 yards as they gained momentum during the third quarter and continued to play well in the fourth.

Liske hit on 12 of 21 passes for 310 yards. Four of the passes were to Ross Clarkson for 116 yards and three more to Young for 89 yards.

The win broke a two-game B.C. losing streak and gave the Lions two wins in seven games. They are still in last place, two points behind Calgary Stampeders.

Winnipeg now has lost three straight games and is even for the season at 4-4. The Bombers trail the first-place leaders, Edmonton Eskimos and Saskatchewan Roughriders, by two points.

The Bombers had a total offence of 335 yards. Ealey completed 13 of 21 passes for 166 yards and had one pass intercepted by Grady Cavness in the B.C. end zone in the fourth quarter.

Jim Washington caught six passes for 49 yards and carried the ball 17 times for 89 yards.

The Lions lost rookie defensive back Doug Carlson with a broken arm in the third quarter when Carlson tackled Beaird on a kickoff return. Carlson had been activated before the game when Brock Aynsley was placed on the injured reserve list.

Women's View Given By Three Marias

By JANET FINE

The Canadian Press

When The Three Marias was published in Portugal in 1972, the three women authors were arrested. The book was banned and a trial accusing the writers of immorality lasted until 1974, when charges were dropped and the case was dismissed.

The book now has been printed throughout the world and a dramatic play based on it. A book about history and how women think has itself developed a history and a cause celebre for many women's movements.

The three authors, all named Maria, are professional writers and editors. They met to form the book, based on the famous Letters of a Portuguese Nun. The story, with the same plot, is about a young, beautiful nun courted and wooed by a French cavalier who ultimately deserts her.

Surrounding the basic story, formulated by letters, poems and short vignettes, is the constant theme of women being oppressed in society. Social laws in Portugal allow a father and later a husband to rule over the woman financially and socially. Some of these laws exist today, the writers point out.

What probably infuriated the persons arresting the writers more than a look at social injustice is their candid portrayal of what lies under a woman's smile as she submits to a man. The authors show Mariana, the young nun, and women in loveless marriages, equal prisoners of life and love.

The pages relate love-making experiences and sexual encounters, giving a woman's point of view. The women portrayed, write joyfully of their love, but usually end up in regrets. Interior emotions are deeply explored and analysed.

Sexual fantasies (one is never sure what is real) intermingle with Mariana's letters to her cavalier who has returned to France. She describes their love-making and repents that she was too trusting and loving.

The authors ask:

"Will love ever find any other way save this: love that uses or is used? Love that devours or is devoured; that pretends to be devoured only to devour in turn?"

The Three Marias tears away a woman's facade to expose gut feelings, directly expressing emotions usually never revealed in a life-time.

The Three Marias, New Portuguese Letters by Mario Barreno, Maria Horta, Maria Velha da Costa; 429 pages; $11.50; Doubleday.

Fear of Flying Provides Problem

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My problem is fear of flying. What can I do to lick this fear? I want so badly to take my dear wife to see Europe, and we can't fulfil a dream because I lack guts.

Everyone tells me I should have a few drinks and a cigarette, and that will do the trick, but I neither smoke nor drink. Don't tell me to take a boat. The thought of being on the open ocean sends me into a state of panic. Can you help?—A.S.

Yours is a real problem shared by many, even by some businessmen who must fly often.

I have a friend who had a morbid fear of flying but his business required it. His company did not like the idea of his driving long distances.

On my suggestion, he prevailed on an experienced flying friend to accompany him on a short flight. He overcame the fear on that flight, and he saved himself the costly series of psychological counselling, which is often the alternative.

In one metropolitan area, the problem is handled by group therapy. A pilot and hostess talk to the groups prior to a short flight.

Sedative by alcohol or otherwise is used by some, but for many it can become a good excuse to overindulge.

Has your wife flown? She should be able to help. Perhaps she could become your "companion" on a test flight.

Most of the apprehension surrounds the take-off and landing. Once aloft you are hardly aware of movement. The fear of flight over water can likewise be overcome. I once wondered about being over water myself. Having done it, I have lost any anxiety.

Also, once you are at the airport and observe the thousands of fellow passengers scurrying to and from their planes, the psychological effect should be one of assurance.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: For some years I have been having a cocktail of scotch whisky before dinner each evening, finding it has helped my digestion. Also it helps me sleep.

Recently, I have thought it rather excited me more than calmed me. Would you comment? I'm in my 80s.—T.E.

Alcohol is a sedative, even the ounce or two you get with your scotch. The "excitement" you experience is more apparent to you than real. Higher levels of alcohol in the blood may produce behavioral changes that seem to suggest stimulation of the brain.

This usually results from depression of brain centres that inhibit such behavior normally.

There would be some cause other than alcohol involved in any true feeling of excitement.

If your evening cocktail is helpful to you, as you say it is, then I see no reason to discontinue it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is macular degeneration? What causes it, and can anything be done for it? Does one go to some specialist for this condition?—Mrs. K.L.

The macula or fovea, as it is also called, is a specialized portion of the retina, that inner coating of light-sensitive cells which receives and transmits images from the eye to the brain. It is the macula that provides us our finest vision.

Degeneration is, of course, any disturbance in the functioning of this retinal area. Of the degenerative macula disorders, senile macular degeneration is probably the most common, being associated with the natural aging process.

However, other types can be associated with various diseases that can affect the eyes, diabetes, arteriosclerosis and others. Here, treatment of the underlying cause can often retard further degeneration. An ophthalmologist specializes in such disorders.

Unemployment Declines

STOCKHOLM (CP) — Unemployment in Sweden in July of this year was registered at 53,000 people or 1.2 per cent of the labor force, according to the national central bureau of statistics. This compares with 1.5 per cent in June and with 1.7 per cent in July, 1974. The decline is partly of a seasonal nature, it stated.

South wasted no time in the play. He won the first trick with dummy's king of spades and led a diamond. East went right up with the ace and led a second spade.

South's jack fell to West's queen and West cleared the suit. South ran the diamonds. But when he fell back on the heart finesse to try for his ninth trick, West took his king and two more spades to leave South one in the soup.

South was bitter. "Just think," he groaned, "Three out of three cards wrong. Put the ace of diamonds, queen of spades, or king of hearts in the other hand and I would have been home."

"'Just think' is what you should have done," said North. "Had you led dummy's queen of hearts at trick two and let it ride it wouldn't have mattered where those cards were. Your contract would have made easily."

Needless to say, North was right. South had failed to think.

Ask the Jacobys

A Nebraska reader wants to know what a "Temporizing" bid is.

A temporizing bid is one that sort of marks time. It is made in a forcing situation in order to get partner to give more information. Thus, if you open one diamond and partner jumps to two spades, you may make a minimum sounding rebid, such as three diamonds or three spades, even though you have a big hand and will take further action later on. Remember that once a game forcing bid has been made the bidding must continue to game.

(Do you have a question for the Jacobys? Write "Ask the Jacobys" care of this newspaper. The most interesting questions will be used in this column and writers will receive copies of JACOBY MODERN.)

McKenzie a Saint

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota Fighting Saints announced Thursday they have traded a pair of 26-year-old forwards and the negotiating rights for two others to Calgary Cowboys of the World Hockey Association for veteran Johnny McKenzie and a considerable amount of cash.

Minnesota gave up George Morrison, one of four remaining original Saints, and Don Tannahill, along with the negotiating rights to Wally Olds and Joe Micheletti, former University of Minnesota players.

"We've had a problem of clearing space on our roster so some of our younger players could move and this is a step in that direction," said Glen Sonmor, general manager of the Saints. "McKenzie is a winner and to get a player of his stature we had to give up something."

Tannahill, who played left wing and centre, scored 23 goals and added 30 assists last year in his first season with Minnesota.

Morrison, a left winger, scored 31 goals and added 29 assists. He had scored 87 goals and 91 assists in three seasons with the Saints.

A Welcome That Blossomed

Civic welcome for students in exchange program with Belleville's twin city — Lahr, West Germany — blossomed with cordiality Friday. Mayor Ben Corke suggested roses be passed out among guests at city hall reception who included Iris Frank, 15, (left) one of four visiting students and Janice Misener, 15, of Belleville, who plans trip to Lahr.

Attempt on Ford

Bodyguard Foils Assassin Attack

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A woman disciple of mass murderer Charles Manson got within two feet of President Ford Friday with a loaded .45-calibre pistol, but a Secret Service agent saved the president from harm by grabbing the gun and forcing it from the woman's hand. The woman was identified by police as Lynette Fromme, 26, a former associate of Manson, leader of a group convicted of murdering actress Sharon Tate and four others in 1969.

Miss Fromme, who kept in close touch with Manson even after he was sent to San Quentin prison, was charged with attempted murder of the president.

The thin, red-haired woman was wrestled to the ground after she aimed the pistol at Ford and screamed: "It didn't go off."

The firing chamber of the army Colt was empty, but there were four live rounds of ammunition in the clip.

As agents backed Miss Froome up against a tree and Ford was hustled away by his bodyguards, a witness heard her repeat over and over: "He is not a public servant. He is not a public servant."

A reporter's tape recorder also showed that she yelled: "This country is a mess! The man is not your president!"

Ford was shaking hands with spectators as he walked through a park near the California legislature for a meeting with Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.

"I saw a hand coming up behind several others in the front row. And obviously there was a gun in that hand," the president said.

"I then saw almost instantly, very quick and very effective action by the Secret Service in taking care of the matter."

A Secret Service agent stationed in Sacramento said Miss Fromme had not been under surveillance because she had never expressed any interest in the president. He also said it was impossible to keep an eye on everyone who is "a little out of the ordinary."

Miss Fromme—Manson dubbed her (Squeaky) because her voice tends to squeak when she is agitated—was in Sacramento County jail today under $1 million bail.

A priminary hearing was set for Thursday in Sacramento federal court. She entered no plea at her arraignment Friday.

When U.S. Magistrate Esther Mix asked her if she had any statement, Miss Fromme answered in a clear voice: "No."

She came to Sacramento two years ago to be close to Manson, her spiritual leader, when he was at Folsom prison. She and another Manson follower, Sandra Good, 30, stayed on after Manson was transferred to San Quentin but Miss Fromme continued to correspond with him.

"All the intelligence agencies were aware they were in town," said Paul Young, special FBI agent in charge of the Sacramento office, referring to Miss Fromme and Miss Good.

City Relations Looking Rosy

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

There was a rosy touch to the official civic welcome Belleville gave Friday to its latest visitors from the community's twin city.

Focus of attention at the city hall event was on a quartet of students from Lahr, West Germany.

The four arrived Aug. 28 for a year's stay—part of an ongoing exchange betwen both cities.

Mayor Ben Corke kept the formalities as intimate as possible for the visitors, city councillors and other guests who grouped into the council chamber.

He suggested the occasion be marked by distributing roses to the guests from a vase decorating a reception table.

An interpeter had been invited along to translate the mayor's speech for the German students.

But after a couple of sentences, Mayor Corke goodhumoredly accepted the interpeter's suggestion that the exercise was superfluous since the students spoke excellent English themselves.

"Well, I was just trying to do something nice," rejoined the mayor who has been involved with organizing exchange programs between both communities in recent years.

He told the students he hoped their stay in Belleville — during which they attend high school and live with local families — would be a life-long memory.

British Unionists Back Restraint

LONDON (CP) — In a remarkable about-turn, Britain's 10-million-strong Trades Union Congress (TUC) this week voted two-to-one to support the Labor government's wage-restraint policy, accepting it as the lesser of any number of evils.

"I'm not tickled pink about it myself," said TUC president Len Murray as the congress wound up its week-long meeting Friday in the garish northern seaside resort of Blackpool.

But there were no other options, Murray told the conference. He conceded that even with wage limits, Britain faces increased unemployment, continued recession and a shrinking value of the pound.

The policy restricts wage increases to a maximum of £6 (13.20) a week for the next 12 months.

The hated wage policy was the only way organized labor could keep Prime Minister Harold Wilson's Labor party in power, said Jack Jones, moderate president of the Transport Workers, Britain's largest union.

"We can't afford the luxury of handing over power to Mrs. Thatcher," he said.

Margaret Thatcher is leader of the Conservative opposition.

The wage-policy decision, at odds with organized Labor's avowed philosophy of free collective bargaining, was the traumatic highlight of the meeting which also passed numerous resolutions on comparatively mundane domestic and international issues.

The conference demanded nationalization of North Sea oil exploration off Scotland, condemned the "fascist" dictatorship in Spain, and pledged readiness for positive labor links with the European Economic Community (EEC). Previously, British unions opposed membership in the Common Market.

It overwhelmingly backed a motion for limits on imports, particularly of textiles and footwear, and said the upsurge in sales of foreign-made cars was a scandal in the face of soaring British unemployment.

Quake Shakes Turkey

ANKARA (AP) — A strong earthquake hit a wide area of eastern Turkey at noon today and officials said heavy property damage and casualties were feared.

The officials from the Bureau of Disasters said they had no immediate information from the earthquake area but early reports of extensive property damage indicated there might also be considerable loss of life.

The earthquake registered 6.8 on the open-ended Richter scale and was felt in 14 eastern and southeastern provinces.

Officials said it hit hardest in the eastern town of Elazig and the southeastern province of Diyarbakir.

Elazig's provincial governor, Fahrettin Turan, said the town of Palu in his province seemed to have suffered the worst damage.

The semi-official Anatolia news agency reported from Diyarbakir that four persons were killed in the nearby town of Lice and more deaths were feared there and in towns of Hani and Kulp.

Communications were down between the provincial capitals and small towns in Elazig and Diyarbakir, the agency said.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one number means a tenfold increase in magnitude. Thus, a reading of 7.5 reflects an earthquake 10 times stronger than one of 6.5.

Terrorists Pledge Struggles Continue

BEIRUT (Reuter)—Al Fatah, the largest Palestinian commando organization, said Friday that the Palestinian armed struggle will continue in spite of the new Israeli-Egyptian interim peace agreement.

The statement, issued after a special meeting here of Al Fatah's central committee headed by its leader Yasser Arafat, said: "Our armed struggle will continue forcefully and violently and will not permit any country to bargain on the rights of our people or act on their behalf."

It called on "all Arab national and progressive forces to stand firmly . . . alongside the Palestinian people and their armed revolution in order to face the results of the Israeli-Egyptian agreement, protect the revolution against its enemies, and face imperialist American plans in the area."

The statement urged Arab states to declare a clear and frank attitude toward "Zionist and American imperialist plans which contradict the resolutions of Arab summits."

It called on the various guerrilla groups to close ranks "so that the Palestinian position would be firm and united."

Explaining the reasons for opposing the Israeli-Egyptian agreement, the statement said the accord aimed at "freezing the Arab-Zionist struggle in return for a strip of Egyptian land whereas the Israeli occupation continued in the rest of the Arab occupied territories."

The statement added that the agreement further "legalizes American intervention with Arab approval and this in turn makes the occupation of Arab territories an American-Israeli occupation."

Red Ruler Forced Out

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Pro-Communist Gen. Vasco Goncalves has been forced from power after a bitter six-week campaign by political and military moderates that edged Portugal close to civil war. The move opened the way for formation of a broader-based government.

A communique issued by President Francisco da Costa Gomes Friday night after a stormy meeting of officers at a military base in Tancos, 80 miles north of here, said Goncalves was expelled from the Revolutionary Council, the group of officers that represents the highest authority in Portugal.

In an apparent face-saving gesture, the communique said Goncalves voluntarily relinquished his appointment as chief of staff of the armed forces, announced by Costa Gomes a week after he said Goncalves was being replaced as premier.

No reason was given for Goncalves' dismissal. The communique merely said the council had been "reconstituted" and listed the new members.

The move represented a victory for moderate officers and political leaders who had tried to roll back widespread Communist influence in Portugal.

The way was apparently cleared for Goncalves' successor as premier, Vice-Admiral Jose Pinheiro de Azevedo, to form a cabinet with the possible participation of the nation's two largest parties—the Socialists and Centrist Popular Democrats. They pulled out of the coalition cabinet in July to protest Goncalves' increasingly leftist leadership, touching off weeks of anti-Communist riots in the north.

The two parties, which won about two-thirds of the vote in last spring's constitutional assembly elections, had rejected any role in a new government unless Goncalves was completely removed from power.

Ottawa Funds for Trenton Renewal

From the Ottawa Bureau
Of the Intelligencer

OTTAWA — The federal government will commit $380,000 for the upgrading of older residential sections in Trenton this year under the Neighborhood Improvement Program (NIP).

Napanee has been allocated $80,500 and Peterborough $400,000.

Toronto gets the major allocation — $2.1 million.

Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation covers 50 per cent of the cost of most parts of the program while the province and the municipality pay 25 per cent.

This places the minumum contribution for Trenton and the province at $190,000 apiece.

Trenton applied for NIP funding last December. Mayor Robert Patrick said today that a Toronto consultant, Mike Adams, who prepared the town's request will also draft a program now that federal funding has been made available.

Federal Urban Affairs Minister Barnet Danson and Ontario Housing Minister Donald Irvine jointly announced Friday that 33 communities in the province will share $15 million in federal and $7.5 million provincial NIP funds this year. Municipalities can also get loans from CMHC to help finance their share of the cost while residents of the areas involved take part in the planning and implementation of improvement projects.

The program is designed to preserve older residentiel areas and improve living conditions for those whith low and moderate income, Mr. Danson said.

Rub Shops Visited

TORONTO (CP) — Inspectors are to start visiting Metropolitan Toronto's 84 body-rub parlors next Wednesday to give operators until Oct. 25 to comply with Metro's new bylaw regulating the industry.

J. H. Neville, Metro licensing administrator, said the inspectors will carry copies of the bylaw, licence application forms and health certificates.

The health certificates, to be completed and signed by qualified medical practitioners, must be submitted with every application for a body-rubber's licence, or for a body-rub owner's or operator's licence.

Mr. Neville said doctors must certify that such persons are free from communicable disease and medically fit to perform or receive body-rubs.

Under terms of the bylaw, every licence applicant, must deliver a health certificate to the medical officer of health in the municipality in which she or he intends to work "prior to his licence being issued or renewed."

The bylaw, aimed at reducing the number of body-rub parlors, requires a $3,000 licence fee for owners. It bans advertising except for a sign bearing the owner's name, address and telephone number, and requires that parlors close between 1 a.m. and 8 a.m.

Ltd. outlets across Canada, an Olympic organizing committee official said Friday. About one-quarter of the two million available tickets were sold at Eaton outlets in the first cross-Canada distribution program between May 15 and June 30. Equal Time Asked SUDBURY, Ont. CP — William Stewart, Ontario leader of the Communist Party of Canada, said Friday his party is trying to be included in a series of television debates being staged among political leaders in the province's general election campaign.

The debates over the Ontario CTV network include only Progressive Conservative, Liberal and NDP leaders. Mr. Stewart asks for inclusion on the ground that the Communist party is the fourth officially recognized party in the election It has fielded 33 candidates among the 125 constituencies.

Strike Vote Taken

THUNDER BAY (CP) — The Canadian Paperworkers Union voted overwhelmingly to take strike action today against the Great Lakes Paper Co.

Tom Curley, vice-president of the Ontario-Manitoba region of the union, said Friday that union officials were to meet with the company to discuss shutdown procedures.

He said he expects similar action at Kapuskasing unless there is an immediate settlement there.

The Thunder Bay strike by the 1,400 paperworkers will affect about 1,800 other workers almost immmediatey. The largest group will be 1,200 woodlands workers, members of the Lumber and Sawmills Workers Union. A company spokesman estimated that 125 office workers, 70 electricians and 85 operating engineers will also be out of work.

Unpicked Fruit Rots

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Ed Mailloux, chairman of Ontario Vegetable Growers Marketing Association, says farmers are abandoning whole fields of ripe tomatoes in the Leamington area. Thousands of tons of tomatoes are being left to rot in Essex and Kent County fields because of a shortage of hand pickers. Mechanical harvesters cannot be moved in because most fields are soaked from the heavy rains Labor Day weekend. Estimates put the loss at more than 47,000 tons in Essex County and close to 30 per cent of the Kent County tonnage.

Streaks To New Career

MANCHESTER, England (CP) — The career of apprentice Gary Boswell got off to a flying start when, like all other new boys, he had to undergo an engineering firm's initiation ceremony. His workmates stripped him and made him streak 300 yards back to the factory. His boss said the other staff had found a more modern way to initiate newcomers. "Instead of ducking, they make them streak," he said with a laugh.

Nixon Charges Regions Coming

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Premier William Davis has continued to forge ahead with plans "to impose regional government on every municipality from Windsor to the Quebec border," Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said Friday.

Mr. Nixon made the comments while campaigning towards the Sept. 18 Ontario election, in a speech prepared for a party fund-raising dinner in Kitchener-Wilmot riding.

The leader's schedule did not leave him time to deliver the speech after long addresses by others at the dinner, and he later authorized reporters to use it as a statement.

"In the name of efficiency, the primary results of regional government have been increased spending, higher taxes, and less responsiveness to the needs and concerns of individuals and their communities," Mr. Nixon said.

Mr. Nixon's statements were a direct contradiction of Premier Davis, who has insisted during the election campaign and before that no more regional governments would be instituted in Ontario in the near future.

Mr. Nixon, who is campaigning in eastern Ontario today, said earlier in Toronto Friday that he would institute legislation to set up temporary boards to protect tenants from unscrupulous landlords.

"A Liberal government will require every municipality with a population of 50,000 or more to establish landlord and tenant review boards with the power to examine a landlord's accounts, summon witnesses and permit, reduce or veto proposed rent increases."

In Kitchener, Mr. Nixon renewed a Liberal promise to cut back the power of the Ontario Municipal Board and "revise the discriminatory grant structure which penalizes municipalities that reject regional government."

The opposition leader spent most of Friday campaigning in Metropolitan Toronto before travelling to Kitchener where he made his comments on regional government.

In Toronto, Mr. Nixon pledged a program of legislation modelled on those which he said have worked in Quebec in the last two years.

"Rent increases there were limited last year to between four and eight per cent or about half the rate of increase that prevailed here in Ontario."

Lewis Holds Ground

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — NDP Leader Stephen Lewis held his ground Friday amid charges by a powerful landlords' group that he had accused them unfairly of ripping off tenants.

The Urban Development Institute, a Toronto organization representing 26 prominent Metro developers, said Mr. Lewis picked uncharacteristic examples when he accused them Wednesday of increasing rents 25 to 60 per cent.

"I have a message for the landlords," the NDP leader said as he continued his campaign for the Sept. 18 Ontario election.

"The (rent examples) I chose are becoming more and more representative of what's happening in this province in the major urban settings."

He blamed the Davis government for giving landlords the chance to charge high rents by not providing enough housing. Tenants are forced to yield to greedy landlords because they can't find housing elsewhere, he said.

He told a high school audience here that the problem is province-wide. But he focused on the Metro Toronto region to make his point, naming 11 landlords that he accused of charging excessive rents.

Joint Effort Made

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. — Officials changed plans Friday and said a combined United States-Canadian effort will be made today to retrieve a raft that capsized in the lower Niagara River rapids with a loss of three lives.

The raft, which capsized Aug. 29, claimed a fourth life Thursday when a man died of a heart attack while trying to recover it from a whirlpool where it was trapped.

All Parties Attack Rents

TORONTO (CP) — Leaders of all three major Ontario parties have climbed aboard the issue of damping down soaring rents, rapidly becoming a dominant theme in the province's general election campaign.

Liberal Robert Nixon Friday lined up with New Democrat Stephen Lewis in promising to create review boards that would have power to chop down unjustified rent increases.

Earlier in the stumping pointed at the Sept. 18 vote, Conservative Premier William Davis pledged that review boards already planned by his government will be given authority to take gouging landlords to court. Originally, the boards were to have been empowered only to publicize offenders' names.

The Liberal view on tenant protection is not new—it was first revealed 17 months ago—but Mr. Nixon underlined it heavily for the first time in the campaign Friday after Mr. Lewis had got heavy play in election news by hammering at greedy landlords for days.

WILL BE TEMPORARY

Mr. Nixon said in Toronto that the boards he proposes will be temporary and will be phased out as the province's current housing shortage is relieved.

"A Liberal government," he said, "will require every municipality with a population of 50,000 or more to establish landlord and tenant review boards with the power to examine a landlord's accounts . . . and to permit, reduce or veto proposed rent increases."

Mr. Nixon said his proposals are modelled on those used in Liberal Quebec for the past two years. They would include power for the boards to adjudicate rentals for groups of tenants within a building, so that each would not have to apply separately.

The legislation would also provide for hearings concerning tenant vandalism and failure to pay rent and would enable landlords to evict tenants promptly where warranted.

"But right now strong action is required to protect tenants, many of whom have no alternative but to meet the demands of rent-gouging landlords," the Liberal leader said.

In a speech at Oshawa, Mr. Lewis resumed the topic of rents and said the Davis government should be defeated for doing nothing to crack down on greedy landlords.

Mr. Davis's promise to give review boards power to take landlords to court was useless because courts would bog down with cases and tenants would be stuck with impossible rent bills while awaiting judgment.

Mr. Lewis rejected criticism from the Urban Development Institute of Toronto, representing 55 development companies, which had stated he used uncharacteristic examples Wednesday when he accused landlords of raising rents anywhere from 25 to 60 per cent in some cases.

"The rent-increase examples I chose," Mr. Lewis said, "are becoming more and more representative of what's happening in this province in the major urban settings.'

"In Metropolitan Toronto these big developers who claim to be raising rents ever so slightly are, in fact, . . . raising rents regularly 20 per cent, 25 per cent, 30 per cent, 35 per cent, 40 per cent."

Davis Knocks Grit Tactics

OTTAWA (CP) — Premier William Davis accused Liberal Leader Robert Nixon of "destructive criticisms" Friday and said Mr. Nixon will use "almost any tactic" to gain power in Ontario's Sept. 18 general election.

Seizing upon Mr. Nixon's education policies, Mr. Davis said:

"Unfortunately, from time to time, there comes along a public figure, desperate to achieve higher office, who is willing to resort to almost any tactic in order to achieve his ends.

"In such circumstances, an attempt to tear down public institutions is not out of the question and I am sorry to say that our school system has been singled out in this campaign for just such purposes."

Mr. Nixon says a Liberal government would place greater emphasis on a core curriculum in the province's schools. He says the quality of education in Ontario has been deteriorating while becoming more expensive under the Conservatives.

SYSTEM BETTER

However, Mr. Davis told a Confederation Club luncheon audience that the quality of high school graduates has never been higher and the standard of teaching never better. He said this is evidenced by a decline in the ratio of students dropping out.

He said Mr. Nixon wants "a return to the failures of the past" with his plans "for the re-establishment of rote learning, canes and dunce caps."

The final day of a three-day visit to eastern Ontario also included television and radio interviews and canvassing with local candidates.

Mr. Davis said in an interview at television station CJOH that he is not reluctant to extend his freeze on oil and gasoline past Sept. 30.

He said the government will decide on a course of action when it receives a report from Claude Isbister, Ontario's one-man royal commission into petroleum products pricing, later this month.

Mr. Davis also said he wasn't surprised that NDP Leader Stephen Lewis has promised voters that an NDP government would extend the freeze to at least year's end.

"I'm surprised he didn't say he would freeze it in perpetuity," he said. "He could have gone a step further and promised to nationalize the oil industry."

During his visit to Ottawa, a statement was issued on Mr. Davis's behalf promising legislation to make it easier for women to obtain credit.

"The time is past due to overcome the biases that have prevented women from obtaining credit as easily as men," the statement said.

Big Can Be Bad

OTTAWA CP — Big is not necessarily better, as Paul Taylor, Liberal candidate for Carleton East in the provincial election found out Thursday.

Mr. Taylor, who is six feet, two inches tall and weighs 215 pounds, was told by Ottawa radio station CKOY broadcaster Michael O'Connell that his size was the reason he was not invited on an open-line show attended by two other candidates contesting his riding in the Sept. 18 Ontario provincial election.

Rose Protection After Frost

By ROSS HAWTHORNE

Quite a few people are visiting our gardens and indoor light growing chamber at Venture Farms and they're asking a number of questions, pertinent to the time of the year, many of which I feel have universal interest.

For example: "When and how do you protect roses from the winter?"

Views vary on when. But I don't start winter rose protection until afte rone or two good hard frosts, or just when the ground is starting to contain a little morning frost.

Then I mound each shrub with earth, heaping the soil to a height of about one foot, with the realization that late fall rains are going to reduce that mound somewhat. Now I don't take the earth from the rose bed. Otherwise, I could be exposing the roses laterally which could nullify my efforts to protect them vertically.

What requires protection is the nob or graft where the canes are joined to the wild root stock. The rose of course should have been planted so that the graft is ½ to 1" below ground level and now we're going to protect it all around with 8 to 10 inches of soil.

Mound from the centre. That is, pour your first few shovelfulls of earth directly from the top into the heart of the shrub, then pack your remaining shovelfulls all around. Wear heavy gloves so that you can pat the mound into firmness when you're finished and check carefully to make sure there are no gaps or holes in the mound that will leave that graft exposed.

Now, do not prune roses as part of the winter protection process, except to remove dead blossoms or seed pods. Normal winter kill will do all the pruning you need. And if you prune, the winter kill will start at the pruning point and work downwards. Better you should leave all pruning 'til spring when you uncover and determine what winter has left you.

During the winter, if the mood and ambition so moves you, don't hesitate to shovel the snow drifts on your lawn and pile the snow on your roses. Snow tends to moderate ground temperatures especially on those howling sub-zero winter days.

And of course, always hope for a winter with lots of snow and constant temperatures. It's those bare open winters with alternate periods of freezing and thawing that plays havoc with the queen of flowers.

Another question: "There are spots in my lawn with coarse grass that is long-stemmed and purple in color. What is it?"

That's crab grass. The purple color is a dead give-away. When crab grass seeds in the fall, the stems are a nice purple color. And that means that next spring you're going to have a bigger and better crop of crab grass. Unless you are prepared to fight.

Right now, dig out as many plants as you can in order to stop some seeding and mark the area with short stakes. Because you won't find any evidence of the parent plant early next spring. You see crab grass is an annual that dies in the fall. But what a prolific parent it is in depositing its seed.

Next spring, "before the lilacs bloom", use a crab grass killer or spread a fertilizer containing a pre-emergent crab grass killer and that should end your problem. And it could be a worse problem. It could be twitch grass. And that means real trouble.

"Early Bird"

Mr. Jim Jubinville, RR. 1, Tilbury examines heads of Huron Winter Barley — a new feed type winter barley developed at Guelph. He is very happy with the yield as he estimates that it is going to yield 80-85 bushels per acre.

Tilbury Barley First Grain Harvest

TILBURY — The first grain harvest in Canada began July 2 on the farm of Jim Jubinville, RR. 1, Tilbury.

Mr. Jubinville planted his field of Huron Winter Barley on September 20, 1974, and harvested 90 bushels per acre July 2, 1975.

Huron Winter Barley is a very early six-rowed feed type barley developed at Guelph by Dr. Ernie Reinbergs. Huron is higher yielding and has better winter hardiness than Dover. It is resistant to scald, mildew and leaf rust.

Mr. Jubinville said he plans to grow a second crop on the same ground this year. He plans to put in an early variety of soybeans within a few days of harvest, and feels that the soybeans will stand a good chance of maturing before the first frost.

George Jones, Director of Research for Stewart Seeds Ltd., Ailsa Craig, suggests that farmers in the 2700 Heat Unit areas and up could grow Huron Winter Barley very successfully. Mr. Jones feels that it would be ideal for dairy or hog farmers as it is harvested two to three weeks earlier than other grain crops, and would save these farmers from having to buy any extra feed before their own crops are harvested. It is also generally higher yielding than spring barleys, as it escapes the usual diseases that are plaguing spring sown barleys.

Mr. Jubinville, Jim Rickard, R. 4, Bowmanville; Wm. Coleman, R. 1, Kippen and Stewart Research Acres are the growers of Huron Winter Barley. The entire crop has been purchased by Stewart Seeds Limited, Ailsa Craig and will be sold as Certified No. 1 Seed by Stewart Seed grain dealers.

Off with Their Heads!

Harvesting tons of ripe cabbage used to be a labor-intensive operation. However, in recent years, labor has become a diminishing resource in the province. The success of machine harvesting in many fruit and vegetable crops has reduced producers' dependence on hand labor. This commercial cabbage harvester, the first of its kind in southwestern Ontario, is helping producers get their crop from the field and into the processing plant as quickly as possible. The cabbage harvester is an expensive machine, used mainly for the larger, heavier cabbage varieties destined for sauerkraut processing. Many growers have been interested in the machine, as evidenced by the calls for custom harvesting. But not all of the harvest operations are done by machine. Some hand labor is required for culling of unacceptable heads before the machine takes over. With a capacity of well over 10 acres a day, the machine can easily handle large acreages of the crop at its peak.

Blocking Main Street Not in Everyone's Interest

PICTON — Gold Cup fever has side effects town council learned this week when councillor Norman March reported complaints about a one-day street block to create a Main Street mall for the event.

Mr. March, owner of Rickarton Castle Hotel, said many of his customers, among them Picton merchants, were annoyed by the mall as business was affected.

He said one store owner observed his usual Saturday take of $500 was diminished to about $125 because customers could not drive down Main Street.

Picton mayor Donald King noted he had received "one complaint and 20 compliments" but suggested that in 1976 council could "play it by ear" in considering a street blockage.

Councillor Russell Alexander reported many county residents who regularly shop in Picton on Saturdays could find no place to park and were annoyed.

The Gold Cup races bring summer excitement and extra trade to Picton but organizers may tend to forget that happiness to all community residents is not power boat competitions.

While there is wide support for the outstanding sports event it is not a "must" on everyone's list of vacation plans.

By blocking off Main Street it is likely town council inconvenienced a large number of shoppers who could not park near downtown stores.

The "mall" was of interest primarily to power boat racing fans who could view race craft at close range through the street display.

If the principal goal of the Picton Merchants Association was to provide the public with a chance to see the race craft slated for Gold Cup competition it would have been simpler to arrange an exhibit of the boats at Picton fairgrounds, Mary Street parking lot or the Market Square. If one of these sites had been used a street block would have been unnecessary and shoppers could have visited the stores at no inconvenience.

It's time the merchants stopped touting "special" sidewalk sales of merchandise that isn't likely to make their racks or counters.

If genuine bargains on popular items were offered more than a street block would be needed to reduce trade.

Town council should remember, in sanctioning a street block, that not all Picton and area residents are boat racing fans. Many would prefer to make that usual quick trip to the cleaner's or the gift shop without dodging through every back street in town.

An Interim Mid-East Agreement Between Virtually Bankrupt Protagonists

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

So much emphasis has been put on the Israeli-Egyptian interim agreement signed a few days ago that one forgets the desperate economic states of both Egypt and Israel, a result of the cost of defending their territories or worse, going to war to do so.

Egypt in a manner of speaking is bankrupt, has been for many years, given the requirement to pay the Russians mainly in direct exports for the endless and immense flow of Soviet arms.

The Egyptian economy is a shambles, major projects begun under Nasser, even if some of them were badly-planned, stopped years ago as manpower slipped back into uniform and national budgets dried up.

The Cairo bureaucracy once considered about the best in a normally very slow-moving Arab world, is no longer an example of the way to run a government. But, rather is slowed by sloth and lack of genuine goals.

The major non-military Egyptian accomplishment other than nationalization of the Suez Canal in 1956, has been the completion of the High Dam at Aswan. But it is developing massive environmental problems affecting the life of the Nile River.

The dam is a Russian accomplishment and their awareness of pollution hazards arising from massive engineering projects has been a good long way behind ours in the West.

The Suez Canal had turned out to be the largest single revenue earner for Egypt, but since 1967 it had been closed after the disastrous Six Day War, to be opened only earlier this year.

The vital Sinai oilfields which supplied Egypt with much of her oil, (and that before the oil price hikes came along in 1973), have been under Israeli military control. They have in turn supplied that country with about 60 per cent of her petroleum.

These have gone back to the Egyptians under the interim agreement. So where the Egyptians will no longer pay out about $400 millions a year for expensive oil from her Arab allies, Israel will have to do so now from the non-Arab Iranian oil industry.

Looking at the Israel economy from the balance of payments analysis, it too is just about broke. Yet Israel again will be receiving another batch of weaponry from the Americans, about $1.5 billions in addition to the new weapons now on their way.

Almost half of Israel's annual budget is for armaments, bearing in mind that capital defence outlays are one of the most inflationary items in any modern state's financing.

The average Israeli is taxed even more heavily than the British. Financial support still flows in from wealthy Jewish communities mainly in the U.S. and Canada.

But they too have been hit by the ongoing North American depression and in any case have been asked to buy Israeli Government Bonds now for about 25 years.

Typically, Israel is more aggressive about developing national industries to manufacture expensive imports, chiefly in areas of high technology. And world export programs for now products are as important as ever.

But in both Cairo and Tel Aviv there is growing concern about the economic impact of the long hatred. In this sense the interim agreement is as essential as in the strategic and military one.

Stability With PCs

Leaving aside the opinion polls and the statistics, which indicate a close contest, the best thing that could happen for continuing stability and prosperity and progress in Ontario would be the return of the Conservative government under William Davis. And returned with a good majority.

This does not mean we need a carbon copy of this government's policies of the past few years. Rather it means a Conservative administration that is more sensitive to the needs of people everywhere in the province, as well as renewed efforts in such areas as agriculture, education, housing, and law enforcement.

The cry is heard that the Conservatives have been in power too long — for more than three decades — and that it is time for a change. But there is nothing in the government's record to warrant change for the sake of change, or change simply to give someone else a chance — as some would have it.

That is no way upon which to base a vote of such importance. Bill Davis is still a relatively young man and he heads a government composed of men of like vigor combined with experience. These qualities are vital to the needs of any country or region in the critical days ahead.

To choose otherwise would be to have an administration that is as inexperienced as it is untried. This could be the electorate's fate if it were to opt for either of the two major opposition parties, and if such a choice were to be compounded further by the doctrinaire socialism of the New Democratic Party our troubles would really begin.

There is enough in the Conservative record in the past few years that calls for fresh vision and greater thrust. The Conservatives themselves are capable of it. A vote to this end will mean Ontario still has a sure hand on the helm — one that can chart the new courses necessary to meet the needs of the future.

Now—Striking Convicts

Convicts have been going on strike.

Police chiefs have been meeting.

The police chiefs have argued that it is ridiculous that convicts should be permitted to strike — and they are right.

Criminals and policemen are at opposite poles in society. And both, by reason of their occupations, have forfeited certain rights enjoyed by the rest of us. The convicts' rights have been forfeited as punishment for their behavior. The policemen have forfeited their rights voluntarily, or should have done so. They are pledged to uphold the law, but they cannot possibly uphold today's laws in an unbiased fashion if they are at the same time actively campaigning to change these laws.

We agree with the police chiefs that it is imperative that changes be made in our present laws. But the advocacy of such changes is primarily the business of legislators. The general public has a role to play, too. Any intelligent advocacy of change demands that legislators and the public be acquainted with existing facts. Policemen — yes and even criminals — can help here. But there is a great difference between the presentation of facts and the pleading of a cause.

Convicts should shut up — and society has the power to make them shut up.

But should policemen not also be silent on such issues? And society has the power to make them be.

If they are truly worthy of the role they have undertaken to play in society, they will do so voluntarily.

Bilingual Pamphlets

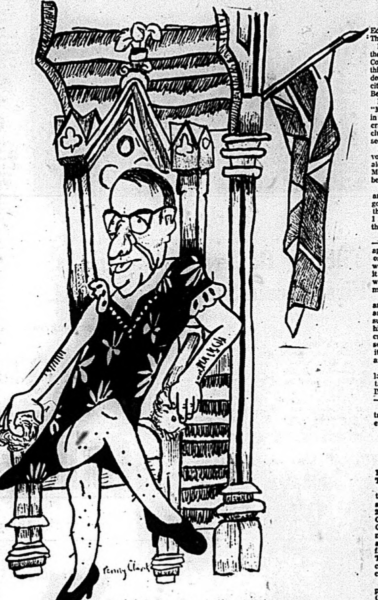
A further look at those useful Ministry of Education pamphlets, available in a downtown supermarket, indicates that with one exception, they come in both English and French versions.

At first sight there had seemed to be a preponderance of French versions, but the English ones were there too, a few layers down. It makes for a costlier outlay at that, when separate English and French versions are printed, rather than producing them in one composite folder, back to back.

In any event, they are informative and there is the opportunity too, with both languages, to upgrade the reader's bilingual skills.

They include the following titles: Who's Responsible for our Children's Education? Flexibility in Ontario secondary school programs; Credit for the School of Hard Knocks, and Learning at Your Own Pace by Correspondence.

All subjects of interest, incidentally, in light of the current provincial election campaign, with educational standards just one of the issues being debated.



Corke Steps Into Jeffrey's Shoes

The Legacy of an Irish Patriot

Ottawa Journal

. . . as the most dominant figure of the Republic of Ireland's struggle for independence, Eamon de Valera brought a tough-minded, practical intelligence to the fight. Those who have known only the de Valera of the last quarter-century, only a patriarchal father-figure, will have missed the revolutionary spirit, the gaunt, dark-clothed man who carried his gun with the rest, the ruthlessness which made him at the same time the most loved, the most feared and the most hated man in Ireland.

That de Valera was the lineal predecessor of other national heroes who came from British prisons to leadership in the independence struggles of their own countries: Gandhi and Nehru of India, Kenyatta of Kenya. Time brought mellowness, respectability and a kind of secular canonization to such men. But such are not the essential attributes of de Valera, the uncompromising architect of Irish independence, the man whose Irish Republican Army flying columns fought the British Army in the marshes and in the mountains.

In the end it is best to remember the old man, the softer man who did not talk personal hatred of the British or enmity of Britain; the old man who looked at the world through his thick glasses, in whose simplicity and candor there was a deep wisdom.

Pot Shots at City Hall

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I sometimes get fed up on the pot shots taken at City Council, because I happen to think they are a pretty dedicated group of elected citizens, doing their best for Belleville and area.

I resent them being called "Municipal Muddlers" engaging in true Belleville style democracy, appointing one of their club to the Mayor's Chair in secrecy.

Is it not legal for Council to vote on the appointment of an alderman to fill the position of Mayor, when such position has been vacated. Certainly it is.

They have the right to vote among themselves, rather than go to the public for a vote — that would have cost $14,000 and I am grateful for the money they saved — some of it is mine.

Their appointment for Mayor — Ben Corke — pretty good appointment. I haven't heard one yet, who did not think it was a good appointment — and it is. He is well qualified — with ample experience. He will make a good Mayor.

He got the YMCA out of debt and that was no small task; and as I recall, despite that successful task which he did by himself, was there not some criticism levelled at him for the secret manner in which he did it? You are damned if you do and damned if you don't.

And I don't think our City has lacked for good Mayors. Let's take a look at the last one — Belleville's first full time Mayor — Robin Jeffrey.

I happen to think she did a tremendous job for Belleville, even to bath tub racing and that takes guts, but then you have to have guts to be a good Mayor, for good mayors are judged on results not talk.

1974 — Belleville Industrial Building Permits totalled $7,000,000 — a slight increase over the $500,000 preceeding years averages.

1974 — 7 new industries and four plant expansions.

1973 — 3 new industries.

1972 — 2 new industries.

1975 — 1 new industry — over 300. reference Belleville Industrial Commission).

It is reported by Manpower, that the employment picture in this area is more favorable than in many other areas. Belleville is still considered as the place to live. Why not? More jobs — less unemployment and it has been said of Belleville, that it is the fastest growing City of its size in Canada.

That's not a bad track record Mrs. Jeffrey. Even if you came first in the bath tub race and struck out the first batter at Jarry Park — you would still get pot shots. As I said — you're damned if you do and you're damned if you don't.

I wish you well. I wish Ben Corke well.

This paper seems to average a complaint a day about some aspect of Belleville life. So if your paper is published 302 days a year — and the City has a population of 35,000 — just maybe that means that there are 34,688 happy citizens.

But one thing about Belleville Style Democracy, it allows those people who constantly complain and obviously do not like living in Belleville, to remain or move on. That's democracy.

Tourist Financing Issue

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

George Coling, president of the Central Ontario Travel Association, announced on August 20 at the regular meeting of the COTA directors, that the Land O'Lakes Tourist Association was no longer a member of COTA and had no vote in COTA affairs. A Ministry of Industry and Tourism official at the meeting concurred with Mr. Coling's decision.

The reason given for the expulsion was that the Land O'Lakes did not agree to pay $2,357.14 to COTA as their share of this year's promotional program. The Land O'Lakes joined COTA under an agreement with the minister that required only $357.15 per year from each of the seven members for joint promotion. The remainder of the grants was to be qualified by the regular expenditures of the member associations. This agreement, if honored, would have provided enough cash input for the Land O'Lakes to carry on their regular program.

If the Land O'Lakes can collect $3,000 owing from COTA and $1,444.50 owing by the Ministry under last year's co-op advertising agreement, we should be able to carry on for the next few months. We will have to find some way of raising about $7,500 more from membership and municipal grants for next year's operation if we are to carry on an effective program. We are hoping for some positive input from our members at our annual meeting on September 29 which will be held in Napanee this year.

Some of the other members of COTA have indicated that they face financial crisis in the next year, however they may have sufficient resources to continue in COTA until the Ministry agrees to a more practical program. Ministry officials say $105,000 is available to COTA. It does not seem reasonable that the ministry would force any tourist association into bankruptcy.

The Land O'Lakes was formed about 30 years ago by local tourist operators. It has done an effective job. I hope it will not be suffocated by ministry interference.

JOHN J. SAVIGNY,
Acting President,
Land O'Lakes Tourist Association.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

30 YEARS AGO

September 6, 1945

Approximately 105 retail meat dealers from all parts of the district heard ration officials discuss the essential points of the new meat rationing at a meeting held in the City Hall Tuesday night. The dealers were asked to apply immediately for their ration tokens, either from the nearest branch of the ration administration, or from any local bank. Tokens will be used to make change when a purchase of meat is less than the full value of the coupon, and can be used later to make purchases of other amounts of meat. One meat coupon will equal eight tokens, and no consumer will be given more than seven tokens change at one time. The merchant may not exchange tokens for meat coupons unless a sale of meat is involved.

Newsmen Locked Into an Exhausting Election Schedule

By DON O'HEARN

TORONTO — The boys on the Bus!

If you see one of our political leaders and a local candidate going down your main street shaking hands and followed by a motley procession of eight to a dozen men and women, the motley crew are the "boys on the bus."

They are the reporters who have had the good or bad fortune to be assigned to the election campaign.

And unless it happens to be a Monday, when they will have had a rest over the week-end, they will be apt to be somewhat bleary-eyed, perhaps a bit unkempt and as the campaign grinds on more and more tired.

The main travelling in this campaign is being done by bus.

There are some plane trips and the PC's even laid on a train for a couple of days. But inevitably, even when these other forms of transportation are used, there is always bussing.

And the main thing about travelling by bus, particularly an election bus, is that it is exhausting.

All parties have the most modern of buses, all specially equipped and all carrying the leaders' and party names.

All have telephones and tables, the Liberals have a small office, and the PC's and Liberals have coolers for beer (Which the reporters pay for).

And the routine on all is pretty well the same. Normally an early start at 8 or 8:30, and sometimes before that, and then stop and start all day. On the bus for 20 minutes, then off for a visit to a campaign headquarters. Another 15 or 20 minutes and a stop for hand-shaking on a main street or shopping plaza or a visit to a home for the elderly.

Lunch is probably sandwiches and coffee at a meeting. Around six o'clock there will be a break of an hour or hour and a half to get copy written and grab dinner. Then back on the bus, probably for a major speech and a few more visits until a hotel or home base at Queen's Park is reached at 10:30 or 11.

It's hard work.

Of course it's even harder on the leaders.

They tend not to vary much in style. The Lewis bus is probably the most relaxed. But all leaders chat with the press, and sometimes will settle in for a long talk.

The Liberals run to schedule. They are highly organized. The others aren't and can dawdle.

Premier Davis has a separate camper vehicle along with him and he uses this for an office and will take to it for longer hops.

But for all it's a grind. In the days when they used to travel by car it wasn't so bad. You could always break off from the main party for a few hours rest and then catch-up.

But on the bus you are locked in. Like it or not you have to go to all those speeches, main streets, homes for the elderly and lord only knows what else.

One time the premier even spent half an hour in a day nursery. Not many votes there? Well perhaps the kids would talk about it when they got home.

THE UNEXPLAINED

It's In Your Hands

It's curious how things that are kicked out the front door have a way of returning by the back door.

Take palmistry. Once considered the province solely of the 25-cent swami in the local tearoom or coffee shop, palmistry has returned in the guise of a reputable science, no less. Of course it's changed its name.

Now it's called — are you ready? — dermatoglyphics.

This is the science or art of interpreting palm and finger prints (or for that matter, even the ridges on the soles f the feet) to reveal an astonishing variety of physical and psychological states.

By dermatoglyphics, say the experts, it's possible to determine whether a child has certain genetic defects; whether he's likely to turn out to be a criminal (and if so what kind); whether he's prone to cancer; even whether he's likely to be subject to depression under stress and what sort of stress.

Dermatoglyphics occur in all humans, though there are ethnic variations. Chinese and some other Eastern populations have more complex circular patterns ("whorls" they're called) in their fingerprints than Western Europeans. Africans in the Congo have less complex patterns than Europeans and the Stone Age Bushmen have the least complex of all.

Though each person has his own unique fingerprints — this uniqueness is the basis of fingerprinting as a method of identification — they come in five basic patterns: Plain arch; tented arch; radial loop; ulnar loop; and whorl. (All this may be as clear as mud but at least now you know.) These patterns don't look too different to the layman but the expert spots them immediately.

Recent studies indicate that certain types of criminals have finger print patterns that differ from those of law abiding citizens, Moreover, with different criminal groups or types there are still further fingerprint variations.

Dr. Carol Baker, chief psychologist at the Des Moines Child Guidance Centre, said: "We found that the relative frequency of certain fingerprint patterns distinctly differed between the criminals and non-criminals."

The fingerprints of criminals convicted of rape, murder or manslaughter had a higher number of "ulnar loops" and a lower number of "whorls" than those of the non-criminals, while those convicted of armed robbery had more "plain arches" in their fingerprints than the normals.

Dr. Kenneth Walker, associate professor of education at Kansas State University, explains the Iowa findings this way: "They suggest that certain criminal groups differ genetically from non-criminals. It has been established that chromosomes, which make up the genes in our body, not only determine such things as color of eyes and hair and physical appearance but also behavior.

"Previous studies have shown that an imbalance of chromosomes in a person can lead to disordered, anti-social behavior. These new studies appear to show that an imbalance of chromosomes is reflected in an individual's fingerprints."

In other words, if you're a weirdo, your hands likely tell the story.

Dr. Charlotte Wolff, a distinguished University of London psychologist, is the foremost exponent of "chriropsychology" — the hands as a key to personality and character. It's very close to old-fashioned palmistry.

In one study Dr. Wolff assessed the personalities, intelligence and behavior patterns of a group of school children solely from their palm prints in ink. (She never laid eyes on the children themselves.) Her detailed comments were then compared with evaluations of each child made by a psychiatrist after personal interviews.

Result: In virtually every case Dr. Wolff's description of the child matched that of the psychiatrist.

"The agreement is complete," the psychiatrist said after comparing his interview reports and Dr. Wolff's palm-readings.

Many researchers have found a strong correlation between the so-called "siminan crease" — a straight line or groove running horizontally across the palm — and mongoloidism, a severe form of mental retardation. (However a cautionary note: The same siminan crease also turns up in the palms of people like millionaires.)

Correlations have been discovered between schizophrenia, the most serious mental illness known, and palm prints. A team at Michigan's State Hospital in Ypsilanti, led by Dr. Theodore Rapheal, compared the hand prints of 100 male schizophrenics with those of 5,000 normal men. They found "distinctive whorls and arches" in the schizophrenics' palm patterns not found in the normals'.

Dr. Fred Rossner of Washington, D.C. an epidemiologist with the U.S. Public Health Service, thinks that even a predisposition to certain types of cancer, and heart disease shows up in dermatologyphics. He says he has a more than sneaking suspicion that finger markings may also indicate such neurological disorders as epilepsy and cerebral palsy.

Next time you go to your doctor don't be surprised if instead of asking you to stick out your tongue he says: "Stick out your hand . . ."

LONDON AP) — Henry Wynberg, the sejected suitor of actress Elizabeth Taylor, was quoted by the London Dily Mirror on Thursday as saying in an interview, "I was her lover . . . . I am still her friend."

Wynberg, a 42-year-old Los Angeles auto salesman, was divorced seven years ago and has an 11-year-old son. He left Miss Taylor last month when the actress rejoined Richard Burton, her fifth husband.

"I want her to be happy, whether with me, Richard or anyone."

The newspaper said Wynberg is living with friends in London and working on contract as a photographer.

LOS ANGELES Calif. (AP)— Robert Fairbairn, who plays young police officer Chris Owens in the television series The Rookies, has been arrested and booked for investigation of drunken driving, police said.

Fairbairn, 28, was stopped by Los Angeles police in suburban Brentwood on Tuesday after he was allegedly speeding and crossing a centre line.

Police said the actor did not a field sobriety test and was taken into custody. He was released on $315 bail and was ordered to appear in West Los Angeles municipal court on or before Sept. 10.

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — Actor Tony Curtis on Thursday filed a $125,000 breach-of-contract suit against an Israeli film maker here charging he is still owed salary for his portrayal of a U.S. gangster in Lepe.

Curtis charged Manehem Golan with failing to pay him $25,000 for his portrayal of the lead role in the film. He asked the extra $100,000 damages because he said he was not given the amount of advertising space in the film's publicity which was specified in the contract.

EDMONTON (CP) — A survey of hearing problems has found almost as many persons in Edmonton are deaf or hard of hearing as had previously been estimated for the entire province. The survey, done for the Alberta Co-ordinating Council for Deafness during the first six months of 1975, shows 2,053 city residents are deaf or hard of hearing. The total for the entire province listed in the Handicapped Registry last October was 2,074.

Homeowners Fear Aluminum Wiring

Despite Ontario Hydro and Canadian Standards Association assurances, many homeowners are still worried about aluminum wiring installed in recent years in their homes.

The fears have been stimulated by Bob Jerabek, Ottawa, founder of Concerned Consumers Foundation. Identified in the news media as a wiring expert, Mr. Jerabek has charged that many homes built since 1965 are poorly wired because electricians have not exercised enough care in the installation of aluminum wiring.

The Canadian Standards Association agrees but information officer Peter James adds "But even with this poor workmanship no one has ever proved aluminum wiring to be the cause of any house fire in Canada."

How much refrigerator and freezer space do you need? According to one refrigerator manufacturer shopping frequency and family size have a bearing on your space requirements.

If there are two persons in your family and you shop once a week, a 10 cubic foot refrigerator with 8.6 feet of fresh food space and 1.3 cubic feet of freezer space should be sufficient. But a family of eight needs from 20 to 24 total cubic feet depending on how often grocery shopping is done.

WOMEN TODAY By Greta Walker

Here are profiles of ten contemporary women — some famous, others little known — who have fashioned meaningful careers for themselves through sheer hard work and dedication. Included are the controversial feminist and women's rights activist, Betty Friedan and Gloria Steinem respectively.

Lola Redford became the cofounder of Consumer Action Now because of her concern with the ecological problems. Although she is the wife of Robert Redford, the film star, she makes a firm stand on her speaking engagements to be accepted in her own right and for her special expertise, and not because of her husband's identity.

Betty Friedan, the first president of the National Organization for Women, does not see men as the enemy. "The bra-burning image which enables people to dismiss us as a silly joke can and must be replaced", she says, and adds, "Men and women must move together to restructure the society."

Biographical sketches include those of a police inspector, a television producer, a day care centre advocate, a pianist-conductor, an obstetrician, a New York City Commissioner of Human Rights, an actress and street theatre organizer.

These ten women realize that the growing strength of the women's movement has made their struggle easier. But each of them has followed her own particular instincts to rewarding dimensions and in the process has brought change to the lives of other women.

This book is available in the Corby Public Library.

HAMILTON (CP) — The multicultural centre is running a project called English for Mothers at Home, making it possible for women who cannot participate in regular courses offered at the centre to learn the language. Teachers are volunteers and books are supplied by Ontario's ministry of culture and recreation.

Local Crafts at Art Mart

For the first time, the annual Art Mart sponsored by the Quinte Arts Council is being held in the Quinte Mall.

"We're hoping for better exposure here," says Peter Antonucci, QAC chairman who organized the event, that started Friday and ends Saturday at 5:30 p.m.

"Although our timing is a little earlier than we'd like, this was the only booking we could get at the mall, and it's the only place in the city big enough to support us now. There are 36 artists and crafsmen showing this year, and they need lots of space," says Mr. Antonucci.

"We have weavers, potters, candlemakers and leatherworkers, and a number of artists showing their oils and drawings. Also this year we have some unusual hand-carved wood and soapstone pipes made in Bancroft, as well as the boutique items we've had in the past.

"Since we're paying the Quinte Mall for space use, the QAC won't take a percentage for its own use from the exhibitors this year. But the council expects to break even, and that's all that matters. Exposure of this local work is the important thing."

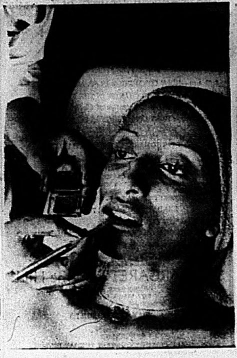
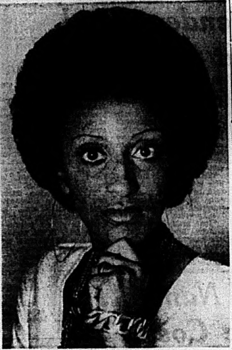
Make Up on Dark Skin

Most black women have some difficulties with oily skin. Make-up can look cakey or change color. Linda Carter, an olive-skinned model, learned all this during a lesson in skin care at a Toronto cosmetic boutique specializing in black make-up and skin care. An ultra sheen copper foundation was applied to even out skin tones and Miss Carter now gets a russet blusher on her cheekbones to give them highlights.



Brown Lipstick

Linda Carter, a model, has a reddish brown lipstick applied to her lips and a coca-colored lip gloss to make them look more even during a session at a Toronto cosmetic boutique specializing in black make-up and skin care.



Finished Product

Eyebrows were darkened with a dark brown powder instead of a pencil to avoid harsh lines during a lesson at a Toronto cosmetic boutique which specializes in black-make-up and skin care. Bronze eyeshadow with a shiny base played up her brown eyes, shiny yellow shadow was applied under her brows, black eyeliner on both lids and black mascara and false lashes completed the job.

Ann Landers

Irate Wives Convince Ann: Long Toenails Inconsiderate

Dear Ann Landers: I can't get one of your lousy answers off my mind. It was the advice you gave the woman whose husband's long toenails cut her legs during the night. It seems she tried everything to protect herself but nothing worked.

Her husband liked his toenails just the way they were and if she woke up with bleeding ankles that was her tough luck.

You brilliant soluiton was to buy a pedicure set and trim his toenails herself. You said he would enjoy the pampering. Well, who wouldn't?

I almost cried when she said she was wearing pantyhose to bed and he was ripping them. Why didn't you tell the big slob to shape up and take a good look at the way he was treating the woman he is supposed to love? Wives are not substitute mothers. If he didn't feel like cutting his toenails HE should wear socks. Where were your brains when you answered that one, Ann?—J.V.K. of Detroit

Dear J.V.K.: On furlough, honey. And I'm sorry. You (and hundreds of other irate females) let me have it in the chops for my answer and of course you are right. I'm reversing myself and adding one more piece of advice to the embattled victim. Stop mending King Kong's torn socks, kiddo. If he has to buy a dozen new pair every three weeks he just might shape up.

Dear Ann Landers: Please settle a family argument before somebody gets hurt. My husband and I have reached a serious impasse.

Who decides when to get up and when to eat—the host or the guests?

My husband's sisters are visiting and they are about to drive me nuts. We're out of bed at 7 a.m. with our kids. The two prima donnas sleep until 11 a.m. When they get up, I have to cook a second breakfast.

Of course they can't eat lunch with us at noon so I have to fix a second lunch at 3:30 p.m. Dinner at 6:30 is "too early" for them, so I cook again at 8 p.m. What's the solutiono—Tired

Dear T.: Let the prima donnas make their own breakfast. Prepare enough lunch and dinner so they can re-heat the food when they get ready to eat. And make no apologies. Invite them to keep you company at the table when you eat and do the same for them—if possible.

Police Officials Claim No Sex Discrimination

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Two North Sydney, N.S., officials Thursday denied that sex played a part in their decision to turn down a job application from a trained woman police officer.

Police Chief Ron Parsons and Mayor Tom Young said they did not tell Roberta Ryan, 22, that they didn't need a woman on the force.

Final arguments in the sex-discrimination inquiry, set up by the attorney-general's office on behalf of the provincial human rights commission, were to be presented today.

The inquiry, the first of its kind in the province, is investigating a charge by Miss Ryan, a native of North Sydney, that she was denied employment because of her sex.

Martin Collins, a former town councillor, supported Miss Ryan's harge.

"I feel that if her name had been Robert Ryan, she would have been hired," he said.

Mr. Collins said that during a December, 1973, meeting of town council, when the chief's recommendations to fill an advertised position on the force were first brought up, there was no mention of qualifications for the job.

Chief Parsons told the inquiry that qualifications were the main consideration.

Miss Ryan was hired by the police force during the summer months of 1973 while she was taking a police training course at the Atlantic Police Academy in Charlottetown.

The chief said during that period her work was satisfactory but added that when he hired her for the summer she was below the weight, height, and age requirements.

If Miss Ryan had met the requirements, he said, "I would have had no hesitation in hiring her when she applied for a full-time job in late 1973."

Miss Ryan says the alleged discrimination has caused her expenses and a loss of income amounting to between $10,000 and $15,000.

Women Still Suffer Wage Discrimination

BOMBAY (CP) — Kamla Joshi, a pretty, college-educated girl, works as a clerk in a Bombay travel agency

Her boss describes Miss Joshi as "an excellent worker." Recently he almost doubled her salary, making her the highest-paid employee in the accounts department.

Several Bombay companies now pay female employees more than their male counterparts. At least two of them—one an export-import organization—have also decided to employ only women as far as possible.

But these are exceptions. Generally women are paid less than men and the position is most unfavorable in India's rural areas.

Following an outcry from trade unions, the Indian government has decided to introduce a comprehensive law to prevent discrimination against women in employment.

At present, salary discrimination is said to be particularly marked in all the three important sectors of industrial activity - manufacturing, plantation and mining industries.

The disparity is the highest in manufacturing industries. Factories manufacturing matches pay their male workers [illegible] times that they pay women.

Women working in agriculture are also discriminated against, though they work with the same degree of efficiency.

Says J. S. Mehta, a labor leader: "Often, women agricultural workers show better results than men but yet they are paid less."

Federal Labor Minister Raghunath Reddy has said that the law would provide for fines ranging from $125 to $1,250 for employers who pay less to their female workers.

Women's organizations and trade unions want those who violate the law to be sent to prison for at least three monhs.

Of India's working force of 180 million, about 30 million are women. Nearly 80 per cent of the women are employed in agriculture.

Government officials say enforcement of the anti-discrimination law may not be easy in rural areas.

"But we hope to make rural employers realize that they cannot pay women workers three-fourths or half of what they pay men workers and get away with it," an official is quoted as saying in the Bombay Economic Times.

Mold May Spoil Nuts

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal health department is studying a possible link between eating nuts and a rare, often fatal, children's disease.

The disease, known as Reye's syndrome, may be caused by eating improperly-stored peanuts, Brazil nuts, pistachios, almonds, pecans and walnuts.

"I must stress that we have very stringent inspection procedures for these nuts and the chances that contaminated nuts could ge on the market are very slim," Dr. C. A. Moodie, head of the food pathology section in the foods directorate, said in an interview Thursday.

He said, however, that he is investigating the possibility of a link between the nuts and Reye's syndrome because Thai children with aflatoxin poisoning have symptoms similar to those of children suffering from Reye's syndrome

Aflatoxin is a poison caused by a special mold common on improperly stored nuts and some grains.

Dr. Moodie estimated that between five and 10 cases of the disease are diagnosed in Canada each year, but the actual incidence probably is higher.

Reye's syndrome affects children from a few months of age to adolescence.

In a letter in the August issue of the Canadian Medical Association Journal Dr. Moodie asked doctors across the country to watch for the disease.

Idea of Transcendent God Is Breaking Out All Over

NEW YORK (AP) — The modern world's "reality police," those dominant influences that define what's real, have blanked out ideas of a transcendent God, says sociologist Peter L. Berger, but repressed drives tend to break out in other odd forms.

That is what's happening, he says, in present-day North America.

"The so-called cultural elite keep saying that religion, God, the supernatural, is not intellectually kosher," Berger said in an interview. "It's pushed under the level of consciousness. But then it comes up, in other, often bizarre ways."

This is the contemporary religious situation in which the historic, biblical concept of a universal God Who created the cosmos, its laws and a freely-choosing humanity has become obscured by a variegated rash of other "gods" and cults.

It's a reaction detected in Freudian psychology, Berger notes, that a repressed reality is apt to burst out in some other deviant way.

Berger, 46, of Brooklyn, sociology professor at Rutgers University and an influential author on religion as well as sociology, has discussed his thesis in recent lectures, and in a recent article in the ecumenical weekly, Christian Century.

"Transcendence," he says, "has been declared 'inoperative' by the major agencies that 'officially' define reality—such as the universities, the school systems, the medical system, the communications media, and to an extent, even the courts."

He says these "official reality definers"—the intellectuals and would-be intellectuals—have imposed on Western minds a so-called "modern scientific world-view" that sees the cosmos only as a cold mathematical design.

This prevailing attitude has little to do with genuine science, he says, but it has become the built-in, overruling assumption of the present-day "reality police."

"The 'reality policemen'—teachers, psychiatrists, commentators and the like—watch over the cognitive boundaries of the culture," he adds. "In their perspective, transcendence in its historical forms is viewed as contraband goods."

But despite the general "repressive" secularizing pressure against affirmation of a supreme God, Berger says, there is "something close to an instinct for transcendence in human beings," and when such genuine drives are repressed they have a way of coming back, as Freud observed often in grossly distorted forms.

"In America, this means very largely the college-educated upper-middle class," he says. "Black masses are celebrated in affluent suburbs—not in areas of the working class. It is the children of the most orthodox secularists, the offspring of thoroughly enlightened modern homes, who parade through the streets chanting Sanskrit hymns."

In such ways, he adds, transcendence continues a "vigorous, under-ground existence. . . . The 'gods', as it were, come in plain brown envelopes."

Love Worthy of Name Will Always Be Costly

By DR. GORDON C. SMYTH

One would have to be deaf not to hear the sexuality explosion in our times. Christianity takes a logical stand on the wholeness of life.

How are young people to manage the integration of sexual desire with other needs in order that wholeness may be achieved? The Christian religion maintains that the ideal gratification of this mysterious, natural and potentially beautiful desire is found in monogamous marriage. Sex is placed inside the framework of commitment and responsibility.

We witness a lot of "trial marriages" nowadays. The experiments may well result in trials and tribulations, but they are no marriage. We also read a lot about "free love". Love worthy of the name is costly. Under certain circumstances, divorce becomes inevitable. However, it leaves a permanent mental or emotional scar, although the wound heals.

Our weak human nature requires encouragement and protection. The State used to realize this with regard to the marriage institution. In a fog of sentimentality and in a panic for votes, our lawmakers have so watered down the statutes that little legal and financial distinction is left between those who live together on a temporary basis and those who realize that genuine love can only be achieved in a fuller context. So, fine young people are confused and, if you must be practical, it is hitting you more at the wallet point of taxes every year.

Not a few of our educators, especially the younger ones who are clamoring to make the teaching profession an aristocracy independent of the Minister of Education and the people's elected representatives at Queen's Park, extol Scandinavia as though it were Utopia. There contraceptives are about as easy to obtain as bread and butter.

Well surveys, in depth, reveal many more infidelities after marriage, in ratio to the population, than in Canada; many more philandering fathers breaking the hearts of mothers and many more philandering mothers breaking the hearts of children. Scandinavia is scarcely Utopia!

Jesus taught, "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God" (Matthew 5:8). To see God is our deepest instinct or desire. The realization of this quest is accomplished, not through good deeds, not even through thought, certainly not through casual sexual relations.

The words of the world's greatest Teacher are clear enough — "Blessed are the pure in heart, . . .". That is to see life and love, and to see them whole.

Sometimes Sin Seems an Asset

NEW YORK (AP) — Sometimes, the pastor says, sin seems to become an asset to the sinner.

It may bring a sort of fame, and occasionally fortune.

"Although the church has not advertised it, it often seems that there are advantages to being a sinner," Rev. Thomas W. Kirkman of First Presbyterian church in Royal Oak, Mich., observes with a touch of satire.

"I first became aware of this benefit in testimony meetings held in churches when I was a child. The godly person who had lived for Christ all his life got little attention from the audience.

"The person who had broken all of the 10 commandments and then had been 'saved' had the more interesting story to tell. I felt it was unfair that the sinner got all the attention while the 'saint' was considered something of a bore."

Mr. Kirkman, writing in the United Presbyterian periodical for clergymen, Monday Morning, says the same twist seems to apply on the national scene among public personalities.

"Strange as it may seem, even the best of mankind seems more interested in misdeeds of the sinner than in the virtues of the good life," he says.

As a notable example, he singles out Watergate conspirator John Dean, who as a result of his involvement in the scandal now is a "featured speaker throughout the nation—particularly on idealistic college campuses.

"For this he is earning hundreds of thousands of dollars. It is also reported that the first rights to his book have brought $300,000. It would seem that 'sin' is paying well—even in these days of recession."

What is disturbing, says Mr. Kirkman, is that "the sinner suddenly becomes an authority on what is good and moral."

Mr. Kirkman says he questions "the morality of the individual profiting by his sin in the name of goodness." But politicians and lawyers aren't the only ones who do it, he says, adding that it often happens in the case of clergymen.

He says that an increasing number of ministers are experiencing broken marriages and divorce, and often leave their pastorates for other work.

"In nine cases out of 10, these former clergymen have found employment as 'marriage counsellors,' conflict-resolution counsellors or in social services," he says.

"It has always appeared to me that having 'flunked the course,' they have been elevated to teaching it. . . . The 'sinner' has become the 'teacher.'"

NDP Charges Other Parties Breaking Law with Election Signs

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

Liberal Hugh O'Neil and Conservative Robin Jeffrey are breaking a Trenton bylaw prohibiting erection of election placards on public property and town officials are looking the other way, Ian Reilly, Quinte riding campaign manager for NDP candidate Carson McLauchlan charged Friday.

"I have yet to hear to the town of Trenton issuing any charges," Mr. Reilly said. "It's a violation of the law."

Mr. Reilly claimed both opposition parties are placing signs on public property, including utility poles, a policy prohibited by the riding NDP election committee.

In Liberal Hugh O'Neil's case, he's a "native son" and the "town fathers have given him lots of leeway" he claimed.

Trenton town clerk Aubrey Sharp admitted Friday that "it's obvious the town hasn't been enforcing it."

But he said the town has received no requests to enforce the 1971 bylaw. The bylaw, Mr. Sharp said, makes it "unlawful to put signs on public property."

He said it wasn't enforced during the 1974 municipal election. Action by council would follow a petition requesting enforcement.

Utilities commission manager Doug Manlow said Friday placement of placards on utility poles is not illegal now. Both the Liberal and Conservative party workers have signed documents granting them such authority.

The signs, nails or stables, in posts must be removed by candidates by Sept. 30, otherwise, commission crews will remove them and charge the individual candidates for the work, said Mr. Manlow.

He said the NDP has not approached the commission for permission to affix signs to polls: "We're not soliciting the business, we're condoning it."

In Belleville, Mr. Reilly said the other two parties are not breaking municipal bylaws as noticeably.

Here says utilities commission manager Neil Britton, no signs can be placed on poles, unless candidates receive prior permission from the commission. It has not been sought, and has not been given, he said.

Mr. Reilly said signs on polls, attached with nails or staples, are potentially dangerous to linemen.

He objected to signs in Sidney township syaing that there are so many that "they are spoling the countryside."

In 1967, the NDP did that as well, he said, but "we came to the understanding that it wasn't good business."

"Since then, we've tried to put up fewer signs in better locations," Mr Reilly said.

St. Thomas Canvassing Beginning This Month

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Campaigning to help finance restoration of St. Thomas Anglican church is expected to start later this month.

Meantime, work already has begun on reassembling the church's crafted-stone walls — all that arson left of what once was an historic and imposing city landmark.

A stonemason will direct restoration of the fire-gutted shell in coming months as a fund drive to raise $250,000 is pressed forward.

Dr. Richard Potter, chairman of the church's fund-raising committee says that's the bill the church must meet of the estimated $750,000 rebuilding cost.

The other $500,000 is covered by insurance.

Dr. Potter said the community at large already has shown "tremendous response" to the church's plight. He hears "almost daily" from people wishing to contribute.

Canon Peter Tett, rector of St. Thomas estimated between $10,000-$12,000 already has been raised toward the rebuilding scheme.

This has come from other church congregations, individuals and projects already organized by St. Thomas parishioners.

But the major drive for funds will come later this month, he expected, as business, industry and "'special'" donors are canvassed along with the estimated 400 families who make up the St. Thomas' congregation.

"There's no deadline at the moment," said the rector. "But we're really concerned that it is a case of the sooner the better."

There is no intention of approaching other denominations, although some churches in the city have indicated interest in conducting their own campaigns for the project, said Canon Tett.

A low-interest loan may be available from Anglican diocesan funds, but it also is not wise to tie any congregation with a debt it could not handle, he said.

The response of the appeal among the congregation and others may also have a bearing on how the new church will be outfitted — including its stained glass windows and pews. The church organ, for instance, would cost about $100,000 to replace, estimated the rector.

But, if all goes according to plan, the new church — a structure erected within the restored outer walls — may be ready by next Easter, Canon Tett hopes.

The restoration is under direction of a Kingston firm — Emmons and Mitchell — which sub-contracts the work in stages.

The current phase sees the old walls being readied for rebuilding by Johnsen Stonemasons, of Wellington.

Paul H. Johnsen, who says he has restored more than 20 churches during his 27 years as a stonemason in Ontario, says much of the distinctive Kingston limestone from the St. Thomas ruin will be used. But about $60,000 will be spent to purchase Queenston limestone — the Kingston variety no longer is available — and the first delivery on a 3,500 square-foot order should arrive next week.

Bike, Car Sold Fast

There are times when bicycles and cars move even faster than expected. Like the case of Mrs. F. of Belleville. She listed a boy's bicycle for sale in The Intelligencer and promptly began answering telephone calls. The same thing happened when she wanted to sell a car. It can be a common experience if you have an article for sale. Just telephone 962-9171 and ask to list with The Intelligencer classified ad department. All you have to do then is wait for your own phone to start ringing.

Twirlers At Plaza

The Quinte Twirlers Square Dance Organization will hold a demonstration of their dancing skills at the eastend Belleville Plaza from 7-8:30 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 11. Caller will be Garnet May.

Chief Resigns

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — Police Chief E. K. Anderson, who announced this week he is resigning Dec. 5, is one of more than 300 persons who have signed a petition asking that the Ontario Police Commission hearing into the Stratford police department be reopened.

The hearing was adjourned indefinitely Wednesday on its first day, following announcement of the resignation of the chief, a veteran of 30 years on the force.

Chief Anderson said Friday he signed the petition 'as a taxpayer."

The hearing was requested by the Stratford Police Commission after suggestions earlier this year that the chief had lost his hiring powers and after the firing and subsequent rehiring of the city's first policewoman, Jacqueline Hall.

Davis Offers Rights

OTTAWA CP — Premier William Davis has promised that if re-elected Sept. 18 his Conservative government will amend the province's Human Rights Code to give women the same credit financing privileges now afforded men.

Brighton Dentist Practices 50 Years

BRIGHTON — Quinte district dentists have honored one of their most distinguished colleagues.

Among Dr. Frank Henry Dunnett's distinctions is his length of service in his profession.

The 76-year-old dentist, a well-known personality in this area, has been in practice for a half-century.

And, for the occasion, the Bay of Quinte Dental Society presented him with a special certificate marking his years of professional service.

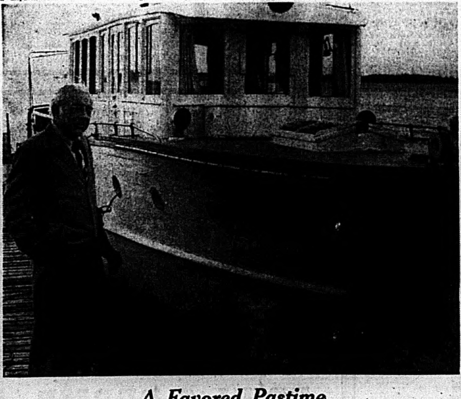
But, during those years, Dr. Dunnett also has been an active figure in community events.

A native of neighboring Cramahe Township, he signed up for World War 1 when he was only 16 and served as a dispatch runner. After the war he went to University of Toronto and finally decided to become a dentist. On his graduation in 1924 he immediately returned to Brighton where he set up practice.

During his years in the village his community activities have included presidency of the Brighton Canadian Legion branch; treasurer of the village's United Church; election as master of the local Masonic Lodge. He also is a past president of the Bay of Quinte Dental Society.

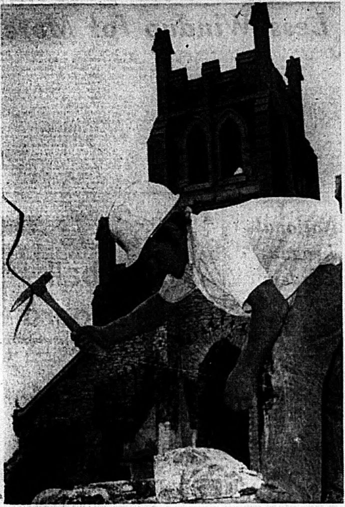
His prime personal interests include boating and as a member of the Presqu'ile Power Squadron has won several trophies for navigation.

He also pursues duck-hunting and fishing.



A Favored Pastime

At 76, Dr. Frank Dunnett of Brighton has been practising dentistry for 50 years. His spare time is kept busy with a variety of interests — among them boating, aboard his 60-foot craft Nautilus.



Church Work Underway

— Dave Conley, Bloomfield, worker for local stonemason chips fire-damaged stone from walls of St. Thomas as early phase of restoration gets underway. Meanwhile, campaign is expected to get underway before month's end to raise $250,000 needed for project, estimated to cost $750,000.

Taxi Bill Worries Loyalist

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Loyalist College administrators are attempting to find new homes for a group of Venezuelan students that will bring them closer to the college and reduce travel expenses.

Art McFarlane, director of student services, said during an interview Friday, the three Venezuelan girls and 17 boys participating in the program have all been lodged.

But the males are located some distance from the college and taxi bills are piling up, said Mr. McFarlane.

"We'd like to get them homes in the city where bus routes would handle the commuting problems," said Mr. McFarlane.

The Venezuelan government is absorbing al costs of the trip. The idea of the student program is to broaden language skills. About 100 South American students are attending four Ontario community colleges.

Any families interested in housing these students are asked to contact the college's department of student services.

Parking Funding On Council List

Belleville city council returns to its normal schedule of meetings Monday — after a summer break that brought sudden change at the top.

The session will be the first regular meeting conducted by Mayor Ben Corke.

The veteran city councillor was appointed to succeed Robin Jeffrey after she resigned to run as provincial Progressive Conservative candidate in Quinte riding.

The Jeffrey resignation had other side affects on council representation. Monday, council will be asked to solve one such result: appointment of newcomer Frank Seemungal called to fill the vacancy caused by Mayor Corke's appointment — to fill out Mrs. Jeffrey's term on the Quinte Planning Board.

Other business will see council also:

Hear from a representative from the Ontario housing ministry on a study for senior citizen accommodation; be asked to pass a bylaw authorizing $100,000 in debentures for developing downtown parking facilities; approve purchase of police radio equipment, a fire truck and pumper.

There is also a request from the province's Royal Commission on Violence in the Communications Industry on whether council wishes to submit a brief on the topic.

Ankle Broken In Collision

THOMASBURG — A two-car collision near here Friday afternoon caused a total damage of $800 and sent a Brockville woman to the Tweed Medical Clinic with a broken ankle.

Madoc OPP said the accident occurred about 4:55 p.m. on Highway 37, seven miles north of Tweed. Both cars were northbound.

The first car was driven by Barbara Sheila Calvert, 29, of RR 1, Thomasburg while the second car was driven by Margaret Hill Knott, 66, of Brockville, who sustained a broken ankle in the mishap.

Police have charged Mrs. Knott with careless driving in the incident.

Taylor Chases Snake Issue

PICTON — Prince Edward-Lennox MLA James Taylor Friday called a Friday press conference to discuss a reptile centre proposed for Athol township. Earlier this week a delegation of about 50 Athol residents met with township council in an effort to halt construction of a reptile breeding farm.

Mr. Taylor observed he is "reluctant to impose on municipal concerns" but added that he feels Athol township council is frustrated in dealing with this project that is opposed by a number of community residents. The MLA said he was approached directly by township residents for action in the matter.

Mr. Taylor said he has contacted the ministry of housing to determine the permissible uses for the property in Athol purchased as a site for the reptile centre.

He also investigated Dr. Geoffrey Gaherty and Diane Gaherty, two Toronto residents involved in the non-profit venture.

The MLA said legal action has been taken against the group which was charged in 1973 and convicted in 1974 of improperly operating a reptile breeding farm in the residential area of Rosedale by Toronto Judge Allan Newell. The conviction has been appealed.

Mr. Taylor said a legal opinion is being sought from the ministry and he suggested township council could consult with its solicitor to consider certain provisions of the Municipal Act in relation to the reptile centre.

Clerk Doubts City Control

Belleville clerk Earl Dafoe said Friday broad interpretation of city bylaws indicates the senior levels of government do not have to abide by local bylaws as far as erection of campaign placards are concerned.

His assessment came during an Intelligencer survey Friday over the legality of erection of election signs on public property.

Mr. Dafoe said with the two city bylaws, it seems "dubious" whether they can be applied to provincial or federal government election signs.

The city can, and does, control bylaw signs used in a municipal election, he said. It is not clear whether that bylaw could be extended to include other government placards.

Education Beat

Parents Provide Gentle Stimulus

Several weeks ago a Belleville kindergarten teacher reminded parents of school beginners that stressing the positive aspects of school is the best possible preparation they could receive.

With all grades back to school a week now it may be more important to remind all parents of all students that encouragement can go a long way in providing a better foundation for a student to learn.

Not the kind of encouragement that places undue pressure on a child but the kind of gentle interest and push that may stimulate a child to better achievement. Too often parents take out their frustrations with the educational system on their children, forgetting that while the child can't really escape the system he or she is obliged to live within the limits.

It is not only the school beginners who need strong emotional support but also students in the primary, intermediate and secondary levels. A child can only receive so much support from the classroom situation after that the parents must step in and fill the gaps.

The government, the public and educators will be watching very closely this year when the province's new legislation governing teacher-board relations comes into effect.

On the surface the legislation gives the teachers the right to strike but in actuality it will be a difficult and long process for them to carry it out, should they decide on that course of action.

The new legislation will most likely bring a calm to the education scene in the province but only time will tell. Whatever the outcome much will depend on just how reasonable the teacher federations are with their new power.

If individual parents are concerned about the teaching of the three R's, or any other matter, they should communicate with the principals or teachers. Today's educators are more than willing to deal with students in their family context.

And if parents find themselves very upset with the teaching of the basics they can help by sitting down with their children for spelling and mathematic drills. Education is not solely the responsibility of educators — parents still have a hand in the process.

Find Body In Swamp

COOPER — The body of a 39-year-old Belleville man was found near here early Saturday morning by Belleville Provincial Police dog Sabre after friends reported him missing late Friday night.

Madoc Coroner Dr. C.C. Derry pronounced Hugh McCullough, 89 Avondale Rd., Belleville, dead at the scene. The body was found near a swamp at Cooper, about 10 miles north of Tweed after Belleville OPP called in their police dog.

Provincial constable D. C. Bush said the man's parked vehicle was found about 100 yards with the keys still in the car. A post mortem is being conducted at Belleville General Hospital today.

Man Hurt In Crash

A 21-year-old man was under hospital surveillance with multiple injuries following a single-car crash on Mitchell's Road north of Highway 2 Friday night.

Provincial police said Kenneth Vos, of John St., was the only person injured in the mishap.

Clock Marks 33 Years

Elsie Welbourn finished work Friday as warehouse lead hand after 33 years at AOCO Ltd., 161 Bridge St. W. John Blocha, vice-president of operations, presented her with the clock, a gift from fellow employees. Mrs. Welbourn went into early retirement so she could join her retired husband.

Vail, Thornton Settle Debts

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mike Vail of New York Mets and Andy Thornton of Chicago Cubs each had a score to settle.

Vail used to be the property of St. Louis Cardinals while Philadelphia Phillies used to sign Thornton's National League baseball pay cheques. But after five years with those organizations, Vail and Thornton were sent packing. Their services were no longer needed.

Friday night, Vail and Thornton got opportunities to say "I told you so" to their old employers and they spoke loudly with their bats.

Vail had a two-run homer and an RBI single in leading the Mets over the Cardinals 5-2 and Thornton smashed a three-run homer in the Cubs' 4-3 first-game victory over the Phillies. Philadelphia won the second game 6-3.

Elsewhere in the National League East, Pittsburgh Pirates split a twi-night doubleheader with Montreal Expos, losing the opener 4-3 in 10 innings but winning the second game 5-2. The Pirates now lead the Phillies by five games and the Mets and Cardinals by 5½ games in the NL East.

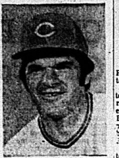
In the NL West, Cincinnati Reds beat San Francisco Giants 4-3 and lowered their magic number for clinching the division title to four games; Los Angeles Dodgers trimmed Atlanta Braves 5-2, and Houston Astros edged San Diego Padres 2-1.

In the nightcap, Willie Stargell smashed his 21st home run of the season to give Pittsburgh the split.



PETE ROSE

Pete Rose reached a milestone and Cesar Geronimo got a lot of mileage out of a ground single as the Reds took another step toward the division flag. Any combination of Cincinnati victories and Los Angeles losses adding to four will end one of baseball's most lopsided races.

Rose, appearing in his 2,000th game, slammed a two-run homer and Geronimo legged out a single to deep short that glanced from third baseman Bruce Miller to shortstop Johnnie Lemaster, whose throw just missed catching Geronimo, as the winning run was crossing the plate.

Burt Hooton scattered eight hits for his ninth consecutive victory and Lee Lacy and Steve Yeager walloped two-run homers for the Dodgers.

Hooton, 15-9, struck out eight and walked only one as he set a NL high for consecutive victories this season.

"I've been more consistent during the streak than I was earlier in the season," said Hooton, who was traded by the Cubs earlier in the season. "And if anything, that's the difference."

Cesar Cedeno led off the eighth with a bunt single, moved to second on a bunt, took third on an infield error and raced home with the winning run on Enos Cabell's ground ball as Houston beat the Padres.

Brewers' Pete Broberg Uses Less Windup for More Control

You don't have to wind up the Pete Broberg doll. It works better the other way.

Since he changed his motion to a no-windup delivery, the right-hander has been delivering better for Milwaukee Brewers—and Friday night, pitched a 6-2 American League baseball victory over Boston Red Sox.

"The change in motion seems to have helped him make fewer mistakes in his delivery and that has helped his control," said Boston's Rico Petrocelli. "With his velocity, his ball moves and it's tough to hit the ball off him.

"Even when he first came up with Washington, there never was any doubt he was going to become a heck of a pitcher. Pitchers usually take longer to develop, but he's still young and it looks like he's on his way now."

Before Friday night's six-hitter against the American League's East leaders, Broberg had three complete games and an excellent 2.81 earned-run average in his four starts since adopting the new delivery.

The victory slowed Boston's pennant express, cutting the Red Sox' lead over Baltimore Orioles to 6½ games. The Orioles cut into Boston's big lead by taking a doubleheader from New York Yankees, 5-4 and 2-1.

In the other American League games, Detroit Tigers bombed Cleveland Indians 11-2; Chicago White Sox checked Minnesota Twins 3-2; Kansas City Royals beat California Angels 5-2 and Texas Rangers whipped Oakland A's 4-2.

Sixto Lezcano's two-run homer capped a three-run first inning for Milwaukee and Broberg took care of the rest. Carl Yastrzemski singled home a first-inning run for the Red Sox and Fred Lynn followed with a single, but then Broberg, 12-13, retired 18 consecutive batters.

Don Money singled leading off the Brewer first, took second on a wild pitch by Bill Lee, 17-8, and scored on a single by Hank Aaron. Lezcano followed with his 10th homer. The Brewers' other run came on Pedro Garcia's fifth homer, in the sixth.

Al Bumbry drove in two runs and Ken Singleton belted a solo homer, leading Baltimore's first game victory over New York. Doug Decinces' tie-breaking single in the eighth inning led Baltimore's triumph in the second game.

A three-run double by Dan Meyer and Willie Horton's 22nd home run keyed a seven-run fifth inning, leading Detroit over Cleveland. Horton later added a two-run homer as the Tigers padded their lead in the ninth.

Bucky Dent's wind-blown fly ball dropped into left field for a two-run triple in the fifth inning and helped Wilbur Wood and Chicago beat Minnesota. George Brett and Al Cowens singled home runs in the eighth inning, triggering Kansas City over California. Brett ripped five hits and knocked in four runs overall.

Roy Smalley's run-scoring single capped a three-run rally in the ninth inning, carrying Texas over Oakland. The loss cut Oakland's lead to five games over Kansas City in the West.

Schroeder Two Shots In Front

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Veteran John Schroeder, who quit the pro golf tour in disgust two months ago, has regained his confidence and touch in two short days after becoming the leader in the $100,000 Southern Open golf tournament.

"Nobody can catch me if I continue putting the way I have for these two days," said the 29-year-old Schroeder after his 66 Friday gave him a nine under-par 133 and a two-stroke edge for the $20,000 first prize entering today's third round.

The six-year veteran of the tour captured the U.S. Match Play tournament two years ago for his only triumph.

Schroeder, the son of former tennis great Ted Schroeder, also led this tournament in 1973 after the second round, but faded on the final day to eighth place.

Schroeder, who had an opening round 65, called his play Friday "beautiful."

In second place was tour rookie Alan Tapie, who shot a 66 for 133.

A pair of Birmingham, Ala., buddies, Hubert Green and Mac McLendon, the co-leader Thursday with Schroeder, were another stroke back at 134. Green fired a 66 and McLendon a 69. Mark Hayes, Terry Dill and George Burns were at 135. Burns and Hayes had 65's and Dill a 69.

Defending champion Forrest Fezler managed a 71 for 144 and squeezed into the final two rounds at the cut-off figure.

Former Masters champion Tommy Aaron had the day's best round — a 64 and was at 141.

Dan Halldorson of Brandon, Man., and George Knudson of Toronto both failed to make the two-round cut of 144. Halldorson shot a 75 Friday for a 155 total and Knudson fininshed at 149 after a 72 Friday.

Many of golf's top names are not entered. Jack Nicklaus, Tom Weiskopf, Tom Watson, and Lou Graham, the winners of the season's major tournaments, are competing in the World Series of Golf at Akron, Ohio, over the weekend.

Golf's Big One Just a Show

AKRON, Ohio AP — Jack Nicklaus has mixed emotions about the impending change in the format for the World Series of Golf, but the other three competitors in this last of the four-man shows applaud the new, expanded line-up.

"In a way I'm sorry to see it change," Nicklaus said before teeing off today as the heavy favorite in the exclusive field of the major title-holders.

"But, unfortunately, the press and public haven't attached the significance to it that it deserves.

"It's more a television show than a golf tournament. And it should be a very significant tournament."

For the last 14 years, the World Series has been staged at the famed Firestone Country Club as a 36-hold four-man tournament, bringing together the winners of the four major events — the Masters, U.S. and British opens and the PGA.

Beginning next year the tournament will move to an unannounced site, probably changing sites every year, and its format will be expanded to include about 28-34 players including at least five foreign champions.

"I thinkk the new format will help a great deal," said Tom Weiskopf. "Golf is not played exclusively in the United States."

"With more spots available, I think it's going to have more interest to the players," said [illegible] Graham. [illegible] now they know only four players are gonna be in the World Series."

"I think it will create greater interest and greater enthusiasm," said Tom Watson.

Nicklaus, who has won this event four times and been second five times, became eligible for a 10th appearance with his victories in the Masters and the PGA, the latter on the same, 7,180-yard, par-70 Firestone Country Club course a little more than a month ago.

Watson won the British

JACK NICKLAUS

Open and Graham took the US open title when Nicklaus faltered over the last three holes. With Nicklaus winning two of the four qualifying events, Weiskopf became eligible as the Canadian Open Winner, the first alternate spot.

FUTURE DOUBTFUL

REGINA (CP) — Middle linebacker Charlie Collins, 29, in his fifth season w[illegible]wan Roughriders, was put on the Western [illegible]ence club's injured list Wednesday and does not expect to be able to resume his professional football career. He suffered a neck injury in 1974 and aggravated it in recent games. He said doctors told him "it could get worse."

Managers Make Everyone Count

DANNY MURTAUGH

MONTREAL (CP) — Managers Danny Murtaugh of Pittsburgh Pirates and Gene Mauch of Montreal Expos matched wits Friday night in a National League baseball doubleheader, but results were inconclusive.

The Expos won the opener 4-3 in 10 innings as Mauch outdid himself in using 21 players while Murtaugh countered with 19. Mauch used 21 again in the second game but Murtaugh's 13 gave the Pirates a 5-2 win and a split of the twi-night twinbill.

"I didn't think Gene was ever going to run out of players," said Murtaugh of the opener. "How many did he use? I used 19—all I had. Well, I had (Duffy) Dyer left, but that was it."

The night's effect on the East Division chase was inconclusive as well. The Pirates still hold a five-game lead over Philadelphia Phillies, who split a pair with Chicago Cubs, and pulled 5½ games ahead of St. Louis Cardinals, who lost to New York Mets. The Mets pulled even with St. Louis.

Chuck Taylor, the fourth Montreal pitcher, got the first-game win when Kent Tekulve, the fifth Pirates hurler, issued a bases-loaded walk, his fourth of the inning, to Pepe Mangual in the 10th. Two of the free passes were intentional.

Pittsburgh starter Bruce Kison walked home a run in the first and another scored in the fourth on catcher Manny Sanguillen's error. Richie Zisk had a two-run home run and Willie Stargell a run-scoring single in the Pirates eighth before Jim Lyttle forced the Expos' 20th extra-inning game of the year with a sacrifice fly in the bottom of the inning.

GENE MAUCH

Cranham Retains National Crown

CALGARY (CP) — Scott Cranham wanted to go to the Pan American games so badly he decided to take a chance on a weakened ankle and defend his title Friday at the Canadian National Summer Diving Championships.

And the Pointe Claire, Que. diver, still recovering from a broken ankle suffered last fall, was rewarded with a first-place finish.

"I really wanted to go and felt good enough to take the chance, said Cranham, who feels he has return to only about 75 per cent of form since breaking the ankle in a sky-diving accident.

His last competition was in May during the spring nationals when he finished 10th.

"That was a very painful experience and I wanted to make sure it didn't happen again tonight," he said. 'I have to limber up for more than two hours before I dive to get any normal feeling in the ankle."

Cranham, who also is the defending three-metre champion, passed up that competition Thursday, feeling the tower offered less chance of injury.

The top two finishers in each event of the three-day meet earned a berth on Canada's Pan Am team. But it appears that Canada's two outstanding women divers will reject the invitation.

Teri York of Vancouver, winner of the women's three-metre springboard competition Friday night, said she will definitely not travel to Mexico City for the Oct. 17-24 games. Bev Boys, tower winner Thursday night, said she was undecided, but a meet official said it was not likely she will make the trip either.

Both are coming off a hectic summer schedule, while York complains of a nagging shoulder injury.

They say the Pan Am games are too close to the first of two sets of Olympic pre-trials to be held here Jan. 2. The second set will be held in Ottawa later that month, with final selection in May.

"Ordinarily, I'd love to go (to the Pan Am games)," York said. "But the Olympics are more important to me."

City Should Cough Up a Little More Money

For the past three consecutive years, Belleville Minor Sports Association has been subsidized by a grant of $12,000 from the city and an $8,000 gratuity from United Community Services.

Those figures however, have been outdated since they were first handed down. While one can't complain about an $8,800 grant from UCS (they only have so much to work with) a few waves splashed in the direction of city council wouldn't hurt.

It's time for the city to make their move or get off the pot. In the beginning, Belleville Minor Sports Association was formed so that they might, as a distinct body, approach the city for financial assistance. Individually the groups were getting nowhere as an organization they carried enough weight to get results.

Each minor sport has something to offer the community as a whole. In general, they not only give youngsters a wholesome vent for their anxieties and help develop our city's youth physically and characteristically the majority of sports gives our city representation in other towns. Those representatives or allstar squads that travel to other communities are ambassadors of our city.

Though budget time is still months away for the city it is preliminary budget time for all minor sports. Now is the time to begin considering more money for minor sports. If for no other reason than because of inflation the member groups of the Belleville Minor Sports Association need the money.

SLICES — Quite often in the big business of sports, management tends to forget that they are dealing with people when they deal with players. Cold hard cash leads to cold, cut and dry approaches.

While I knock management for not considering just who and exactly what it is dealing with, I too must admit that I have fallen into their ruthless den.

A while ago an editorial, of which I was the author, very inappropriately pointed the finger at four players referred to as Jim, Bob, Dwight and Ken. In the same context I aimed the gun at all those people who had forsaken the flayling Belleville MacDonald's of the Ontario Fastball League.

An analogy — rats deserting th sinking ship — was also used. While those four were named in the same article I now consider that I took too objective an approach to the situation.

Because of a phone call from Jim I have to withdraw my stand against those four named and offer my apology to each. I did fairly weigh all the facts, however, while casting my decision of these four I did not allow for the human element involved in their actions.

Their doings were their own. I, like many of the managers involved in sports, omitted that very important, very real human factor in dealing with this particular situation.

For all the hunters in the crowd the local bird season opens on September 27 and runs through to December 13. According to a report from the Belleville and District Fish and Game Club, there are plenty of local ducks and rumor has it there is an abundance of partridge in the north.

While speaking of reports from the local association the first meeting of the year will be held September 9th, 8 p.m., at the Oddfellows Hall.

There are a few important meetings that should be marked on the calendars of area sports enthusiasts.

An open meeting of the Central Ontario Football Referees Association is being held Sunday night at the Recreation Centre on Pinnacle Street. Anyone contemplating officiating should get out tomorrow night and get the low down. It gets underway at 7 p.m.

On Monday, the regular meeting of the Bay of Quinte Soccer Referees Association occurs at the Trenton Legion at 8:15 p.m.

The Quinte Hockey League is holding its formation meeting at the Recreation Centre on Pinnacle St. at 8 p.m. Wednesday. They are still hunting around for a fourth team and the right people for this year's executive.

Right behind the Quinte League is the Gas House League. Their Annual General Meeting is scheduled for Thursday at 7 p.m. at Sir James Whitney — formerly OSD. Along with the election of officers, the league will also accept applications from teams wishing to participate this season at this meeting.

Is Minor Soccer Dying?

Dear Sir:

In one of your recent columns you mentioned that the Belleville Minor Soccer Association had only told you of one score this season. This got me thinking how much over the past 2 or 3 years the minor Association has gone downhill.

When I first came to this city in the late sixties, the minor soccer scene was very active with approx. 500 boys enjoying the game. Since then the figure has dropped to just over 100. Why? In those days the boys played house league but had a chance to play in All Star teams and in Ontario Cup competition, one team even got to the semi-final. The boys had a chance to travel, play better teams and improve their own skills, it was interesting and they enjoyed themselves.

For the past couple of seasons the short-sighted policy of the Belleville Minor Association has restricted any of the above activities, instead the boys can only play house league, the farthest they travel is to Thurlow, they cannot play in Ontario Cup and so they will not improve the quality of play in this area. Because the soccer is dull and lacks interest the boys play other sports. Earlier in the season a separate group of people started all star teams and with limited publicity got 30 to 40 boys out most not registered with minor soccer. When approached by this group minor soccer said they were not interested in All Star teams or representative teams to carry the city of Belleville's name to other cities.

Now, because these boys want to improve themselves by playing against better teams they are not alowed to play in the Belleville Minor Association. One also hopes the person in charge of publicity wakes up so that people know what is going on.

Under the Association "5 year plan" minor soccer is being slowly put to death in Belleville because of ridiculous decisions made by the executive, so come on minor soccer wake up and find out what the boys want, not what you want. After all, if you kill minor soccer you kill senior soccer for the future.

CONCERNED.

Lord Bunter Wins Gerry Walsh Memorial

By Tom Gavey
Staff Sportswriter

A former harness racing driver was honoured at the Quinte Exhibition Raceway on Friday night when the Gerry Walsh Memorial was run in the seventh race.

Gerry Walsh was once a top driver at the QER, leading the driver standings for much of 1974. Tragically, Walsh was killed in a car accident just under a year ago.

Winner in the event was Lord Bunter in a good time of 2:12.2, with Pat Hunt at the reins. With the win went a Gerry Walsh Memorial Trophy and cooler (blanket) along with the $550 purse. Going was tough in the race as Bullet Will finished a close second with John Cresswell at the reins. Third place went to Jaco Chief, another strong finisher, with Gord Robinson guiding the way.

The ninth race was another special feature for racing fans as the Elliott Motors 70 Ltd. was run. In the winner's circle to take the $700 purse and cooler was Western D. Wann, driven to victory by Rejean Boily in a speedy 2:08.4, the fastest time of the night and one of the best in recent weeks. Rob, Ron Roddie finished second with Brian Bellamy the driver.

It paid off to bet on the exactor in the fifth race if you had the combination of Sunicrest Marlene and Barbs Dream. The exactor paid $539.20 to a few lucky people.

Three horses set new lifetime records at the QER Friday night. In the first Tontine Cara came in at the 2:13 mark, breaking its previous record by two seconds. The third saw Hawthorne Pride go in 2:14 with Larry Zebedee driving. Finally, in the 10th, Sweet Kathy May took the race in 2:13.1 with Jim Mayo Jr. driving.

It was a special night in all of the races, as a cooler was presented to the winning horse at the end of each race.

Pat Hunt had a good night at the reins as he took two victories — in the sixth and seventh races. Other winning drivers were Brian Bellamy, Paul Doran, Don Adams, Greg Feltis, A. Kerwood, Rejean Boily and Jim Mayo Jr. with [illegible] season coming close to an end, the driver standings are becoming even more tight.

Although being inactive at the QER in recent weeks Guy LaRush still leads the drivers in wins with 20 over the year. Closing in on him is Pat Hunt, with 16 under his belt. Larry Zebedee has 14 wins and third place while Brian Bellamy has 12 victories so far. Jack Harry and Ed Weeks share fifth spot with seven wins apiece.

In the percentage standings Guy LaRush still is on top with a .471 average, while Brian Bellamy claims second at .446 and Pat Hunt is in third at .439. Fourth goes to Ross Ray with a .434 and fifth to Gord Whyt with a .429

Boat the Proper Way

The Canadian Power Squadron will teach safe boating to over 10,000 Canadians this year . . . should one of them be you?

BOB SEARS

Quite likely if you have anything to do with boating or are interested in boating the answer to the question is yes.

Now boaters in the Bay of Quinte area will have the opportunity to gain valuable knowledge and background in boating, whether it be in a sail propelled or power craft.

"It could be taken by anyone," says public relations officer, Bob Sears, "even if you don't have a boat. If you're interested come out and learn the proper methods."

Sears, PRO for the Bay of Quinte Power Squadron, added, "when I attended my first course I didn't have a boat, but I wasn't long getting one after that."

The course being offered by the local organization begins the first week of October and goes one night a week for 22 weeks.

Areas covered include: boat handling, lines and anchoring, general seamanship, charts and piloting, mariner's compass, aids to navigation, equipment and boating laws, rules of the road, safety afloat, and manners and customs.

Cost per individual for the session, including the cost of texts, is $35. Interested parties may register at the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club, 8 p.m. Monday.

Russ Soule, manager of Belleville Bobcats, discusses some of the prospective players the Cats may pick up this season. Friday night, at Trenton Community Gardens the local Metro Junior B squad held its first open camp of the 1975 season. Running the on-ice activities was Cat coach Meehan Bonner.

Madoc Trounces Ellis

The Belleville and District Ladies Softball League playoff series between Ellis Construction and the Purinaettes resumed Friday night at the Alemite Park. The Ellis Construction team may wish it hadn't. The Purinaettes defeated them 18-4 in the match to take a commanding three game lead in series.

Nothing seemed to go right for Ellis Construction as both of their hurlers were hard hit during the contest.

As for the Purinaettes, Sandra Fleming threw a six hitter and had three strikeouts on the way to the win.

Sanda Claus and Donna Brant were the victims of the Purinaette hitting attack. The two combined to strikeout three batters.

Penny Graham had quite a night at the plate for the winners as she pounded four singles and a double while teammate Jane Bailey collected four singles. Joan Bailey, Carol Holland and Darlene Bedore all had three singles apiece.

For the losers Judy Rapell came through with two singles while Sharon Francis doubled. Other singles came from Brant, Sally Barberstock and Claus.

The Ellis team made 10 errors.

At present, the Belleville Yardmen's Benefit Fund is waiting in the wings to see who they will take on in the BDLSL finals.

Flyers' Equipment Seized

BARRIE (CP) — Barrie Flyers continue to run into off-ice problems as they attempt to put together a team for the 1975-76 Ontario Hockey Association Senior A season.

Problems started for the league and playoff champions last spring with the suspension of Gordon Coates, team president, during the Eastern Canada Allan Cup finals.

Then Wednesday, a default judgment was signed against the club for failure to pay several thousand dollars in outstanding debts.

With the effective removal of Coates from the hockey operations this year, a new executive committee was formed and the club was to be incorporated as non-profit making.

Such status, it was thought, would remove from this year's executive responsibility for debts from last season.

A Barrie sporting goods store had the action taken against the Flyers for failing to pay debts of several thousand dollars, some running back to last October.

Jack Garner, the store's proprietor, said he had no alternative but to "have the sheriff seize the assets."

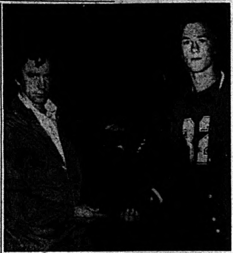
"We are dealing with the executive from last year. For over 10 months, they have owed us a considerable amount of money. We have tried every possible avenue to collect . . . and our lawyers said we should have done something before the Allan Cup playoffs last spring."

Garner said that although a payment of $2,000 was received about three weeks ago, the Flyers are still several thousand dollars in arrears.

He said that by taking action he was "bringing the matter to a head" and giving the Flyers an opportunity to answer.

John Wrigley, new president of the Flyers, said Garner's lawyers "have acted in an unprecedented manner." He said attempts had been made to clear up the debt before the action was taken and that the sheriff is aware that he intends to have the judgment set aside by a counter action.

Wrigley said under the circumstances, the action of Garner's lawyers surprised him. He said the team has invoices for purchase of equipment from the sporting goods store but that not all have been signed by the trainer, the sole agent authorized to sign for equipment.



Craig Rump presents the Al Rump Memorial Trophy to Paul Wilson of the Ellis Juniors. The award will be presented annually to the Most Improved Junior Player in the city. Wilson earned the award by merit of his fine pitching over the 1975 season. The plaque will be kept on display at the Ellis Printing offices while Wilson also received a plaque for his home.

Scrap Paper Juggling Act Wins Games

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

If George Brancato is carrying around several pieces of scrap paper Sunday, then the Ottawa head coach probably is preparing another one of his makeshift defences for the Rough Riders in an Eastern Football Conference clash with Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

For anyone who questions the situation, those makeshift defences that Brancato draws up before the game already have brought the Riders two surprise wins over Montreal Alouettes and Saskatchewan Roughriders.

A slow recovery by defensive tackle Brue Smith from a pulled hamstring muscle forced the juggling in the defensive line-up.

GEORGE BRANCATO

But Brancato says he's more than pleased with the way rookie Marv Allemang, whom he's dubbed Super-Sub, and import linebacker Kent Carter have fitted in with the veteran Ottawa defenders.

The Alouettes will be in Toronto Sunday to play the Argonauts in another Sunday EFC game. Neither game is being televised.

Ottawa and Montreal are tied for first place in the EFC with four wins and three defeats each while Hamilton and Toronto are tied for third with two wins.

The Ticats have a game in hand over Toronto for what might be the battle for the final EFC playoff berth.

Hamilton-Ottawa games are almost reunions. The Ticats have several former Riders, including quarterback Jerry Keeling, defensive back John Kruspe, lineman Doug Collins and halfback Terry Wellesley. Tight-end Tony Gabriel and receiver Gary Kuzyk are former Ticats now with the Riders.

Brancato will start quarterback Tom Clements. While not as spectacular as fellow rookie Condredge Holloway, Brancato says the former Notre Dame star is "so disciplined - he know's what he's doing."

Holloway, one of the Riders' best runners, may see duty at another offensive position if Clements can keep the Riders moving.

Montreal's tough defence will not make it any easier for the often-impotennt Toronto attack and Johnny Rodgers and his Montreal team-mates, blunted by the stingy Riders Wednesday, will be looking to regain their momentum

Toronto quarterback Mike Rae had a superb first half against the Alouettes in Montreal last week before the Argos wilted under tough defensive pressure and lost 33-17.

Montreal line coach Dan Sekanovich says the Als were not aggressive enough in the Riders' game.

"The name of the game never changes," he said. "It's still a contact sport. You fight for your life on every play. If you don't you're going to get whipped."

Rams Attack Balanced

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

There are some statistics the Philadelphia Eagles defensive line should consider: Cullen Bryant 80 yards, John Cappelletti 72, Lawrence McCutcheon 69, and Jim Bertelsen 42.

Those are the rushing statistics accumulated last week by Los Angeles Rams in their 14-6 National Football League exhibition victory over Kansas City Chiefs.

The Rams, favored to win the NFL's National Conference West championship again this year, have built a solid rushing game — 184 carries in four exhibition games for 823 yards, an average of 206 yards a game.

In other games tonight, St. Louis is at Minnesota, Buffalo plays Atlanta at Tampa, Fla., Chicago is at Miami, New Orleans plays at Pittsburgh, and Green Bay travels to Kansas City.

Cincinnati plays at Detroit in an afternoon game.

On Sunday, New York Giants play Cleveland in Seattle, Denver is at San Francisco, San Diego travels to New England and New York Jets play in Washington. On Monday night, Baltimore is at Houston.

Friday night in Dallas, Oakland's Ken Stabler threw two touchdown passes to beat the Cowboys 31-20. Stabler completed six of eight passes for 71 yards before leaving the game at halftime.

He hit Cliff Branch with a 30-yard scoring pass at 10:38 of the second quarter and followed with a screen pass to Charlie Smith, who carried 53 yards for another touchdown just three minutes later.

Eskies Raise Eddy's Hair

EDMONTON (CP) — Playing Edmonton Eskimos is a hair-raising experience for Saskatchewan Roughrider defensive coach Jim Eddy.

"Everytime I think of what the Eskimos can do offensively, it raises the hair on the back of my neck," Eddy said during preparation for tonight's encounter between the two Western Football Conference powerhouses.

First place will be on the line as the Eskimos carry a 5-1 mark into the game, compared with Saskatchewan's 5-2 record. It will be the first of three regular-season games between the rivals.

"Right now they seem to be very sharp with their passing game," Eddy said, especially with the return of receiver George McGowan following a series of injuries that sidelined hime for most of 1974.

"The addition of a 100-per-cent healthy George McGowan has made their passing attack an awesome thing to try and defend against."

Either Bruce Lemmerman or Tom Wilkinson will be throwing passes in McGowan's direction, but coach Ray Jauch won't decide who will get the starting nod until game tim.

Eddy says Wilkinson is the master of the high-percentage pass. "He throws the short stuff, the type that is very difficult to defend. We must have the strong rush against Wilkinson to make him throw the ball off schedule."

The game will be televised on the full CBC network, begining at 7:30 p.m. MDT (9:30 p.m. EDT).

Face Peterborough in Final Series

Minto Cup Would Be Icing for Burnaby

BURNABY, B.C. (CP) — Success has been a long time coming for the lacrosse organization in this neighbor municipality to Vancouver where the Burnaby junior team is still looking for a Canadian championship and Minto Cup.

Burnaby goes to Peterborough, Ont., after a 4-3 western final win over Victoria.

The best-of-seven series begins Sunday and it threatens to be more competitive than last year's when Burnaby lost four straight games in nearby New Westminster to Peterborough, the defending champion.

Jack Crosby, president of the North Burnaby minor lacrosse organization and general manager of the western titlist team, points proudly to seven British Columbia championships in 1975 plus Canadian championships in peewee and midget, the only other two national championships in which a Burnaby team has competed this year.

A Minto Cup victory would put the icing on the cake.

Crosby, who has been with the Norburn organization in an executive capacity for 12 years, says lacrosse in this municipality fell into place in 1970.

That was the last time Burnaby went east for a Minto Cup struggle. It lost four straight to Toronto Lakeshore but in the west, Burnaby was winning a Canadian peewee lacrosse crown and a B.C. bantam title.

That 1970 B.C. bantam championship team had Kelly McLenaghen, Dan Perrault, Dan Wilson and Ken Sim on its roster and those players helped the 1974 Burnaby juniors begin western domination that should last through 1980.

Perrault, 18, scored 68 goals this year to lead Burnaby scorers. McLenaghen missed four games through injuries and still had 49 goals. Wilson missed most of the season due to knee surgery but last year picked up 102 points, considered excellent by western standards. Sim has picked up 47 goals and more than 100 points in two years of play.

Crosby and coach Dan Mattinson sat down five years ago and took a look at what they had coming up. They knew they would eventually lose the likes of hard-hitting Taki Vohalis and Doug Hayes, now playing professionally, and couldn't see outstanding individual players coming up through the ranks.

Crosby and Mattinson decided that lacrosse should be played with five-man units rather than one or two individual stars hogging the ball. Neither man denies that the idea was stolen from coach Jim Bishop of the fabulously successful Oshawa Green Gaels 1963-69 dynasty.

Mattinson, however, is a master at sport psychology and has added a few wrinkles of his own to the game. He holds think-tank sessions prior to practices and games and has been known to have his team practise to music. He is not a blood-and-guts coach—in fact he deplores violence.

He is a firm believer in offensive lacrosse and when he searched the Western Canada Junior Lacrosse league for pickup strength for the eastern venture he opted for high-scoring Kevin Alexander and Bob Cool of Victoria along with Richmond Roadrunner goalie John Lewis.

In Alexander he has the all-time leading junior scorer. This year Alexander had 115 goals and 92 assists in 28 games. Cool got 36 goals and 101 assists.

One reason for Burnaby's success during the last two years has been team effort. Mattinson could have loaded his club last year with pickups but did not and this year he chose to leave no one off the Peterborough passenger list from his regular team.

His team is his cake and he wants that icing in Peterborough.

Women's Final Will Decide Queen for King

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — There will never be another Billie Jean King. Her flair and fortitude have made her a tennis force that won't soon be forgotten.

But today's women's singles final match in the U.S. Open tennis championships between top-seeded Chris Evert and No. 4 Evonne Goolagong is considered the test to tell who will pick up the mantle Mrs. King, last year's winner, discarded at at age 31 after winning Wimbledon six times and Forest Hills four — the two tournaments that make queens and kings of commoners in a sport once reserved for royalty.

The men's reign, because of the tremendous depth of talent, is more tentative.

In today's semi-finals, defending-champion Jimmy Connors is favored over fifth-seeded Bjorn Borg, but it is a toss-up between Spain's Manuel Orantes, seeded third, and Argentina's Guillermo Vilas, seeded second.

Miss Evert, who for three years was America's teen-age princess in tennis shoes, at age 20 has a slight edge over an older but more erratic Miss Goolagong.

CHRIS EVERT

"I think both of us know we have a chance of beating each other," Evonne said of their chase for the $25,000 first prize from a record total purse of $309,430. "'I can't let her get me into the groove of fiddling around with the ball. I can't let her make me play her game.

'I have to control my own pace."

In Evert-Goolagong career meetings, Chris leads Evonne 11-9. Their first meeting was in the 1972 Wimbledon semi-finals when Miss Goolagong won in three sets. In the semi-finals here last year, Evonne prevailed over Chris 6-0, 6-7, 6-3 in a two-day rain-delayed thriller.

But both of those big ones were on grass. Now they are playing on clay, and Miss Evert whipped Miss Goolagong on the powdery stuff 6-1, 6-1 in Florida earlier this year.

In addition, Miss Evert has not lost a match, or tournament, on clay in more than two years, when Miss Goolagong beat her 6-3, 7-5 in Cincinati. Going into today's final, Miss Evert has won 16 tournaments and 83 matches on clay.

Her latest triumph was Friday when she eliminated her doubles partner, Martina Navratilova, 6-4, 6-4 after the third-seeded Czechoslovakian was rattled by a questionable line call when she led 4-3 in the second set. The call was not reversed even though the linesman walked over to look at the mark left by the ball.

In the other women's semi-final, Miss Goolagong, the 24-year-old Australian, struggled to a 7-5 first-set victory over former champion Virginia Wade and then cruised past the No. 2 seed from Britain 6-1 in the second.

When Chris was asked why she didn't play a lot on the controversial call against the 18-year-old Czech, she replied: "I didn't see the mark. Martina is very honest, but I didn't see it. If I had, I would have. Otherwise, I would have felt very bad.

"I told Martina afterwards that that's the best she could have done is have her the linesman look at the mark. There are no bad feelings between us."

BRAVES TRADE SEDECKI

ATLANTA (CP) — Atlanta Braves traded veteran left-hander Ray Sedecki to Kansas City Royals for two minor-league pitchers, the National League baseball club announced Thursday. The deal completed an earlier trade between the teams which brought knuckle-baller Bruce Dal Canton to Atlanta in exchange for cash.

IN MEMORIAM

DONNAN — In memory of our dear mother who was taken suddenly on September 6, 1973.
The following is from Thessalonians 4:13-18 (RVB) to show we deeply miss her, but know we'll see her again.
"But we would not have you ignorant, brethren, concerning those who are asleep, that you may not grieve as others do who have no hope. For since we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so, through Jesus, God will bring with him those who have fallen asleep. For this we declare to you by the word of the Lord, that we who are alive, who are left until the coming of the Lord, shall not precede those who have fallen asleep. For the Lord himself will descend from heaven with a cry of command, with the arch-angel's call, and with the sound of the trumpet of God. And the dead in Christ will rise first; then we who are alive, who are left, shall be caught up together with them in the air; and so we shall always be with the Lord. Therefore comfort one another with these words."
—Sincerely submitted by her three sons, Dennis, David, and Donnie.

KERR — In loving memory of a beloved husband, Brigadier Nelson Kerr who passed away September 6th, 1973. Two years have passed since he left us.
But the memory of him is still precious.
—A dear husband lovingly remembered by wife Lillian.

KERR — In loving memory of a beloved father, Brigadier Nelson Kerr who passed away September 6, 1973.
Always in our thoughts loving memories of a wonderful dad, loved and respected for his Christian fortitude and devotion to others.
—Daughter Marjorie and son-in-law Arthur.

DEMILLE — In loving memory of a dear mother Bessie DeMille who passed away September 6, 1974.
The dearest mother, the kindest friend,
One of the best whom God could lend.
Loving, thoughtful, gentle and true,
Always willing a kind act to do.
—Ever loved by son Gordon, Melba and Patti.

DEMILLE — In loving memory of my dear mother, Bessie Elizabeth who passed away Sept. 6, 1974.
I lost a mother with a heart of gold,
Who was more to me than wealth untold.
Without farewell she fell asleep,
With only memories for me to keep.
I have lost but God has gained,
One of the best mothers the world contained.
—Always remembered and sadly missed by son Doug.

For Sunday, Sept. 7

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Today, you can handle difficult situations with tact and diplomacy. You'll ruffle no feathers when you do your mediation thing.

TAURUS (April 20-May 2;) Today you'll enjoy your work so much that friends won't be able to tear you away to pursue pleasure. Something productive will result.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It's a must for you to engage in some type of fun activity. Being with others will be the spark that inspires you to chase your blues.

CANCER June 21-July 22) Like a mother hen, those under your wing will come to you with their problems today. They'll benefit from your solutions.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your ideas today are bold, imaginative. Those lucky enough to be within earshot will be inspired by your words and wisdom.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You are logical and prudent in handling your material affairs. You will manage well what you have, and open new channels for gain.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A friend is wrestling with an idea whose merits he doubts. A few inspiring words can show him he is on the right track.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Someone is working quietly on your behalf. To get the type of results you both desire, don't broadcast what he's doing for you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It pays you to be a good listener today. You'll be exposed to ideas you can dovetail into a single, extremely useful plan.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're a few steps ahead of the pack today. Competitors will soon discover their chances of overtaking you are nil.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You need to be exposed to people who will force you to think for yourself today. For every bright idea they have, you'll come up with two even better.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't discourage those who want to do nice things for you today. What they have in mind will make them very happy and could make you ecstatic.

Monday, Sept. 8

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're apt to do things against your better judgment today. The results won't be desirable. Try not to behave impulsively.

TAURUS (April 20-May 2;) A task that was difficult for you is equally as tough for the one you'll try to palm it off on, yet you'll demand perfection.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Today, what at first appears to be a bargain will carry a hefty hidden price tag. Shop wisely. Do business only with reliable parties.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be realistic about goals set for yourself and fly today. Frustrations will result if you aim for impractical targets.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Not a day to get involved in a game of oneupsmanship. If you're topped by the competiiton, take your lumps like a good sport.

VIRGO (Aug 23-Sept. 22) Yesterday you managed your resources sensibly, but not so today. Be careful, or your extravagance will cost you dearly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It's unlikely you'll take the firm position on an important issue today. Fence-sitting will only complicate matters.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) One you know will try to look good in front of others at your expense today. Don't let it ruffle you. They'll recognize her little game.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're very easily put upon by friends today. Help where you can, but don't try to shoulder their responsibilities.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be careful today you don't behave so as to alienate allies. Try to keep the interests of others equal with your own.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're not likely to be tenacious enough today to follow through on plans as you should. Don't quite at the first obstacle.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be wary lest you make an arrangement that has too many strings attached. No one is about to offer you something for nothing.

Strips For Disabled

HERTFORDSHIRE, England (CP) — Residents of Hitchin, Hertfordshire, are up-in-arms over plans by a charity raising funds for the disabled to have a stripper stand on a raft floating on the local swimming pool removing her garments during a water festival. The plan is to have people throw plastic beach balls at her and each time she is hit she'll remove an item of clothing. "All good clean fun which will raise a lot of money" say the organizers.

Testing Feet

TORONTO (CP) — A Canadian textile company has laid down sections of rug at the entrances to this year's Canadian National Exhibition (CNE) to test their resistance to thousands of ramping feet. When the CNE is over, Dupont will be given a turnstile count that will show how many people traversed the rugs at each entrance.

Win at Bridge

East helps Richards score 6

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Here is a 40-year-old hand played by the late R. R. (Dick) Richards of Detroit. Dick was one of the really great auction bridge players and the founder of the American Bridge League, which became the American Contract Bridge League in 1936.

A lot of players might have tried to find a way to bid seven with Dick's hand, but old timers were never scientists and as anyone can see there was just no way to make a grand slam. In fact if West had opened a club as called for by East's double there would have been no way to make six.

However, West looked at his nice diamond holding and decided to open that suit. This gave Dick a chance to discard his losing club on dummy's ace of diamonds; but Dick saw that the club discad was going to be a snare and a delusion. West had bid spades. East couldn't hold many and there would be no way to handle his spade losers.

Then Dick proceeded to show how to play the hand. He played a low diamond and ruffed in his own hand. Then he drew trumps, cashed his ace and king of spades and led a club. East had to take his ace and lead a club or diamond to dummy.

Ask the Jacobys

A reader from Alberta wants to know what the proper response to partner's double of one heart is when holding ♠ J 8 5 4 ♥ 6 4 ♦ 3 2 ♣ K Q 8 6 4.

The answer to this question is that he should reply with two clubs. This is a close decision since in general the double of one major suit asks for a response in the other one but this time you should bid your good suit right away. If it turns out that you get a second chance to bid you can afford to show your spades. Partner will then be sure that you don't have much of a spade suit.

Two Kinds of ECG Are Both Useful

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please discuss the merits of the standard ECG as compared to the newer stress ECG test. In our small community two internists (mine included) take ECGs while the patient is at rest. The third physician uses only the stress ECG.

It seems the latter's patients are identified as heart-attack prone earlier. Also, his patients

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please comment.

A resting ECG is taken while the patint is inactive. The stress type is taken after exercise. An ECG taken at rest gives considerable information. If there is anything suggesting abnormally, or if the patient has a history of coronary insufficiency, then a closely-supervised exercise test is in order.

Now, to your question. There is nothing "new" about either test, but there is a great deal of focus today on the relative values of each.

A discussion of this appeared in a recent issue of Modern Medicine, and the general conclusion seems to be that each type of test has its own specific advantages.

The resting ECG has special value in determining the present condition of the heart muscle and whether any damage has occurred in the past. The stress ECG seems to have greater value in determining the future, for instance in predicting the heart's response to future demands upon it. The consensus seems to be developing that the resting ECG is not entirely efficient in predicting such things.

One of the doctors participating in the symposium reported that normal ECGS were found in about 35 per cent of patients who actually had rather serious obstructions in one or more coronary arteries.

As to exercise, carefully supervised exercise programs can be helpful but this depends upon the individual patient. Certainly, in severe heart problems it is not recommended during the early months of recovery, especially. Only light activity, such as walking, is recommended following a heart attack.

But appropriate exercise is important when you consider the fact that overweight contributes so much to heart problems.

In all cases, post-heart-attack exercise, let me stress again, should be undertaken only after consultation with a physician who knows each individual patient's history.

Unpredictable Russians Disturb Grain Market

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
The Associated Press

The world food situation probably is more precarious than it may seem to the average North American, and in the new grain shopping expeditions of the Kremlin lurk the makings of crisis-proportion complications.

The Soviet Union's market unpredictability makes it a recurrent major threat to the stablity of world food supplies. Yet, while patently unwilling to co-operate with international efforts to cope with global supply problems, it is at the same time creating new problems.

Soviet failures, generated by a combination of bad weather and inefficient agriculture methods, send Moscow into the market in quest of huge amounts of wheat and feed grains. This raises again the sombre question of the world's dependence, year to year, on harvests of a few countries. A disaster year for one major producer could mean calamity for hundreds of millions.

Some of those involved in the war on world hunger, looking beyond the immediate impact of Soviet market activity on prices and inflation, see ahead frustrating complications in the global food picture that could produce crisis conditions.

The 1972 Soviet failure story is too recent to be forgotten. Sudden Russian purchases of 19 million tons of U.S. grains sent prices soaring and had heavy impact on long-term prospects for feeding hungry millions in poor countries.

Now, after another drought, the Russians are back, contracting for 9.8 million metric tons of U.S. grains plus four million more from other sources, all of which may be only about half what the U.S.S.R. needs to cope with the new crop shortfall.

The agriculture department wants to sell American grain and discounts highly publicized American fears that the sales will again drive up prices. But until early fall, anyway, the department asks exporters to observe a temporary ban on further sales to Russia, pending a report then on crop prospects.

"There'll be much holding of breath until then. The department's August report disclosed that a spell of dry weather in key areas reduced production estimates for this year's corn.

West Europe, too, has had some unfavorable weather, and there has been some deterioration in Canadian and Australian prospects.

James P. Grant, president of the Overseas Development Council, a private organization concerned with, such questions, says the global food situation remains "very precarious" because actually world food stocks are less now than a year ago when stocks were at the lowest level since the Second World War with respect to consumption.

This year's U.S. harvest is expected to be bigger than 1974 but short of the record proportions that had been projected in July. All this means keeping an eagle American eye on crops next spring and summer, Grant says. Should there be a crop disaster then in a major producing country or should U.S. crops be well short of hopes, Americans still would have plenty for themselves, but the over-all situation would be bad.

First, food prices would soar and refuel the inflation process. Studies by the U.S Federal Reserve suggest that in 1973-74, rising food prices contributed to worldwide inflation about equally with the rising prices of petroleum. And because food is so basic there would be ample cause for alarm about the world picture.

There already are 400 million people in the world permanently hungry or near starvation. About 800 million, all told, in the developing nations suffer from malnutrition. Once again, this poor world now is highly vulnerable to possibilities inherent in a bad crop year.

The current situation suggests burgeoning problems. For example, the U.S. had committed $1.33 billion for fiscal 1976 for food aid and its shipment. Now that the Russians have come into the market with huge new orders, food prices are likely to rise and thus the tonnage that can be shipped for the money will be down, a blow in a nation where a citizen spends 80 per cent of his income on food.

Only a few years ago the U.S. was the world's horn of plenty, its surpluses a cushion against disaster elsewhere, its Food for Peace program geared to channel help to hungry millions. In the 20 years to 1972 the U.S. had given away something like $25 billion worth of food, apart from other such aid.

No wthe massive Soviet purchases, the competition of other big nations for available supplies and the ever-growing populations of poor countries are factors signalling the end of the days of big American surpluses.

The world food conference in Rome last November had called for creation of a world food reserve system to guard against sudden disasters in major producing areas.

Such a mechanism, with governments buying surpluses, could mean farmers would be under less pressure to sell because they would be assured reasonable prices for their crops.

Student Is Working With Bats

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP) — Nick Previsich, a fourth-year biology student at University of Lethbridge, has spent hundreds of hours studying bats during the last three years.

This summer he has a $2,100 grant from the provincial government's student temporary employment plan to research the behavior and life patterns of bats in southern Alberta.

"It's really amazing and a little funny the ideas people have about bats," he said in an interview.

"They associate bats with something bad, a symbol of evil or a forerunner of a death in the family."

Mr. Previsich said most of the bats in southern Alberta are little or big brown bats. The largest may be four inches long.

The main danger from local bats is rabies. He has had rabies immunization shots, wears thick gloves when handling bats and periodically has captured animals tested.

Bats in southern Alberta are most often found in trees, woodpiles or abandoned buildings. Mr. Previsich found a colony of 60 little brown bats in the attic of a century-old barn near Lethbridge that once was part of a halfway house for stagecoaches.

The likeliest place to find bats is around inhabited buildings.

"Bats like houses because they're warm in winter and cool in the summer. You'll often find them in the attic or along the chimney wall where it's warm."

He has found bat colonies in public buildings. His biggest find this summer was a colony of 600 bats in the attic of a school in Warner.

"It was quite a sight . . . bats flying around everywhere, hanging from the rafters and nesting in every corner."

The Fair: They Came, They Sawed . . .

Taking up log-sawing challenge at Shannonville World Fair Saturday was kept all in the family by these two takers. Mrs. Alta Vance (left) and daughter Judy, 15, RR 2, Shannonville, cut through log in 49 seconds — one of the typical events that distinguish this long-time popular small fair.

Earthquake Kills 1,800

LICE, Turkey (AP) — Small tremors continue to panic survivors of the earthquake that devastated a section of eastern Turkey two days ago. Officials say the quake killed more than 1,800 persons, and they fear the total will rise as they hear from isolated mountain villages.

Necmettin Esenler, a municipal clerk who lost eight members of his family, held out his bloody hands and tearfully said: "I dug out my two-year-old daughter Vedia from under a rock with these hands."

Women in dusty black shawls chanted mourning songs alongside the rag-covered bodies of their children.

The stench of death filled the air at Lice, capital of the province which suffered most from the quake at noon Saturday. The town of 8,000 was reduced to rubble. Officials said the burial grounds would not be large enough for the 840 persons believed to have died in Lice.

At least 1,000 more died in surrounding villages, officials said. The continuing tremors were small, but they interfered with the search for the injured and bodies buried in the debris.

Some survivors wandered around in a daze, trying to find relatives and possessions. Others fought over tents, blankets and clothing being distributed by rescue workers.

Military planes brought in 17 tons of food, blood, antibiotics and other relief supplies. Mobile hospitals and mobile kitchens were set up. About 2,000 troops worked alongside civilian rescue teams.

Meanwhile, many Moslems began observance of the month-long Islamic fast of Ramadan.

Premier Suleyman Demirel toured the area and pledged: "No one will be left starving or homeless."

The Turkish state radio played only classical music Sunday in mourning for the victims.

The Turkish quake measured 6.8 on the Richter scale and struck along the Anatolian Fault, which runs in a crescent shape from Turkey's Aegean coast northeast along the Black Sea and then south into the eastern mountains. A quake along the fault in 1939 killed 30,000 people, and 2,964 died in a quake in 1966 at Varto, not far from Lice.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion on which a reading of six indicates a severe quake while seven means the possibility of widespread, heavy damage.

At midday Sunday, a relatively strong earthquake rumbled through northwestern Yugoslavia, more than 1,000 miles from the Turkish quake site, causing minor damage but no casualties, authorities in Zagreb reported. Building walls cracked and some plaster was knocked down in Zagreb, Varazdin, Cakovec and Krapina.

The Zagreb Seismological Institute registered the quake at six to seven on the Mercalli scale, which has a maximum reading of 12. No Richter reading was reported.

Busing Program Spurs Violence

BOSTON (AP) — More than 100 persons were arrested today, mostly charged with disorderly conduct, on the first day of classes under a new and extensive busing program designed to integrate the city's public school system.

A police department spokesman said about 40 of those arrested were believed to be members of the pro-busing Committee Against Racism. They were taken into custody in the predominantly white Irish neighborhood of South Boston before schools opened this morning.

When the 40 were taken to a police station to be booked, about 60 other persons showed up to demonstrate and they also were arrested.

There also were arrests at Hyde Park and in the South End near Roxbury.

School officials said attendance was generally good, but no figures were available on how many of Boston's 75,000 public school children had reported.

Some 26,000 pupils were being bused to schools outside their own neighborhoods in the integration program ordered by a federal judge earlier this year.

At least 1,500 policemen and 100 U.S. marshals were guarding bus routes and school areas, and police riflemen were stationed on rooftops near Charlestown High School this morning.

Police officials said about 98 per cent of the officers assigned to duty reported for work this morning, indicating an apparent end to the Boston Police Patrolmen's Association sick-out which began Saturday to protest what members termed "flagrant contract violations" by the city.

National Guardsmen were called into the city Sunday and were stationed in South Boston on Sunday night to assist police in maintaining an orderly opening of schools in case the sick-out continued.

Shannonville Fair Draws 1,900 People

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Shannonville — Probably the smallest world's fair in the world drew a bigger crowd than usual here this year.

The 1975 Shannonville World Fair for the first time opened both Saturday and Sunday — attracting 1,900 paying spectators.

Despite the wry turn to its name the Tyendinaga Township fair can make some more serious claim for the attention it gets annually. It hasn't missed a year since it started in 1855 and now is one of the older rural exhibitions of its kind in the province.

It also is believed the last provincial fair where a once-popular feature of rural events can still be seen — the greasy-pig chase.

This year the chase drew a host of pursuers as the greased porker evaded capture all around the track. Credit for finally halting the quarry went to John Hinchey, Shannonville.

Sunday saw eight teams entered in horse-drawing competitions.

Among winners of program events were Lorne Jarrell, RR 6, Belleville, for top cattle showing; Tyendinaga public school for educational projects; baby show winners were Leanne McGuinness, Brian LaRue and Chad Baptiste.

Rhonda Scott, RR 1 Corbyville, was winner of a $200 raffle.

Customer Charges Bell $5 a Day for Phones

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Bell Canada has been put into small claims by an irate Belleville man who wants the company to pay him "storage" costs on two out-of-service phones.

The wrangle started; claims Dennis Gordon, 81 Highland Ave., when he returned from holidays and found his phone service had been cut off for non-payment of charges.

Mr. Gordon 55-year-old salesman of industrial scrubbing machines uses his home as a business base He claim he had not seen his June phone bill for $36.20 before he left for a three-week holiday in July.

When he came home he found the phone including an extension, was dead. He admits he was "hostile" toward Bell when he marched down to its Pinnacle St. business office and demanded an explanation.

Mr. Gordon said he was told the company had tried to contact him several times. Receiving no response it eventually cancelled his service.

Mr. Gordon said he had paid $50 business installation charge for both phones and wanted to know why Bell couldn't deduct his bill from the amount. The sequel was that he told the company to "remove the phones from my house."

He says he is home about three or four days a week. But no one showed up to disconnect the telephones.

He then wrote a letter warning the company he would charge $5 "for space the phones occupied."

DENNIS GORDON

There was no reply. So he registered a complaint with the small claims court in Belleville asking for $120.

Bell came back with a counter-claim asking the court to order the phones returned to Bell.

The counter-claim sent. Mr. Gordon says Bell states he has possession" or destroyed phones valued at $70.

The company also charges Mr. Gordon owes them $2.50 for telephone service.

Mr. Gordon, who showed two telephones in his home Sunday, said he doesn't want to touch the telephones because they belong to Bell. He says for business he has access to a friend's telephone.

The case goes 1 to small claims court Oct. 7.

By then, he says, the phones will be in his house 82 days. At $5 a day that works out to $410 for which he asks a court order, says Mr. Gordon.

Civilian Politicians Sought

LISBON (AP) — Portugal's military president and the premier-designate are pressing the country's leading civilian politicians to return to the cabinet following the removal from power of pro-Communist Gen. Vasco Goncalves.

Sources close to President Francisco da Costa Gomes and Vice-Admiral Jose Pinheiro de Azevedo, the premier-designate, said they hope to reach agreement with the Socialists, Popular Democrats and Communists by Tuesday.

But the Socialists and Popular Democrats, who together polled two-thirds of the vote in the April election of a constitutional assembly, were reported reluctant to join a cabinet containing the Communists.

Informed sources said if the anti-Communists hold out, Costa Gomes and Pinheiro de Azevedo may decide to go ahead without them.

Gen. Carlos Fabiao, the army chief of staff and one of the architects of Goncalves' fall, commented in a speech Sunday that the political parties "are having enormous difficulties reaching agreement among themselves, and the only way to overcome these difficulties is to achieve an understanding with the masses."

PLO Will Shoot American Technicians in Sinai Desert

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) has called on Arab nationalists to shoot American technicians who may be stationed in the Sinai Desert under the Israeli-Egyptian pact.

"The Palestinia revolution . . . regards the U.S. military presence in Sinai as an enemy target that should be shot by every struggler and every nationalist in our Arab nation," the PLO newspaper Al Thawra said in Beirut Sunday.

The newspaper called the proposed presence of the American civilian technicians at warning stations in the Gidi and Mitla passes "dual occupation" of Egyptian land by the United States and Israel.

"We are confident the first shot will be fired by an Egyptian soldier, because the Egyptians are known for their nationalism and will never allow an imperialist American flag to flutter over any spot of Arab territory," Al Thawra wrote.

Palestinian guerrillas are unlikely to constitute any threat to the Americans since they probably cannot get to the Sinai from their bases in Lebanon and Syria. Nor are any Egyptian soldiers likely to attack the Americans. But such talk from the PLO may make it harder for State Secretary Henry Kissinger to get the necessary approval from the U.S. Congress of the new American role.

Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin in an interview Sunday on ABC television said without the American presence, "it is doubtful if the present terms of this agreement can be maintained."

But PLO chief Yasir Arafat in interviews with Time, Newsweek and CBS TV network said the "U.S. is paying too much for too little;" the Palestinians "can stop most of the consequences of the new agreement," and the Palestinians "are looking for more escalation; we expect continual support of our cause from the Soviet Union."

Meanwhile, a new outbreak of another religious war, between Christians and Moslems in northern Lebanon, took 5 lives Sunday. Unconfirmed rumors that armed Christians had abducted and murdered 25 Moslems in Tripoli brought armed bands into the streets of that city, Lebanon's second largest.

The army restored order, and officials said three persons were killed and 11 were wounded. Then at dusk an armed group ambushed a civilian bus and opened up with machine guns, killing 12 persons and wounding at least 25.

On Israel's northern border with Lebanon, the Israeli military command reported Arab gunmen fired bazooka shells across the border at an Israeli car near the settlement of Margaliot. No casualties were reported. It was the only action reported during the two-day Jewish New Year observance, which began at sundown Friday.

Museum Armor Showcased

By TERRY SPRAGUE
Staff Correspondent

PICTON — A rare and unusual display at the Prince Edward County Museum will be on exhibit throughout this month says Museum Board Chairman, James Musgrove.

The exhibit is a number of pieces of jousting armor, dating back to the era of Henry VIII. Pieces of the display were obtained from Ottawa, Kingston and Royal Ontario Museum in Toronto.

Said Mr. Musgrove, "This will give the school students, most of whom have probably never seen a suit of armor in their lives, a chance to study it in detail."

Also on display is a two-handed sword and a head armor for a horse. According to Mr. Musgrove it was equally essential for the horses to wear armor during battle and frequently in addition to the head cover, the horse also wore chest covers.

The exhibit is part of a monthly rotating display at the County Museum.

Query Net Size

By JERRY BROWN

BRIGHTON — Russell Rowe, MPP Northumberland and Ken Hutton, spokesmen for the Brighton fishermen currently embroiled with the ministry of Natural Resources in a net size dispute have both called for a new investigation of the problem following information that the men are catching only one per cent of their total of perch with the larger nets.

In an informal agreement in late August, William Foster, assistant deputy minister for southern Ontario, told the fishermen they would be allowed to continue using the smaller nets for the remainder of this season as long as they fished 25 per cent of the time with the larger 2¾ inch size.

The men have complied with the regulation and Mr. Rowe said the ministry was satisfied with the gradual changeover but figures released showed the men were throwing out the larger nets as nothing more than an exercise in futility, said Ken Hutton.

Mr. Rowe said the only way to solve the controversy would be to have some of the fishermen present when the survey was done so they could see the results.

"If the ministry is wrong then they will have to change their stance on the issue but if the fisher men are shown they are wrong then they must procede with the changeover," he said in an interview.

Ken Hutton said the fishermen not only should be present when the survey is done but should do the work.

"Not only will the fishermen know where to look for the fish, which the college students who did the survey last time didn't know, but if they are not allowed to fish with the smaller nets they can use the money they will earn during the investigation.

The ministry has said the entire area would soon be depleted of yellow perch, the fisherman's main "cash crop," if they continued to use the smaller nets. Officials say the men were gathering fish that had not spawned twice, the times necessary to maintain the fish level in the lake.

The fishermen have contended it would be impossible to gather enough fish to make a living with the larger nets citing examples of six-pound catches for five-day periods using the 2¾ size.

The controversy forced the fishermen to apply for welfare when they could not catch enough fish to live off but they were refused by the government.

Yardmen Grab Instruments Again

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

The Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund has once again requested that all Yardmen band equipment be returned to the sponsors.

In a written release, the sponsor organization states, "This doesn't mean we're shutting down the band. But, we're far from satisfied with the way the band has been run in the past."

Ernie Belanger, Yardmen secretary, said his organization has a capital investment in the band of some $80,000 — covering the cost of instruments, uniforms and flags.

"It is not our intention of depriving the community of the fine entertainment provided by the corps, nor do we wish to see the effort put into the group by its officers and members wasted," said Mr Belanger. "But irregularities in the operation of the band have made it necessary to take this step to protect our substantial investment."

He said the band equipment will be held in storage and will be available to a "responsible administration when it comes forward."

Conflict boiled between the sponsors and the band this summer when the Yardmen amalgamated with a Kingston marching band.

At one point the sponsors confiscated the band's equipment — returning it shortly to allow the band to conclude its competitive tour.

Proposed Rent Review Boards Attacked for Being Inadequate

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

Quinte Information and Assistance Centre case worker Bill Hockley has labelled "inadequate" the power of proposed provincial rent review boards to take landlords to court to have excessive rent increases rolled back.

Centre workers and oft-time outspoken civic activist Mr. Hockley cirticized the announcement of Premier Bill Davis as a "token gesture rather than a serious attempt to end the problem" of tenants hit by rapid or high rent increases.

Premier Davis said the Conservative Government will expand review board power to take "gougers" to court where a reasonable rent increase could be imposed.

Gerald Joyce former Quinte and District Real Estate Board (QDREB) president and now a vice-president of the Ontario Real Estate Association, said Wednesday it was premature for him to comment on the premier's policy change.

Without looking at an act amendment, he said he doesn't know the ramifications of the change.

Phil Bennett, present QDREB president, said he could not comment on the announcement without reading news reports.

Mr. Hockley, who has previously called for rent controls, said the premier's action was "a step in the right direction but several other steps have to be taken."

He labelled the announcement "a last minute, panic move" by a premier pressured by campaigning opposition parties.

Rent controls, he said, must be based on the triple criteria of the tenants ability to pay, the type of building, and the landlords overhead, and maintenance.

"Even if you roll back rents, you have to reflect the ability of the tenant to pay," he emphasized.

Mr. Hockley first called for rent controls and tribunals to hear landlord-tenant disputes in the face of a rise in the number of landlord-tenant problems handled by the centre this year.

In June, 1975, the centre handled 50 such cases (13 per cent of all cases), up from six per cent of its caseload the previous year.

Tenants find their ability to pay higher rents, coupled with the inability to find other accommodation, results in eviction notices, Mr. Hockley has said.

He predicted that landlords wouldn't take the "slightest notice" of the anti-gouging legislation.

In the end, it comes down to the unavailability of suitable, low-cost, plentiful accommodation, he said.

Breaks Wrist

BLOOMFIELD — A Bloomfield youth has been charged with careless driving following a single car collision Sunday on Highway 33 about one half mile west of Bloomfield Village.

Charged is Donald Maycock, 16, of 334 Main St., whose car left the road as he attempted to turn from the highway onto a side road. He was taken to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital where he was treated for a broken wrist.

Insurance Man Right on Spot

TRENTON — Gordon Webb, the local State Farm Insurance agent, didn't have to go far to investigate an accident claim, Friday night.

Raymond DiCresoenzo and William Mitts, both of Trenton and insured by Mr. Webb, were visiting him at his home when a passing vehicle struck both their car causing $1,000 damage.

Police said both vehicles were parked on the wrong side of the road. The driver of the third vehicle, Michael Herbert, 18, RR 3, Belleville, was charged with careless driving.

McLauchlan Radio Debate Declined by Robin Jeffrey

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

A challenge to debate the issues on local radio by Quinte riding NDP candidate Carson McLauchlan has been declined by Conservative Robin Jeffrey, the result of a previous commitment Sept. 16.

Conservative campaign manager Fred Deacon said today the riding organization has scheduled a large rally the night Mr. McLauchlan has purchased one hour on Radio Station CJBQ (7-8 p.m.).

The challenge to debate went out this weekend by letter and was declined today.

Mr. McLauchlan issued the challenge to give the "opportunity for the voter to compare you with me on a person to person basis."

He said Mrs. Jeffrey's refusal to appear on a CJOH-TV Ottawa television debate last week deprived voters of that opportunity.

In answer to NDP claims, Mr. Deacon said Mrs. Jeffrey could not attend the debate since her place that night was with Premier Bill A. Davis at a rally in Trenton.

Her failure to appear would have been "disrespectful", said Mr. Deacon.

He said neither Liberal Hugh O'Neil nor Mr. McLauchlan behaved as gentlemen when they failed to reveal to CJOH viewers the reason for her absence.

He said CJOH-TV did not act fairly by withholding the reason for her absence.

Mr. Deacon said the station refused to acept his offer to take her place in the debate.

The three candidates are scheduled to appear in an all-candidates night sponsored by the Kinsmen Club at the Shrine Club tonight.

Four Sent to Hospital

SHANNONVILLE — Four persons were taken to Belleville General Hospital after a single-car accident Saturday about 11:35 p.m. on County Road 7 near here.

Charles R. Ash, 20 of RR 5 Madoc, was treated for burns and released after the car he was driving hit a utility pole.

Ray Wease, 19, and Doug Davidson, 22, both of Madoc passengers in the car at the time of the collision, were both taken to hospital for treatment of burns and released.

Douglas Watts, 36, of Miltton, also a passenger in the car was taken to hospital with a broken shoulder, said police.

No estimate of damage is available.

Inflationary Factors

The Vagaries of Travel in the 70s from Agents' and Public Standpoint

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Travel agents owe their business existence to commissions. And Canadian travel agents are seeking—surprise!—higher commissions from the airlines.

Through their association, the agents are asking the airlines for an interim increase to nine per cent from the current 7.5 per cent on international tickets. The commission was increased from seven per cent last year.

For the longer term, they want higher commissions across the board. It's estimated that travel agents sell about three-quarters of international air tickets and nearly half of domestic tickets.

The airlines are resisting the agents' demand, partly because commissions have risen automatically in dollar terms as a result of the big boosts in air fares during the past two years.

"Seven and a half per cent of a 50-per-cent fare increase is a very healthy earnings increase—the result not of increased producitvity but of the airlines' misfortune," says Steve Howe of British Airways in Toronto.

"In the long haul, the money for increased commissions has to come from someone, and eventually that someone is the consumer."

The travel agents' response is that their costs have indeed risen because of the complexity and instability of current air fares.

In any event, the travel agent has other and more lucrative sources of earnings than the sale of airline tickets.

On almost every other aspect of its business, a travel agency earns a commission of at least 10 per cent.

That percentage goes higher on some types of business such as hotel and motel reservations for large groups, or for some types of out-of-season trade.

Example: Holiday Inns will pay 15 per cent at several points in Florida between now and mid-December. And on travel insurance (against loss of baggage, trip cancellation and the like), commissions range up to one-third of the premium.

Other sources of income include the charges that a travel agent may levy for special services to the customer whose itinerary may have to be planned individually.

Fringe benefits include the free travel that carriers accord to an agent who, for example, organizes a group of 30 tourists, or the discounts of perhaps 75 per cent given to travel-agency perosnnel taking so-called familiarization trips.

As well, the beneficiaries of such discounts are often given red-carpet treatment in the hope that they will direct full-fare holidayers to the resort in question.

Choosing a travel agent can be as tricky as the choice of any other dealer in intangibles.

The travel agent's most valuable assets are time and knowledge, so everything depends upon how the agent shares them with you.

A good agent should not be too busy to greet you promptly, ascertain your travel tastes, and volunteer information and candid opinions.

An agent may be able to save you money by offering you a package that includes transmeals and sightseeing at a considerably lower price than you could buy those services individually—and even at times when the independent traveller would not be able to get a reservation at any price.

Package holidays have been known to backfire, however. On a nine-stop package tour in Western Europe this summer, a Canadian couple reports, the hotels prmised to them at eight stops in their written itinerary were full, so they and their fellow-tourists had to be transferred to second-choice hotels.

Do at least a little homework—and preferably a lot—about your travel plans before you approach an agent. Then you can judge whether the travel agent is well informed and interested in your welfare, or merely an order-taker interested only in getting the maximum commission.

British theatre tours will be back as usual for the five-month "low"season starting Nov. 1—but without the usual year-to-year price increases in some cases.

Basic package price for show tours—including air travel from Canada to London, seven or 14 nights' accommodation, breakfasts, several theatre tickets and some sightseeing—will cost about the same as last winter, and $19 less than during the past summer.

Compared to regular economy airfares, the show-tour prices are so economical for anyone who wishes to travel between November and March (when the weather is chancy) that they are often used by business visitors who have no interest in theatre. The tours are not available during the popular holiday period Dec. 15 to Jan. 4.

One of the participating carriers, British Airways, is offering a variation on the concept—hilidays of one to three weeks in sun spots such as Majorca, Canary Islands, southern Spain, Malta and Tunisia.

Inclusive fares for these Enterprise package holidays, originating in London, start at $177—to which must be added transatlantic airfare.

Canadians have been the largest group of Western holidayers in Cuba up until now.

The Castro regime is preparing new facilities for Canadian and European tourists—but is also preparing for the return of U.S. tourists in the wake of a modest resumption in Cuba-U.S. trade relations.

A Club Mediterranee resort for Canadians and Europeans is to open Nov. 1 at Bacuranao, 17 miles east of Havana, with 100 beds. Some 20,000 Canadians are expected to visit the island this year.

Construction of a second Cuban Club Med, with 600 beds, is to begin soon, in anticipation of large-scale U.S. visits starting two or three years from now.

Unofficial reports say that Cuba's five-year plan calls for construction of more than 60 other resorts for North American tourists, designed to be operated at lower prices than tourists encounter at most winter resorts.

The new competition could be damaging to the resort industries elsewhere in the Caribbean, in Florida and in the Bahamas.

Lure of The Big City

Toronto — how cosmopolitan it is these days. And so much more attractive and interesting as a result.

Bellevillians who attended the "Ex" might have been forgiven for concluding the worst imaginings of the population explosion observers were coming true, such was the press of people at this ever-popular attraction.

But who would have worried, among such a fascinating throng. People of many races and backgrounds — Canadians now, in many instances — handsome people, beautiful young women, happy children. Offshore, yachts gliding past in the sun. In the international building, exhibits of engrossing interest from many lands.

The compelling lure too of the Grandstand — from the contemporary sound of an eightsome group called Chicago to Lawrence Welk, the Osmonds and others. The largest audience he had ever played before, according to maestro Welk, still an astonishingly fit and active man at 73. How many? Twenty-one thousand plus, more even than in New York. Indeed, Toronto was the highlight, as it was last year according to assistant conductor and accordionist Myron Floren who said: "if anyone has a lot, this is where I want to retire."

And despite the crowds, a small world, for there strolling along was a young artist who has made several appearances at the Quinte Mall, creating his canvases and exhibiting them right there.

People walk from this waterfront paradise of sorts, in the warm night, emerging onto the city pavements and go their way. It's late, but there are people about, in a way that astonishes visiting Americans from the sinister confines of cities across the border.

"It's only a couple of blocks," says a citizen to one who asks about the streetcars. The tall downtown office complexes, and the CN edifice snaking skywards, beckon as if close. It's an optical illusion though and it takes a good 50 minutes or so on foot, but in what other North American city would this be feasible?

Outside the Royal Alexandra theatre an artist is packing his work into a van. In European-accented tones, he calls out a greeting, to the only other person in the vicinity. A human touch in the night of the big city which at that point of time lacked only one thing: a restaurant open after midnight.

. . . And One Nearby

Bellevillians, when they want to get away from it all without having to travel too far, are fortunate in the choice of communities which enables them to do just that.

There is Toronto. Across the border, Syracuse and Rochester, Watertown too, are popular American centres.

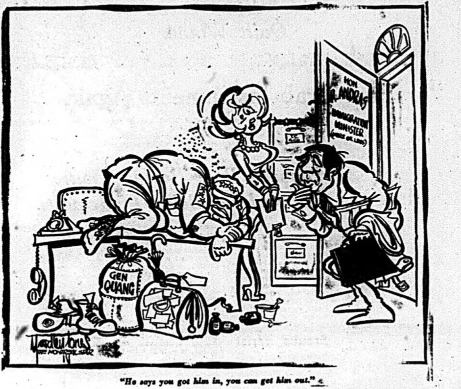
But still closer at hand, and perhaps overlooked by its proximity, is Kingston.

The Limestone City has a fund of interest for the visitor, from places of historic significance, to the more material considerations of shopping.

Indeed we might envy Kingston its downtown shopping facilities which are more varied than ur own, offering perhaps more for the mind in the way of arts and crafts and reading.

Noteworthy too on a recent visit was the number of United States visitors shopping there, from New York and Michigan mainly.

Belleville can claim its share of visitors from the same source, when the harbor here has a full quota, but their needs are more by way of provisions than due to any compelling attraction downtown. This will change of course with the completion of Century Place, an addition to downtown shopping here which will give a new dimension to the community and bring more people to our doors as well.



"He says you got him in, you can get him out."

Tuneau Now Answerable to Parliament

Ottawa Journal

On becoming a member of the Trudeau cabinet, Pierre Juneau commented, "I must consider myself minister from this afternoon." Mr. Juneau shouldn't have much trouble with that little challenge. So far as influence upon the radio we hear and the television we watch, Mr. Juneau has been a minister in all but name in his function as chairman of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission.

The single gain in the sea-change which Prime Minister Trudeau has wrought is that Mr. Juneau is at last out front: he can at last be held politically responsible for the decisions he may mastermind. The commissar has become a minister and in that he is in many ways less powerful. He now will have to persuade cabinet colleagues with his policies — not ail, let us hope, in pursuit of paternalistic, will-o'-the-wisp nationalism he has stood for at the CRTC.

No one has ever doubted Mr. Juneau's intelligence; it has been judgment which is suspect and his fellow members of the CRTC have always been too tame to question it sufficiently. It should be a different story in cabinet, unless of course, Mr. Trudeau, has made some advance commitments to Mr. Juneau, a possibility which, alas, cannot be dismissed as an absurdity.

Mr. Juneau of course comes to his new office well acquainted with some important aspects of the communications portfolio, though the full sweep of the job is much broader and more demanding than anything he has done before.

His qualifications are not so outstanding to avoid deep resentment being generated within the Liberal caucus. Mr. Trudeau has gratuitously insulted Liberal MPs, particularly those from Quebec. What has happened to all the talent which is supposed to be languishing within the Liberal parliamentary ranks? According to Liberal mythology, Mr. Trudeau's problem is that he has too many bright MPs of cabinet calibre for the number of jobs to go around. Well, that mythology comes down to earth with the thud it deserves with each MP having been judged and found wanting. Or is it possible that Mr. Trudeau didn't even bother looking within?

Soviets Soften Fishing Stance

Kitchener - Waterloo Record

The report of agreement by Soviet fishing representatives on several points at issue between Ottawa and Moscow over our East Coast fisheries seems a highly significant straw in the wind.

It indicates that the Soviet Union may be ready to abandon the bull-dozing tactics it has been following with its huge factory fleets off the East Coast for the past several years. Perhaps the best argument for an optimistic view of the meetings is that Moscow really didn't have to go along to this extent with Canadian demands, but could have continued to do as it has done in the past.

For although Canada is talking about declaring an extension of its territorial waters to 200 miles, there was no indication this was coming soon and no foreseeable method of effective enforcement.

There was a hint as to the reason behind Moscow's change of heart, however. Canada's decision to close its Atlantic Coast ports to the Soviet fishing fleet was apparently discussed, with a promise that they will be reopened once formal agreement has been reached.

This action, which was depriving suppliers in such cities as Halifax of substantial sales, may have caused more problems for the Soviet fleet than had been expected. It may be too that Prime Minister Trudeau's talks with Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev at the Helsinki conference helped convince the Russians of the rightness of our case.

The first class graduated in 1642 and Harvard's history runs unbroken since then. Crying 'Wolf' Backfires

Editor
The Intelligencer:

It appears that Mr. Wm. Hockley, has decided that his writings are of such import, that he dare not miss more than one edition of the Intelligencer at a time.

Perhaps at the onset of his career, Mr. Hockley had something worthwhile to say: however, it appears now that he is only exercising his right for freedom of speech. He has launched a personal vendetta against Mrs. Jeffrey, demeaned council members, criticising them for not holding an election for the new mayor. Does he not realize that the cost of an election would be the equivalent of providing one person with a L.I.P. grant? Does he not feel that an elected council, by reason of their election, should be able to make decisions? Those who were not deemed suitable for positions an council or the school board were not elected.

Keep it up Mr. Hockley: I feel that your prejudice of Mrs. Jeffrey can only enhance her chances for election, that your criticism of council can ensure they will have less opposition in the future. Remember the boy who called "wolf".

ONE OF THE MANY

Quebecers Live It Up

Montreal Gazette

Life in Quebec costs residents about 365 days of living when compared to average life expectancies in the rest of Canada — 69 and 75 years for males and females respectively.

Is is something in the coq au vin? Or perhaps an allergy to the fleur de lys?

No, there is no mysterious factor causing the life span difference determined by a provincial government study. Quebecers lost the 12 months simply by smoking, drinking and eating too much, driving too fast and keeping themselves in poor physical condition.

All these factors can be remedied by self-restraint, improved public health programs and more careful driving.

But Quebecers appear to prefer 'living for the present' — a lifestyle Torontonians might attribute to 'the Latin temperament' — and it's fun while it lasts.

NDP: Do They Know Where It's At Politically?

By DON O'HEARN

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Election other-sides:

Such as the cynic when he first saw the NDP slogan Tomorrow Is Today:

"I always felt they didn't know what day it was."

Then the crack after Premier William Davis announced his gun-control program:

"He's locking the barn door after the colt's been stolen."

Liberal leader, Bob Nixon standing beside his big white tour bus after dinner with candidate Mike Garvey in his lush home in a lush neighborhood of Mississauga East:

"Look at the neighbors. All with their blinds drawn."

A comment after the premier announced his program for trauma centres for highway accident victims.

"He should put in special sections for taxpayers who get their bills from regional government.

Quote from the text of Gerald Phillips, chairman of the Scarborough Board of Education and bright, young Liberal hopeful in Scarborough North, speaking fervently on our inadequate education system(

"These tests would be designed to measure basic reading, grammar, and mathematical skills."

Rember, "rip-off" in the 1971 election. It seemed that every second sentence from Stephen Lewis contained the word, much to the scorn of the government.

In this campaign I have heard it only once.

"These integrity charges by the Nixon party are a rip-off."

The speaker: Premier Davis.

Bob Nixon, again, on the LaMarsh Committee on Violence:

"Judy is a good friend of mine. But that doesn't mean that the first day I am in office she won't be fired."

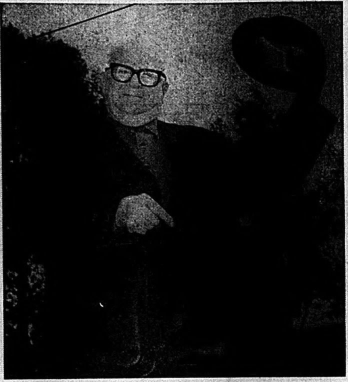
The most flamboyant campaign in the province is being run in Toronto-Armourdale where millionaire (Bad Boy Stores) mayor of North York Mel Lastman is running against former Toronto mayor and sitting Liberal member Phil Givens.

Lastman has a former Canadian Tire store as his headquarters and his signs are those electric jobs on wheels with flashing lights.

Lastman on Givens:

"The hardest part of this campaign for me is that I will have to beat Phil. I have always had a great liking and respect for him."

One Native Son Back from Ireland, Another Makes Return Trip



On His Way Back

With a jaunty wave, Robert O'Connell, 82, leaves Belleville for first trip home to his native Ireland since he emigrated to Canada at 16. The journey also sees him take his first trip by air.

At 82, First Trip Home

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Saturday at 82, Robert O'Donnell went home for the first time.

Maybe not exactly home, since he's lived most of his life in Ontario.

But at 16 he emigrated to Canada from Ireland. A "spur-of-the-moment decision, the long, seasick voyage to Halifax disenchanted him with travel thereafter he admitted.

But, after 66 years family persuasion finally prevailed on him.

He was scheduled to take his first aircraft flight Saturday out of Toronto for Dublin, accompanied by his grandson, Robert Howell, of Northwood Cresc., in eastend Belleville.

Awaiting him in and around his native Ballinamallard in northwest Ireland will be six or seven remaining brothers and sisters.

The slight numerical uncertainty is caused by the fact Mr. O'Donnell admits he's not quite sure — after all these years — exactly how many were in his family.

"It was either 13 or 14," he said Friday as he prepared for his long-deferred return to his hometown.

His emigration came almost by chance — when a neighbor decided at the last minute not to accompany his family to Canada. The young O'Donnell bought the steamship ticket and sailed instead — to eventually join a brother and other relatives and friends in St. Catherines.

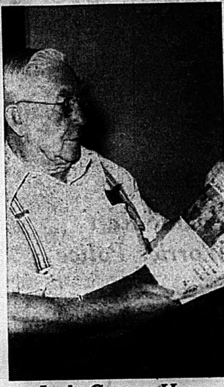
He later moved to Toronto where he worked for paper companies and as a municipal maintenance worker. After his retirement and he became a widower, his daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Howell, prompted him to move to Belleville, in the 1960s.

It was since that time that he first made contact with relatives from Ireland — when a sister visited Canada on a holiday four years ago.

Until then he never "had any inclination to go back," he said.

Although he can readily recall his native town he's not exactly sure what to expect after his long absence. One returned acquaintance once told him he wouldn't know the place these days.

But in the days before his departure the octogenarian admits to growing interest in what he'll discover as he retraces the trip that started when he was a lad.



Jack Comes Home

Jack McCall of Cannifton looks at a newspaper from Northern Ireland where he went to visit relatives he hadn't seen in over 60 years.

He returned to Canada Thursday and said he's happy to be home.

Roads Gave Visitor His Biggest Scare

By CLIFF KENYON
Staff Reporter

Jack McCall of Cannifton just returned to Canada after visiting his brothers and sister — for the first time in more than 60 years.

"We had a wonderful tour," said Mr. McCall who made the one month trip to Ireland and Scotland with his wife Mary.

Mr. McCall, now 77, left his Northern Ireland home when he was "12 or 13 years old — just like every other young fellow that wanted to see the world."

"I was the black sheep."

He went to Scotland where he was a herdsman on a sheep farm until 1925 when in his late teens he came to Canada, which he now calls home.

"When I landed in Montreal I couldn't speak a word of Canadian," said Mr. McCall.

He soon owned a 200-acre farm in Napanee but had to sell it during World War Two because he couldn't get anyone to work it with him.

"It was no use working it alone. Life is too short."

Now retired, Mr. McCall has worked as a carpenter and farmer, has worked in a distillery and in the mines in Timmins.

"I've been around the globe."

He said he decided to go to Ireland after he was visited by a niece. He doesn't expect his three brothers or sister to visit him: "There's none of them as fresh as I am. I can run any of them down."

He didn't remember any of his family and had a difficult time understanding their accents. The roads gave him the biggest scare.

"I'd never drive over there. I'd get killed. The roads are so narrow and crooked."

Although he'd like to visit Ireland again he said he was "— tickled to death to get in here again (Canada) and get back to natural life."

Mr. McCall now spends his time gardening and hunting. He has two sons: Alex in Picton and Leslie in Thurlow Township.

Passenger Dies in Crash

TWEED— A 70-year-old Toronto woman was killed in a single-car accident on Highway 37 about three miles south of Tweed about 9:30 a.m. Sunday.

Eva Vavra was a passenger in a car driven by her husband Louis, 72, when the car skidded into the shoulder and rolled several times, said Madoc OPP.

MR. Vavra is in Belleville General Hospital in stable condition. He has been charged with careless driving, said police.

Woman Hurt As House Hit

TRENTON — Police have charged a local man with careless driving when the car he was operating went out of control on Dundas Street East, crossed a centre island and drove into an apartment house, injuring a 63-year-old woman sleeping in her bed Saturday morning.

Gerald Slater, 19, 50 Tripp Boulevard, was travelling east on Dundas near Marmora when he lost control of his car and it crashed into the building at 1, Marmora Street causing an estimated $11,000 damage.

Lillian Day, 63, a tenant in the apartment block was in her bed when she was struck by a falling brick shook lose during the accident, police said. She was not seriously injured and was treated for minor cuts and bruises and released from Trenton Memorial Hospital.

Mr. Slater, and a passenger in the car were also treated for minor cuts and bruises.

There was $2,000 damage to the vehicle.

Old Sweats Hear Duffy Decry Society Short of Discipline

A society short on discipline and a sense of duty may also forfeit its self-respect, World War 1 veterans — and some of Canada's oldest soldiers— were told in Belleville Saturday night.

The caution came from another ex-soldier— of World War 11: Col. Angus Duffy, former commander of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment.

One of the safeguards of human harmony is respect for individual rights and privileges, he told the 57th annual reunion of the 21st Battalion Association at the Canadian Legion hall.

Current social permissiveness gives the impression that all things are available immediately — and for free, said Col. Duffy. But rights and privileges have to be earned as part of the process of self-respect.

"And I'm concerned that we're losing the respect we had for each other," he said.

"You cannot cheat the government, you can't cheat your neighbor and say to your kids not to cheat. It's popular to cheat the government — and the kids know this. So they don't respect us.

"And parents can't impose respect on them. They must earn that respect by example," he said.

Col. Duffy told the veterans he was concerned society would lose by default the freedoms for which they and other veteran warriors had fought.

An estimated 47 of the old soldiers registered for the reunion — an annual event held without break since the battalion was disbanded at the end of the 1914-18 war. The unit, which drew volunteers from around east-central Ontario— the Quinte district — put 1,250 volunteers in the field in its first draft. Today the association numbers about 100 members, across north America. But each year time thins the ranks a little more, and a few less old soldiers show for the reunions.

Average age of association members is now 80. Only one officer still survives — Stuart Flavelle, 81, of Lindsay.

It's president, Bill Gray,— now living in Cleveland, Ohio is 76, but was in combat at 16.

On behalf of ghe association he received a framed commendation from Premier William Davis. It was presented on behalf of Dr. Richard Potter, former MPP Quinte, by Jack Ellis, MP Hastings.

Sunday morning the old soldiers attended a chuch parade of the Belleville armory lawn and later dispersed for another year after a lunch party at the Legion headquarters.

Old warriors of World War 1's 21st Battalion received framed compliments from Premier William Davis Saturday at Belleville reunion. The memorial was accepted by Bill Gray, 76 (right) reunion association president and Stuart Flavelle, 81, of Lindsay, now the veteran unit's only surviving officer.

Loyalist Students Like to Help Selves

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

While the availability of student accommodation is tightening, Belleville and Loyalist College still does not have the problems to compare with larger centres.

Art McFarlane, director of student services at Loyalist said during an interview Friday, everything is shaping up nicely for students needing winter housing even though enrolment is up this year and the supply of rooms has remained constant since last year.

"We're starting to feel a squeeze but generally everything is going quite well," he said.

He estimated that approximately half of the more than 1,000 students attending Loyalist this year will require board in and around the city. "There are no foreseen problems though."

He said a trend among the students looking for rooms is developing where students prefer self-contained accommodation where they can do their own laundry and cooking.

"Responding to this change, many of the families who take students in are giving the students kitchen privileges so that they can take care of themselves," said Mr. McFarlane.

Mr. McFarlane said 130 families have contacted the college with an interest in taking in students with a total accommodation of 350 people.

"The remainder, particulary the upper classmen, group together and independently rent entire units and sometimes homes on a shared basis," said Mr. McFarlane.

"There's bound to be a squeeze but we are still not facing the fantastic problems of the larger centres where moderately priced central section accommodation has been re-developed into high priced high rise buildings," he said.

Mr. McFarlane said that while the "hunting season" has been open since early July for home seekers, students are still searching for rooms.

Any families interested in taking in a student for the school term is invited to contact the college's student services department.

Boy Killed Under Steps

A five-year-old Belleville boy was killed and his friend injured about 4 p.m. Saturday when a set of cement steps fell on them at a concrete plant they were playing in.

Kerry Daniels of RR 5, Belleville, was killed when the set of steps fell on him at Quinte Precast Concrete Ltd., about one mile north of Belleville, near his home.

David Thompson, seven, of RR 5 Belleville, is in Belleville General Hospital in satisfactory condition with leg injuries.

Strikes Pole, Man Charged

COLBORNE - A Castleton man was charged with careless driving following an accident early Sunday morning when he lost control of his truck, entered a ditch and struck a hydro pole, one mile north of the 401, police said.

Randy Jacobi, 16, of RR1 Castleton caused 1,500 damage to the pick-up but was not injured during the accident, which occurred while he was travelling north on County Road No. 25.

Judges Defend Position

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's 130 criminal court judges said in a statement Saturday that it never has been the intention of any member of the provincial court bench to slow down or withdraw services.

They would not expand on the statement or comment on the contradiction between the official stand and statements by some judges two weeks ago who complained about working conditions.

The official statement was issued at the end of a three-hour closed executive meeting of the judge's association. The judges have decided to withhold public comment until after the Sept. 18 election.

Clare Morrison, a former judge and president of the Provincial Judges Association until last June, said in August that "many uptight judges" may consider a slowdown in services.

Davis in Trouble Over Tenant Rights

TORONTO (CP) — The Davis government is headed for trouble if it ignores the plight of overcharged tenants during the Sept. 18 Ontario election campaign, NDP Leader Stephen Lewis said Sunday.

He forecast "a tremendous backlash" from voters if the government does nothing to crack down on greedy landlords.

He spoke at a news conference where he renewed charges that landlords across the province are hitting tenants with exorbitant rent increases—25 to 60 per cent in many cases.

He quoted figures from nine Toronto cases researched by the NDP and said they are "representative of a pattern" among landlords across the province.

The cases involved Hanseatic Holdings, a German company that has made heavy financial commitments and is pushing up rents to meet its obligations, Mr. Lewis said.

In one case, a couple in their 60s have been told their rent will rise to $325 from $194 a month when their current two-year lease expires Oct. 31, he told reporters. The increase would total 67.5 per cent.

Another couple have been advised that their rent of $201 a month will also go to $325 on the same date, Mr. Lewis said.

He again challenged the Urban Development Institute of Toronto to back up its claim that such rent examples are uncharacteristic of the overall situation.

The institute, which represents 25 Metropolitan Toronto developers, accused Mr. Lewis last week of tarring them unfairly for the actions of a few.

Mr. Lewis said the rent issue has 'struck a nerve among people" across Ontario.

"The NDP offices downtown are like a rental agency," he said of public response since he first started emphasizing the issue last week.

The NDP Leader repeated his call for a province-wide network of rent review boards with power to stop or roll back unjustified rent increases.

The rent review system proposed by Premier William Davis will not work, he argued. The premier has suggested boards with the authority to take unscrupulous landlords to court.

Mr. Lewis said this would do nothing for tenants because the courts would bog down with cases. Rip-off rents would continue for months while victims waited for a court decision.

He told reporters rent increases should be limited to 10 per cent to 16 per cent—"something in that range." Landlords should be allowed enough to cover costs and make "some clear profit" but increases of 40 per cent or 60 per cent were intolerable.

The news conference was the only public appearance the NDP leader made Sunday. He spent Saturday in the Windsor area and Hamilton.

At Harrow, in southwestern Essex County, he told farmers the Davis government has abandoned rural Ontario, the traditional base of Progressive Conservative support.

He asked the premier to announce full details of his agricultural policy before voting day.

At Kingsville, he told fishermen they are entitled to compensation for incomes lost because of mercury-polluted fish. The cost should be paid by polluting industries and the government should ensure that companies carry out their responsibilities, he said.

In Hamilton, he told supporters at an NDP dance that the Conservative campaign is falling apart and voters must decide whether they want the Liberals or New Democrats to govern Ontario. The NDP is the only party that has campaigned on issues of substance he argued.

Today he campaigns in Brockville, Cornwall, Hawkesbury and Ottawa.

Zodiac Raft Worries Police

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — After failing to flush the Zodiac raft from the treacherous Niagara River whirlpool for five days, police are worried that some foolhardy people might attempt to free the raft themselves.

Police agencies on both sides of the river have received hundreds of calls from people all over North America volunteering to recover the raft, police investigator Rick Sutliffe said Sunday.

Sutliffe, a Niagara frontier state parkways policeman, was watching another afternoon of unsuccessful recovery attempts. He is in charge of the investigation of the Aug. 29 mishap in which the raft capsized in rapids above the whirlpool, sending all 29 persons aboard into the river where three of them drowned.

Crowds lined the banks on both sides of the gorge watching two pilots from Niagara River Gorge Trips Inc. fail to break out of the whirlpool's grasp nine times.

Jerry Morton, 23, of Los Alamos, N.M., and Rick Overgaard, 26, of California, got the 40-horsepower engine running late Saturday for the first time since they piloted the raft the day of the accident.

Each time they ran the raft into the edge of the eddy, flotsam blunted their progress and the current spun the still-capsized craft around, pushing it back into the counter-clockwise flow.

The whirlpool is in a bend of the river several miles downstream from Niagara Falls.

The young raftsmen had discounted the advice of Wesley Hill, 45, of Niagara Falls, Ont. Hill had suggested that the raft should be navigated along the relatively calm shoreline in a clockwise direction. Observers noted that the currents opposing exit from the vortex here appeared to be less strong.

Hill, a 31-year veteran of boat and body recoveries in the Niagara, is acting as a police consultant.

"I don't know why they haven't done it his way," Sutliffe said.

Hill said: "I told them to tip it over from Day One. That would have been one thing in our favor—no drag."

Morton responded that although Hill was considered to be a local expert, "he just has no experience compared to my 10 years, 15,000 river miles and approximately 140 river trips."

Because of the currents, "it was not possible to follow his advice," Morton said. "The tubes are full of water. It's too heavy to move it."

Police said they will return today to make another attempt to get the raft out of the whirlpool.—They plan to simultaneously use the raft's engine and a block and tackle system from shore.

Transit Workers Strike

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — About 214 employees of Kitchener Transit went on strike shortly after 1 a.m. today, forcing the about 35,000 daily commuters in the Kitchener-Waterloo area to find other means of transportation.

The strike, involving drivers and maintenance workers, is one of two strikes called today by public transit workers in Ontario. Transit workers in London also were scheduled to leave their jobs.

The Kitchener workers, members of Local 304, Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, want wage increases of $1.04 an hour in two stages of a one-year contract.

The City of Kitchener, which operates the transit company and rents its services to Waterloo, has offered increases of 70 cents an hour to drivers and 76 cents to maintenance workers.

The maximum hourly rate under the old contract, which expired May 31, was $5.03 an hour for drivers and $5.43 for mechanics.

Radio station CHYM offered to run advertisements to help residents set up car pools. Wilfrid Laurier University and University of Waterloo were offering substitute shuttle services to students.

The workers voted 97 per cent in favor of strike action in July and were in a position to strike Aug. 10.

Spokesmen for the workers said Sunday no negotiation meetings were planned.

Lawyers Doubt Manson's Role in Assassin's Plot

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The name of Charles Manson may dominate the case of Lynette (Squeaky) Fromme, although prosecutors say they find no evidence of a conspiracy in the attempted assassination of President Ford.

Manson, convicted of murder in the deaths of nine persons, is reputed by some authorities to still have a strong influence over some of his communal "family," despite the fact he is in prison.

Among the most loyal is Miss Fromme, 27, charged with attempted murder of the president after pointing a loaded .45 calibre pistol at Ford from an arm's length away as the president shook hands with well-wishers near the state capitol on Friday.

FBI agents who interviewed Manson in his San Quentin jail cell over the weekend say he denied any role in a conspiracy to kill Ford but refused to answer specific questions.

U.S. Attorney Dwayne Keyes and Sacramento Police Chief William Kinney both said during the weekend they have no evidence of any Manson involvement. And Miss Fromme's roommate, Sandra Good, another loyal Manson follower, said Manson had nothing to do with the incident.

FBI spokesman Tom Griffin said Manson was interviewed at San Quentin prison by two agents. "In 1½ half hours we came up with absolutely nothing of any evidentiary value or any lead value either," he said. "We got no answers to specific questions as to the actual event or any conspiracy or plan."

Griffin said Manson, 40, was co-operative but only "to the standpoint of giving out his theory on how he thinks the world should be. He's willing to talk about that."

Miss Fromme, being held under $1 million bail, has not entered a plea. Her arraignment was continued until Thursday. By then, prosecutors hope to have a federal grand jury indictment charging her under the new federal law covering assassination attempts on presidents.

Miss Good, 31, insisted at a Saturday news conference that Manson did not order Miss Fromme to kill Ford. "Squeaky acted totally of her own volition," she said. 'Manson didn't order her to do this. Squeaky is acting on the will of many people."

Stephen Kay, one of Manson's prosecutors, had said Friday: "The Manson girls just don't act on their own. They act at the behest of Charles Manson. I think Charles Manson had a hand in it."

Chartered Banks Blamed For Canada's Inflation

HALIFAX (CP) — An economics professor claims the growth of private banks is a leading cause of inflation in Canada.

Dr. E. J. Doak, associate professor of economics at St. Mary's University, said inflation would end if the Bank of Canada were simply to reduce the supply of money.

But the Bank of Canada has failed to do this, and as a result, Dr. Doak said, Canadians "will have to take a hard look" at the three major influences on it: the federal government, chartered banks and international financial interests.

Dr. Doak's analysis appeared in The Financial System, a monthly periodical which he personally writes and publishes.

He said inflation always follows a classic economic formula: The rate of inflation is equal to the disparity between the rate of money growth and the rate of the country's real economic growth.

The current inflation resulted from the Bank of Canada increasing the money supply in the early 1970s, aimed at boosting economic activities, he said.

He blamed much of inflation on the growth of the chartered banks who handle the inflation-causing excess money.

"For inflation to take place, an increased supply of money is required and there is no lack of admittance on the part of the Bank of Canada.

National Wildlife Preserves Not Well Known in Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — With acreage ranging from two to almost 15,000 and wildlife as diverse as California bighorn sheep and greater snow geese, this country's national wildlife areas remain virtually unknown to many Canadians.

There are more than 30 such preserves, run by the Canadian Wildlife Service, in all provinces but Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland.

Nolan Perret, co-ordinator of the wildlife service's habitat program, says the areas may not be well-known to the public because the service has taken a "soft-sell approach."

The main reason for acquiring the areas has been to prevent damage by building development or pollution, especially near large cities. That is one of the major reasons why the government purchased farm and marsh lands for the Alaksen wildlife area in Delta, B.C., on the outskirts of Vancouver.

"It would have been a housing development if we hadn't bought it," Mr. Perret said in an interview.

In order to prevent similar damage to bird habitat, the government recently purchased the Contrecoeur Islands, downstream from Montreal in the St. Lawrence River.

In the southern Okanagan region of British Columbia, Mr. Perret says, the government is acquiring land to save what he describes as one of the last "chunks of Sonoran desert" in Canada.

The area around Vaseux Lake, just south of Penticton, closely resembles the Sonoran desert in Arizona, he said. Its wildlife includes canyon wrens, California bighorn sheep, badgers, kangaroo mice and other desert animals.

Although one spokesman for the service said the wildlife areas are for birds and "not really for people at all," Mr. Perret says that to the greatest extent possible, the public is encouraged to visit them.

"They bought them," he said. "They should be able to enjoy them."

Acquiring land for the more than 30 areas cost the government more than $8 million between 1966 and 1974, the environment department said recently. More than 40,000 acres are involved.

One of the most popular areas is Cap Tourmente, about 30 miles east of Quebec City on the north shore of the St. Lawrence River.

The cape itself is an 1,800-foot-high granite knob towering over tidal flats and marshes along the river. These marshes are home to more than 100,000 greater snow geese every spring and fall.

Bob Peart, an interpretative biologist with the service, said that 7,000 people and 2,600 cars visited the area on Thanksgiving Day last year. But the enthusiastic public reaction causes problems, he said.

"It tears the hell out of the habitat we're trying to save."

There are plans this year to initiate some type of transit system to alleviate this situation.

Cap Tourmente is the site of an interpretation centre, which provides the public with background information on what Mr. Peart calls "a wildlife spectacular." Other interpretation centres are being planned or have been set up in each biological region of the country.

"The over-all objective is to develop an appreciation, awareness and understanding of the Canadian environment," he said.

These regional interpretation centres are located along the Trans-Canada Highway and other major routes. One of the most popular is at Wye Marsh, near Midland, Ont., about 80 miles north of Toronto.

The centre includes an observation tower, orientation centre and a number of nature trails. The emphasis, officials say, is on getting the visitor outdoors to see the environment of the marsh, a good example of the northern hardwoods country.

The Creston Valley Wildlife Centre in the southeastern corner of British Columbia near Creston provides an introduction to the Columbia region. And in Perce, on Quebec's Gaspe Peninsula, a recently-opened centre explains the birds of the Atlantic Coast.

Quinte Cuisine

After Marjorie Jackson learned of this recipe for 15-minute chili sauce from a friend, she's never gone back to long, hot hours stirring a steaming kettle. Although she enjoys working in the kitchen — she and her husband run a catering service — Mrs. Jackson says this short-cut method is really worthwhile.

Quick Chili Sauce

six quart basket of tomatoes, peeled, cut finely four cups celery, cut finely four cups onions, cut finely
½ cup salt

Let these ingredients stand together overnight in a large bowl. Drain well. Then add:

five cups sugar
two cups vinegar
three tsp. mustard seed
one tsp. celery seed
½ tsp. cayenne pepper
two sweet green peppers, cut finely

Combine all ingredients in a large pot, mix thoroughly and boil hard, uncovered, for 15 minutes. Stir constantly during this process. Then pour into sterile jars and seal.

Packing is something Betty Fleming has had to do a lot of lately. Not for herself, but for six of her seven children who take off from home this month. September is a time when many young adults are leaving Belleville for further schooling or new careers, and the Fleming family is scattering as far afild as Tunisia and France. Here, Mrs. Fleming helps Lretta who leaves Tuesday for Vancouver.

September for Fleming Family: Six Leave, One Left at Home

September is a time of change for many families. But for Paul and Betty Fleming this month is bringing more sweeping changes than ever bfore. By the end of these 30 days, only one of their seven children will be under the roof of their Stanley Park Drive home.

"It's sort of ironic," says Mr. Fleming, a Belleville accountant. "We moved to Belleville in September 16 years ago, and now most of the children are leaving the same month."

The Fleming household is just one of many that will be a little emptier and quieter. Many high school graduates are taking their leave and embarking on further studies at college or university, or starting out in their first jobs away from home.

However, for the Flemings the goodbyes are being said to a family that will be scattering further than most.

By mid-September, 24-year-old Louise will be on her way to Rennes, France, where she'll teach English to high school students. Louise, who studied French literature at Laval University after obtaining her BA from University of Toronto, has been working on her MA at McMaster University and will be finishing her thesis while in France.

Peter Fleming, 26 years old, has just returned from six weeks in Europe, and will be leaving home shortly to resume his duties with the Canadian Radio and Television Commission in Ottawa. He'll be following his 20-year-old sister Jean, who is returning to the University of Ottawa to complete her studies in recreation.

Also in Ottawa this year will be 23-year-old Chris, involved in the study of catechetics.

Off on a more distant excursion is Martha, 19, who was recently accepted by a Canadian Youth program. For the next four months she'll be in the Laurentians, and then travelling across the country before leaving for Tunisia in December for another four months.

Loretta, 22-year-old recreation graduate of Sir Sandford Fleming College in Peterborough, leaves this week for an extended visit to Vancouver.

And last but not least, the Flemings will say goodbye every day to 17-year-old Lee, who is in her final year at Moira Secondary School, soon to be the last one leaving the nest.

And how does it feel to be parents of a family disappearing before their very eyes?

"It is certainly an emotional experience," says Mrs. Fleming, "almost traumatic.

"With all the farewells in the past few days there has been no shortage of tears."

Ann Landers

Safest for Little Boys: Be Prepared to Scream

[redacted]

Annie Old Girl: You must have donated your brains to the Hadassah rummage sale. I refer to "'Concerned Mom" who was afraid to let her seven-year-old boy go to the men's room by himself because "'the woods are full of perverts."

Your suggestion to buttonhole a kindly gentleman on his way in and ask him to watch over the kid was idiotic. Please explain how a mother is supposed to pick out the "kindly gentleman" from the sweet old geezer who is as queer as a $3 bill?

More-realistic advice would have been to tell the boy, 'Go in alone and if anyone tries to molest you, scream your head off." If he doesn't know what "molest" means, she should tell him. Sex education should start early.—Louisville Reader

Dear Lou: You may have a point, but I doubt that any geezer, no matter how funny, would take such a chance with the kid's mother standing outside the door. Your suggestion that young boys be warned against molesters and that they yell their heads off is excellent. Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: I am engaged to a girl who is giving me a hard time. She says I'm too possessive and overly suspicious. She doesn't act like a person who is about to be married. You be the judge.

In the last three weeks, Hilda has "disappeared" four times. When I call her apartment, her room-mate says, "I don't know where she is. Maybe she's at her mother's." I call her mother and she's not there. When Hilda turns up after two or three days and I ask where she's been, she says, "Don't be such a male chauvinist pig."

I paid $255 for an engagement ring. We plan to be married in three months. But I worry about a girl who stays lost for two and three days and then refuses to account for herself.

Does marriage settle people down? What do you think?—Once Burnt, Twice Shy

Dear Burnt: I think you'd better prepare for a life of grief if you marry a girl who specializes in disappearing and refuses to account for her absence. Don't expect her to settle down merely because she has a wedding ring on her finger. The engagement ring doesn't seem to mean much.

Dear Ann Landers: I always thought your column was to read—not to write to. But here I am, looking for help.

I'm a boy 16, with lots of friends but no friendships.

No one ever calls me to go any place. I'm always the one who does the calling. Usually the guys I call have 'other plans." I don't know if their excuses are legitimate or not'.

My parents are always pushing me to go out, but I hate to go alone and I can't seem to get anyone to go with me. Maybe I'm a born loner. Do other people feel as I do or am I some kind of freak? Please help me.—No Name

Dear N. N.: There are millions of people like you. In fact, popular teen-agers sometimes get the idea they have no friends. It's part of growing up. You say "the guys" usually have other plans. There's another sex. Girls. Have you tried them? I'll bet at least a dozen who go to your school would be thrilled to get a phone call from you.

Give it a try, and let me know how you make out. Er . . . I mean get along.

Injured Dancer Back on Her Feet — Gratefully

HALIFAX (CP) — The theatrical good-luck wish aside, breaking a leg can wreck a dancer's career.

So when Ellen Pierce, 32, of Halifax was able to return to dancing after a severe break, the close call bestowed on her an appreciation of blessings as simple as the ability to move.

Miss Pierce, a blonde from Liverpool, N.S., has evolved her career in the arts from music through theatre and finally to dance.

In 1972 she organized a dance workshop here which ultimatley become the Dance Co-Op, and two years ago she left for Vancouver to study with the Anna Wyman Dance Studio. But then a freak accident on a Vancouver street severely fractured her leg and injured her left knee.

Three months of therapy and two operations were needed to get her moving again. A third operation will be needed in January to remove a pin from her upper leg.

Only two months ago she was walking with a cane, but now she is back teaching dance and stretch classes in a summer session for the Dance Co-Op.

She says the experience of suddenly changing from a healthy, active person into a bed-ridden hospital case changed her opinions about many things.

"I never realized what necessity there is in moving. If you stop you die. I was shocked in hospital to find that people seemed to atrophy from just lying there."

"I still get frustrated at being unable to run or leap. But most important I've gained an appreciation for those simple movements most of us take for granted.

Spending time in a wheelchair also gave her understanding of those permanently confined to them.

"I didn't realize the limitations. It was impossible to get around or go anywhere unassisted and the only time I felt really comfortable was when I was with someone else in the same position."

Miss Pierce is convinced that many people have been impeded from becoming truly fit because they think of their minds as one entity and their body as another.

"Once you know they are one and the same thing, it's easier to co-ordinate them. Once you start stretching and loosening the joints the process takes over and you just feel freer."

She had a lot of time to think during her stay in hospital, and she came to the conclusion that there should be some kind of co-operation between hospital patients and dancers.

"How does one inspire a desire to move? It is frightening to discover how one becomes isolated when away from the mainstream of the so-called healthy. It's almost like being imprisoned."

Meanwhile, Ellen still is working on returning her 5-foot-10 inch frame to full motion. She can't resume strenuous lessons until after her next operation but plans this fall to study in New York with Zena Rommette, who specializes in dance exercises using the floor barre, a wooden bar a few inches from the floor.

"I want to keep on teaching and dancing," she said.

"Eventually it might lead to performing but right now it's hard to dream. My priority is getting my leg together."

Women Alcoholics Finally Seeking Help

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The director of the women's branch of Mission Services in London says women alcoholics are finally beginning to seek professional help.

Gail McCall, who is also director of the mission's Rotholme recovery house for female alcoholics, said in an interview that there is generally much more of a social stigma attached to the female alcoholic than the male.

"Society has traditionally reacted with shock and horror to women with drinking problems," she said. "A man who overcomes a drinking problem is seen as a hero, while a woman who does the same thing is regarded as an ex-alcoholic."

The Rotholme centre doubles as a temporary residence or half-way house for women recovering from alcohol problems and London's first detoxification centre.

The detoxification unit, which opened in May, will be run on a two-year experimental basis.

Since opening, the three-bed facility has dealt with between 60 and 70 women with drinking problems, most of them in the over-40 age group.

Unit staff say they could double admissions if police were permitted to use the detoxification facilities as an alternative to a drunk charge.

The unit is currently negotiating to become affiliated with a hospital, which will allow police to bring intoxicated women to the centre.

"Only a few of the women who come here are really addicted to alcohol," said Miss McCall. "Others are binge drinkers or women who have turned to alcohol to see them through a problem."

She said many of the women have family problems, but "very few are admitted whose husbands or partners do not drink to excess."

Most admissions are referred to the centre by hospitals, doctors or drinking companions who know of its existence, she said.

"Lately we've had women referred here by men who go to the men's detoxification centre," said Rosemary Eaton, director of the unit. "Sometimes a very inebriated gentleman will escort a very inebriated lady to our door and then set off for the men's detox centre."

Once a woman admitted to the detoxification unit has sobered up, she might be invited to investigate the centre's counselling and recovery facilities.

Women involved in a full-time recovery program with the Addiction Research Foundation, London hospitals or other agencies may live for several months at Rotholme until they again feel at east with family friends and at work.

The home has live-in facilities for seven women and usually is half to three-quarters full, said Miss McCall.

Resident women attend group discussions twice a week and share cooking, shopping and housekeeping responsibilities in the home.

"Women who have gone through the recovery program often come back here to work as volunteers," said Mrs. Eaton. "They've gotten something out of the place and now they want to put something back in."

Miss McCall said latest official figures on alcoholism in Canada estimate that there are seven male alcoholics for every female alcoholic.

"But the women's detoxification centre in Toronto has found it's really more like three to one and may even be as high as one to one."

She said society has encouraged women to hide their alcohol problems instead of dealing with them openly.

"Women are conditioned to turn to tranquillizers and other drugs to help them deal with alcohol problems," she said. "They have become quite adept at describing the symptoms that will get them the pills they want on prescription."

"Many women who come in here have a problem with dual addiction," said Mrs. Eaton. "At least half of them come with purses full of tranquillizers and sleeping pills.

"Fortunately many London doctors now recognize their patients' problems and are referring them to us."

Annual Show Features Elegant Simplicity

MONTREAL (CP) — "Elegant simplicity" was featured Wednesday in fashions designed by famous names from France and Italy at the annual autumn collection presented by Holt, Renfrew and Co. Ltd.

The classical dinner dress and suit dominated the collection of clothes, described as being among the most expensive in the world.

The show reveals what Holt calls its fashion statement, as selected by its couture buyer Evelyn Weiner, who seeks clothes from exclusive European sources.

Again this fall, Holts was loyal to Christian Dior, Yves Saint-Laurent, Emanuel Ungaro, Renato Balestra, Andre Laug, Mila Schon and Ognibene-Zendman.

A unique selection of Holt Renfrew's own furs, including a floor-length natural white mink cape with a white fox hood and a brown Russian broadtail evening coat hooded in Russian Barguzin sable, were displayed in the show.

For daytime wear Maro Bohan of Christian Dior created a sporty mood with parkas, ponchos and coats made of heavy tweeds, slim tweed skirts with matching "waiter's jackets" fitted to the waist.

Pants were less noticeable than usual, shown mostly as jumpsuits or replaced by sporty skirts to the knee and below and for evening, by long, elegant gowns.

Dinner dresses included the classic suit in stark black wool broadcloth, with a deep V-necked jacket covering a silk jersey evening blouse.

Hair, styled by Montreal's La Coupe, has strong Oriental influences with long bangs, or fringe, on hair cut from shoulder length to the tip of the ear.

Men's clothing influenced evening styles created by Ognibene-Zendman, who designed one gown cut in the shape of a man's robe in grey silk with lighter grey embroidery. A black chiffon gown with a striped placket front was reminiscent of a gentleman's evening shirt.

Cancer-causing Chemical No Hazard to Consumers

EDMONTON (CP) — A man told a provincial court Wednesday it was okay for him to beat his wife with a belt because she had signed a written agreement to permit it.

Court was told the woman's arms and legs were tied and she was beaten with a belt, producing welts on her thighs.

The man produced a hand-written document which he said his wife had signed, giving him permission to strap her if she lost her senses.

Part of the agreement read: ". . . (if) I go off the deep end getting mad and losing my senses, I allow him to give me a good strapping with his belt to make me come to my senses regardless of blue marks caused thereby."

Provincial Judge Ed Stack found the man guilty of assault but gave him a conditional discharge.

Love Conquers All

OTTAWA (CP) — A young, frustrated couple walked into Ottawa city hall after being turned down from purchasing a marriage licence in the city clerk's bureau. When they had offered a cheque, they were told the $15 fee had to be paid in cash. Mayor Lorry Greenberg promptly took the cheque, pulled out his wallet and handed over the money. Then the mayor ordered that in future personal cheques be accepted. Credit cards, however, won't be.

Solar Power Development Is Key to Cheap Energy

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — United States government agencies, private businesses and university laboratories have joined forces in a major push to exploit solar energy cheaply within 10 years, but scientists are divided on whether the challenge will be met.

The target is similar to the one President Kennedy set the country in 1961 to get a man on the moon within the decade.

President Ford is asking science and industry to eliminate by 1985 the country's dependence on foreign oil and his energy research and development administration has put the main emphasis on exploitation of solar energy.

Leading solar energy scientists say enough is known about solar power to exploit it cheaply if not by 1985 at least by the year 2000.

But they say whether this goal will be met will depend on huge amounts of public money being poured into research and development. Some scientists doubt if Congress is yet ready to provide such large sums.

The solar scientists' aim is to convert into power the 100 watts of solar energy which beat down wastefully on every square foot of earth during daylight.

A reasonably efficient collector plate covering 1,000 square feet of the roof of a suburban home could—with the aid of a simple storage system—provide all the power a home needs.

For industry, scientists envisage huge solar farms with mirrored dishes following the course of the sun, sopping up the sun's power and feeding it into a power grid.

They say one solar farm, spread over 1,500 square miles of desert, could produce all the energy the country needs.

The first simple solar heating devices are already beginning to hit the market.

Sparked by the soaring price of gas and electricity, swimming pool owners are putting collector plates containing copper pipes on their roofs which warm water for the pool.

These devices now are being made only by small companies and are expensive.

But next year larger companies will enter the market with mass-produced solar pool heaters and they say the price will be slashed.

To provide both heating and cooling for homes, some of the largest corporations in the country are experimenting with roof collector plates and huge waterbags.

"But it is difficult to convert these devices to use in houses," says Robert Rod, science vice-president of Monogram Industries, a company producing electrical insulating and conducting products used in solar systems.

"Houses will have to be designed in future to include solar heat collectors and the home building industry is slow to make changes.

NDP Cabinet Advisor Called "The Exorcist"

VICTORIA (CP) — Marc Eliesen, one of the top bureaucrats in the New Democratic Party administration of Premier Dave Barrett, is officially known as planning adviser to the British Columbia cabinet.

Colleagues and observers here have other descriptions for this newcomer to B.C. politics.

"Cardinal Richelieu of Victoria," "economic wunderking it all in, but it's obvious grey eminence" are a few examples.

Mr. Eliesen, who peers intently from behind wire-frame glasses in turn framed by a bushy beard and an afro, is both low-keyed and aggressive.

"He sits there quietly, taking it all in, but it's obvious he carries a lot of weight," said one person who has observed top-level meetings involving the 33-year-old Eliesen.

"A very fair person in negotiating. He'll be putting himself in an unpopular position at times in Victoria, but he has considerable finesse, and a high regard for the other person's humanity."

Mr. Barrett, faced with a bureaucracy built up essentially during 20 years of Social Credit government when his party was elected in August, 1972, has stumbled in administering some programs, because civil servants from the old regime were kept on, said Mr. Eliesen.

"Bureaucracies must change when the government changes," he said

British Couples To Get Half Pay

LONDON (CP) — Millions of married couples in Britain will retire on half-pay or more with inflation-proof pensions under legislation just passed by Parliament. The government regards the scheme as one of the most important social advances since the Beveridge reforms paved the way for the welfare state more than 30 years ago.

Immediately after the Social Security Pensions Act became law the social services minister, Barbara Castle, said at a news conference:

"This is a turning point in the social history of Britain. The legislation ends class and sex inequality in social security. It is encouraging that it received unopposed second and third readings in both the Commons and Lords—a most successful example of consensus policies."

The scheme's main aim is to guarantee security in old age by progressively ensuring better pensions for all, ending discrimination against women and giving preferential treatment to the lower-paid and older workers. It will come into operation in April, 1978—the earliest practicable date. The first improved pensions will begin to be paid a year later.

For the first time, every working man and woman in Britain will get a pension based on his or her earnings. Those working now will not have to wait years to benefit. If they retire only a year after it starts, they will draw a better pension.

There also is a new deal for manual workers who pass their earnings peak some years before they retire. In future, pensions will be based on their 20 best-paid years.

In addition, all pensions earned under the scheme will be fully protected against inflation after retirement; the earnings on which they are calculated will be revalued in line with the increase in average national earnings. This means retired workers will get the full benefit of rises in the standard of living which have taken place during their working lives.

Kidnapping and Extortion New Problem for Bankers

OTTAWA (CP) — A sharp increase in the number of armed robberies and kidnappings against Canadian financial institutions has created major security problems for local police forces and a growing concern for the safety of banking personnel and their families.

A Canadian Bankers' Association (CBA) study in Quebec on robberies and related offences in 1974 and the first quarter of 1975 indicates a trend that may mean that one of every three Quebec bank branches will be victimized this year.

Recently a Calgary bank manager paid $247,000 in ransom for the safe return of his 26-year-old wife.

A month earlier two armed men, posing as construction workers, escaped with $9,000 after holding the wife, three-year-old son, five-year-old daughter and brother of a Montreal bank manager as hostages.

About the same time a Royal Bank branch in Montreal turned over $100,000 in cash to a man who claimed to be armed with a suitcase full of explosives.

The Calgary incident prompted Progressive Conservative justice critic Eldon Woolliams to ask in the Commons for a mandatory 10-year sentence without parole privileges for kidnappers.

In an interview Mr. Woolliams, a Calgary criminal lawyer, said he is convinced such penalties would be effective deterrents. Anyone convicted of attempted kidnapping should receive the same treatment as a person convicted of a successful kidnapping.

But the CBA has already taken steps to increase security and protect the families of banking personnel. The organization's immediate reaction to the growth of violent crime against its members was to call on law-enforcement agencies and government for increased co-operation in security procedures.

Bank branches across Canada have worked out a plan of joint action, Michael Ballard, CBA security director, said recently.

In addition, Mr. Ballard said the CBA is considering the possibility of joining with individual bank branches to offer up to $10,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of persons involved in kidnapping-extortion attempts.

He said there were 11 extortion attempts against banks in Quebec during the first six months of this year involving more than $1.5 million.

CBA statistics show that Quebec banks had the greatest number of holdups in 1974 with 288, followed by Ontario with about 140.

In the first quarter of 1975 a total of 219 robberies were reported, 137 of them in Quebec, and by the end of May the number of robberies and related offences in Canada as a whole had grown to 380.

Mr. Ballard said seminars have been arranged with local police and bank branches to teach bank personnel about security problems and to prepare them for the unexpected.

While the wave of kidnapping and extortion attempts has not spread to the nation's capital there have been enough armed robberies in Ottawa to warrant a similar program here, police say.

About seven armed robberies were reported at banks and trust companies to the end of July, plus four attempts in Hull, Que., across the Ottawa River from the capital.

"We haven't had any kidnapping-extortion attempts at Ottawa banks yet, but if they do we're prepared for them," said Armand Soucie, a police staff inspector.

He said police here have developed their own system and banks and the police "keep aware of one another's procedures."

Neurologist Urges End To Electric Shock Use

CHICAGO (AP) — "It's time to put an end to shock treatment," an Oregon neurologist asserts.

Electroshock therapy, widely used in treatment of mental disorders, causes brain damage and sometimes death, and should be abandoned, he argues in the August issue of Psychology Today.

The physician, Dr. John Friedberg, a resident at the University of Oregon school of medicine, says shock treatment "is remarkably widespread, demonstrably ineffective, and clearly dangerous."

It causes brain damage severe and often permanent memory loss, learning disability and disorientation, he contends.

A spokesman for the American Psychiatric Association, Dr. Max Fink, argues that electroconvulsive therapy (ECT) is still the best treatment available for some kinds of illness.

Fink is a professor of psychiatry at State University of New York at Stony Brook and a member of the psychiatrists' association task force recently named to study ECT.

He said in a telephone interview that ECT "has to be looked at with more respect than is being shown by the laity."

The side effects from ECT, he said, are less severe than the effects of drugs used to treat the same disorders.

There are no official figures on use of this therapy, developed in Italy in 1938.

"Since women have traditionally been the victims in our society, it should not be surprising that more than two-thirds of all shock recipients are women," Friedberg says.

The use of shock is encouraged by medical insurance companies and state and federal health and welfare agencies which are more willing to cover the cost of this therapy than less technical-sounding therapies involving the talking out of problems, he said.

Even psychiatrists who make their living from administering shock treatment concede they do not really know how it works, he said.

The equipment for administering this treatment is found in 90 per cent of the country's psychiatric institutions and is commonly found also in prisons and private psychiatric offices, he noted.

The brief application of electric shock induces a convulsive seizure in the patient.

Deaths from shock treatment occur once in every 1,000 patients, in addition to causing severe brain damage, he reports.

Friedberg asserts that continued use of electroshock "perpetuates a long tradition" of inflicting brutal treatments such as lobotomy and psychosurgery on those labelled insane.

Electroshock now is used mostly to treat severely depressed patients and in the past was used with schizophrenics, but is no longer thought to be of much use in treating this disorder.

Friedberg said he is convinced that electroshock has caused as many suicides as it is said to have prevented.

He cites the case of Ernest Hemingway, who committed suicide a month after completing a second series of electroshock treatments at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn.

Warpath of America Attracts Tourists

TICONDEROGA, N.Y. (AP) — On May 10, 1775, Ethan Allen, Benedict Arnold and 83 Green Mountain Boys stormed Fort Ticonderoga overlooking Lake Champlain and captured its sleeping British defenders without firing a shot.

The American Revolution had begun three weeks earlier at Concord and Lexington, but this was the first American victory. "From that point on, there was no turning back," says John H. G. Pell, a wealthy investor and Allen biographer.

Pell's family bought the fort in 1820 and painstakingly reconstructed the French-built stone fortress early in this century.

The fort, open daily from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. through mid-October, offers visitors a 1,000-acre park to stroll through and picnic in. Guided tours, fife and drum corps and drills with authentic cannon are provided in July and August.

Admission is $2 for adults, $1.50 for children 10-13.

The tourist who steps through the stone archway to the fort's courtyard walks on the same ground George Washington and other Revolutionary leaders trod during the war and can see where Allen stood when he roused the British commander and demanded the surrender of the fort "in the name of the Great Jehovah and the Continental Congress." A museum inside the fort displays Revolutionary muskets, swords, powder horns and dramatic paintings of battle scenes.

The fort lies along what one historian called the early "warpath" of America—a series of waterways from Montreal to New York City that includes the Richelieu River, Lake Champlain, Lake George and the Hudson River. French, British and then American forces used these waters.

Opposition Leaders Chalk Up Points

TORONTO (CP) — As the Ontario general election campaign moved into its second-last week today, opposition party leaders could chalk up two major concessions from the governing Conservatives.

Neither Liberal Leader Robert Nixon nor NDP Leader Stephen Lewis was satisfied with the chief weekend move announced by Premier William Davis on issues involved in the run-up to the Sept. 18 voting.

The premier announced after a Sunday night cabinet meeting that a 90-day freeze on gasoline and home-heating oil prices, due to expire Sept. 30, will be extended to Nov. 15 and further action considered for a legislature session which will start Oct. 21 if the Conservatives are returned.

Both the opposition leaders have been pressing for extension of the freeze, but on different bases from the way the cabinet acted.

Mr. Davis's other weekend move was an announcement that the government will create an institute of occupational health to improve health and safety standards in mining and manufacturing, a subject on which Mr. Lewis has been clamoring for action for many months.

Mr. Lewis called the government's gas-oil action "the politics of desperation" and renewed his urging that the freeze—imposed after the federal government authorized oil-price rises in its June budget—should be extended at least for the remainder of this year.

Even then, Mr. Lewis said, no increase should be allowed until the Ontario Energy Board has been given jurisdiction over gasoline and heating-oil prices and has ruled on any proposed increases.

Mr. Nixon also said the board must be given power to control these prices and said that, if elected premier, he would extend the freeze until this power could be legislated. He expected the mechanism could be in effect by the yearend.

Premier Davis said in his announcement that the government expects by about Sept. 24 an interim report from a provincial royal commission studying oil products pricing. It'd determine what action would be proposed to the legislature after the cabinet had studied the report.

"I believe this to be a reasonable and responsible approach by this government in its continuing efforts to safeguard the Ontario economy and protect the Ontario consumer," Mr. Davis said.

Before going into the Sunday night cabinet meeting, Mr. Davis told reporters he finds voter excitement missing from his second general election campaign.

"I don't know whether it's apathy. I don't know whether it's disinterest. But I don't think the excitement is there. And it's a serious election . . . a serious election."

Bourassa Defends Bill 22

MONTREAL (CP) — The Official Language Act was defended by Quebec officials during the weekend while a local radio station's petition opposing the act gathered national support.

Premier Robert Bourassa, Education Minister Jerome Choquette and Solicitor - General Fernand Lalonde all supported the act—also known as Bill 22—which makes French Quebec's official language.

Mr. Choquette, interviewed at suburban Outremont's centennial celebration Saturday, said the language law may not be perfect, but added in a later radio interview that language requirements in Ontario schools were stricter than those in Quebec.

In Ontario, he said, English-speaking students cannot choose to go to a French school.

"Freedom of choice in education is something that is not necessarily a basic fundamental right," he told the radio audience.

"I must say, as a matter of principle, I'm not a believer in freedom of choice."

Candidates Set Record In Newfoundland Race

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — With the Newfoundland election campaign just past the half-way mark, a record number of candidates completed their nomination papers by the official deadline Saturday.

When the voters go to the polls Sept. 16, they wil have a choice of 151 hopefuls, four parties and several independents—more than half again as many candidates as they saw in the 1972 campaign.

Considering the number of parties, potentially there could have been at least another 50 candidates. But only the governing Progressive Conservatives and the opposition Liberals fielded candidates in all 51 ridings.

Former Liberal premier Joseph Smallwood failed in his aim, announced before the election was called, of finding 51 contenders for the new Liberal Reform Party (LRP) and came up with only 28.

On Saturday night, however, he was still predicting a Liberal Reform government with support from the Liberal party he once led for 23 years.

Under Gerald Panting in Pleasantville the NDP fielded 17 candidates.

Altogether, there are four independents, two of them independent Liberals.

Fighting on his government's record and urging Newfoundlanders on to a "voyage of destiny," Premier Frank Moores is opposed in Humber West by the LRP's Geoff Stirling, Fred Basha of the Liberals and Gordon Mullet of the NDP.

Mr. Sirling has been criticized by an NDP candidae and John C. Crosbie, the Conservative fisheries and intergovernmental affairs minister, for using his Newfoundland radio and television stations for political purposes.

But it was still too early to tell whether the premier would join the fray about broadcasting.

Stil campaigning strong at age 74, Mr. Smallwood is opposed in Twillingate by Tom Doyle, the PC rehabilitation and recreation minister who lost his bid earlier this month to be nominated in his Ferryland riding.

The others in Twillingate are Liberal Woodrow J. Philpott, a sea captain and the NDP's Roderick W. Woolridge.

Liberal Leader Ed Roberts, a former health minister under Mr. Smallwood, is opposed by Marlene Maynard, the wife of manpower minister Ed Maynard who is seeking re-election in St. Barbe.

NDP and LRP candidates also seek election in Mr. Roberts' Strait of Belle Isle riding.

Missing from this campaign is the New Labrador Party, which won one seat in 1972 but then lost it when the member resigned, saying he could not afford to represent the far-flung district.

Mr. Panting is campaigning against the PC's Jerome Dinn, Maxwell Dyke of the Liberals and David Owens of the LRP.

An NDP candidate has never been elected in Newfoundland.

Elliott Tykes Advance To All-Ontario Final

Belleville Elliott Motors tykes became the first local squad to advance to the Ontario finals when they eliminated Guelph in two straight games on the weekend in their Ontario Baseball Association semi-final series.

The Belleville Minor Baseball Association all-star team won the series opener 6-1 on a two-hitter by Robbie Revoy and took the second game Sunday by a decisive 17-6 count.

The two clubs battled through three-and-one-half scoreless innings Saturday before Bradley Gray put Belleville on the scoreboard with a solo shot in the bottom of the fourth. That was just the start. The Elliott's added four more runs in the bottom of the fifth and another in the sixth.

Guelph ruined Revoy's shutout bid in the top of the sixth with their only marker.

Andy Balyx collected a pair of singles and Robert Boombower, Bill Harvey, Sean Boombower, Trevor Powell and Revoy each singled once. Revoy fanned three and gave up only one walk in earning the victory.

Sunday was a completely different story. Belleville jumped into a 4-0 lead in the first inning and never looked back. They scored one in the second, five in the third, one in each of the next two and five more in the sixth.

Powell led the 18 hit onslaught of the Elliott crew with a triple, a double and a single. Dave Coughlin and Balyx punched out three singles apiece and Jim Cook and Sean and Robert Boomhower each singled twice. Revoy tripled and Gray and Harvey singled once each.

Robert Boombower struck out four batters in taking the win and issued no free bases.

The locals have a long wait before the start of the final. A winner in the Sarnia-Essex series has to be decided and then the winner must playoff against Brampton before the other finalist is decided.

Pepper and Pascoe Put Melrose In Front

How do you feel when you're throwing a no-hitter and losing 1-0? John Pepper would be one pitcher who could answer that question.

In Sunday's South Hastings Baseball League final series opener, Pepper had shut Latta out for five straight innings and then in the bottom of the sixth, the home squad scored a run on two consecutive errors.

Pepper wasn't in the hole long though as rookie Terry Pascoe came to the plate in the top of the seventh, smashed a two-run double, gave Melrose a 2-1 win and a 1-0 lead in their best-of-seven final.

Latta, league pennant winners, had chosen to load the bases with two out to get to Pascoe, the youngest of four Pascoes playing for the Melrose club. The move didn't quite turn out as planned, however, as the rookie pounded the ball into a hole and put Pepper back on top.

The Melrose pitcher continued to blank the opposition in the hit column and ended up with a one-run, no-hitter, striking out six and walking two.

Dale Bamber was the loser fanning five, walking two and giving up five hits.

Glen McMeachan, Larry Pascoe, Hugh Brennan and Scott McLaren were the other batters to collect safeties in the contest.

The second game of the series will be played at 6.15 Tuesday night at Melrose.

Squirts Win It The Hard Way

Some good news and some bad news in Ontario Amateur Softball Association action on the weekend.

First the good news. Belleville Kinsmen squirts together a three run rally in the first extra inning of their contest here Saturday and won the opening game of their series with Scarborough Cedar Hill 7-6.

Now the bad news. Belleville SACO peewees bowed out of OASA playoffs in two straight games to Cedar Hill. They travelled to Scarborough Saturday and dropped a 10-3 decision to the home squad in the second contest.

Bobby Turner and Allan Thompson were the two hurlers for the local squirts. They combined to fan 12, walk five and give up 10 hits.

It was a hard earned victory as the locals fell behing 3-0 in the first inning. They caught the visitors with two in the fourth and two more in the seventh, after Cedar Hill had scored one in the top of the seventh. That sent the game into an extra inning.

It appeared to be all over for Belleville after Scarborough had scored two runs in the top of the eighth, but the locals bounced right back with three of their own in the bottom of the inning to earn the win.

Dennis Tam was tops at the plate for the Kinsmen with three singles while Bill Curry and Stephen Smith collected two each.

John Munkittrick struck out eight and gave up no walks and added two singles to the peewees' attack, but even his efforts weren't enough to give SACO the win. Teammates Mike Miller had a homerun and Jeff Soule a pair of singles as the local peewees were eliminated from further OASA action.

MacDonald Wins One-of-a-Kind Race

The fifth annual 'One of a Kind Regatta" was held on a course near the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club Saturday, with over 34 boats competing in the event.

Despite strong southwest winds, gusting to 25 miles per hour, boats from Division One and Division Two completed the race.

Boats in Division One raced 10 miles around the set course, while boats in the second division raced five miles, since they were smaller (centreboard).

The overall winner was Dandy the Lion, a boat from the second division, skippered by Donald MacDonald of Trenton. With the win, went the Canadian Hanson Trophy, presented by BQYC commodore Arnold Duffy.

Winner of the first division was Bibis, sailed by Dr. Arthur Mustard of Belleville. Second went to Atataq, with Rod Follwell the skipper and third was Vennegents, with Sam Venn of Oshawa at the helm.

In the second division Dandy the Lion was winner. Second went to Laser, sailed by Peter Cox of Belleville. In third was Turtle, with 16-year-old Mike Thompson the skipper.

Bradley Gray, Belleville Elliott Motors tyke, crosses the plate in the first game of the Ontario Baseball Association semi-final series against Guelph on Saturday. Gray broke a scoreless game open in the bottom of the fourth inning with a solo home run. John Feduzzi, Guelph Optimist catcher, may have had more of a chance of tagging Gray, but the relay from the outfield was a little short and Feduzzi bobbled the ball. Belleville went on to defeat Guelph 6-1 in this contest and won the second game of the series on Sunday to advance to the all-Ontario finals.

Unbelievable, But All for Good Cause

By TOM GAVEY
Staff Sportswriter

"You had to see it to believe it," commented one spectator at the Quinte Umpires-Belleville Yardmen Girls Benefit Fund match. He couldn't have summed it up any better as all sorts of oddities took place in the seven inning affair.

The two teams actually played regulation ball for three innings before BYBF pitcher Shirley Gulliver threw a grapefruit instead of a softball at batter John Emerson. Emerson made good contact, but the grapefruit ended up in Carol McFarlane's (the BYBF catcher) lap. After that it was every man, or woman, for themselves.

When the dust had cleared on an otherwise normal Sunday afternoon, the umpires had defeated the girls 12-11 in nine innings.

What was more important to all who participated was that the proceeds of the match were well over what organizers had hoped. All the funds went to Shirley and Bruce Nickle, to help pay for medical costs recently incurred.

Judy Pultz, BYBF team captain presented a dozen roses to Mrs. Nickle on behalf of the girls' team. Vern Whalen, umpire in chief, acting for his organization, presented Bruce Nickle with a softball, signed by all the players.

That was the cue for the game to begin.

The umpires won the toss and were the home team. They held the BYBF team to one run in the first inning.

Things got going for the Umpires in the bottom of that frame as Wayne Brown stepped up and smashed a homer for his club. The only problem was he forgot to touch third base on his way around. An observant Donna Preston took the firts opportunity to touch the bag and Brown was called out by plate umpire Mike Whalen Sr.

That's an indication of the way things went for the umps, as John Linfield cracked a four bagger in the third and was called out for not touching first base.

Brown got back at the girls in the next inning as he hit a solo shot and touched every base as he went around.

Sandra Claus, Sue Morton and Shirley Gulliver shared the BYBF loss.

The win was taken by Bruce Nickle and Vern Whalen.

Brown led the umps with two homers and three singles, while Soup Campbell had three singles. John Linfield homered and doubled and Vern Whalen colleted a pair of doubles.

For the girls, Sheila Alexander had four hits while Carol McFarlane duplicated that feat.

Errors for both teams were too numerous to count.

Oh yes, one of the reasons the umpires may have won was that in the final inning they put 12 players on the field and the officials were "looking the other way".

Over 600 tickets were sold for the game and a number of local merchants contributed prizes to be drawn at the game.

To further defer costs for the Nickles, a challenge series has been set up between Black Diamond, champions of the Belleville Industrial Softball League, and Bayview Orchards, winners of the Prince Edward North Shore League championship.

Half of the proceeds from this series will go to the Nickles.

First game of the series will be Tuesday night in Ameliasburg. The next two will be played at the Alemite.

Portuguese Lend a Hand

Hellenic and Olympics Hanging Tough in Race

Belleville Olympics and Quinte Hellenic got some unexpected assistance on the weekend as they battled to stay in contention for first place honors in the Eastern Ontario Premier Soccer League.

Olympics earned a come from behind 2-2 tie in Kingston Sunday, against the Italo-Canadians after Hellenic had nipped Toronto Ferma, Saturday, in Toronto, 2-1.

But the big news came Sunday when Peterborough Vi-Mars, with a golden opportunity to take over sole possession of first place in the standings, bowed 3-2 to fifth place Kingston Portuguese.

The Peterborough loss, coupled with Ital-Canadians' split in points, created a tie for top spot between the two clubs. Each has nine points but the Kingston side has four games left to play to only two for Peterborough.

Right on the heels of the leaders are Olympics with eight points (three games left) and Hellenic with seven points (three to play). Portuguese is next in line with six points while Ferma has five. Those teams also have three games left in the regular schedule.

Olympics became the first team to take a point from Italo-Canadians in Kingston this season as the Belleville side rebounded from a poor start to pull out the tie.

It wasn't until the final 25 minutes of play that Olympics got on the score sheet. And that scoring play came as the result of a move by coach John Oneill who moved defender Bob Watson to the centre forward position.

Shortly after the switch, Watson trimmed Italo's lead to 2-1, connecting with a left-foot drive which sent the ball high into the net and lifted the Belleville team.

With 15 minutes to play, Zdravko Fundic fired the equalizer and Olympics pressed for the winner to no avail.

In Toronto, Hellenic also showed the ability to overcome early adversity by giving up the first goal in a strong defensive battle. John Prionis put Hellenic on even terms and later in the first half, Dave Langman capped a great individual rush with the winner.

The teams battled through a scoreless second half.

Helen Everard represents Clayton's TV, champions of the intermediate section of the Belleville Minor Softball Association girl's division, as she accepts trophy from Alderman George Zegouras. Turnout for closing day was largest ever.

QER Completing Big Season

It's been a year of quiet success for the Quinte Exhibition Raceway. In the beginning there was much ado as to whether or not Belleville's track would even operate.

The governing bodies of racing in the province had demanded the track step up a class from C to B. In accordance with the change in classification it would be necessary to purchase new, more efficient, wagering and odds equipment. The track would also have to improve its stable conditions and lighting facilities. The lights would have to be such that they would accommodate television cameras for video-tape recorders — also a stipulation in the change of classification.

Whether all the expenses could be met was one question, but the Quinte Exhibition Raceway body was faced with yet another question.

With the anticipated site of the new bridge connecting Belleville to Prince Edward County (across the Bay of Quinte) would there even be a race track? Originally there was talk of the new arch becoming an extension of Sidney Street. If that was the case, certain modifications to Sidney could very well interfere with the position, even wipe the track out completely.

With all the odds against them, the raceway's governing body decided the track was too important a cultural and recreational facility for the local community to do without. Thus, the QER jumped head first into another season.

"We really didn't know what to expect when the season opened," said raceway manager, Ev Gowsell, "but we felt we should try."

As it has turned out, the foresight of those involved in making the decision was almost uncanny.

The track is just now concluding its most successful year. The mutuel handle is up an average of $6,000-7,000 a night and attendance has increased approximately 200 people per night. Along with those figures, the raceway has lost only one night due to rain and Gowsell expects it will be made up at the end of the season. (Tentative date for the makeup night is September 19.) In previous years, the raceway lost three or four nights due to rain and at $5,000 a night that cut deeply into their budget. (The $5,000 is what the raceway has to dish out regardless of the weather.)

"We're very pleased with the season," said Gowsell, "the tremendous upswing in the mutuel and rise in attendance has convinced us that the raceway is necessary to the community."

Now that the bridge site has been established and there is no longer any worry about the future of the track, Gowsell feels the local oval will be able to pay for the required equipment and improvements in the foreseeable future; even though the total cost is estimated at $100,000.

"If the upswing continues," he said, "and I feel it will, we'll meet all B class require-

Girls' Closing Day

Largest Crowd Ever on Hand

The Belleville Girls. Minor Softball Association held their wrap-up day at the Alemite Saturday, with a crowd of well over 600 players, coaches, and spectators on hand to take in the presentations and an exhibition game between the coaches and a team of senior all-stars.

In the match preceding the presentations, the coaches managed a victory by a narrow margin.

Little Misses took home a pair of trophies for their pennant and league championship wins in the Junior division. They defeated Dairy Queen to take the title.

In the Intermediates, Clayton's TV also took double honors, winning the league championship over Belleville Conductors.

AVCO Finance won the Senior League championship with a win over Stirling Sheet Metal, but the Stirling team tok the pennant.

Judy Kingsman, of Little Misses, was chosen Most Valuable Player in the Junior division, while Lynn Lucas of Union Carbide was Intermediate MVP.

A tie in the senior category resulted in AVCO's Brenda Preston and Heather Carleton, of Stirling Sheet Metal sharing the award.

A special sportsmanlike award was made to seven members of the Mel Barriage team, of the senior division. The seven came out to all of the team's games throughout the summer, although after the first game of the year, which they won, they couldn't come up with another victory.

The seven honored were Wendy Pringle, Patty Pearce, Luanne Conley, Jenene Haley, Carol Beddie, Brenda Harvey, and Heather McGowan.

The crowd on hand was the largest ever for a Girls' closing day ceremony.

Evert Includes Balancing Act in Routine

Bring on Pirates — Bench

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Chalking up another victory en route to the National League's West Division baseball title was a breeze. The tough part was sitting in the locker room, waiting for the telephone to ring.

And when it finally did, the flag officially belonged to the Cincinnati Reds.

They'd clinched a tie for the crown Sunday with an 8-4 victory over San Francisco Giants, a romp led by George Foster's four runs batted in.

An hour or so later, the tie was broken. The phone rang and the word came through that Atlanta Braves had beaten second-place Los Angeles Dodgers 5-4.

In other National League games Sunday, Pittsburgh Pirates remained 5½ games on top in the East by shutting out Montreal Expos 6-0, St. Louis Cardinals beat New York Mets 12-4, Chicago Cubs beat Philadelphia Phillies 6-4 and Houston Padres 3-2.

Saturday, the Reds edged San Francisco 3-2, Atlanta beat Los Angeles 3-2, St. Louis defeated New York 6-3, Chicago beat Philadelphia 7-6, Pittsburgh whipped Montreal 12-5 and San Diego edged Houston 2-1.

"We want Pittsburgh," the Reds' Johnny Bench shouted when word of the title clinching came through and the chant spread throughout the clubhouse as quickly as the champagne-and-beer shower. "We're number one! Beat the East!"

Cincinnati pitcher Don Gullett, 13-3, won his ninth consecutive game in a string that included nine weeks of inaction due to a broken thumb. "Everyone thought we would fall back when Don got hurt but we opened up light on the league," said Rose. 'We need him, but we are going to win."

Marty Perez' two-out tie-breaking single in the ninth inning gave the Braves their victory and officially made Los Angeles an also-ran.

"It has to be our biggest disappointment, coming off last year," said the Dodgers' Steve Yeager, reflecting on the 1974 team that made it into the World Series against Oakland.

First-inning homers by Al Oliver and Dave Parker and Jerry Reuss' four-hit pitching carried Pittsburgh past the Expos. Art Howe added a three-run double in the eighth to wipe out the slightly bitter taste of hitting into a triple play.

Ted Simmons drove in four runs with three singles and Mike Tyson added a three-run homer in the victory that kept the second-place Cardinals within striking distance of Pittsburgh and dropped the fourth-place Mets 7½ games off the pace.

20 Five Times For the Catfish

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jim (Catfish) Hunter, chivalrous and humble, said he owes it all to his supporting cast. It's hard to believe that Hunter, either the fisherman or the pitcher, has ever cast a longer line or told a taller tale.

Hunter, the most consistent pitcher in baseball in the 1970s, Sunday joined a couple of immortals from yesteryear by winning his 20th game for the fifth consecutive year. Only Hall of Famers Walter Johnson and Lefty Grove had five in a row in the American League before.

"It feels great, but I owe it to the teams behind me," said Hunter, who turned in the A's green and gold for the Yankee pinstripes and got a lot of green and gold for doing it. "To Oakland for the first four seasons, and to the Yankees this year. A pitcher is only as good as his team."

Indeed, Hunter had four 20-game seasons with the A's, world champions the past three years, but then he did it again this year with the Yankees, who are merely a .500 ball club.

The Yankees beat Baltimore Orioles 2-0 Sunday behind Hunter's six-hitter.

Elsewhere in the AL Sunday, Kansas City Royals beat California Angels 8-7 in 11 innings, Oakland beat Texas Rangers 4-1 and 7-3, Cleveland Indians took a pair from Detroit Tigers, 7-2 and 9-0, Boston Red Sox beat Milwaukee Brewers 6-3, then lost 7-3, and Minnesota Twins defeated Chicago White Sox 9-1.

On Saturday, Boston embarrassed Milwaukee with a 20-6 win while Cleveland beat Detroit 4-2, Baltimore defeated New York 7-6, Oakland beat Texas 2-1, Chicago defeated Minnesota 5-2 and Kansas City beat California 4-3 and 6-3.
